Little George Mims, as he was familiarly known, passed away on July 8th about 8 o'clock. The remains were placed in Cedar Grove cemetery, Spigener in charge, and Rev. M. J. Parrish conducting the funeral. He was 88 years old, leaves a wife and 8 children living and two dead.

He was a hard working man; he provided well for his family. He always tried to help others both by his earthly means and by advice. He taught his children to be honest and never to take anything that was not theirs. When he loaned money he would say, "I don't care for interest." He was never too tired to help his neighbors; never too sleepy to go and doctor his neighbor's sick horse. He helped widow women and orphan children by means and advice. He loved children.

In his young days he owned a cotton gin; he tried to please his customers. He owned a large number of horses and cattle; made them a good master. He lodged preachers when he was able to; carried his family to church and taught them to go up near the front.

Mr. Mims was sick about one year and four months. When we told him we hated to give him up he said he hated to leave us all, but that he had about as many loved ones up yonder as he had here. He said his children, grand children and great grand children had been so good and kind to him. He remembered the kind deeds of his nephews, nieces, his neighbors and his loving wife who was so faithful and untiring.

We hope to meet him where there will be no more good byes, in that heavenly home.—From one who loved Him.

Hon. J. Osmond Middleton and Mrs. Middleton, of Montgomery, visited friends and relatives in Clanton last week.

Conservation and Paper-Making

We understand that much of the work being done in reforestation is the planting of pine trees. We have been informed that these small trees will grow large enough in 7 years to be used to advantage for paper pulp. We copy herewith a short article in the Christian Sun by Cleo E. Wallace in reference to paper making:

A Piece of Paper

There is more behind a piece of paper than I thought. I went thru the Southern Kraft mill in Camden, Arkansas. It is a five-million dollar plant employing hundreds of men. Its raw material is pine timber, and its finished product fine paper. Modern machinery grinds up the wood, dissolves it into pulp in acid liquor, and carries it through the many steps of the process which ends in a huge roll of good quality paper. The hum of all of this machinehy is perplexing to a man who is uninitiated in its mysteries. But it works to a designed end beyond my understanding. I could not write a description of the plant which would serve as a blueprint to reproduce it. But I know it was not accident—it did not just happen. What great things have the minds and hands of man wrought! Consider the workings of a modern printing establishment, which takes the finished product of a paper mill and carries it to the climax of the printed sheet. It is an intelligent trip from a pine log to a great daily, which can not be explained by accident. What about the pine trees and the man who transforms them into the bearer of printed intelligence? Did the earth with its mountains and rivers and manifold wonders: the heavens peopled with sun, moon and stars beyond number, and God knows what else; the laws of motion, being operated with such uncanny accuracy —did all this come by chance without a Supreme Intelligent Designer? Believe it who can, but he is not entitled to sympathy if he is taken for a fool. Any intelligence supreme enough to be such a designer is Supreme enough to be Almighty God. The proposition that God is should not tax the chedulity of rational men. The mind must have a vast background of wickedness which can reason God out of the universe. "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." (P. 14:1.)

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

Garden Contest Begins

The teacher of agriculture is sponsoring another garden contest, which is to end October 20th. There will be two groups; the school boys, who live in and around Clanton, and any boys or adult farmers living in the training school community. The prizes which are to be given will not be disclosed at present, but it is certain that some handsome tokens will be offered. You who are interested, it is your purpose to manure your garden plots heavily, and thoroughly pulverize your soil. These two steps are necessary in fall garden.

The following is a list of a few vegetables suggested for planting: cabbage, collards, Irish potatoes, turnips, mustard, tender greens, rutabagas, spinach, radish, carrots, beets, bean, (lima or snap) parsley and onions. More information will be given in a later issue.

Local Rising Star Society Celebrates

The local Rising Star Society held its first annual turn-out last Sunday With Rev. N. C. Sheppard preaching the anniversary sermon.

It is eagerly hoped that our people will join in to make this organization worthwhile. Such societies are very helpful to us when patronized. Let's give them a hand.

Cotton For Hay

Many farmers have asked me if cotton would make good hay. Now, this is one time you had better use good judgment. This question has never come up before, because it is the first time southern farmers have agreed to destroy any cotton. Therefore, agriculturists don't have any definite experiments on such a crop. I would suggest that you plow under or absolutely destroy your cotton in some way and plant cow peas for hay. This will eliminate a lots of other trouble that may culminate in carrying out your contracts.

Don't Let It Pass

It has come to me that the R. F. C. folks around Clanton aren't accepting the opportunity given them to can vegetables. If ever there was a reflection on us this is unmistakably a big one. If you don't have the vegetables to can, go around and get them from your neighbors. In many cases our white friends will be glad to give us a few beans, tomatoes or something of the kind. Don't sit around and let this opportunity slip. Wake up folks and do something for yourself. These vegetables will be greatly needed before six months will have passed. Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, R. F. C. Worker, and Miss Ruth Pardue are ready to help you, if you show your appreciation by rallying to the cause. Remember that "A Helping Hand is Not Helped When it Helps One to Become Helpless."—Benjamin Anderson.

O. W. Dennis of Tallassee was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday. He says textile employees at Tallassee are feeling fine over the "New Deal."

Don't you find it hard to meet expenses?

Hard! Man alive! I meet expenses at every turn.

Pyron Family Are Not Paupers

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me a small space in your paper to inform the people in Chilton County, far and near, that daddy and I are not paupers?

Our names were in the treasurers report in The Union-Banner as paupers until arrangements could be made to put us in almshouse. Now there's not a word of truth in it. We are not paupers and never have been. Not one by the name of Pyron ever was.

T. M. Pyron is in his 79th year and has been living in Chilton County over 58 years and no name in Chilton County has been more widely known than the name of T. M. Pyron.

Concerning the question of this warrant for $8.00 to Tom Pyron and Martha Pyron for support of paupers until arrangements can be made to put them in almshouse. Now, this is the question, who gave Dr. Ezell the authority to put in application to Chilton County for support for daddy and me? We say he absolutely did not. I wrote a letter to Judge Reynolds asking him who put in the application. He answered and said Dr. Ezell. So I wrote Dr. Ezell when he returned home, asking him about it, also returned the warrant to him. I asked him not to turn the warrant in until he found out who took the authority to use our names as paupers. So he wrote us a letter stating that he turned in the warrant and they cancelled it. Stating L. H. Reynolds said it was just a slip that came in through the report of the social workers. It was just made out that way by the clerk.

Now who gave the social workers, the clerk or Dr. Ezell the authority? If any one can answer that, come on. Some persons appear to feel they were doing us a great favor in sending in T. M. Pyron's and Martha Pyron's names as paupers. When, if the truth is known they danced a jig of perfect relief as soon as they heard we had left Clanton. We have been back down there and coming again. We have a free pass any where.

And we want to say further that there has never been anything published in the Clanton Papers that surprised the people in Chilton County and elsewhere, as to see our names as paupers. Speaking well of my daddy's children. Yes. Also the daughter and sister where we now live, Mrs. H. B. Fulton's home. Hope some day one and all will understand and take notice.—T. M. and M. E. Pyron, 429 S. 37St., Bessemer, Alabama.

PLANS VITAL TO T.V.A. WORK

Proper Planning Is Necessary Preliminary To Development of The Tennessee Valleey

The necessity of proper planning as a preliminary to achieving the full objectives of the Tennessee river basin development is comprehensively set forth in the following statement by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority charged with that program:

"The amount of careful work that must go into the planning of a project like that at Cove Creek is only vaguely sensed by the public. The Cove Creek Dam, now planned as one of the dams of the country, would have been the highest dam in the world twenty years ago. The reservoir will be one of the world's greatest artificial lakes. Rarely has such a vast quantity of water been stored behind such a high dam. Any flaw would cause such great damage that the structure must be planned with utmost caution.

"One of the best designed dams in America is the great Boulder Canon Dam on the Colorado river. The public will never realize the painstaking work expended on that design. For instance, the heat generated by the settling of the huge mass of cement may be so great as to weaken and endanger the safety of the dam. Therefore, a great system of cooling pipes was devised to lower the temperature of the cement. This, in turn, made it necessary to do extensive work in careful chemical study of the materials at every cement factory within shipping distance, and to invent new types of cement of great strength but which will not overheat.

"This is just one of the many problems that had to be solved. The same staff of engineers that planned the Boulder Canon Dam is now at work on the plans for the Cove Creek Dam. Every effort is being made to secure rapid progress. The directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority are proceeding with the utmost expedition consistent with ultimate safety of the work. They have taken every advantage of the comprehensive preparatory work done by the Army Engineers and are now engaged in studying all problems connected with the project.

"As is customery in preparation for dam construction, a survey has been made of the railroad grade to the Cove Creek site, and estimates of cost are about complete. In addition, surveys for a highway were begun after the board was organized a month ago, and are not yet finished. A study is now being made of the cost of hauling materials by truck to Knoxville compared with the expense of building and operating a railroad. A truck highway may be cheaper. We will know shortly.

"The purpose of the Tennessee Valley Authority is to help in the general, all-round, permanent development of this region. Aside from planning and building public works, it hopes to encourage the development of small industries in the small towns in the hill region. To accomplish this it plans to enlist the help of men from the small towns in building the dam; and while they are working on the dam it is hoped they may be shown how to carry on some industries back in their home towns by competent professional training. These local activities inevitably will largely increase the prosperity of the larger cities which primarily are supported by the agricultural and industrial life of the Tennessee river region.

"As is well known, the Tennessee Valley Authority is planning to transmit cheap power to the smaller communities. But this service will have little value if the people in these communities lack the facilities to utilize it. A man in a small town fifty miles away cannot afford to send to Knoxville or Chattanooga for an electrician to wire his house. There should be a neighbor living in his own home town who is able to do that. The same is true of other skills necessary to round out the full, comfortable social and industrial life of these communities.

"The most important point to be understood is this: The Tennessee Valley Authority is not primarily an emergency employment relief measure. In its various programs the United States Government has provided about five billion dollars to overcome the depression. A considerable proportion of this sum is to be spent in the Tennessee Valley by various other agencies of the Government. Only one per cent, roughly speaking, was allocated to the Tennessee Valley Authority. The money should be used as far as consistent to relieve unemployment. But that is not the main purpose. The main purpose is to make the business and social life of the farms and small towns permanently prosperous, to get the help of the young people in training competent folk to carry on the small industries and to add to the capacities of the old and young to enjoy their lives where they were born. It is a pioneer job requiring the pioneer spirit and the pioneer patriotism of those who originally peopled the valley almost two hundred years ago. The historic origin of the people, and their sturdy, independence of character, as well as the great natural wealth of the valley, and its ideal geographical relation to the rest of the continent, led the nation to place the responsibility for the success of this undertaking on the Americans of the Tennessee river basin.

"The consciousness that these rich potentialities are dormant here has caused the nation to provide the funds for a demonstration of a better industrial, agricultural and social life that will be a shining example for the inspiration and education of the whole country."

CHURCH GIVES PASTOR A WATCH AND CHAIN

The members of Refuge Church made their pastor, Rev. M. Lockhart, a present of a watch and chain on Sunday, July 23rd. Rev. Lockhart asks The Union-Banner to express his thanks to his people for the present. "Nothing at anything near the price could have been appreciated more," said the young preacher.

Jokingly someone said that his congregation gave him the watch merely that he might be able to tell when to quit preaching, but we are sure that a higher motive was involved. Any way the preacher is awfully elated over the present as well as the thoughtfulness of the members in giving it.

BEEKEEPING EQUIPMENTS

Last week I attempted to inform my friends beginning beekeeping as to the principal races of the honeybee, their qualities and habits. This week I should like to discuss the matter of equipment for the beginner. May I state here that I shall compose my letters each time in accord with the various inquiries made of me in logical sequence. I shall appreciate my beekeeping friends and readers, suggestions as to how I may make these articles most helpful and attractive.

First there is the question relating to the "hive" or dwelling place of the honeybee. I regret to learn that some people seem to regard this matter as of little importance. It is rather of tremendous importance, just as much so as proper housing conditions for stock and poultry. If one prefers to keep bees for comb honey for either table use or the market, it is well worth his time to invest a small sum in "box sections" (usually measuring 4-1|4x4-1|4x1-7|8 inches, beeway style) for both convenience and appearance. The average price of the sections is about a cent a piece. An eight-frame super holds 24 sections while the ten-frame holds 32. In the way of parentheses, I will venture to say that I find a better market for the sectioned comb honey than extracted. However, if one prefers to go in for extracted honey thereby saving his combs for further use in the hive or for beeswax, by all means, insist upon movable frames for salable honey even though yo do not care to use same for the brood chamber of the hive. Yet, I find it far wiser to use movable frames for both the supers and brood chambers in putting out extracted honey. To put out extracted honey, it is necessary that one use an extracting machine, otherwise the honey is classed as "strained" honey. An argument of great weight in favor of extracted honey over strained honey is that the former is more sanitary—the hands not contacting with the honey itself. Strange as it may seem, there are yet many people who consider both classes of honey the same thing. Fortunately this is not the case. Now if you are unable to buy an individual extractor, why not arrange to extract your honey by using the machine of a beeman who does own one?

Besides the exclusive adoption of movable frame hives for both comb and extracted honey—though using box sections in supers where comb honey is produced—whereby the beeman avoids waste of honey by prying slats and braces, oftimes drowning hundreds of bees and agonizing the remaining ones, let us consider some other equipment. Have a tool kit consisting of viel, hive tool, beebrush, a few varying sized nails and a hammer. This kit may be carried from hive to hive. Of course the smoker is always necessary.

I do not wish to enter upon an advertising campaign for any beekeeping concern, but there are several good publications which will prove valuable and attractive to a beginning beekeeper. Also there are several beekeeping supply houses who carry a complete stock of apiary supplies. Our county farm agent, I am sure, will cooperate with you in securing information of better beekeeping. There are several government bulletins devoted exclusively to beekeeping. I shall gladly furnish any interested beeman information concerning publications and supplies if he will either see me or write me fully. —Walter M. Johnson, Jemison, Ala.

NEW REGULATION FOR R.F.C. WORK

No More Relief Aid After Present Funds Are Exhausted

At their regular session last Friday the Commissioners Court of Chilton County adopted by resolution several regulations in regard to Relief Administration Workers in this county. One of these regulations provides for a five hour day for all R.F.C. workers Further, workmen are urged to use their leisure time in some worthwhile manner, because it is inferred that when the present relief funds are exhausted there will be no further unemployment aid.

The regulation adopted by the commissioners reads as follows:

"WHEREAS, the Alabama Relief Administration has embodied in its recovery program certain regulations instituted by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, among which are the following requirements and suggestions:

1. That a work day of five hours be used, counting only actual time on the job and not counting the time going to and from the job, nor lunch time, nor rest periods.

2. Every workman will be expected to produce the best work possible under the plan adopted, and every foreman will be expected to get money's worth in labor for the expenditures.

3. That every workman on relief shall devote his additional leisure time to some worthwhile project in self advancement, such as, gardening, food preservation, home improvements, agricultural and vocational, education, health work, literacy classes, etc.

As no further relief funds will be provided, we urge that all of our citizens secure employment and make the most of their resources by canning foods and be prepared to sustain themselves when the present relief funds are exhausted.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, that we adopt and approve the foregoing regulations and suggestions and we urge that the workmen and the foremen employed in relief work comply fully with these requirements.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR COOPERS

Freight Cars Piled In Heap Beside Tracks. No One Killed or Injured

A fast southbound freight train on the L. & N. was wrecked a mile south of Cooper station last Saturday afternoon. About a dozen cars, most of which were loaded with coal, jumped the track and piled up in a heap.

The wreck was caused by a brake rod dropping down and hanging into the cross-ties of the track. About forty lengths of rail and ties were torn up. Tom Lowe, of Montgomery, was conductor in charge of the train. None of the crew were hurt. There were many hoboes on the train. So far as is known, none of them were hurt.

One of the wrecked cars was loaded with steel railroad rails. These came in handy to replace the track that was torn up. Wrecking crews from both Birmingham and Montgomery came to the scene. It took them until midnight Saturday to get the track open so trains could pass. Many passenger trains were held up at Clanton, Coopers, and Verbena for several hours.

Almost exactly fourteen years ago to a day a similar wreck happened at the same spot, when several hoboes were killed.

Randolph Tye, the husband of the woman, and Gilbert Jackson, a negro preacher, have both been placed under arrest for the shooting.

The negro woman first told that she was fooling with the pistol and shot herself accidently, but it is now related that Jackson and Tye were scuffling over the pistol on the porch of the Tye home, about one mile north of Thorsby, when the fatal bullet was fired. It is told that Randolph had already fired one shot at Gilbert and was again attempting to shoot him when Anna in trying to prevent her husband's shooting Jackson was shot herself. The pistol Tye had was an old Spanish revolver.

Governor Miller and Party Guests At Blue Creek Camp Near Verbena

Governor B. M. Miller, Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Turner and Col. W. P. Shirley, were guests of Verbena friends last Wednesday night. The visit of these distinguished guests was celebrated with a round of appropriate and interesting social courtesies.

After being entertained in the early evening at the home of Mr. Sid Gibson, the Governor's party were honor guests at an old-fashioned dance at Charles Gulledge's Blue Creek Camp on Lake Mitchell. According to the Governor's own statement, the party enjoyed every moment spent with the Verbena and Clanton people at this unique affair.

Many young people present had never seen a square "set" before. But the many couples of the "other days" showed them how the performance was rendered. After a few "lessons" everybody, young and old, joined in the "reel" with remarkable dextrity and thorough enjoyment.

About ten old-time fiddlers and guitar players and "set callers" of the by-gone days were on hand. In a musical way it may be said that the contributions of these people fully assured the success of the occasion.

Governor Miller took part in the event as a regular Alabama citizen. He was gracious and friendly with everybody. He was not called upon to make a speech. Every person present enjoyed him and his party.

A perfect moon came up from across the placid waters of Lake Mitchell and added perfect natural beauty to the delightful setting of Charles Gulledge's well-appointed retreat.

Two radio entertainers, the Misses Rainers, of Verbena, gave several vocal numbers, accompanied by Miss Lila Sheppard.

Many of the prominent citizens of Chilton County were present. There was not room enough in the hall to accomodate the crowd. The dance was given for a civic benefit.

LARGE NUMBER OF MEN RE-EMPLOYED

The Relief Administration of Chilton County now has on its payroll about 1,500 men. Of this number around 800 were put back to work last week after having been cut off for some time, due to the lack of funds. These men were reemployed from the funds that have been provided by the recent acceptance of the Federal Aid Plan by the county commissioners through the payment of $2,500 per month of the county's gasoline tax. The acceptance of this plan has made available in this county $25,600 to be expended during August and September for unemployment relief.

About 500 new applications for work have been filed within the last week at Miss Austin's office. Miss Mary Ellis and Miss Icie Bell Cobern, two field workers have been put back to work to help with investigations of new applicants.

NEGRO SAVED BY SOLICITOR

Winston Huddleston Outtalked Angry Mob At Deatsville

Hon. Winston Huddleston, who is the Solicitor of this judicial Circuit, saved a negro from the hands of an angry mob at Deatsville last Thursday.

A 28-year-old negro hobo by the name of George Smith, attacked J. P. Montgomery, 60-year-old L. & N. freight train conductor at Deatsville Thursday after the conductor had ordered the negro to move on up closer to the engine. The negro beat the conductor over the head and hurled him from the train just as it was pulling out of Deatsville.

Solicitor Huddleston and three other men were sitting on the proch of a store near the railway when they saw the negro beating a man who later proved to be the conductor. When the negro jumped from the train and attempted to flee, the solicitor and his companions jumped into a car and gave pursuit. After a chase by foot over a cemetery and a field, the negro was caught.

As the party were driving by the post office in Deatsville a shouting mob met them. Pistols and shotguns were brandished, and cries of "We don't like the Scottsboro and Tuscaloosa justice!" were heard. The mob demanded that the negro be released to them, but after much persuasion the Solicitor was able to out talk the mob and drive away with the negro.

At the doctor's office, where the negro was carried for identification by the injured conductor, another mob was encountered, but here, too, the Solicitor was able to get away with the negro.

The negro was turned over to Sheriff John Golden of Elmore County who placed him in jail at Wetumpka on a charge of assault to murder.

The conductor, who was a native of Deatsville, received two deep gashes on the head and face when the negro attacked him.

MITCHELL DAM EMPLOYEES ENJOY OUTING UP RIVER

Headed by Supt. J. L. Hollis, fifteen employees of Mitchell Dam, together with a few invited guests, went up the river a few miles last Saturday afternoon and enjoyed three or four hours frolicing and enjoying the freedom of life just as they pleased. It was a stag party, made up the river on the large self-propelled barge, and after the site was reached and the craft anchored, the first indulgence was a swim in the river. Some wore suits and some none, just as they liked. After an hour of this, twenty-five pounds of catfish was fried and eaten while hot. After another swim two gallons of ice cream was devoured, which brought the hour to dusk, and the party loaded up and set out back for the dam.

The employees and guests all had a free-for-all good time, and returned invigorated and feeling more like taking up their regular routine of work.

HORACE MIMS IS KILLED BY TRAIN

Chilton County Man Victim Of Accident in Missouri Last Week

Horace Mims, age 25 years, son of Ernest Mims, of near Clanton was killed by a train in an accident near Lexington, Missouri, last Wednesday, August 2. The following is an account of this accident as recorded by the Advertiser-News of Lexington, Missouri:

"The body of a young man who boarded a freight train at Myrick last night to bum a ride to Kansas City was found beside the Missouri Pacific track near Wellington about 7 o'clock this morning and identified this afternoon as Horace Mims of Clanton, Alabama.

The identification was made by a friend, Lonnie Wright, who had hopped the train with him at Myrick at 2 o'clock last night and reported his disappearance at Kansas City.

The two men boarded a train at Clanton, Alabama, Friday night, left St. Louis yesterday and were bumming their way to Omaha, Nebraska.

Carried Along Track

When the body was found both legs were cut off and it was badly mangled. Bits of clothing scattered along the track for a distance of forty or fifty feet showed that is had been dragged for some time before being thrown from the track.

A search of the man's pockets yielded 61 cents, a pair of goggles and a package of razor blades but no means of identification. He was believed to be about 25 years of age.

H. Seigel, telegraph operator at Myrick said this morning that a man had talked to him shortly before the freight train was to leave and he believed it to be the one who was killed. The body was not identifiifed until after 2 o'clock this afternoon when Mims's friend arrived from Kansas City to view the remains at the Winkler Funeral Home at Lexington.

Jury Pronounces Accident

Dr. E. L. Johnston of Concordia, Lafayette county coroner, held an inquest at Wellington at 1 o'clock this afternoon and the jury returned a verdict that the man, at that time unindentified, came to his death by accident in falling from a train.

The following men composed the jury: Charles Lauch, Herman Wille, Thurman Goodloe, Rodger Wright, Jesse Lineback and R. E. Brierly."

The body was held at Winkler Funeral Home until word came from Mim's family. It was then shipped to Clanton, and it arrived here Sunday afternoon. Martin took charge of the body at Clanton and carried it to the home of the boy's father in the Culp Schoolhouse community.

Funeral services were held at Mt. Nebo at 10:00 a.m. Monday, with Rev. S. J. Ezell conducting the services. Martin was in charge of the burial.

WE CANNOT DO AWAY WITH ALL PROFITS

If under the new recovery plan for business the nation is to be forced into thinking for a while in terms of humanity rather than in terms of dollars and of profits, that will go pretty hard with a good many individuals but it will be of incalculable benefit to the masses. But it must be kept in mind that the driving wheel of business is profit—not only profit to the owner of the business but to his employees—and to eliminate this entirely would not be for the good of anybody.

The first consideration of everybody in these difficult times must be the welfare of the people, and other things must give way, if necessary, to that consideration, but that does not and should not preclude the idea of money-making. No great enterprise can go forward without being backed by an accumulation of capital, and such accumulation implies the making of profits.

Wages cannot be raised, credit cannot be advanced by a business that is in poor financial condition; that is, by one that is not making money. As well try to win a horse race without owning a horse.

Just now the main business of all business should be getting the people back on their feet. For the moment we cannot think much about making money but neither should we be forced to lose money since if the latter happens just as certainly will come, and before long, economic paralysis and maybe, next time, a paralysis that will be incurable.

We cannot be our brother's keeper unless we are permitted to have the substance to keep him with.

A contest is to be held to see which light weight automobile will go farther on a gallon of gas. But what the average fellow is most interested in is how far it can go on the down payment.

They say that love is blind and that the home is an institution—therefore marriage must be an institution for the blind!—Carnegie Puppet.

Remember the good old days when the price of radios as posted on the big board looked like Babe Ruth's batting average.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Time after time during the long and weary months of the depression, when prices were still tumbling, we consoled ourselves with the thought that if normalcy ever returned, things would be different. People, we said, would never again over-extend themselves, not in this generation at least. And the practice of gambling on the stock market, and in the grain exchange, with the public going crazy in wild splurges of get rich quick speculation, were gone forever. People, we said, had learned a lot during the depression, and one of the lessons absorbed was that there was no short cut to riches, that wealth could only be won by hard work and the practice of rigid economy.

But here we are back in the old ways again. And we didn't even wait until prosperity was re-established. At the first sign of a rift in the clouds of depression, just as soon as commodities were stabilized, and had the appearance of pointing upward in price, we started out on the old merry-go-round of speculation again. Evidently a goodly portion of the American people still like easy money.

There can be little doubt that the first strengthening in the securities market, and in grain, cotton and other commodity markets was due in part to a fundamental change in conditions. The depression had worn itself out in four grinding and cruel years, public psychology changed after the bank holiday, and confidence returned. But the markets were taken in hand again by the speculators and soon began shooting upward at a dizzy pace. Finally the public got in. Then came the gentle task of transferring stocks and grain futures from the hands of the insiders into the hands of the unsuspecting public. Of course a crash followed and we were told that once again the market had "over-extended itself;" that the rise had outrun the improvement in business.

With the crash came momentary terror and the wiping out of thinly held margins. The melting away of vlues on the grain market was so rapid that the grain exchange had to be closed. Business on the New York stock exchange became so heavy that the exchange had to go on half time to permit the overworked clerks and bookkeepers to catch up. Then followed the establishing of minimum grain prices and the placing of a limit on daily fluctuations.

A statement from the Agricultural Department gave one astounding illustration of the result of individual unrestrained speculation as it affects commodity prices. A man whose identity was not revealed owed on July 20, on margin, about 13,000,000 bushels of corn. He was caught in the decline of prices and if the exchange had opened the following day would have been sold out because he could not protect his margin. This would have meant the dumping of 13,000,000 bushels of corn on the market, which would have caused another break in prices, the statement said, "all the result of the selfish speculation of one individual." And this was only one case in many.

After all it seems that the big crash of 1929 did not teach all of us to avoid the pitfals of speculation. The lure of easy riches continues. And the general effect on the country is not so good.

A CALL TO PATRIOTIC SERVICE

The Union-Banner can not commend the sentiments expressed by our columnist, "The Man In The Moon," this week in his discussions of the National Recovery Program. His faith is too weak.

The NRA is a call to patriotic service in which every loyal citizen can do a part. There is no room for doubters and skeptics. We have a fight on our hands against depression. We must win, and we can not win if we fool along and try to calculate whether we shall fail or succeed.

We can not fail. Our great country can and will win the war against depression, and every red-blooded American citizen will want to have a part in the battle.

Get in line, boys. It is a glorious chance for us to show our great national leaders that we can still be depended upon to stand for the U. S. A.

We will take time to talk about how we did it when the job is done.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION HOKUM

If the United States is about to recognize the Russian Soviet government, as some of our unofficial representatives in London are reported as having confided to Delegate Litvinoff, that action should not be taken under misrepresentation to the people of this country. If we choose to recognize the bolshevists on the theory that it is none of our affair what kind of government Russians have, so long as they do not undertake to interfere with us, that is one thing. We should not be so stupid as to try to disguise recognition, as Senator Norris urges, under the cloak of offering great economic and trade opportunities.

The Nebraska statesman issued a statement announcing that he has been credibly informed that Russia is anxious to buy hundreds of milions of dollars' worth of machinery and other products of our factories and soil. He probably is right about the willingness of the bolshevists to buy and undoubtedly is conservative when he estimates their needs at hundreds of millions. The one thing he overlooked, and it should not be ignored, is the detail of arranging to pay for what we might send to them.

The outside world generally does not realize what has been going on back of the screen of secerecy erected by the Soviet leaders. We have heard much about the five-year plan, which has already demonstrated that it is a disappointment and is to be stretched into a ten-year plan. Radicals in this country have prated about the advantages of communism, and all the time the populance of Russia has been going from bad to worse.

A Paris correspondent, writing to the Wall Street Journal, tells of the plight of Russia as to food. A Soviet agent in the French capital has just arranged for a shipment of Argentine wheat to a Black Sea port. Soviet agents in this country and Canada have been instructed to see what arrangements can be made to get wheat from these two markets to help to relieve a desperate food situation among the workers in the industrial centers of Russia.

No figures have been given out by the Soviet government on the issue of currency since last October, so that it is not possible to say just what is the intrinsic value of the ruble. It is supposed to be worth 50 cents, but inflation has been carried to such lengths that it is worth about half a cent. The wages paid in the mines, for example, are 140 rubles a month, about $7 in our money before we began depreciating the value of the dollar. The highest salaries to chief engineers and other skilled employees range from 800 to 1,100 rubles, or about $40 to $55 a month.

The workers could not possibly buy in the open market food enough to keep themselves alive. Their only salvation lies in the fact that they receive rations from government at low prices. Those listed as the priviledged classes are reported as all undernourished and in serious danger of starvation. The conditions in this country are said to be far worse than in the cities. A real famine is threatened in the southern regions that formerly produced one-fifth of the world's supply of wheat.

While Norris and other Russian sympathizers are talking about the hundreds of millions to be gained in trade with the Soviets, a deal is arranged whereby Moscow is to take $4,000,000 of our cotton, the money being advanced by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. There is nothing except a lack of money to prevent Russia from buying any thing it wants from us, even if we should not recognize the Soviet. The bait of selling to a bankrupt and famine-stricken outfit should not be used to win this country over to the side of the recognitionists. We might say it is not our business what kind of misrule exists in Russia, but the argument of any trade advantages in recognition is plain hokum.—Indianapolis Star.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

"Little Jerusalem"

How would you like to see the city of Jerusalem? Well, you can see it, or a model of it, if you visit Cullman. Several years ago, one of the Catholic brothers made a trip through the Holy Land, and then came back to Cullman, and entered St. Bernard College, a Catholic institution. Finding time heavy on his hands, he conceived the idea of building a model of the city of Jerusalem. He crawled off over on the side of a hill near the College and proceeded with his work, and the result is a masterpiece. Much tedious work had to be done, as all the main buildings and places of interest in the city are reproduced here in miniture. The main Grotto is the principal item of interest, with its thousands of pieces of colored glass, stones, etc. And then, there is Solomon's Bank, the Cathedral, the Pool of Absolution, and a miniature city built over the hill side. As one strolls through the place and sees the different sights, many Bible descriptions of buildings of Jerusalem are brought to mind very vividly. All in all, it is a beautiful sight to behold, as the sunlight moves on and on, and the myriad of reflections from the colored glasses and stones flash a different combination of colors every minute. The sight is never the same for over a minute at a time. The little city commands the awe and admiration of all sightseers who visit it. In the near future, I intend to take a bunch of people from around Clanton to see this spectacle. Truly, it is a thing of beauty and a joy forever, and a sight never to be forgotten.

Against the Code

Time once was when we spoke of a wrongdoing as being a violation of the law. But not so now, at least, as much as was once the case. Nowadays things are not against the law, but "against the code." We do not go by laws so much, but by codes. There is a code for this, for that, and for the other, and woe to the code violator. A farmer raises his products under one code and sells them under another, and if he buys anything, he must be sure to do it according to the code applying in such cases. I heard lots about how our liberty and personal rights had been taken away from us by the 18th amendment, but that was like a zephyr in a whirlwind beside the code system of regulations. Perhaps this is the case, as voiced by one man last week: "We're just in a h—l of a mess, don't know the way out, and very probably couldn't get out of our own accord if we did know." But it might not be well to say too much about this—there might be something in the code about such, and, goodness knows, I certainly don't want to risk violation of the code. I'd break a law first.

N. R. A.

By now, I suppose, most everyone has become acquainted with the big N. R. A. Blue Eagle and what it is supposed to stand for. I say "supposed" to stand for, because in many places it is the general idea that the whole affair is a failure and means nothing. Nearly all over the country, and especially in the South, it has come to the notice of the government that merchants either misunderstand the new law, or are taking a roundabout way to defeat it. Obeying the letter, but violating the spirit of the law, so to say. It was never meant that stores should shorten their hours, but rather, that they put on extra help to keep open the usual time, thus providing employment. But be that as it may, good or bad, right or wrong, what I first set out to tell about is what the N. R. A. means. To tell the truth, I got many good hearty laughs out of the different definitions but now I'll listen to no more. And here's why. One wit (or maybe half-wit) says the N. R. A. means "No Republicans Allowed," and the big eagle is right on the job to mind the door. If that be true, I'll risk a guess that "Baldy Jim" Farley drew the plans for that sign.

Another Black Eye

Just what the New Deal will mean, after all is said and done, is yet a very big question mark. Views on the subject differ widely. Some take the seeming trend back to higher wages and prices as a pointer that we are on the climb back to normalcy, and others believe the whole thing is a forced affair, without base, and must fail sooner or later. There is ample ground for both ideas. However, there is a feeling fast spreading over the South that the New Deal will not mean so much to us as was hoped for. Many southerners (Democrats, too) are beginning to believe that the parable of the cockle-bur patch ond the 'tater patch may be true, after all. First came the sectional slur at the South, voiced by Secretary Perkins a few months ago, but the good old "solid South" swallowed that pretty well. Since that time, however, Southern interests and raw materials have been discriminated against time after time. The latest occurrence of this kind showed up in the recent ship-building program. A Southern firm put in a bid on part of the construction, and when the bids were opened, it was found that they had bid ten per cent under the next nearest bidder, yet they were not allowed the contract. Awarding of this contract to the Southern firm would have been a great help—we have the raw materials and the labor, and the bid was the lowest. Yet an Eastern contractor will get the work. Why? This "Why?" is being asked by the whole industrial South, but the big shots in the governmental driver seat make no explanation. Here's why. There is no use to waste patronage on the South, even though it is merited. The Democratic 'taters are already dug here. In the words of one big business man of the South: "The New Deal means nothing to us."

Nice Chaps

One county Sheriff here in Alabama thinks maybe bootleggers are not such a bad lot, after all, once you come to know them real well. A few days ago this Sheriff had a caller who brought him the news that one of his deputies had wrecked his car out on the edge of town. The Sheriff wanted to know how long since it happened, and the why and wherefore of it all. "Well," said the 'legger, "it's like this. He was chasin' me in his cars, and went over a fill in tryin' to make a curve. I would have stopped to help him get out, or come on in and told you at once, but I had 35 gallons of "dew" in my lizzie, and I had to go and stash that first. I thought you'd like to know, though, so I came in to tell you." The sheriff wanted to know how far he had to go to stash the liquor, but he failed, and couldn't make a case, for lack of evidence. "Now," says the sheriff, "that was real nice of you to come and tell us. Poor old Bill might have been bad hurt, and we'd never have known where he was. Better be on the Q. T., though, bud, 'cause Bill might get you next time. Now, that's one time when a bootlegger was real nice and handy."—Man in the Moon.

WHY CREATE A FOOD SCARCITY?

It is distressingly obvious that the main concern of the economists and legislators who are attempting by national and international action to raise wheat prices is not human welfare but increased profits. Profits do not insure humon happiness or even prosperity. In fact, one of the underlying causes of the pitfall plight of mankind is too much profit in the hands of those engaged in nonessential and in some cases uneconomic pursuits. And what do we find our practical thinkers urging as a remedy for the fact that low wages and tariff barriers have lowered wheat prices and created an unsalable surplus? Do they see to the root of the matter—that inability of the peoples of the world to buy is the reason there seems to be a "surplus"? We do not have too much grain. Millions of people go hungry every day. Thousands have died of starvation in India and China in the last ten years. Yet the remedy say the economists, is less wheat. Almost as if in answer to their problem, and yet making even more glaring the inhumanity of crop destruction and limitation, comes a drought to America's Middle West threatening to destroy acres and acres of growing grain. Prices immediately leap sensationally, yet who is the gainer? Not the farmer whose crop is ruined; not the worker whose pittance must be spent for higher-priced bread. The speculators and brokers make the profit and each continued day of the blistering drought is money in their pockets and joy to their unproductive little minds. But the farmer, with the love of the soil and growing things in his heart, is again the loser, for the results of his labor are being destroyed before his eyes. Of what value is dollar wheat to him who has no wheat to sell or to him who has no money with which to buy? Forecasts of approaching rain bring unloading of grains one the market and rapidly falling prices. Plenty is an evil; scarcity a blessing; starvation an incident. Why has it not occurred to these assiduous price-raisers that the best and surest remedy for the malady of which they complain is to develop a market for their wheat—all they can produce of it? The extent of the potential world market has never even been probed. We do not have overproduction. What we are suffering from is underconsumption, the inability to satisfy wants because of lack of purchasing power. Of course, the problem of opening and creating new markets is not simple; in many respects it is more involved and more difficult of accomplishment than the artificial stimulants and sedatives now being experimented with. It might not be the final answer. But it is sound and constructive. Why not try it?—Zion's Herald.

FLIGHT FROM THE DOLLAR

The administration's concern over rising price levels in advance of wage increases is justifiable. Any other course, however, could not possibly have been expected. Since the government is so obviously planning to devalue the dollar it is natural that the things which the dollar buys should seek refuge in flight from the dollar-anchor and thus bring on the advances now being witnessed.

When the current upturn got underway following the conclusion of the bank holiday it was predicted on the natural demand arising from empty shelves and warehouses. This demand was backed by swiftly returning confidence and the belief that the New Deal program was going to turn things along an upward course. It has continued steadily until recently and now it is beginning to show signs of getting out of hand and becoming virtually speculative in character.

Industrial Administrator Hugh Johnson expresses concern over the effect of "runaway price structures" on the national recovery program because he knows that too much of this sort of thing will shortly build up another unwieldy surplus, clog the markets and bring on a new crash of values. But blaming it on speculation is not quite hitting the exact mark. The real and paramount reason will be found in the desire of all business to protect itself against a devalued dollar of the future, one outcome of the managed currency which we so obviousy are going to have.

Manufacturers and dealers feel safer converting their money into goods and commodities than possessing dollars of uncertain value. Knowing that managed currency and the New Deal program will still further enhance price levels it is natural they should prefer the solid anchor of necessary materials which people must buy against currency which may or may not be worth much in the months to come.

It will do no good under the circumstances for the administration or others to criticize the trend. It is the natural result of the course adopted.—Ohio State Journal.

Defeat of Buck Creek

It was a delightful performance for many Clanton fans to see Ononta apply the "snake" medicine to Buck Creek to the tune of 3 to 1 last Sunday. It was a good exhibition of baseball. It does not tell all the story to say Buck Creek got beat. You can put it down that any team that beats those boys has to do some real clicking. Clanton has not scored against them in three games, one of which was a no-hit performance.

At The Fair In Overalls

It was told that while Mrs. Lee Smith was at the World's Fair last week she sat down to rest a few minutes, and up came to greet her was none other than Callen Alred, dressed in overalls and barefooted. I do not vouch for the authenticity of this story, but I would not be surprised at all if it is true. And what if it is true, may I ask? There is no rig that can ever wear more comfortably for a boy than overalls. And what does a boy need with such impediments as shoes? Especially when he has such a job on his hands as seeing the World's Fair. If Callen did wear overalls and no shoes at the big fair, I congratulate him on his good judgment.

Better Times Here Again

Rev. F. A. Ellison reports that he saw a rabbit cross the road the other day and there was only one negro after it. Brother Ellison declares this as a sure sign that times are better than a few months ago, when at least four negroes were after every rabbit.

Syrup Making Time

W. A. Tippett said last Saturday he would "make up" his sorghum syrup this week, and expected to market about 200 buckets in Birmingham. Syrup mills will be in operation constantly from now until frost comes and nips the suger cane in the bud. I wonder if it would be as much fun as it used to be to go to a syrup mill, drink juice and sop the pan.

Joe Thompson

The Montgomery Advertiser makes this very fitting tribute to Joseph O. Thompson:

"The sudden death of Joseph O. Thompson removes a forceful and attractive figure from the life of Alabama. Mr. Thompson had long been a powerful figure in Republican State politics, and a thorough-going student of national affairs, with a special taste for agricultural ecenomics.

"But Mr. Thompson was first a planter and an organizer. He was a capable and energetic leader in every cause that aroused his interest. He understood the nature of the Southern cotton grower's problems as well as any man in the South and he devoted his talents to seeking an easier way for Southern agriculture. He believed in cooperative effort and progressive farming methods and he lectured widely in the South to promote these two ideas among farmers. He loved the soil.

"Mr. Thompson was a gentleman of high character and broad culture who lived a useful life. He will be missed."

A close relative and very warm personal friend of Judge L. H. Reynolds, Mr. Thompson has been a visitor to Clanton and Chilton County upon many occasions. Hundreds of our citizens have heard him speak of political and economic subjects. He was admired here for the force and sincerity of his well-founded opinions.

For many years The Union-Banner has enjoyed the warm personal friendship and interest of Mr. Thompson. It is with keen sorrow that we record his passing from a life that has been so fruitful of good things for his fellow-men.

EUROUE FOR EURPOE

Europe, it appears, intends to continue looking after Europe's own affairs, even to the extent of keeping its money home. France, one of the many European defaulters on American loans, since refusing to make her payments to the American people has loaned a goodly sum to Austria and has recently paid in advance a debt of $17,500,000 which is half of an amount due England not until late this fall. But she has made no attempt to pay Uncle Sam the installments on her debt which is past due, having been due in December, 1932, and June, 1933. Nor has England, on receipt of the advance payment from France, made any move to pass this money on to the United States as a payment on her default in June this year.

Yet in face of the dead beat tactics of Europe we hear murmurs from Secretary of State Hull, Senator Brookhart and others in the present administration about loaning foreign governments more American money supposedly with which to carry on trade with us. About anywhere you put your finger on the map, you can scarcely miss a nation that has borrowed heavily from the United States, which has not repudiated its debt to this country. All these loans were made by a Democratic administration which assumed office since 1913. The Republican administrations since that time have collected large payments on same, but these borrowers waited until a new Democratic regime had been elected in the United States in 1932 to default on the big balances due. Many of the Democrats in the present administration are the same ones who were in office when the previous loans were made to Europe, and now they are thinking seriously again about loaning more to these same European deadbeats, indicating one lesson hasn't been sufficient.

Americans might take a lesson from the Europeans in borrowing and defulting, if that can be done. But perhaps Europe wouldn't lend to a creditor for fear she might awaken to find she had been paid by a credit on her account.

Primo Carnera, the heavyweight boxing champion, wears a size 21 shoe. No wonder it is hard to knock him off his feet.

The new president of the W. C. T. U. promises a Carry Nation type of leadership, "if necessary." Oh, well, that means increased production at the hatchet factory.—Indianapolis Star.

ONEONTA 3—BUCK CREEK 1

Baines and Baines of Oneonta proved to be pains and pains for Buck Creek at Silura Sunday afternoon. Whatever pains were not administered by the supberb "Snake," pitcher, and his brother "Frog," catcher, were plentifully supplied by Oneonta's airtight field support, and the official verdict was 3 to 1 in favor of the well-oiled outfit from Blount County.

While the great crowd of enthusiastic fans accepted the result with great satisfaction, there were many who felt that the score should have been 4 to 0 in favor of Oneonta. "Mickey," the umpire, was target for a great avalanche of jeers at some of his decisions which many charged were deliberately calculated to favor Buck Creek. This, however, is a point of argument not to be taken too seriously. It is one of the undisputed privileges of baseball fans to "ride" the "umps," and it never amounts to anything in the final score. What the "ump" says goes, whether anybody likes it or not.

Buck Creek batters were able to gather only three hits off the pitching of "Snake" Bains, which anybody will admit is pitching worth while. De Miles, the ace of Buck Creek's pitching staff, yielded eight hits to the Oneonta batsmen.

CLANTON 8—NEW CEDRON 1

Clanton defeated New Cedron Wednesday afternoon by the one sided score of 8 to 1. Clanton was fielding superbly and hitting timely. Eleven hits were garnered off Tindol, Williams and Burnett. Watkins gave up five hits. Baker led his mates at bat with two singles and a triple out of five times up.

Clanton and New Cedron met for the last time this year on the local diamond Friday afternoon. The game was so one sided and New Cedron so badly taken into camp that we are prone to pass the game up as a mere work out for Clanton. New Cedron used three pitchers and could not control Clanton. At the end of the third inning with the score 11 to 1 for Clanton, the Clanton players swapped up and as a usual result Baker, who plays short, pitched the rest of the game and Hayes caught. Littlejohn went to third and Simms to first. Even with this, New Cedron got only five more hits and three runs. Two of these runs were made by Doodle Gore, one of the unmpires, who took second for New Cedron.

The game was such a shambles that we hereby refrain from putting in any box score. New Cedron changed players so often that we could hardly keep up with their line up.

THORSBY SECTION

(S. E. Norton, Manager)

Rev. James W. Davenport, pastor of the Congregational church at Daisy, Tennessee, and formerly for 5 years pastor of the Congregational church, Thorsby, with his wife and four boys, are making a brief visit to old friends in Thorsby. Since they left Thorsby ten years ago, Mr. Davenport has returned twice to conduct series of meetings; Mrs. Davenport says she would hardly know the place because so many new houses have been built since they left. They are camping on the sleeping porch at the South Dormitory on the hill. Their many friends in Thorsby are glad to welcome them and we hope they will enjoy their visit very much.

A rather interesting incident occurred at the home of the writer last Friday afternoon, which would seem to indicate that for some people at least prosperity has already arrived. Our home being located adjacent to the Congregational church, it is frequently taken for the parsonage. So about 3 o'clock in the afternoon an automobile stopped in front of the house, and leaving his lady companion in the car the driver came to the door and inquired if there was a protestant minister in town. He was given directions where to find one, and went on his way. About an hour later practically the same thing occurred again. We learned that the first one did not find the pastor at home, but the second one did. The Rev. J. E. Each performed the marriage ceremony and sent the couple on their way looking very happy.

The special revival services at the Baptist church came to a close last Wednesday evening with the baptismal services. Those baptized were: Dewey Robinson, Gresham Smith, Dessie Robinson, Katherine Johnson, Sam Bentley, Mary Margaret Mims, Quinton Johnson, Ruth Bagwell, Howard Minor, J. W. Sorrell, Jr., Lois Parker, and Hattie Davenport.

Several additions by letter were received; these were: Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Flaurnory, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Pate, Mr. and Mrs. Lera Wagoner. Mr. Bob Martin was reinstated.

ANNOUNCE NEW LOW PRESSURE AUTO TIRES

Improved Comfort, Added Safety, Better Appearance Make Appeal to Motorists

Akron, Ohio.—Announcement of a new Airwheel or low pressure automobile tire providing riding comfort comparable to that of overstuffed easy chairs is made by J. E. Mayl, Sales Manager of the Tire Department of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Eight major improvements are listed as features of the new tire including, greater cubic air capacity; more rubbed in tread and sidewalls, larger cross sections; balanced design; flatter, wider tread; powerful breaker strip; natural shape and more nonskid and total tread mileage plus All-Weather Center Traction and of course shock-absorbing Supeertwist cord construction.

"Goodyear's new low pressure or Airwheel tire has an interesteing engineering development background dating to February, 1929, when the tire was first introduced for airplanes later that same year being used on Goodyear exhibition busses; and afterwards on highway test cars; used as changeovers equipment and announced the public in the fall of 1932.

Important features of the new tire are extreme comfort, made possible because of the minimum air pressure and maximum cushioning; added safety through additional non-skid design and Super-twist cord construction; better performance, with absence of vibration, strain, preventing exhaustion to the dirver; and finally appearance—the Aairwheel retains its appearanec—the Airwheel retains its shape throughout its life and its sidewalls are readily cleaned and restriped in silver.

A majority of 1932 smaller car models can be equipped with Aairwheels of 6.50-16 inch size or they can be fitted with the new tires in 7.00-16 inch size which is the oversize in low pressure balloons for these same cars. Goodyear also makes the 7.00-15 and 7.50-15 sizes for several other cars in the larger popular priced group to be used as changeover equipment.

In the new car fjeld there are a number of manufacturers whose 1933 models list Aairwheel tire as original equipment for new automobiles, chiefly as a result of the car owners request for them.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

CLUB BOYS POSTPONE TRIP

The 4-H Club boys did not leave for the World's Fair last Monday morning as they had intended. Mr. Stapp was so busy with the cotton program that he was unable to go this week. He relates that it will probably be the 24th of this month before he can leave.

Clifford Manning, 4-H Club president, has been working hard together with County Agent Stapp to provide this trip. A plan has been worked out whereby transportation for around 20 boys can be provided for about $8 each. It is estimated that incidental expenses will amount to $6 to $10.

Mr. Stapp requests that all 4-H boys who can raise about $15.00 to $20.00 and can be away from the 24th of this month to the 5th of September, to let him know at once. It as announced that all who intend to go must make reservations by the 18th of this month by turning in to Mr. Stapp $8.00 for transportation. The County Agent relates that if as many as 20 boys deposit with him this $8.00 each for transportation by the 18th, he will then be able to set a definite date for the trip.

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 9.—Community canning kitchens have been established in close to 1,000 Alabama communities under the leadership of home demonstration agents and are now serving as centers of instructions and providing facilities for canning, according to a report made by Miss Margaret Garrett, specialist in food preservation of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"There will be far less suffering in Alabama this winter than during the past three winters if canning and preserving of food to supply the demands of the dormant months can prevent it," Miss Garrett said.

At canning kitchens instruction is given by home demonstration agents, leading farm women who are members of home demonstration clubs, social welfare workers, and relief workers. Tens of thousands of pints and quarts of fruits and vegetables will be preserved in these kitchens during summer and early fall. The food will be packed away in cellars and on pantry shelves for use next winter.

Organized canning for relief is in progress in more than 50 counties of the state which have home demonstration agents, Miss Garrett reported. "In addition, farm women have received more instruction in canning this spring and summer with the result that home preservation of food is at a high peak," she said.

The program is being financed by relief funds, appropriations made by bards of revenue and county commissioners, and through donations from county farm bureaus, civic clubs, and other organizations.

"I have found that where I don't need a terrace I usually need a drainage ditch," said a successful farmer.

INSPECTION TO BEGIN LAST OF THIS WEEK

Mr. Stapp relates that he had expected to start field inspection of cotton destroyed the first of this week, but due to the fact that he was unable to get the proper forms from Washington, inspection will not begin until the last of this or the first of next week.

Everybody is urged to plow up their cotton as rapidly as possible in order that when the inspectors come around everything will be in final shape for the signing of the performance contracts. If everyone will cooperate, delays will be avoided and payments will be made sooner.

It is estimated that this cotton reduction program will bring into the county around $200,000, and into the state more than $1,200,000. The county agent announces that the checks should start coming to the county by August 21-26.

Many farmers who have already plowed under their cotton have planted peas, soybeans, sudan grass and corn. A few farmers who planted corn in the middles of their cotton before plowing it up have corn waist-high now.

ALABAMA GAME AND FISH NEWS

Muscle Shoals City, Ala., Aug. 9.—The Muscle Shoals Game and Fish Protectors, cooperating with Colbert County authorities, have undertaken to combat the mystery of the "disappearing lakes" that has baffled the fishermen of Muscle Shoals City for a number of years.

Each year about this time several fairly large lakes, located about two miles east of Muscle Shoals City, stage a "disappearing act" and leave thousands of small fish to die upon the ground. Anticipating the occurrence this year, F. W. Irvine, president of the club, Sheriff J. H. Blake and Warden W. M. George were prepared.

When the waters began to recede, they dispatched a rescue crew with seines and trucks to the scene and truckload after truckload of fish were hauled away and planted in Lake Wilson, above Wilson Dam. Mr. Irvine estimated that at least 100,000 bass, bream and crappie fingerling would be saved and stocked in Lake Wilson.

The supposition is that a subterranean passage connects these disappearing ponds with the Tennessee river and when the river is high these lakes are filled, and when it falls they also recede.

Monroeville, Ala., Aug. 9.—J. Furman Wilburn, while playing a round of golf on the Monroeville course recently, scored a "birdie" with one shot. He drove from the No. 5 tee and the ball carried about 85 yeards before coming to an abrupt stop. On reaching the spot, he found the ball sad struck a dove in flight, killing the bird instantly.

PANICS FOLLOW BIG HARVEST OF COTTON

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 9.—During the past century panics and depressions have followed close on the heels of peaks in cotton productions. This salient fact is pointed out by P. O. Davis, executive secretary of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who has made a special study of the subject, and presented figures showing that five of the six major depressions during the last 100 years have been preceded by high peaks in the cotton harvest.

In 1835—ninety-eight years ago—the Couth's first 1,000,000-bale (1,062,-00) cotton crop was made. Two years later, when the national wealth was $6,000,000,000 there occurred the crisis of 1837.

The next great crisis was that of 1857 when the national wealth was $15,000,000,000. Four years before (in 1852) we made our first 3,000,000,-000-bale (3,130,000) crop.

In 1859 we made our first 4,000,000-bale (4,310,000) crop. There followed two years later the Civil War which upset economic laws.

In 1864 our cotton crop dropped down to 299,000 bales and the 1870 crop was the first after the Civil War to exceed 4,000,000 bales. Three years later when the nation's wealth was in the neighborhord of $35,000,000,000 there occurred the great panic of 1873. Our 1890 crop was the first to exceed 8,000,000 bales. It was 8,652,000. There followed three years later the panic of 1893 when the nation's wealth was estimated at $70,000,000,-000.

In 1904 we made our first 13,000,-000-bale (13,438,000) crop, and there folowed three years later the panic of 1907 when the national wealth was $140,000,000,000. In 1911 we made our first 15,000,000-bale (15,153,000) crop. The World War which began in 1914 upset and suspended economic laws. Economists say that a depression was beginning in 1914 and that it was thwarted by the World War.

The depression of 1920-21 did not follow a peak cotton production. It was attributed to post-war adjustments. But in 1928 we made our first 17,000,000-bale (17,978,000) crop and three years later, 1929, the economic structure of the world went into a tailspin and is still spinning. Incidentlly, our national wealth that year was estimated at $400,000,000,000.

"I am not saying that these panics and depressions were caused by record cotton crops," he concluded, "but I am merely pointing out that each major depression—with one exception—during the last century has followed closely a peak in cotton production. The exception is that of the depression of 1820 which came suddely and departed quickly."

AGRICULTURE

By Clifford M. Manning

Starting a Series of Topics on Poultry First, "The Poultry Industry"

From time immemorial, fowls have entered closely into human life, and in variety of ways. They have made important contributions to the food supply of many nations and their feathers have served for the greater warmth and comfort of mankind. The pugnacious character of the wild cock led to the development of the sport of cockfighting, which frequently had remarmarkable influence on civilization of bygone days.

From the aesthetic standpoint, various human races, the world over, have busily occupied themselves in envolving colorations in bewildering variety and have also produced changes in feather structure and body type that demonstrates the relative plasticity of the original stock.

What man has accomplished within recent years by breeding from selected variants has been shown by his success in developing the large number of breeds and varieties of fowl known to us today. In these and in other ways, because of their small size as compared with many other domestic animals, and because of their adaptability to a wide variety of climatic conditions, fowls have entered into the interests of more human beings than any other animal.

The development of the poultry industry to its present state has been brought about largely by the demand for poultry products in the human diet and by the relative economy in the production of these products in comparison with other animal food products. If people had never acquired a taste for the egg and flesh of the wild fowl, there probably would have been no poultry industry as we know it today. It is well to bear in mind, therefore, that the importance of an industry must be judged from the standpoint of the consumption as well as the production of its products.

Farms who plant winter legumes add nitrogen and humus to their land. Consequently their soils are richer and their profits bigger.

Planting of oats this fall is being suggested as a means of adding to short feed supplies. Production of feed crops in the Middle West is said to be on a smaller scale with the result that feed prices will be high during the next crop season.

World consumption of American cotton in the 1932-33 season which closed August 1, including linters, totaled 15-307,000 bales as compared with 13,331,000 bales in the 1931-32 season and 11,856,000 bales in the 1930-31 season, according to the New Orleans Cotton Exchange.

COTTON CONTROL IN 1934 IS PLANNED

Full Program of Reduction Pledged At Conference of Four States In Atlanta

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 4.—The Georgia Cotton Control Conference decided today the crop of 1934 and 1935 should be confined to the 1933 limits and pledged its prestige to success of a reduction plan.

The conference, attended by representatives from Georgia, Alabama and the Carolians, said the most practical way to accomplish acreage control is by a cash benefit offer made to farmers on a per-acreage basis, to be paid on all lands taken out or kept out of cotton production during the next two years.

"We believe," the conference said, "that cash remuneration should be offered, first, to farmers who signed or offered to sign cotton acreage reduction contracts during the 1933 campaign. We believe the cotton control administration should go further in its production-control measures, even to the placing of a confiscatory tax upon all cotton ginned above a certain quota allowed each farm."

C. A. Cobb at Conference

C. A. Cobb, cotton production chief, attended the conference. The meeting will close Saturday with a special by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

The conference in adopting a program for reduction for Georgia suggested that a campaign be started immediately to put into effect a program that will make each farm a self supporting unit.

The conference believed the "present deplorable condition of Georgia agriculture has been brought about largely by the unbalanced farm program that has been in vogue on Georgia farms since the War Between the States."

"We believe," the conference said, "that the predominance of cotton in this program to exclusion of food and feed crops sufficient to take care of families operating these farms and a sufficient amount of livestock and poultry to make these farms and farm hands self-supporting, has been one of the main contributing factors."

The conference said the emergency has not passed and "will not pass completely until the huge surplus of cotton is considerably reduced."

Two More Years Needed

"We believe," it said, "that it will take at least two years of drastic acreage and production control to remove the cotton surplus. We are confident we can not have this control without the whole-hearted support and coperation of the national government during the years, 1934 and 1935. We are confident that if we can get this support, both in a supervisory and a financial way, that during the coming two years the huge surplus will have been materially reduced to the point where it will not be a menace to the Southern cotton farmer and our entire economic structure, and that by that time we will have made the transition from all-cotton farming to a balanced, self-supporting program of agriculture."

Georgia women representatives at the conference adopted a program at an afteroon session. They decided to:

1. Conserve the farm income by efficient utlization of all available resources of farm and home.
2. Plan to supplement the farm income by home industries.
3. Maintain the morale of the farm family and community.
4. Foster relief by making others self-supporting.—Mont'g'ry Advertiser.

STORRS ASKS HIGH GINNING CHARGES BE INVESTIGATED

Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture, has in his possession written evidence that ginners in Southeast Alabama are charging as high as $8.05 per bale for ginning cotton. The Commissioner has sent the following telegram to General Hugh S. Johnson, in charge of the National Recovery Act and to Secretary Henry A. Wallace, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"Ginners in South Alabama have met and fixed and are charging minimum price of six dollars ranging up to eight for ginning cotton. This action is in violation of Sherman Act and contrary to Spirit of N. R. A. Please investigate at once and take most vigorous action. Highest price ever charged for ginning in Alabama was five dollars when cotton sold for forty cents per pound and seed sixty dollars ton. At present time new cotton sells for nine cents and seed for fifteen dollars ton. Splendid spirit of cooperation shown by cotton farmers by destruction of crops should be encouraged by giving him proper protection. Please advise."

In addition Commissioner Storrs is conferring with Federal Judge Kennamer and U. S. Attorney Chilton. He has also written Solicitor Hubert Farmer at Dothan requesting a Grand Jury investigation of this matter as being in violation of Sections 5,212 to 5,215 of Alabama Code which prohibits price fixing.

Commissioner Storrs calls attention to the fact that no ginners' Code has yet been approved under provisions of National Recovery Act, and that persons have been repeatedly warned against taking any steps toward increasing prices until codes have been approved.

It is understood that Georgia ginners just across line from Southeast Alabama are charging $4.50 per bale for ginning. Information coming to Commissioner Storrs is to effect that notices are posted at gins in Southeast Alabama stating the price for ginning as minimum of $6.00 per bale and ranging upward according to the weight of bale.

PUBLIC FORESTRY BENEFITS FIRST CONSIDERATION

Montgomery, Aug. 9.—That benefits to the public comprise the primary purpose of the work done by the forestry and soil protection camps, established under President Roosevelt's direction, is stated by Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Firester. In furtherance of this policy some of the camps confine their work almost exclusively to State lands. Moreover, the crews that are doing work upon lands not owned by the State are engaged in developments that have a marked effect upon the welfare of the community.

In a broad sense, anything that contributes to the economic improvement of considerable areas of land, either publicly or privately owned, gives rise to opportunities for permanent employment of workers and bettered social and business conditions, all of which contribute to the public interest. More specifically, the construction of firebreaks and the erection of observation towers aid in restraining one of Alabama's greatest public enemies, the forest fire. The truck trails being built in many localities often comprise satisfactory roads for the inhabitants, enabling them to reach sections formerly inaccessible.

The control of epidemic of tree insects and diseases saves a great deal of property to the community. Since revenue for the community is derived largely from the property within its boundaries, the public benefit of these proceedures is apparent. Control erosion of the hillsides means much less silt deposited in the water reservoirs in the community, in the navigation channels of rivers and in the harbors on the sea coasts. The public benefits of such action are obvious.

JACKSON CHAPEL

We had two wonderful sermons last Sunday and Sunday night by Rev. J. Robert Bean. Also had a good singing, and we want to thank the people and the Jemison quartet for their help.

The singing was called to order and prayer by V. G. Smith, acting as the chairman. The following directed two songs: Harry Parker, Miss Loudelia Clackler, E. L. Glasscock, T. E. Wyatt, Mrs. James Gillespie, A. H. Glasscock, L. F. Clackler, Mrs. L. F. Clackler and Joe Painter. The Jemison quartet sang a song between every two directors. Organists were Mrs. L. F. Clackler, L. F. Clackler, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon and Mrs. James Gillespie. We were then dismissed by A. H. Glasscock.

Next Sunday we will start a revival at this place. Rev. Tom Daniel will preach at 11 a.m.

Then Sunday night at 8 p.m. Rev. J. H. Huckabee, of Rookville, Ga., will start his revival. Bro. Huckabee is a young preacher and they say he sure can preach. So everybody come out to hear him.

Mr. Johnnie Minor was unavoidably detainmed Sunday afternoon and could not be with us.

Dr. V. J. Gragg and Dr. E. E. Upchurch left Sunday for Mobile where they will engage in the Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Schools Require Public Approval

A Correct Understanding of Aims and Purposes is Necessary

Montgomery, Ala., August 5.—"If our public schools are to be continued at public expense, they must be founded in public approval," said Mrs. James Fitts Hill, president of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, in commenting on the program of study announced this week for the hundreds of parent-teacher associations throughout the state. "And public approval can only be secured and maintained," continued Mrs. Hill, "when the public rightly understands the purposes, the problems, and the achievements of the schools."

The topics to be studied by the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers during the coming school year were recently compiled by a joint committee representing the parent-teachers group and the Alabama Education Association. The theme for the year is "Going to School with Your Child," and covers such problems as the teacher's working day, the meaning of teacher's marks, the proper balance of home and school study, pupil failures and their cost to the community, a contrast of new and old teaching methods, and training in citizenship, in personal and community health, and in the wise use of leisure.

Mrs. Hill announced that details connected with the proposed study are being prepared this week and will be forwarded to local association officers within a few days. Special helps to be used in preparing the monthly programs will also be published in the several issues of the Alabama School Journal, beginning with the September number.

School Warrants May Be Paid Soon

Indications are good that the outstanding teachers warrants in the State of Alabama will be paid off at an early date. Governor B. M. Miller, together with his legal adviser, John Peach, State Attorney General, Thomas E. Knight, Jr., and the Comptroller of the Treasurer, J. H. Hard, left Tuesday night for New York where they expect to sell Alabama's School Warrants. This company also intend to confer with officials of the R. F. C. at Washington in regard to taking over these warrants.

If the Governor is able to market these warrants he must sell them at par value, for there is a state law to this effect.

Jesse Traywick Commits Suicide

Jesse Traywick, age 21, of near Clanton, committed suicide at his home Sunday afternoon about 6:00 o'clock. He left no statement, and his family was able to ascribe no reason for his act.

A few minutes before he shot himself Traywick had been talking with his wife about the manner in which he wanted to be buried. It was said that he requested to be buried in a blue suit, with a .32 calibre Colts automatic by his side. He, also, it was reported, asked his wife what she would do with his money in case of his death. His wife didn't think about him having any idea of commiting suicide.

After he left his wife on the porch, he walked into the back yard where he fired the fatal bullet which entered his body at the heart. When his wife heard the shot she ran to him only to find him dead. Coroner Martin of Clanton returned a verdict of suicide.

Traywick was employed at the cotton mill at Clanton. He was married only about four months ago to Miss Lola B. Pressly of Elmore County.

Funeral services for the deceased were held Tuesday at 4:00 p.m. at Highland church with Rev. M. J. Parrish and Rev. S. J. Ezell officiating. Martin and Son were in charge of the burial.

Traywick is survived by his widow, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Traywick, of Highland community, several brothers and one sister.

NOW TIME FOR VETCH AND PEAS

Farmers Asked To Make Study and Prepare For Planting

Have you seen the difference in the crops following vetch and peas and those not following vetch or peas?

County Agent Stapp states that there are splendid demonstrations in nearly every community showing the value of vetch and Austrian peas and he is urging all farmers who have outstanding demonstrations to take their neighbors to see them.

Mr. Stapp started out a few years ago on a program of getting every farmer in Chilton County to plant 5 acres of vetch or Austrian peas per mule. We have seen the plantings increase from less than 10,000 lbs. of vetch and pea seed in 1927 to 15,000 lbs., in 1932. That is an increase of more than 15 to 1. But Mr. Stapp states that Chilton County should plant near 400,000 lbs., of vetch and peas this fall. He states that it will take 300,000 lbs., of vetch or 400,000 of Austrian peas to plant the acres in Chilton County where cotton has been taken out of production.

Mr. Stapp feels that every farmer in the county who cooperated in the cotton reduction should arrange to use a part of his first money for vetch or Austrian pea seed.

He does not advise planting before the first of September, but thinks that all who can, should plant between the first of September and 15th of October.

The Clanton Kiwanis Club, the banks, the leading farmers and other business and professional men of Chilton County join Mr. Stapp and this paper in urging every farmer in Chilton to plant 5 acres of vetch or peas to the mule this fall.

Your success depends upon the fertility of your soil, and the future success of Chilton County depends upon the fertility of her fields. Lets all do our part.

LAST CALL FOR PAYING TAXES

Time of Extension Has Almost Expired Says Tax Collector Culp

To the delinquent taxpayers of Chilton County:

I have gone to quite a bit of extra trouble and expense in trying to help the tax-payers of the county. Probably there isn't another collector in the state that is attempting what I am. Reference is made here to the time allowed for payment of taxes. You have been given every day that could possibly be given under the law, and unless you were familiar with the workings of my office you could not fully apprecite what I have undertaken for your benefit.

The time in which taxes can be paid without the payment of extra costs has almost expired, and this is one more appeal for you to make a special effort to meet your obligations by September 1. This office will be forced to advertise asking for a decree of sale around September 15. If you want to save advertising costs, your remittance will have to be in my office before the list of delinquents is turned over to the newspaper. Your earnest cooperation is solicited in this matter.

W. G. CULP, Tax Collector.

M.A.Gore Outlines County NRA Setup

Committee Chairmen In Each Beat Are Urged To Form Organization That Will Explain To Citizens The N.R.A. Purpose

A committee function for Chilton County in behalf of the NRA has been announced. M. A. Gore, merchant of Clanton, has been appointed as county chairman of the NRA by Judge S. F. Hobbs, state chairman of the national Recovery Administration.

Judge Hobbs has requested Mr. Gore to immediately set up his county organization and push the work of signing every person affected by the blanket code throughout the county.

In forming his county committee, Mr. Gore announces the following assistants to aid him in this work: Dewey Rockett, chairman of Beat 4. G. C. Armstrong has been drafted as in charge of the department of Man Power. County Agent C. E. Stapp is in charge of the Speakers Department, or in the department of spoken propaganda. W. M. Wyatt and Billy Smith are in charge of the department of publicity.

These men are fully authorized to act in any way they deem necessary to push and enforce the program of the National Recovery Administration in Beat 4. Their job is not a job of pay. In commenting on this, Mr. Gore stated:

This is a big job requiring lots of thought and labor and came without my bidding or asking. It is a patriotic service which we can't fail to perform. We realize there are better men who might have been selected for the place, but we have no choice whe the call to duty comes.

We ask the sympathetic and loyal cooperation and assistance of every man, woman and child in the county in the war against depression. We must do our part. It is to be a campaign of education, organization and cooperation to make the National Recovery project effective and a success.

Chairmen of each Beat in the county have been named and drafted to serve. These chairmen, whose names follow, are to go ahead, push the organization in their respective Beats, as has been done in Beat 4, according to Mr. Gore, and as soon as they have completed their Beat organization, are to advise the county chairman. Speed is important.

Following is the list of the Beat chairmen as named by the County Chairman.

Beat 1, C. B. Cox; Beat 2, C. C. Conway; Beat 3, S. J. Sexton; Beat 4, Dewey Rockett and Harmon Broadhead; Beat 5, W. A. Gulledge; Beat 6, C. L. Wilkins; Beat 7, Hill Foshee; Beat 8, T. D. Parnell; Beat 9, G. F. Harper; Beat 10, Harrison Smith; Beat 11, W. M. Cleckler; Beat 12, P. R. Robinson; Beat 13, W. G. Shaw; Beat 14, L. G. Posey; Beat 15, E. J. Caldwell; Beat 16, J. Monroe Parrish.

Following is the letter from Judge Hobbs to Mr. Gore setting out just what course should be taken by the Beat Committeemen:

Hon. M. A. Gore, Clanton, Ala.
Dear Friend:

The National Recovery Administration is seeking your aid as a volunteer worker in the capacity of Chairman of the State Committee for your county.

The duties of the office are first, to orgagnize your county by having a beat chairman appointed by yourself in every Beat; second, to see to it through your county committeemen thus formed that every town and city in your county is organized under the city plan and third, to popularize in every way possible, the movement for national recovery.

Speed is of the utmost importance. Please begin immediately the selection of your beat committeemen and begin to work along the lines indicated. This is a call to patriotic service to the nation as great as was ever sounded in peacetime. As General Johnson says, we are at war, and in the war to the bitter end against the depression. None of us have the time to spare. We will have to take it. But this investment of time and talent is vital to the success of the national recovery project.

The work of our State Committee, of which you and your beat chairmen are parts, is not to be confused with the work of the state recovery board nor the State Recovery Council. The work of the board is to enforce the act, particularly after the codes have all been adopted and approved. The work of the council is to iron out those kinks that may develop and give each interested party a hearing and a fair and friendly decision. Our work is organization and propaganda.

Please let me have your acceptance by return mail, and as soon as possible, the names of your Beat Chairmen.

With kindest regards and thanking you in anticipation of your acceptance and hearty cooperation, I am, cordially yours.—S. F. Hobbs, State Chairman.

Judge Reynolds Tells Experience In Developing Pasture For Cattle

Editor Union-Banner:

I have been requested by several citizens of the county to write an article for publication on pastures for stock.

I have been experimenting with pastures for several years and I have come to the conclusion that Chilton County could be made a great stock raising county if the people of the county would spend some time and a little money in preparing pastures for their stock. I would suggest that anyone interested in pasturing stock, when they pass by my pasture near the cotton mill that if convenient they look over said pasture. I have sowed carpet, Dallas grass and lespedeza which makes a good combination for stock and does well on our land.

I have fifty head of cows and mules on my pasture and eighteen head of sheep all doing well. In fact, the first of April I had several very poor cows and everyone I put in my pasture in April is fat and would make good beef. Mules and horses put in my pasture in July will get fat by fall without any feed whatever. One acre of my pasture will grow more feed without any expense whatever than one acre of land I cultivated will grow.

Some people think it is costly to make pastures but it is my experience that it cost very little.

Land that will be expected to make a pasture on next year should be cleared and cleaned in August and September and seed sown from the middle of March to the first of May and if this is done there will not be very many weeds or wild grass in the pasture next year if plenty of stock are kept on the pasture.

I have some pasture that is ten or twelve years old and during this time I have not had to cut a weed or bush where I sowed grass ten or twelve years ago.

I have about ten acres of swamp land I cleared last fall and sowed carpet, Dallas grass and lespedeza in April, that is a very good pasture this year and I do not expect to ever cut a bush or weed off this ground. It is no objection to pasture land that water overflows as it does not hurt the grass unless water stands and ponds on the land and drys up.

I buy some cattle, and in going over our county visiting some of the pastures that cows are kept in, I believe that the pastures I have seen that a majority of the growth is bitter weeds and the roughtest kind of woods and I cannot understand how that any farmer would expect his cows to do well in such a pasture.

The farmers will clear their land and make the very best preparations they can to raise a crop and even buy high priced fertilizer to raise feed to feed their cattle and horses and then in April turn them in a black jack thicket, briar patch or a bunch of bitter weeds and expect them to get fat and milch cows to give plenty of milk.

The farmers of Chilton County have made wonderful progress in the last few years in the agricultural line but I believe they are further behind on pasturage than any other agricultural interest.

Remember, now is the time to prepare your land for pastures because any kind of bushes, weeds or briars cut during this month and next will not sprout but very little next year.

In conclusion it is my observation that the best of grass and clover for pasturage will do no better in woods, briar patches and weeds than corn and cotton will do.—Respectfully, L. H. Reynolds.

BUY BLUE EAGLE GOODS IS PLEA OF N.R.A. CHIEF

Our Aim Is to Employ Six Million Idle Men Before Winter

By General Hugh S. Johnson

Washington. — Since the inauguration of the president's emergency reemployment campaign, the statement has been made many times: "This is a real war in which we are engaged." Possibly many persons may have felt that such statements merely were the outbursts of well - intentioned but rather over-emphasized emotion. There are no soldiers marching along our streets, no bands are playing martial airs to encourage the enlistment of recruits, no lists of casualties are coming in from the front, no invading force upon our shores. Yet, the fact remains that we are at war with an enemy that has invaded our shores and reduced one third of our population to destitution, thereby causing, perhaps as great a sum total of suffering as any war in which this nation ever engaged.

And it is in this spirit that the people of America should view the present situation. For the first time, our forces have been drawn up against our enemy and the nation is now moving to the attack with a solidarity that is so typical of our country when confronted by a great crisis.

This is a peculiar war, and because of its peculiarity — its dissimilarity from anything that has ever been witnessed in any country at any time before—the women of the land can play really a more important part than would be the case if we were sending our boys to some "over there."

Our objective in this war is the reemployment of 6,000,000 persons before winter, in addition to widespread increase in wages. With this objective reached, we shall have broken the back of the depression. Of this I am sure.

Now, this enormous addition to the mass buying power of our people through reemployment and higher wages will, as one can quite readily see, place large additional burdens on the employers of labor. Therefore the great mass of Americans must rally to the support of these loyal employers who have signed the president's agreement and supply the compensating patronage and support. You can tell who these employers are by the Blue Eagle which they will display in their establishments.

The women of America control a major amount of the buying power of the country. I have heard it quoted as high as 80 per cent. The women of the nation have it within their power to throw the business of the nation into the hands of Blue Eagle firms.

Many of these merchants have gone into the campaign feeling that their profits will be tremendously curtailed for a while—possibly wiped out entirely—but it is the price they are willing to pay to restore national prosperity. We are duty bound to support and protect them. We must not go through another winter such as the last three have been.

It is impossible to over emphasize to the nation the great seriousness of our situation, and the tremendous responsibility that rests upon them at this time. We, in Washington, who are working in this drive against unemployment are counting on them to back us up loyally and vigorously. The watchword is "Look for the Blue Eagle." Buy at Blue Eagle establishments. Buy Blue Eagle merchandise. And buy just as liberally as your purse will permit.

If the women of America will follow these simple suggestions we will be well out of the depression within the next few weeks.

PROHI BUREAU HAS PASSED OUT

18 Years Effort To Dry Up America Ended; New Agency Created

Washington, August. 10.—The federal prohibition bureau, set up 13 years ago to dry up the country under the 18th amendment, passed out of existince last night as a separate organization.

In its place today was a newly created division of investigation in the department of justice, absorbing prohibition enforcement, investigating and criminal identification agencies of the government.

Prohibition enforcement personnel had been reduced from a peak of 3,258 two years ago to around 2,000. These were transferred to the new division, but it was believed additional readjustments might be made later in line with the administration's confident belief the 18th amendment will be repealed by the end of the year.

After repeal, the government's prohibition enforcement activities will be confined to protecting states which desired to remain dry. How many men this will require is uncertain at present.

Federal enforcement has been relaxed considerably in recent months, although Attorney General Cummings has said it will continue as long as the 18th amendment is in force.

Rapidly changing public sentiment, prospects of early repeal, and the Roosevelt program of government reorganization dictated the decision to combine the prohibition bureau with other federal law enforcement agencies.

ERNEST MOORE OPERATING SHELL STATION IN CLANTON

Mr. Ernest Moore recently bought out the Shell Service Station in Clanton from Mr. Arthur Tippett. For the past nine months Mr. Moore has been operating a Standard Station in Cooper, but he recently sold out this station. At his new station in Clanton not only gas and oil service are to be had, but also washing, polishing and greasing services are offered. The new proprietor plans to secure the agency for a good tire in the near future. Mr. Moore relates that he has had good business in Clanton considering the short time that he has been here.

Mr. Moore is well known in Clanton and throughout the county. He formerly was connected with several different cafes in Clanton, and he has operated various kinds of businesses over the county.

Mr. Moore earnestly solicits the patronage of his many friends at his new place of business.

THREE NEGROES MOBBED SUNDAY

Officers Overpowered While Carrying Prisonrs To Birmingham Jail

Lynching may belong to a past generation, but that didn't prevent the mobbing of three negroes near Blocton early Sunday. The negroes were taken from officers between Tuscaloosa and Birmingham by a mob in two armored cars. Two of the negroes' bodies were later found bullet-riddled near Blocton, 23 miles west of Birmingham in Bibb County. The other negro was found alive Monday a few miles from the place where the bullet-riddled bodies of his companions were found. Although the negro was alive he was suffering from bullet wounds in the right side and left arm. The wounds were not considered serious, and the negro was carried back to the jail in Tuscaloosa.

The three negroes were on trial in Tuscaloosa for the murder of a 21-year-old girl in Tuscaloosa County on July 10. Rumors of a mobbing caused the attempted removal of the prisoners from Tuscaloosa to Birming Saturday night.

Special session of the Tuscaloosa Grand Jury has been called to investigate the mobbing.

PENSIONS READY SATURDAY

Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds asks The Union-Banner to inform the pensioners of Chilton County that their pensions will be in his office ready for distribution Saturday of this week. These are the pensions for the July quarter, and are for the full quarter.

If they keep on reducing the price of automobiles, some one will soon be able to pay cash for one.

MY IMPRESSION OF THE EXPERIMENT STATION

By R. C. Veazey
Member Isabella F. F. A. Chapter

The experiment station at Auburn never occurred to me as being of any importance, other than just a place to go, until I heard the work explained and saw how each experiment was carried out. Now I know its value to Alabama.

The forests, which have been so badly burned, are being studied and an experiment showing the folly of burning the forests is being carried out.

No poultryman can afford to experiment with his flock and hope to make any profit. On the poultry experimental flock every imaginable feed is tried for its egg producing quality.

I never realized that so much work and time could be spent on an experiment, until I heard the experiment on cotton spacing explained. The actual planting is done by hand—so is the thinning. All this work is done for the farmer's good.

Another thing that impressed me was the summer curing meat. Some of the meat that was in cure was killed when the temperature was 103.

If this experiment proves satisfactory, many pounds of meat will be saved which would have otherwise been lost.

An impression that everyone who visits the experiment station gets is the authorities and officials are doing their best to benefit all parties concerned. May this be the impression of all.

FRIENDSHIP SEWING CLUB

The club is very sorry to lose one of its active members, Mrs. Frank Mastin, who has moved to Harpersville, Ala.—Mrs. Alvie Smith, president.

Aren't you wild about bathing beauties

"I don't know, I never bathed one."

Grade one was having a lesson on birds.

After some discussion the fact was established that birds eat fruit.

"But, teacher,," she asked, raising her hand, "how do the birds open the cans?"

REUBEN ANDREW ALDRIDGE DIED

Mr. Reuben Andrew Aldridge, age 74 years, died at his home in Clanton Sunday at 1:30 p.m., after a short illness. Mr. Aldridge was a native of this county and he lived in the county all of his life. He has lived in Clanton for the past several years, but formerly Mr. Aldridge lived down near Enterprise. He was well-known throughout the county and he was prominent in all his relations. By occupation the deceased was a carpenter.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 Monday, with Rev. R. L. Huffman, pastor of the Church of Christ, of Clanton, conducting the services. A large company attended the funeral to pay their last respects. Interment was in the Clanton cemetery. The pallbearers were Judge L. H. Reynolds, Dr. E. E. Upchurch, Floyd Aldridge, Eugene Aldridge, Horace Aldridge and Marshal Baker. Martin was in charge of the burial.

The deceased is survived by his wife, two sons, M. A. Aldridge, of Anniston, and C. M. Aldridge; three daughters, Mrs. W. A. Maddox, Mrs. George C. Tutt and Mrs. Ross Mize, all of Birmingham.

MY IMPRESSION OF THE EXPERIMENT STATION

By Alton Cobb
Member Jemison F. F. A. Chapter

A state convention of the Future Farmers of America was recently held at Auburn. Each chapter was represented by two delegates. An experiment station tour was conducted for the F. F. A. Boys.

Erosion, an experiment that I saw, was explained fully. The most striking thing was the value of Austrian peas and vetch in preventing erosion.

I was shown an experiment on determining the best simplified laying ration for hens on Alabama farms. No one best ration can suit every farm in Alabama, but depends upon what is available and what price.

I visited an experiment on curing pork, with ice on the farm in hot weather with as little cost as possible. This is a very useful experiment. It will enable the farmers to save their meat in the hottest kind of weather.

I was shown an experiment on cotton spacing. This experiment is divided into eighty-eight plots. Results from each plot are made separately. This data will be useful to farmers where obtained.

An experiment of forestry was convincing. The most important thing about this experiment was showing the value of preventing forest fires. An area that had been burned every five years was scant of growth, but an area that had not been burned had plenty of growth.

I was greatly impressed with the efficiency of the work done at Auburn. These accurate results are made by trained men and much labor and expense, but it is worth it to the farmers.

Oscar — Why is it that statistics show women live longer than men?

Dick—Well, you know paint is a great preservative.

REVIVAL AT COURTHOUSE SPONSORED BY FOURSQUARE

Miss Dorothy L. Kunzman, nationally known evangelist, will begin a two weeks revival Sunday, August 13th, at 7:45 p.m., in the courthouse.

Miss Kunzman comes from Alhambra, California, and has held meetings in many principal cities in the Eastern, Western and Northern States, and has worked in many of the outstanding churches.

She is an inter-denominational evangelist and this campaign will be inter-denominational in spirit. Every church in the city and surrounding country is invited and urged to come and join with us in our efforts for God.

Miss Dorothy L. Kunzman

Do not miss the splendid opportunity of attending the initial service. Get to know this dynamic speaker and you will not want to miss any service during the time that she is in our town. This is a rare opportunity for Clanton to hear one of the leading girl evangelists of the day.

There will be an interesting musical program each evening preceding the message.

MRS. K. U. HULL DIED

Mrs. K. U. Hull, age 42 years, wife of Rev. K. U. Hull, died at her home in the East View community Sunday at 11 a.m., after an extended illness. Rev. and Mrs. Hull moved to this county only about 8 months ago, but they were both well-known throughout the county. Mrs. Hull was well spoken of by all who knew her, and was looked up to as a real Christian woman.

Funeral services were held Monday at 2:30 p.m. at Procter Creek church in Coosa County. This was the church at which the deceased held her membership. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Gillentin, a Baptist preacher from Pensacola. Interment was in Providence church cemetery, a short distance from Procter Creek church. The pall bearers were: J. M. Courtney, L. L. Courtney, W. A. Martin, Marvin Kelly, T. J. Traywick and a Mr. Boles. A good many attended the funeral from this county.

The deceased is survived by her husband, the Rev. K. U. Hull; four daughters, Misses Orea, Arlie Mae Alphia and Nora; two sons, Barrie and Edward and one sister. Phillip and George Bonnett are brothers of the deceased.

REFUGE NEWS

Just a few words from this place. We are glad to report that we had a splendid Sunday school last Sunday. Come one, everybody, and let's keep our little Sunday school going. Don't give up.

Rev. William E. Robinson of Birmingham delivered a wonderful message at this place Sunday at 3:30 o'clock, which was enjoyed by a good crowd.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Ethel Easterling is back at home and doing nicely.

Mrs. Sarah Minor and daughter Birdie, Mr. and Mrs. Jodie Minor and children were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Minor last week.

We wish to thank the good people of our community and the adjoining community for their help and kindness during the 13 days that I spent in the Central Alabama hospital, especially do I thank the ladies for the 21 chickens they sent me. Also we thank Dr. Gragg and the nurses for their kind treatment. Words will not express our thanks for all that has been done for us. May God bless each and every one for what they did. —Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Easterling.

Nurse (at insane asylum)—There's a man outside who wants to know if any of the male patients have escaped lately.

Doctor—Why does he ask?

Nurse—He says somebody has run off with his wife.

Indignant Father—Do you think it is fair, Bobby, after I told you there wasn't any Santa Claus, to go and tell the neighbors I laid your Easter eggs, too?

YOUNG MAN WAS DROWNED IN COOSA COUNTY CREEK

While in swimming in Penchula Creek in Coosa County Monday about noon, Jack Hilyer, age 17, son of Governor Hilyer, was drowned. Young Hilyer is said to have dived into the water and presumably struck a snag tearing a hole in his chest. The wound was not judged sufficient to cause death.

Governor Hilyer lives at Richville, not far from where the tragedy occurred. The body was buried at Swamp Creek Tuesday.

It is reported that a group of club boys, in charge of the county agent of Coosa County, composed the swimming party. The agent, however, was not present when young Hilyer was drowned. The county agent, it was said, bore the expense of the boy's funeral.

Governor Hilyer is a brother of Tom Hilyer who lives between Clanton and Cooper.

BILLY GREEN IN AUTO WRECK

Mr. W. E. (Billy) Green and family were in an auto wreck Monday afternoon at Thorsby in which several injuries were suffered.

Mr. Green was coming from Birmingham to Clanton in a Model A Ford Sedan when he parked his car for a few minutes in Thorsby across the highway from Wright's Soda Fount. It is related that the car was parked on its right side of the road and that both the right wheels were off the pavement. While he was standing parked a Durant coming from toward Birmingham, in which a man and his wife were riding, crashed into the rear of Mr. Green's car. It is reported that there was nothing to prevent the Durant from going around the Ford, for there was no car in the way, and there was enough room for two cars to have passed on the left side of the Ford. The driver of the Durant tried to make no excuse, but stated that he was asleep at the time of the accident.

The woman in the Durant was apparently very badly hurt with several bad cuts about over her head. The man in the Durant was uninjured. In the Ford little Bill and his sister, Sarah Green, received minor injuries. The injured parties were carried to Dr. Franklin's office to have their wounds dressed. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Green were injured.

The Durant was badly torn up, but the Ford was not seriously damaged.

The parties in the Durant at the time of the accident were enroute to Clanton where they expected to attend the funeral of Mr. R. A. Aldridge. The woman was the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Maddox of Birmingham. Mrs. Maddox is the daughter of Mr. Aldridge.

IN MEMORY OF JESSE TRAYWICK

Our hearts were very much saddened August 6 when Jesse Traywick fired the fatal shot through his heart that ended his life on this earth.

He has left a number of friends in a doubt as to the cause, yet we believe in the supreme being. God's children are not to understand here but they will hereafter. Jesse was just 21 years old in the bloom of life, leaving his bride of three months to live without his companionship. The way is so rugged it seems sometimes we can't go any further, but trust and obey, and God will see you through.

Mother, father, wife, sisters and brothers, surely Jesse can say, "come along with me. Heaven is so beautiful up here. Let nothing come between you and your God."—Just two friends.—Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Carroll.

Henderson—Why are you in the air force now? I thought you were in the calvary?

Peterson—I got transferred.

Why was that?

Well, after an airplane throws you out, it doesn't generally walk over and bite you.

She—Daddy is so pleased to hear you are a poet.

He—Fine. He likes poetry then?

She—Not at all. But the last friend of mine he tried to throw out was an amateur boxer.

1|c—"Mister, what makes the leaves turn red in the fall?"

4|c—"They are blushing to think how green they have been all summer, sir."

HARVEY MOORE KILLED IN SAW MILL ACCIDENT AUG. 7

Harvey Moore, age 44 years, was killed Monday, August 7, at a saw mill where he was employed in Longview, Washington. He was a sawyer at the mill. A slab from the saw became entangled in the machinery and struck Mr. Moore on the head, resulting in his death almost instantly.

Harvey Moore was born and reared in Clanton, the son of the late Pink M. Moore, former sheriff of Chilton County. About 20 years ago he left Clanton and went to Louisiana where he worked at a saw mill until he went to Longview, Washington about six years ago.

While living in Louisiana he was married to a lady whose home was in Kansas City. He is survived by his wife; one son, Jimmie, age 16; one daughter, Billie Elizabeth, age 8.

Other relatives surviving are his step-mother, Mrs. Scottie Moore, of Clanton; sisters, Mrs. Bama Cox, Mrs. Frank Foshee, Mrs. Joe Letcher of Plantersville, Mrs. John Moon and Miss Frances Moore; brothers, Ed Moore of Plantersville, Tobe Moore of Missouri and Dave Moore.

Funeral services were held at Longview last Saturday afternoon. From there the body was carried to Portland, Oregon, and cremated. Relatives here are advised that the remains will be brought south for burial in the near future.

"I don't suppose you'll kiss me good-night, will ya, Gert?"

"My friend, with a guess as good as that, you ought to play the ponies every day."

PLEASANT VALLEY SINGING SOCIETY

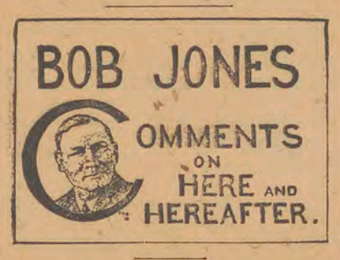
The singers of Pleasant Valley community met Sunday, August 13, to organize a singing society. Mr. Mashall Burkhalter was elected chairman and immediately took charge. By his willingness to take the position and work he has shown us his interest in our singing society. It is our society, friends, and not only his, therefore we must pledge to him our support and help him keep a lively society going here.

Does this community not possess as much talent and desire for a singing society as any other of the nearby communities that have them? Prove it by attending.

Singing followed the organization. A number of directors led the music which was enjoyed by everyone. We had with us Mr. O. L. Devaughn, our music teacher of this summer. We were very glad to have him back with us. We were also very glad to have the many visitors from Maple Springs, East View, Bethsalem and other places.

Plans were started for a united singing society consisting of Bethsalem, Indian Grave, Pleasant Valley and Probably East View. We wish to announce that we are unanimously in favor of such an organiation, as we feel it would insure continued interest, as well as better singing.

Our society meets on the second Sunday in every months. Visitors and helpers from everywhere will receive a very warm welcome.



The wise men always make preparation for the inevitable. Death is the inevitable.. The Bible says Jesus Christ is the preparation for the inevitable. "He that hath the Son hath life," so says the Word.

I wouldn't rob the human heart of any of its joy nor would I cast a shadow over the clear sky of human hope, but it is worth while for us to sit down occasionally and face the fact that we are not in this world to stay forever.

The years go by like mileposts on a railroad. It is Christmas, New Year, Easter, Thanksgiving, and Christmas again.

I have traveled in about twenty-five foreign lands. I have seen a funeral in every country. An Egyptian historian told me that in all probability during a certain period of Egyptian history, there were more than seven hundred million Egyptian bodies embalmed. I cannot vouch for the accuracy of this statement. But I do know that of all the teeming millions who have lived in the past, that all, with the exception of two (Enoch and Elijah) went to eternity by the way of death. Jesus Christ, God's son, died. We are following all these millions to the grave. We don't know how soon we shall go. The best preparation that any man make to live in this world is to make preparation to die. The man who is prepared to die and meet God any moment is a mighty fine citizen to have in a community.

In one of the missions in New York they handed me a card. It said, "If I were to die tonight I would go to ———." At the bottom of the card were these words, "Please fill in the name of the place." The Bible states explicitly that there are two places beyond this world—there is a heaven and there is a hell. I am willing to take chances with my money, with my health, and with my life, but I don't want to take any chances with my immortal soul.

A widow visited a spiritualistic medium who satisfactorily produced the deceased husband for a little chinfest.

"Dear John," the widow questioned eagerly, "are you happy now?"

"I am very happy," the spook assured her.

"Happier than you were on earth with me?" the widow continued.

"Yes', John asserted, "I am happier now."

"Oh, do tell me, John," the widow cried rapturously, "what is it like in heaven?"

"Heaven!" the spook snapped. "I ain't in heaven."

JUNIOR TOPIC—Samuel Listening to God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Training for Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Responding to God's Call.

I. Samuel's Birth (1:1-20).

He was given to Hannah in answer to her prayer. His name means "asked of God."

II. Samuel Lent to the Lord (1:24-28).

In connection with Hannah's prayer for a man child, she vowed to give him to God. He was to be a Nazarite all the days of his life. In fulfillment of her vow, she took him at an early age to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister therein.

III. Samuel Called of God (3:1-10).

Dwelling within the sacred courts and ministering before the Lord with Eli, is the innocent Samuel who is to become the saviour of his people. In Samuel we have a striking pattern of child religion. The Lord gave him in answer to his mother's prayer, and from his birth he was dedicated to the Lord. In the Scriptures we have set forth two types of experience; the one experiencing the saving grace of God after having lived in sin; the other of one brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord from his infancy.

Two traits of Samuel's character stand out in his call—his cheerful obedience to the Lord's call, and his surrendered will.

IV. Samuel Established in the Prophetic Office (3:11-21).

Up to this time Samuel obeyed Eli. The time has now come when he must directly hear and obey the Lord. The first message entrusted to him was a most terrible one. It doubtless was a bitter experience to Eli to see Samuel recognized, and himself passed by, but he was submissive. This fearful visitation upon Eli's house was due to the sins of his sons. Eli was accountable because he had not restrained them. He was a good man, but lax in the discipline of his children. Samuel grew and the Lord was with him and did not let any of his words fall to the ground. So fully did the Lord bless his ministry that all Israel knew that he was established as the Lord's prophet.

V. Samuel, the Judge (7:1-17).

1. People called to forsake their idols (vv. 1-6). Because of their sins God permitted the nation to be bitterly oppressed by the Philistines. Samuel promised them deliverance on condition of repentance (v. 3).

2. Samuel prayed for the people (vv. 7-14). In response to his prayer God miraculously delivered them from the Philistines. This victory was memorialized by the setting up of the stone called Ebenezer (v. 12).

3. Samuel judging Israel (vv. 15-17). Bethel, Gilgal, Mizpeh, and Ramah were his circuit, to each of which he made annual visits. These centers were for the accommodation of the people.

4. Samuel's final address (12:1-25). When Saul, the new king, was crowned, Samuel graciously retired, turning over to him the nation's affairs.

a. Samuel's challenge to the people (vv. 1-5). He reminded them of the way the king had been given and showed their direct responsibility for the change in government. He reviewed his own administration, showing his walk from childhood, and his career as judge and ruler. To this the people responded by a vote of confidence. It was Samuel's right as he laid down the reins of government to have his records vindicated.

b. Samuel reviews God's dealings with the nation from the time of Moses (vv. 6-15). He showed them that national prosperity was conditioned upon obedience (v. 14). Though they had displeased God in choosing a king, if they would fear the Lord and render obedience, national prosperity would still be given them.

c. Samuel's personal vindication (vv. 16-25). The hour was so critical in the nation's history that Samuel sought to indelibly impress upon their hearts its meaning. This he did by praying for thunder and rain out of season. They saw this as an example of God's mighty power which, if directed against them, would destroy them instantly.

He Turned to Prayer

He lived in the atmosphere of prayer from first to last; and when any specially important work had to be done, any specially difficult crisis had to be faced, any specially trying experience had to be endured, he met it by special prayer.—G. H. Knight.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

County Agent To Come

On Wednesday after the third Sunday, Mr. Worthy Hughes will be in the Training School community. For some reason he failed to get here the last meeting date, but we are looking for him again. It is very seldom that he misses when he is scheduled to come. He will lecture on farm mortgage loans and federal land bank loans. Those who are interested in redeeming mortgage foreclosures or mortgaged property, are urged to be present. This is a splendid opportunity for the little man and should be taken advantage of, but don't start if you don't have the backbone to go all the way through. Lots of us have gotten the money from federal land banks and now the land belongs to it. So, if you don't mean business, stay where you are.

A Good Lesson

I have been trying to convince my folks that it takes a big piece of land to make an acre, but to no avail. Then came the time to plow under, which made it necessary for every man to measure his cotton land. In practically very case the owner or tenant simply walked across his field and said, "Well, there is about ten acres in this field because it takes me two days to plow it." And that is as far as he went. Many of them have agreed to plow under half of their cotton, which was estimated to be so many acres, but by the time Uncle Sam gets his contract there will be very little left. One man who agreed to plow under one and one-half acres, half of his crop, found that he actually had one and one-half acres. He will have no cotton to pick this year. I have seen a goodly number of lessons that I have been advocating, brought out in such manner, and hope to see others.

Mass Meeting Thursday

A mass meeting is being called at the County Training School Thursday, August 17th, for the purpose of perfecting plans whereby every negro child in the county will have an equal opporthnity for a high school training right here at the training school. For a long time we have been running over two busses in certain sections of the county. This practice, we find, is very partial. It is our purpose to so adjust the situation that a child living in the furthest section will have the same opportunity as one nearby the school.

The negroes are sparcely settled in the county, making it very inconvenient to reach all sections with the limited number of school busses we have. Therefore it is imperative that some steps be taken to eliminate such maladjustment.

White Friends Are Invited

We shall be pleased to have our white friends come out to the meeting. It is certain that you will be called upon to help us in this step forward. We feel that we must have your presence in our every major undertaking.—Benjamin Anderson.

Central Singing Society

The Central Singing Society will meet at Refuge next Sunday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. All singers are invited.

A fairly good singing was held at Walnut Creek last Sunday afternoon, although the crowd was small and books were scarce.

Unless more singers of the section take an interest in the society the organization will have to be abandoned. It will be better to quit altogether than permit it to drag; and that is the condition right now. Nearly all the leading singers and teachers seem to have abandoned it, and only a few attend besides peoples of the immediate community in which it is held. It is also time to get new books and will soon be time to elect new officers. Let's get busy, singers, or quit one.

We are proud that the young people are showing interest in their work as they are. You know, a B. Y. P. U. cannot succeed unless everybody does his or her part. OBITUARY

In memory of Horace Mims, who met his death August 2nd, 1933, as he made his way to the northern states, in which he had located work. He probably never thought of meeting death on his way, as death is so often at the most unexpected time, but we do trust that Horace thought of God, our savior, and was ready to go when God called him. Horace was just in the life of youthful manhood, and was of much service to this community while he was here. He was so willing and useful among the sick and suffering, and with many he stood by until death.

We pray his reward for these good things, and trust that through this good work of his and the sorrow of his terrible fate that his loved ones, friends and all, may see where we, too, stand. Oh, make ready to meet God when He calls.—Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Williams, Maplesville, Ala., R. 2.

THE TELEPHONE IN GOOD AND BAD TIMES

By T. E. Harris,
DISTRICT MANAGER

SOUTHERN BELL
Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Some of our customers have expressed surprise that their telephone service has continued to improve, despite the depression and that their telephone friends seem as anxious as ever to satisfy every individual's needs.

This favorable comment is appreciated, but this condition is quite natural when one considers that service comes first with telephone people, and it is their serious obligation to serve the needs of the public just as efficiently in bad times as in good times.

Although the service has become more extensive and complex, there has been a constant improvement, due to scientific inventions, new methods and more skilled workers.

The value of the service has increased constantly and many users tell us they regard it as the cheapest form of service they can buy. Nothing provides so much in added comfort, convenience and protection for so small a cost, they say.

That the quantity and improved quality of the service has not resulted in increased cost is due to new inventions and practices which have been passed on to the user in the form of better service.

Your telephone friends have faced these trying times cheerfully. They have accepted shorter hours and reduced income just as others have done to spread the work among as many people as possible.

Telephone workers are friendly folks. They have your interests at heart and are always glad for you to ask questions about any of the company's policies or practices which you may not understand. Everywhere they are doing their best to fulfill their obligation to render the best possible service at the lowest possible cost consistent with financial safety.

COUNTY RECEIVES GASOLINE TAX

The county recently received $5,322.15 from the state as its part of the June tax collections under the state six cents tax.

The state collections on gasoline for the month of June amounted to $356,584, and this amount was equally divided among the 67 counties of the state. This collection reflected sales of more than 11,000,000 gallons of gasoline throughout the state during the month of June.

This county like many others of the state is using a part of its portion of this tax as a relief measure for the unemployed of the county. This county recently accepted a plan of the R. F. C. whereby it is expending the amount of $2,500 per month from this gasoline fund as a relief measure for August and September.

The amount of gasoline tax received by the county for the month of June exceeded that of the month of May by about $100.

CHURCH ANTAGONISM?

A few years ago there might have been reason to complain that the churches were antagonistic to one another and held aloof from each other. If this were true in the past, it certainly is not true in Chilton County today.

An example of the beautiful cooperation and Christian fellowship existing among the churches in this county was shown last Sunday night at the East View Congregational church, of which Rev. A. C. Nelson is pastor. Dr. William T. Morgan, of Birmingham, who is conducting a meeting at this church, asked the members of the different denominations to stand and tell the name of the church of which they were members. Members of two Congregational churches, two Methodist churches and fifteen Baptist churches were present, making a total of nineteen separate churches represented at this one service.

In all probability such an example of Christian brotherhood has seldom if ever been seen in any church of any denomination. This stands as a loving monument to the life and labors of the pastor of the East View Congregational church. Mr. Nelson has served seven years as pastor of this church and has won the confidence, love and respect of the people of all churches for miles surrounding his church.

Scenes like that witnessed Sunday night foretell a greater day of love, sympathy and cooperation among the Christian churches, and indicate that the time may be close at hand when the prayer of the Master that "they all may be one" is to be answered. —William T. Morgan.

CHILTON NEGRO INDICTED BY FEDERAL JURY FOR EXTORTION

Andrew Walker, Chilton County negro, was indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Montgomery, August 9, on an extortion charge. It was charged that Walker attempted to extort $2,500 from I. W. Henthill, of Akron, Ohio, through a letter threatening bodily harm to Henthill's family if the demand was refused.

Walker was placed in jail at Montgomery in default of $1,500 bond. The negro was formerly a servant in the Henthill home in Akron.

District Attorney Arthur B. Chilton, of Montgomery, said that Henthill turned the letter over to postal authorities at Akron who in turn notified Federal agents at Montgomery. Walker was placed under arrest at his home in Chilton.

At the time of the arrest Walker was making a crop on Mr. Walter Popwell's place near Clanton. Walker was not a native of this county, but his wife was a daughter of Nute Brazil, who lives near Clanton.

It is understood here that Walker plans to plead guilty to the charge placed against him. Extortion is a grave felony.

She comments especially on the splendid behavior of so many children living together, and the care which they are receiving at the hands of the officers of the Orphanage.

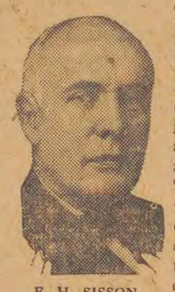
How All the People Played a Part In Building Nation's Credit Structure

Banker Describes the Way Loans and Securities of Banks Are Based on the Hopes and Plans of All Classes—Values Dependent on Public's Ability to Meet Obligations

By FRANCIS H. SISSON,
President American Bankers Association in The Forum

CREDIT may be informally described as future hopes, plans and good intentions converted into present purchasing power. The farmer, the manufacturer, the merchant, the home buyer, the purchaser of household goods, the investor and the speculator all borrow at times. They plan to repay with the earnings of their crops, proceeds of the sales of their goods, incomes from their wages and salaries or profits from the resales of their securities at enhanced market values, each as the case may be.



F. H. SISSON

The greater part of these various forms of credit is obtained by the borrowers directly or indirectly through the expansion of the loans and investments of the banks. It is this which creates the notes, securities and mortgages in the portfolios of the banks. The banks are able to extend these loans because a great many people deposit money with them.

Even under the best conditions the plans of a small percentage of borrowers go wrong through mistakes, hard luck or dishonesty, and the judgment of the banker in such cases is proved by the after event to have been at fault. The losses caused under such conditions are ordinarily fully met by funds set aside out of the earnings of the banks for just this purpose and do not affect the money of the depositors, who seldom hear anything about such losses.

In the vast majority of cases and in the overwhelming volume of business involved the confidence of the bankers in their customers and the confidence of the customers in their own ability to carry out their plans and obligations to successful conclusions are wholly justified. This is the normal economic situation and it constitutes the conditions under which the use of credit adds to public welfare and progress.

The Faith of the Banks

Such was the structure of hopes, good intentions and common confidence in one another that existed among all classes of the nation's community life when the series of economic shocks began to shake the nation's social fabric in 1929. The people had deposited billions of dollars with the banks because they had confidence in them. The banks had loaned large volumes of these deposits on farm and home mortgages and on notes of manufacturers, business men and finance concerns, and had invested in the standard securities of the nation's corporations, state and local government units and the national government itself, because they had confidence in the citizenship and business condition of the nation.

Their mortgage and other loans to owners of farms aggregated $6,500,000,000. Loans on urban real estate were $4,000,000,000. Loans to individuals secured by U. S. Government, municipal and corporate securities totalled $11,000,000,000. Loans to industrial and commercial enterprises in connection with the production and distribution of the nation's infinite varities of goods amounted to almost $19,500,000,000. Investments in Federal, State and municipal bonds were almost $6,000,000,000, and in various kinds of railroad and corporate securities $11,000,000,000. These made total loans and investments of $58,000,000,000.

This great credit structure was built while the country was at peace, while the farms and factories were productive, while the nation and the world provided great active markets for their outputs, while the earnings of all kinds of enterprise were large, while the working people of the nation were fully employed, while wages and salaries were steady and generous, while prices of commodities were strong and while the minds of the people were dominated by faith in the future and confidence in one another.

Great Changes Came to the Nation

Then suddenly, almost as if the sun itself had lost part of its vitality everything changed. Foreign markets failed and disappeared. Industry slackened. A rapid drop in all kinds of commodity values set in. The earnings of business fell. Unemployment developed. Wages and salaries went down. Domestic markets shrank. Fear became general. The securities markets became panic-ridden as the prices of stocks and bonds withered to fractions of their former values. It was the greatest disintegration of human plans, economic conditions and worldly values that history had ever witnessed.

These destructive changes cut right through the qualities and values of the loans and investments, the notes and securities in the banks. Business men and manufacturers could not repay their notes to the banks as due. Many governmental units and corporations defaulted the payments on their bonds. Property underlying real estate mortgages became worth less than the face of the mortgages. The market values of standard securities became less than the banks had paid for them as investments or accepted them at as collateral for customers' loans.

This meant, in fine, that the ability of borrowers to carry out the future hopes, plans and good intentions that I have denned above as the basis of credit, had become impaired to a far greater extent than had ever before occurred in the nation's history. The resulting losses could not be absorbed by the banks alone out of the normally ample funds that had been set aside against the expectancy of a certain inevitable percentage of human plans gone wrong.

Banks Showed All Reasonable Care

It was in loans and investments whose values thus became so unforeseeably impaired, that the banks, in all confidence, in all good faith, in all humanly reasonable care and good judgment had entrusted the billions of dollars of deposits which their customers had entrusted to them.

Those loans and investments were, under all normal conditions, as good as gold itself. Indeed if the banks instead had filled their vaults with gold bars, and then some unknown cosmic ray had transmuted them into lead, the results would have been scarcely more startling than the depreciation that was caused in the assets of the banks by the unforeseeable economic forces which permeated and debased them.

The inevitable result was that, when the banks urgently needed the money they had entrusted to those assets, so that they could meet the unreasoning demands of their depositors, they could not get it back.

It was not that our banking system and methods were of themselves weak or reprehensible, apart from the rest of the life of the nation, as has so much been made to appear.

It was not that our banks were permeated with incompetency or dishonesty or with lower standards of business ethics than were the other forms of human activity with which their own fate and activities were inextricably interwoven, as, it almost seemed at times, there was a concerted national conspiracy to lead our people to believe.

The great fact of American banking is that it shared fully in the plans and hopes and hazards of the American people,—and when those plans went wrong, the banks carried their share of the burden and suffered their share of the misfortune.

CLANTON 7—JEMISON 20

The way the game between Jemison and Clanton turned out last Friday afternoon only serves to give more credence to the statement that you can never tell what will happen next in a baseball game. Be your alibi for the result what it may, the fact remains that Jemison handed Clanton its worst defeat of the season, excepting the Buck Creek games. Easterling who started for Clanton was being hit hard when he was pulled and Watkins went in. Even then the slaughter went on. Jemison collected 20 hits for 20 runs. In the four inning Jemison collected 7 hits for 9 runs off Watkins.

Rev. Lemuel B. Green, of Lowndesboro, was in Clanton visiting relatives and friends Tuesday. Rev. Green is a former pastor of the Clanton Methodist Church.

JOSEPHINE IRENE PIERCE DIED

Mrs. Josephine Irene Pierce, age 60 years, died at an infirmary in Tuscaloosa Monday, August 14. The body was shipped to Clanton where Spigener took charge. Funeral services were held Wednesday at 11 a.m., at New Salem with Rev. Homer Carroll conducting the services. Burial was in the New Salem cemetery with Spigener in charge.

The deceased is survived by her husband, W. M. Pierce, one son, William Pierce, of Gadsden; two daughters, Mrs. Anna Brown, of Wetumpka, and Mrs. Mildred Griffith, of Tallassee; two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Nix, of Thorsby, and Mrs. Dora Bates of the New Salem community, and eight grandchildren.

At the time of Mrs. Pierce's death the Pierce home was in this county. The Pireces moved back to this county from Wetumpka only a short while back. Before going to Wetumpka a few years ago the Pierce family had made this county their permanent home.

Two pickpockets had been following an old man whom they had seen displaying a fat wallet. Suddenly he turned off and went into a lawyer's office.

"Good lor' " said one. "A fine mess. What'll we do now?"

"Easy," said his mate, lighting a cigarette. "Wait for the lawyer."

Friend (gazing aloft)—Aren't you worried when your husband is looping the loop?

Aviator's wife—Oh, no. You see I remove all his loose change from his pockets before he goes up.

THE N. R. A. MARCHES ON.—

It is etsimated that already the NRA program has taken 2,000,000 people off the unemployment lists and put them in jobs. This means, conservatively figured, that a billion dollars a year is already added to the purchasing power of the American people, and the movement is only beginning. This circumstance alone ought to be sufficient to assure to those timid people who have been doubting the success of the great experiment.

Ultimately, of course, all the business of the United States will be conducted under the codes, which have their own chief purpose correction of the unemployment situation. Elements in this accomplishment are the elimination of child labor, the shortening of hours of work, and a higher wage scale. It needs no statistician to demonstrate that every decrease of unemployment brings us closer to the end of economic depression, for every man who is earning a living indirectly contributes by what he buys to the employment of others, and so the wheels of commerce will turn faster and faster until the great depression becomes merely a memory. The rapidity with which we reach this desired goal depends on the promptness with which industry generally comes into the fold. Already most of the larger industries are in. But the smaller manufacturer or merchant, taken in the mass, is even more important than the big corporations. Incidentally, the consumer must play his part. Every purchase made now is an investment, the dividends of which will come out of future prosperity. Moreover, the encouragement the consumer can give to the businesses that comply with the requirements of the NRA will not only encourage him but will be a warning to those who are holding back that if they expect to share in the general revival they had better get aboard at once.

The trouble with sheep shearing day in Wall Street is that it comes when the sheep least expect it.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The next international meeting to interest the American people, now that the London economic conference is out of the way, is the reconvening of the Geneva Disaramament Conference next October. At present, according to most political experts who have studied the question, there is not much more chance this conference will succeed than there was for the London Economic Conference. There is the same old story of conflicting interests on the part of European nations.

It is announced from Washington that when the conference reconvenes, the American delegates will once more press President Roosevelt's proposal for the aboloshing of all offensive weapons. Admirable as this poroposal may be in intention, there is no indication that it will succeed. In the first place neither the experts or the delegates whom they are supposed to advise, have yet, after months of study, been able to agree on what constitutes a weapon of offensive warfare. When we think of offensive warfare we think immediately of grisly armored tanks and Big Berthas which will shoot for seventy miles. But how about the humble airplane? Is it not an offensive weapon too? A great many malitary experts believe that an army well equipped with bombing planes could blow up any capital in Europe on reasonably short notice. Now just how is this offensive weapon of the sky to be abolished? Surely no one will propose the elimination of the science of aviation. That would not be desirable even if it were possible. An agreement might be reached on bombing planes. But the question then arises as to how long it would take to equip a big commercial plane for effensive warfare especially if it were designed with the view that it might some time have to be converted suddely into a bomber?

This brings up a point of disagreement between France and Germany. Suppose it were possible to eliminate bombing planes. When such a proposition were proposed to France she would immediately find an objection. Germany is a highly industrialized nation. If war broke out between France and Germany and neither nation had offensive bombing planes, Germany could construct them much faster than France because she has more equipment with which to do it, and France would soon be at a disadvantage. The same reasoning applies to tanks, big guns and other instruments of war. So there you are.

There are plenty of disagreements in Europe over the question of disarmament. The reason is that most, if not all, of the nations over there, only want to agree to a disarmament which will give them the advantage over the other fellow. Futher than that they are not willing to go. There are constant rumblings of trouble to come in Europe. Alignments are changing and nobody knows what alliances or understandings will come to the surface within the next few months.

Certainly under such circumstances there is little ground to believe that the coming disarmament conference will be any more successful than the recent London Economic Conference. Certainly it cannot succeed unless Uncle Sam agrees to make sacrafices which will be out of all proportion to the good than can come to us. Under the circumstances, since we are in the conference, it would seem the part of wisdom to present our proposals in a clear-cut way, devoid of diplomatic twistings and let them take it or leave it. The destiny and fututre of the United States lies pretty much in the Western Hemisphere.

WHAT WE LOST AT LONDON

Just whether there was a gain or a loss to Uncle Sam in the late lamented London Economic Conference remains an open question which is being debated pro and con by the newspapers of the United States. Most of them seem to have breathed sighs of relief because the American delegates have come home again without making any one sided concessions and are therefore asserting that Uncle Sam lost nothing in the conference. It occurs, however, that our Uncle Sam did lose one thing in the conference and that was something which was worth losing—his inferiority complex.

For many years this American inferiority complex has been in evidence every time we send delegates to Europe, for any kind of conference. The reason is not hard to find. Europeans, a great many of them at least, with their thousands of years of "civilization" and history, a history which is filled mostly with international fighting, pillage, rapine and plunder, are wont to look on Americans as barbarians, for the reason that our history only goes back for a hundred and sixty years, as a nation. They think we are crude and rough, and no doubt we always have been when it came to matters of diplomacy.

This sense of European superiority has had its effect on Americans who journey across the big pond, and especially on American delegations. And it has been carefully nurtured by our own internationalists who for years have been telling the world that in every disagreement with Europe in the matter of international policy Uncle Sam is always wrong and Europe is ever right. The European bootlickers in our own country have done their work well.

But now there seems to have been a change, and for the time we have lost our national inferiority complex. The beginning of the change could be noted a few years ago when Uncle Sam refused to give away his shirt in what internationalists called the "ill-fated" naval disarmament conference.

The results in the recent London conference, in this change of mental attitude were quite apparent. The conference didn't accomplish anything because the American delegates refused to trade their shirts for shoestrings.

European nations, including France which howled the loudest, had years ago devalued their currency to get the best of us in world trade. They were pained to note that we did not accept this complacently.

Uncle Sam refused to slash his tariffs to give European nations the advantage of our big market, he refused to torpedo his merchant marine in order to give the carrying trade of the world to European ships, and he refused to cancel the war debts and so relieve European tax payers at the expense of American tax payers. Had he possessed the old inferiority complex which our own internationalists with the aid of their European brethren have been so seriously cultivating for years, he would have agreed to return to the old gold basis, and to slash his tariffs in order to give Europe the advantage in the United States and throughout the entire world, he would have cancelled the debts and agreed to stop trying to develop his merchant marine. Had he done all of these things doubtless the European delegates would have been willing to award him with a nice medal and to give him the job of enforcing the peace of the world wherever trouble happened to break out.

But the loss by Uncle Sam of his inferiority complex has been a serious loss to Europe too. It has taken from the dark and bloody continent the tremendous advantage it has always had in its diplomatic dealings with the United States.

BY THREATS AND SHUDDERS

Commissar Richberg threatened the nation with communism in his New York speech. Now Commissar Johnson threatens it with a "collapse." He said: "If we can't come along here with increased purchasing power to support that higher production, I shudder to think what will happen. This country can't stand a new collapse."

Both of these efforts reveal a jumpiness of nerves in administration circles which in a less substantial country might well produce the very panic which Commissar Johnson seeks to avoid. Nevertheless the symptoms are to be rated as helpful rather than alarming. For they apparently represent the end of the innocent faith of the "brain trust" in inflation as a sort of automatic prosperity maker which any child can handle.

Rumor has credited the President with sharing this optimistic view. He is said to have been persuaded by his professors that inflation could easily be controled and that there was nothing to worry about. Keep smiling, get the country to singing "Happy days are here Again," and inflation will take care of itself.

The fact is that there have been for months solid grounds for believeing that the turn had come in the world depression and that this country, along with the others, was due to see demand, production and unemployment increase and prices rise. Unquestionably, therefore, part of the recent spectacular rise in the stock and grain markets has reflected a genuine and normal revival. But how large a part? To this normal progress has been added the artificial stimulus of an inflation threat, and as a result nobody knows just how much is solid and how much is not.

The worry that has suddenly seized the administration has apparently come from a sudden realization of this situation. Commissar Johnson plainly fears that unless wages are boosted swiftly in line with the speculative rocketing of prices the bottom will drop out of his boom.

Fortunately the country's nerves are in an excellent state, and the revival has gone far enough to convince every one of its solidity. If the administration has at least realized the perils of its inflation policy it may learn how to avoid them in whole or in part. But we doubt if it will find threats and shudders helpful. As a matter of fact, a swift rise in wages, necessarily accompanied by a swift rise in wages, necessarily accompanied by a swift rise in wholesale and retail prices might easily start a buyer's strike which would halt Commissar Johnson's train indefinitely. The more normal the course of the revival, in short, the better its chances of continuing. The sooner the administration can find a way to halt inflation and let nature take its course the better.

Russia, even Russia, has found threats an ineffective means of raising wheat, building cars and running trains. We doubt if either threats or shudders will work any better here.—New York Herald-Tribune.

It is said that the airplanes flying over New York now carry spy glasses so the passengers can see the sun bathers on the apartment house roofs and we suppose before long they will be carrying grappling hooks.

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Uncle John's Quilt

Sometimes we pick up relics of interest, and here is the latest one I have heard of. Uncle John Robinson has a quilt which he says is something near 160 years old, and has never been washed. I don't suppose it has ever been used much, however, or it couldn't be holding together, after all these years. To be that old, it would have to date its quilting party back around 1773—before the United States government, as we know it, came into being. Lots of water has passed under the bridge since then.

Willing To Help

I've been badly misunderstood. I'm for the NRA, tooth and toenail. I may be a doubter, or a skeptic, but, if so, I can't help that. But there is one thing I can do, and I expect to do it, too. That is to help in every way that I possibly can, in my humble way, to put the plans over the top. I think every loyal and patriotic citizen owes that much to the cause. In a way we are at war, the depression being our enemy, and the NRA our big gun. Every one of us has a part in keeping this big gun going until victory is ours; if one fails, our force is weakened just that much. What I, or any other individual, may think of the chances of success or failure of the NRA has nothing to do with the case. A soldier does not question if his country is right or wrong when in war—he simply obeys orders. If a man attempts to evade military service in time of war he is branded as a slacker; if he dons the uniform and then fails to do his duty, he is a traitor. It is the same in this case. If a firm or an individual bucks Uncle Sam's try to "come back"—slacker; if he displays the blue eagle, but tries to "beat the devil around the stump"—traitor. And that's the way I feel about it all, skeptic or not.

A City of Bells

In my series of articles about Cullman, I may call the little city several different kinds of names, for it is certainly different in many ways from any town I have ever been in. I had thought that the old bell custom was about a thing of the past, but this is not the case in Cullman. I wake up every morning with the sound of bells in my ears, and on Sunday morning, especially, life here is just one bell after another. To begin with, early every morning the bells at St. Bernard College ring out; in a few minutes the bells at Sacred Heart Academy ring. These two schools are Catholic institutions, the first a boys school and the second is for girls. About six o'clock the bells atop the beautiful Catholic church give their call to early mass. And then, too, on Sunday mornings, we hear bells from various other churches of the town—the Lutheran, the Christian, etc. On top of all that, at each hour, day and night, the big clock in the top of the courthouse here tolls out the time, with bells that can be heard all over the town. Many times I have been awakened in the dead of night by the slow ding, dong of this chime clock. Of all the others, though, I have not been able to distinguish one from the other. But to the people who have lived here for a long time every bell has a meaning all its own, and any of these people can listen and tell to a "T" just which bell is ringing.

Everyone Is Cooperating

I don't think anyone can gripe about the cooperation the government is getting. Everyone seems to be abiding by the rules, on the face of things, anyway. A few days ago I heard of a curious case of this kind. A sheriff and his deputies raided a still deep in the hills of Alabama, and the first thing they saw when they reached the spot was the big NRA blue eagle tacked to a tree. However, no one was there at work, and as it was after the usual working hours of the day, the sheriff concluded that the still owners and operators were abiding by the code. If there has been a code established to govern the moonshine industry, I have not heard of it yet, but maybe the boys have adopted one of the codes laid down for the several manufacturers, and are sticking to their code in good faith. If so, then that's what I call cooperation. Eh?

Clanton's Flying Field

From time to time I hear a little here and there in regard to Clanton's prospective landing field for airplanes. There is no better way for Clanton to get "on the map" than by the construction of such a field. A few days ago I listened to an official of the post office department of the government, and in his speech he left the impression that one of the biggest drawbacks to regular air mail routes throughout the country was the lack of fit landing facilities. He hinted that, once such facilities were provided, the scope of the air mail could be extended, and not until then. In addition to all this, he said that freight and passenger service would follow just as soon as these fields were constructed. There is no way of telling in how many different ways a field at Clanton could be beneficial. It would be a stop between the fields at Birmingham and Montgomery, and many times might prove right handy in case of trouble on this hop, affording a suitable place to land, and avoiding the possible loss of life and destruction of planes, which are very costly. Clanton needs the field. It would put us on the air traffic lane just as the highway put us on the North-South automobile route. Let's have it.

"Let the Fur Fly"

Huey Long (his political enemies pronounce it "hooey"), the well-known live wire from the pelican state, is feeling himself "set on" all of a sudden by the big guns of the Democratic administration at Washington. Huey has been the big noise for quite a while down Louisiana way, and I suppose he came to consider it a matter of course that he be considered in this light wherever he might go. So, when things began to go wrong for Huey up at the national capitol, he promptly kicked out of the harness, and told all the big boys just where to head in. However, it seems they were not sold on Huey's greatness so much, and now, he is feeling the screws set on his own political neck in no uncertain manner. Numerous big cuts of pie which he had been figuring on handing out to his own friends have been switched to others—some of them being his most bitter political enemies. Huey is contemplating the publication of a paper of his own, name of which will be "Let the Fur Fly" if he is not recognized more. And it looks like, right now, that he'll have to begin to "let 'er fly."—Man in the Moon.

A PROFESSOR'S DREAM

Right on the heels of a three page article in Sunday's New York times, by Professor Rexford G. Tugwell, the "left ear" of President Roosevelt and a member of the celebrteed "Brain Trust" and "Little Cabinet" in Washington, in which article he undertakes to build up voluminous arguments for the scrapping of the American Constitution, with such reasoning as "There can be no fixed form of government" and that the belief in "holy documents seems difficult to amend" and in which he paints our past as "wonderland economics," comes an article in the Washington (D. C.) Times, an administration paper, concerning a "rift in the Cabinet." The story states that the rift is so serious that the President may be forced to step in and try to compel a compromise, although the last of the numerous parleys has broken up with a compromise among the Cabinet members and sub-Cabinet members being rejected.

The discension on the inside, which has heretofore been denied by various members of the official circle and especially by the "Brain Trust" professors, is now acknowledged. Heretofore the professors have won out, but they appear to have now come upon a stone wall.

The inside scrap is apparently over the main policies of the reconstruction and recovery program, the most important part of the administration program which involves the expenditure of over three billion dollars for public works and the direction of industry under the industrial control legislation, under which program 1,000,000 men have been assured employment by October 1st. The entire program, according to the Times, is threatened with an extended delay. Director of the Budget Lewis Douglas was called in as a last resort to effect a compromise and to arbitrate the quarrel, but even this iron-fisted practical political giant is reported to have been brushed aside by the government theorists.

In the midst of the controversy, pacifists appear to have injected their poisonous theories into the minds of Secertery of the Interior Ickes and Secretary of Labor Perkins who have more or less always trained with the so-called "liberals" in our country. As a result both Secertary of War Dern and Secretary of Navy Swanson seem to have been at least temporarily stopped in their efforts to obtain the funds required to build up and modernize our handicapped armed forces, in which the enlisted men poorly equipped and housed, are receiving less pay than given the reforestation recruits who were taken in off the streets. The Army and the Navy, our principal internal security, it is reported, are in a very unhappy state of mind. Both of these forces now rank lower in strength than those of all but one world power.

It has long been the belief of many that the President has same very theoritical elements within his closed circle. Whether or not these elements are powerfully enough entrenched to overpower the sane and constructive Americans within the ranks remains to be seen.

In the former elements the American public lacks confidence and, no doubt the President realizes that and will uphold the latter. It is so hoped.

Everyone, of course, is praying for the President's success in working the country out of its present predicament. All will feel more secure, however, if at the same time the armed forces of our nation are strengthened, the professors' dreams are side-tracked, and good, hard-headed American businessmen together with sound labor leaders are sent in to replace any theoretical "Brain Trust" professors at the helm.

Chilton Gets The Axe

The political axe is ready to fall upon the head of Arthur B. Chilton, United States District Attorney at Montgomery. Mr. Chilton is marked as a "pollywog." He is one of a very few of them who has been permitted so far to remain in public office. Most of them have already been shorn by the Democratic powers in Alabama. It is doubtless no surprise to Mr. Chilton that he is required to pay a political sacrifice for supporting Hoover and Heflin.

The Printers Code

Billy Smith of The News and Mack Wyatt of The Banner, attended the Alabama Printers Federation in Montgomery Monday. It was a meeting for the purpose of studying the Printers Code that has been submitted to NRA, and which is expected to be approved in the next few days. When this code is approved, Clanton's two printing concerns will be operated under its provisions. It will govern working hours and salaries for the local printers, and will also establish a uniform price scale for selling printed matter of every kind. Printing, like every other industry, will be effected by this Code in such a manner as to make the selling price of the product uniformly and reasonably higher than it has been for the past few years.

THE SIGN OF THE BLUE EAGLE

The Blue Eagle is the insignia of the universal desire and hope of Americans to overcome the common and widespread economic ailment called depression, and its attendants, unemployment and hard times. The purpose of the National Recovery Administration is to co-ordinate and motivate this desire into a means of accomplishing its ends.

Every person in the land is a sufferer from these ills, and consequently every person is in need of the remedy that shall cure.

Every person can do something to help in the program of recovery, even if no more than lend his moral encouragement. Every person ought to do what he can. It is a common obligation.

"What can I do?" should be the query of each and all. Doing that thing should be the response of every person to his opportunity to serve in this cause.

It is obvious that recovery and restoration of prosperity in our land can not be accomplished by any halfway or half-hearted means. Half of us can not do it with the other half assuming an indifferent attitude. The fellow who says "Let George Do It" will be a menace to recovery.

All the people want to see recovery. There are enough of them ready to get into the fight to make it very unpopular for the fellow who may seem indifferent.

Now is the time to get in the Blue Eagle Brigade. Do not obstruct the effort by saying there is nothing I can do. We are assured that the National Recovery Administration will make a careful survey to determine if we are doing our part to support the Blue Eagle. Certainly no one desires to be found lacking in any respect when this accounting is made.

MAINE IS OPPOSED TO RUSSIA'S RECOGNITNON

Both of Maine's senators are opposed to the recognition of the Soviet Government. They point out that the recognition of this government is a matter with which the Senate has nothing to do, it being wholy a matter for the President to deal with. But both Senators Hale and White look upon it, from the viewpoint of Maine, as fraught with serious menace to this state.

Senator White, in discussing the question says that if the United States loans Russia money with which to purchase such products as our country has to sell, the loan must be paid eventually in one of three ways, either by service, in cash or in goods. The Soviet Government cannot pay us in service. It has no cash and does not seem likely to have any in the future and so it must liquidate any loans it may make in the United States in goods.

Among the other things it has in abundance and will pay its loans with, will be wood pulp and pulpwood. The production of pulp and woodpulp is one of our state's greatest industries. Our people are now afflicted with serious competition so far as this industry is concerned from the Scandinavian countries from Finland. If in addition they are afflicted by the importation of pulpwood and wood pulp from Soviet Russia it will practically ruin Maine's greatest industry.

Maine people should vigorously protest against the recognition of Russia by the administration. This is the time to make the protest and it should be done with emphasis and in a way to let the President understand that it is a thing the people of this state will continue to oppose with all vigor they can command.—Portland Press Herald.

UNTIL WE LEARNED BETTER

Until we learned better, we used to mix wood and steel in our car bodies and wheels.

It was the best way to make bodies—then. But the state of the art has advanced.

Of course, it is more expensive to make an all-steel body than to make a wooden frame and nail steel panels on to it. The better way involves an initial expenditure of several millions of dollars for new dies, which renders a change very costly. Cars, especially large expensive cars which are produced in small volume, cannot afford this, because the dies cost as much for one car as for a million. That alone explains why all-steel bodies are not used in all cars.

But our basic policy from the beginning is to make a good car better, regardless of cost.

For example, when we discarded wood-steel body construction, it was not because we lacked wood. We still have some thousands of acres of the best hard wood in America. Economy would urge us to use up the wood first, and then adopt the better all-steel body. But we decided that quality was more important than expense.

We weighed the reasons, for and against, before we made the change.

We could see only one reason for retaining a mixed wood-and-steel body —nailing the metal on, instead of welding an all-steel body into a strong one-piece whole. That reason was, it would be cheaper—for us.

Our reasons for adopting an all-steel body were these: A wood-steel body is not much stronger structurally than its wooden frame. In all American climates, wood construction weakens with age. Every used car lot gives evidence of this. Rain seeps in between joints and the wood decays. A car may have a metal surface, and yet not be of steel construction. Under extreme shock or stress the steel body remains intact—dented perhaps, but not crushed.

Steel does not need wood for strength or protection. Wood is fine for furniture, but not for the high speed vehicles of 1933.

In the Ford body there are no joints to squeak, no seams to crack or leak.

The all-steel body is more expensive—to us, but not to you.

By all odds, then, steel bodies seem preferable.

Wheels also have become all-steel. No one argues that an electrically welded one-piece steel wheel, such as the Ford wheel, needs to be "strengthened" by adding wood to it.

The one-piece all-steel body is the strongest, safest, quietest, most durable body made. That is our only reason for making them.

BLACK LOCUST TREES SAVE SOIL

Montgomery, Ala., August 14.—The black locust seedlings and saplings growing in the state forest nursery near Livingston are proving very valuable in connection with the soil conservation work being carried on under the president's direction by the Alabama State Commission of Forestry. According to the state forestry authorities there are approximately 25,000 of these trees growing in the nursery.

The soil conservation work is being carried on in cooperation with the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The black locust trees are being planted on and below the soil saving dams in the erosion prevention projects where their extensive root system serve admirably to bind the earth together preventing washing. Quite young trees are used, since these stand transplanting much better than older specimens. The black locust produces seed at a comparatively early age, and this often helps materially in establishing additional growth along the gullies aiding still further in preventing washouts.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Option contracts on government held cotton which are to be issued to producers as part payment for reducing acreage have been modified so that the cotton may be sold any time up to May 1, 1935. The original limit was May 1, 1934.

Corn-hog producers of the Middle West have recommended the adoption of a plan which would place a premium on light weight hogs in order to encourage the marketing of pigs and in this way reduce the hog surplus.

Pads made from cotton fiber have been found better for curing concrete than burlap, which is made from foreign materials, according to the Bureau of Public Roads. This is expected to open up a new extensive use of the South's big money crop.

More poultry and eggs will be marketed this fall and winter than in the same period last year, according to the mid-summer report issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Also the supply of storage eggs is 4 per cent above the five-year average, and that of dressed poultry is considerably greater than a year ago.

CRECKS TO FOLLOW WORK OF PLOWING

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 16.—Checks in payment for cotton removed from production will begin coming to Alabama farmers within a short while, according to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

He requested farmers, however, to be patient with the Government, since the task of checking contracts and other papers for more than a million farms is a mammoth undertaking and one which requires much time.

Reports coming here indicate that plows have already removed from production the majority of the 836,000 acres offered by Alabama farmers and that all of it will be out within a few days. Farmers have planted the land where cotton was growing to corn, cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans, and other food and feed crops for home use.

Others will use the land for fall plantings of winter legumes or oats. The legumes will be planted to enrich the soil and in some cases for hay, while the oats will be planted to add to the feed supplies which may be short in Alabama next season unless there is a large planting of small grains this fall.

Total payments to Alabama producers who cooperated in the big effort to slash the surplus of cotton are expected to reach $10,000,000 or more. In addition, ecenomists estimate that the cotton left for harvest will be worth $2,262,000 more than the entire crop would have been worth had there been no acreage reduction program.

LEGUMES BIG AID STOPPING WASHES

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 16.—Planting winter legumes is a big aid in preventing soil erosion, which the worst enemy of rich soils, points out J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

He cited an experiment at Auburn in which soil washing from land planted to vetch was compared with that washing from bare land and plowed land. The comparisons were made on level land and land with a 5, 10, 15, and 20 per cent slope.

Records kept show that where vetch was planted on the land the pounds of soil washed from one acre by a one-inch rain was as follows: level, 94 pounds; 5 per cent, 65 pounds; 10 per cent, 82 pounds; 15 per cent, 268 pounds; 20 per cent, 284 pounds.

From bare land the following amounts of soil were washed away from an acre by a one-inch rain: level, 190 pounds; 5 per cent, 193 pounds; 10 per cent, 238 pounds; 15 per cent, 2,393 pounds; and 20 per cent, 5,823 pounds.

For plowed land the figures were as follows: level, 623 pounds; 5 per cent, 1,995 pounds; 10 per cent, 2,427 pounds; 15 per cent, 6,294 pounds; and 20 per cent, 19,000 pounds.

"These figures present one of the best reasons I know for planting soil-building winter legumes, such as hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas," said Mr. Wilson. "They also are undeniable evidence in favor of terracing. Before planting their land to winter legumes farmers should build new terraces where needed and repair old ones."

NEW TAX GOES INTO EFFECT

On account of the widespread misunderstanding cencerning the processing and floor taxes on several agricultural commodities imposed by the agricultural Adjustment Act, it is deemed appropriate to publish the following information:

The Secretary of Agriculture is vested with authority under the Act to proclaim these taxes and put them into effect. These taxes are now in effect upon wheat products and cotton products. Processing taxes affect only those who are engaged in the manfacture or production of articles from a taxable commodity, such as flour from wheat or cloth from cotton.

The floor taxes on these commodities apply to all stocks of taxable articles on hand as of the effective date of the tax. In the case of wheat products the effective date was July 9, 1933. In the case of cotton products the effective date was August 1, 1933. As to goods held in separate retail stocks, the tax applies only to so much of such stocks on hand on the effective date of the tax as are not sold or disposed of within thirty days. In order to determine the quantity of articles subject to taxation, persons engaged in the sale of taxable articles from separate retail stocks should (1) keep a record of all receipts or additions of taxable articles to their stocks during the 30-day period following the effective date and (2) take an inventory of all such articles on hand at the close of the 30-day period. The quantity of any article so inventoried in excess of the receipts or additions to stock during the 30-day period is the quantity upon which tax is due to be paid. In other words, the tax is computed upon the excess of the inventory taken as set out above over the receipts or additions to stock during the 30 days prior to the taking of the inventory. The expression 'separate retail stocks' means stocks from which goods are sold exclusively at retail, or to ultimate consumers, but does not include stocks owned by retailers and held in a warehouse.

Retail dealers in wheat products inventory their stocks as of August 7, 1933, and make return and pay any tax due on or before September 7, 1933. Retail dealers in cotton products should inventory their stocks as of August 31, 1933, and make return and pay any tax that may be due on or before September 30, 1933. But one return of the floor tax on each commodity will be required. After that, of course, the tax is paid by the processor.

The office of the Collector of Internal Revenue at Birmingham has endeavored to compile a list of all persons in the State who may be affected by these taxes and furnish the necessary forms and instructions to such persons. It is realized, however, that this list, which was prepared with considerable haste and from limited sources, is incomplete. Any person in the State who may be subject to any of these taxes and who has not received blanks and information on the subject should write the Collector of Internal Revenue, Birmingham, for blanks and information. These requests should contain a statement as to the kind of form needed, that is whether for reporting tax on wheat or cotton products and whether these products are sold wholesale or retail.

It is expected that the Secertary of Agriculture will put like taxes into effect at later dates upon corn, pork, tobacco and rice products. These taxes are imposed to provide funds for the administration of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the object of which is to increase prices of farm products.

By Clifford M. Manning

The Poultry Industry Continued From Last Week

The poultry industry of the United States has had a remarkable development and a brief review will serve to show the various economic phases of development. By the time of the first settlements, edible birds, domestic and wild, were largely classed together as "fowl." The plentifulness of the wild fowl in the colonies undoubtedly detracted from the importance of domestic birds. Eggs were appreciated but were almost entirely a warm-weather product. There was slight commercial aspect to poultry keeping previous to 1825, most frequent menition of poultry products in the newspapers before that time being of feathers for beds and pillows.

Between then and 1860 cheap grain in the inland districts and imported transportation encouraged egg production in the Ohio Valley. In 1839 there were sexteen states with poultry valued at over $1,153,413, Virginia and Pennsylvania had the largest numbers, although Ohio, Tennessee and Kentucky were only slightly lower in poultry value than Pennsylvania. Wisconsin and Iowa, the westernmost states listed, had $16,000 worth each.

As the commercial aspect became dominant, poultry keepers saw the importance of increasing production per hen and in developing more economical methods of raising chickens. By 1840 or 1845 increasing attention was given to breeding, to feeding and to other problems of management and to the introduction of new breeds. Asiatic fowls were first imported in important quantities shortly before 1850. Their popularity led to the first "hen fever" in the fifties, after which a rapid succession of breeds claimed attention. By 1849, when the New England poultry breeders and fanciers held their first poultry show, Cochin-Chinas, Shanghais and Plymouth Rocks had become weel-known. In 1847 two patents were issued on "methods of incubation," though it was 40 years later the first practicable incubator was invented.

Next week's topic "The Value of The Poultry Industry."

GINNERS CHARGES HAVE BEEN GREATLY REDUCED

Most ginners in Alabama will charge from $3.50 to $4 per bale instead of from $6 to $8 as was being charged by some south Alabama ginners when the season opened, according to information from the department of agriculture.

This reduction was made after Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, requested that "vigorous action" be taken against South Alabama cotton ginners o ncharges of violating the Sherman anti-trust act in charging as high as $8.05 per bale for ginning cotton. The reduction will save farmers of the state some $3,000,000 on their ginning bill.

Farmers in all parts of the state, Senator John H. Bankhead, circuit solicitor Hubert Farmer, the Henry County Grand Jury and others entered the fight against ginners charging "outrageous and unjustifiable prices." The grand jury of Henry County threatens to take action if ginning charges rise in that county, writes solicitor Farmer.

Many ginners of the state and thousands of farmeres have commended Commissioner Storrs for the fight he has made for reasonable ginning charges.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are progressing nicely.

We had a large crowd at Sunday school Sunday, although there are lots yet that ought to be enlisted in our Sunday school, we are hoping they will come.

We had a real good program rendered at the church Sunday morning. It was rendered by Miss Odine Thomas, Mr. Emanuel Cooper, Mr. Cornelius Hand and Mr. Marvin Lowery. We enjoyed this inspirational program very much; also the duet by Mr. Marvin Lowery and Miss Pauline Chambers. We feel that these young people are doing a great work for the Master and we just bid them God's speed and invite them back again.

We have just had our revival at Poplar Springs with Brother William Elijah Robinson, of Birmingham, as our helper. We had a great revival, and let's keep it going. Brother Robinson did some fine preaching for us. Let's pray for him as he goes from place to place. We received fifteen members.

We extend a cordial invitation to visitors at any and all times. We want them to feel welcome.

Don't forget, and meet us at Sunday school Sunday morning at ten o'clock, and B. Y. P. U. at seven o'clock.

LIBERTY HILL

There will be a special conference here the third Sunday in August, at 10:00 o'clock, for the purpose of selecting church officers and any other business that may come before the body.

All members are requested to be present.—D. W. Ward, chairman of board of directors.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Mobile, Ala., August 14.—The directors of the Alabama deep sea rodeo association have decided to award the surf casting fishing outfit, offered for the largest ling, to G. W. McNees of Shreveport, who caught the third largest tarpon in the fifth annual deep sea fishing rodeo off Dauphin Island last week.

The sixth prize, a surf casting rod and reel and one year's subscription to the Montgomery Advertiser, was not awarded at the close of the rodeo due to the falure of any of the 300 fishermen participating to land a ling. Four tarpon were caught and all except the one hooked by McNees drew prizes.

The largest tarpon was caught by W. N. Fry of Memphis, and weighed 126½ pounds, a record for the rodeo. Other tarpon were brought to gaff by Carl Brown of Mobile, and Dr. W. L. Atkins of Shreveport. Brown's "silver king" weighed 61 pounds. McNees's tarpon tipped the scales at 54½ pounds, and Dr. Atkins's fish weighed 54 pounds.

Two women, Mrs. Mary C. Weaver, of Corinth, Miss., and Mrs. J. F. Chambers of Huntsville, placed their names on the prize list with superior catches of red fish and speckled trout. Mrs. Weaver landed a 33 pound red fish to capture fourth prize in the rodeo and Mrs. Chambers's 2½ pound speckled trout took the twelfth prize.

Other prize winners were W. B. Patterson, Mobile, largest king mackerel, 8½ pounds; P. N. Canale, Memphis, largest cavalla, 29½ pounds; Thurman Talley, Memphis, largest black fish, 21½ pounds; Charles Atkins, Mobile, largest dolphin, 2 pounds, and largest blue fish, 2½ pounds; J. H. Murray, Mobile, largest Spanish mackerel, 4 pounds; Jim Corwin, Mobile, largest bonita, 9 and three-fourths pounds; Leslie J. Richards, Mobile, largest flounder, 2½ pounds; L. B. Howard, Shreveport, winner of Liar's Contest; Capt. Earl Bryant, first prize for boatmen; Capt. Ras. Crenshaw, second, and Capt. Marshall Bosarge, third, the latter three of Bayou La-Batre.

A large number of fish of various species was caught during the three-day rodeo which, with the exception of the final day, was favored by ideal weather. A squall the last day forced some of the craft to seek shelter, but caused no other inconvenience to the fishermen. Silver kings by the hundreds were sighted but they were wary of lures and a number of those that did strike freed themselves after some majestic leaps out of the water.

One of the features of the rodeo was the large attendance of doctors and surgeons. Approximately 40 registered for the contest.

WORK BEGUN AT MARTIN MEMORIAL NEAR EQUALITY

Work of rebuilding and restoring the old Bethesda church near Equality, in Coosa County as a memorial to Rev. Darius S. Martin was begun Monday with a public work day. This little Baptist church, with its cemetery and four acre grove is being repaired and renovated by Mr. Mell Martin, of Clanton, and his brother, Mr. Darius Martin, of Wetumpka, in preparation for its dedication as a memorial to their father, who died last spring. This church was established in 1852, and when it was abandoned some years ago, due to the building of a new church in Equality, the Rev. Martin purchased the property and it has remained a part of the Martin estate.

The Martin family has solicited the aid of no one in making this memorial but a great host of the friends of Rev. Martin throughout Coosa, Chilton and Elmore counties have requested that they might contribute something. The family consented to this and they have stated that they intend to place the names of all that contribute anything to the work on a scroll that will be placed in a prominent place on the memorial building when it is complete. Mr. Mell Martin expressed his appreciation for the wonderful cooperation that is being offered by the friends of Rev. Martin in this work. Last Monday, it is related, there were about 60 men and 11 women at the site to aid in the work.

The church building is being remodeled, reroofed, repainted and reseated. The grove is to be converted into a park. A driveway is to be graded from the new Rockford highway up to the building and the cemetery.

The dedication of this building is to be made about the last of September. The Baptist Association of that district is to be held in Equality this fall and it is probable that it will be held at this memorial building, and that the dedication will take place at this time.

Statement by Governor Miller Upon His Return From New York

New York Says Alabama Banks And Financial Interests Should Take the Lead in Handling State Warrants

The Warrant Commission created under the warrant act is composed of the Governor, Attorney General, and State Comptroller.

This commission is given authority either to issue interest bearing warrants and deliver them to holders of the present warrants in exchange, or to sell, warrants or other instruments at not less than par and pay the holders of present warrants in cash.

The day the vote on the amendments was canvassed and the warrant and income tax amendments became part of the constitution by the governor's proclamation the warrant commission met again and began to make plans for carrying out its duties under the law. Members of the commission with John H. Peach, legal adviser to the governor, decided to go to New York and Washington and to study the question of the sale of interest bearing warrants or bonds.

W. C. Bowman, president of the First National Bank of Montgomery, went to New York and assisted the members of the commission in making their study.

We met with Charles S. McCain, chairman of the Board of the Chase National Bank and other officers of the bank. We explained to these men what Alabama had done within the past year. They congratulated the state on the adoption of its budget law, on placing it in the constitution, on balancing its budget and on ratifying its current debts and providing the income tax for the payment of its debts. They stated that the amount of the warrants or bonds would be too much for them or for any one institution to take at this time, but they expressed a willingness to carry the warrants owned by them and to cooperate with the state, its bankers and citizens, in properly handling the remaining warrants.

The Chase National Bank notified the representatives of a large number of financial institutions in New York, which might be interested in purchasing bonds, or warrants of our presence in the city, and invited them to a conference with us. About 25 or 30 institutions were represented in this conference. We discussed with them fully the financial condition of Alabama. Those attending the conference state that Alabama, in their opinion, was to be congratulated on the adoption of a budget system and on the recent amendments to her constitution.

No Definite Offer

They did not make any definite offer for our warrants or bonds; but stated that they believed that the banks and financial interests of Alabama should take the initiative in purchasing the warrants or bonds as was done in Tennessee.

We went to see the chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington He explained to us that under the law the Reconstruction Finance Corporation cannot purchase state securities or make loans directly to a state. He said that they were permitted and would be willing to lend to banks or proper institutions with Alabama bonds or warrants as collateral.

While we were not able to close the matter of selling our warrants definitely, we do not feel discouraged.

I believe that the patriotic bankers of Alabama will realize their duty and their opporunity to serve the state and to render immediate aid to the school teachers, college professors, merchants and other creditors of Alabama. I contemplate conferring with the bankers through their association at an early date.

Superintendent Little conferred with Governor Miller Tuesday and learned that a conference of business associa- that a conference of banking association had been called to meet in Montgomery next week.

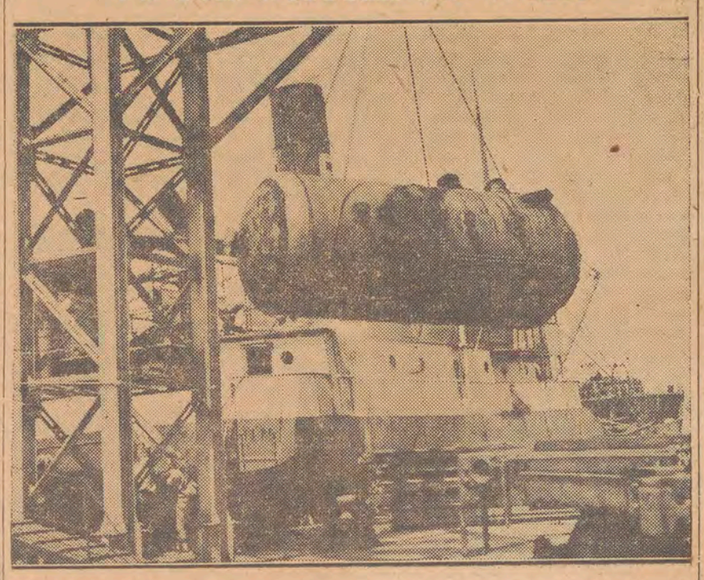
Final Inspection of Cotton Destroyed Was Started Last Monday

County Agent C. E. Stapp held a meeting with his cotton inspectors Monday morning at which instructions were given as to the best procedure to follow in making the final inspection of the cotton contracted to be destroyed.

By this time it is supposed that the farmers have had time to plow up all cotton that they had contracted to retire. These inspectors are going to visit each individual farmer's field and see to it that the exact amount of cotton acreage called for in each individual contract has been retired. The inspectors are to have each farmer sign a statement that he has taken out the contracted amount of cotton, and also the inspectors are to sign contracts to the effect that they believe the farmers have fulfilled the contracts. All contracts are to be taken up in an individual manner.

It is believed that checks will begin to come into the county in the next ten or twelve days. Mr. Stapp calls attention to the fact that it is a violation of the Federal law for any of these checks for agricultural products to be reproduced, photographed, published or duplicated in any way.

75-Ton Derrick At Work



The island of Aruba, in the Dutch West Indies, is only a speck on the World Atlas, but it is becoming an important oil centre in the Spanish main, off the northeast coast of South America. Recently the Norwegian steamship Certo lifted many tons of heavy machinery at Mobile for a refinery now under construction on the island.

Some of these units were large, bulky and heavy but they were handled with ease by the 75-ton derrick which is a part of the special equipment of the Alabama State Docks. It is electrically operated and handles the largest blocks of marble from Alabama quarries, locomotives and heavy machinery, marine boilers and turbines. The state docks also own two locomotive cranes with a lifting capacity of 25 and 40 tons, respectively. These are used for handling the freight too heavy for ships tackles, above 5 tons, and for loading and unloading barges which have no hoisting machinery.

The picture shows the big derrick loading a 33-ton refinery unit onto the deck of the SS Certo.

Canning Centers Over The County Are Still Operating

Interest continues to be good at the canning centers over the county. During the past week 4,231 quart cans were filled at the canning centers throughout the county. This makes a total of 11,932 cans that have been filled in the county since the opening of the canning centers.

The negro training school center, again this week, filled more cans in any one single day than did any other center in the county. This center canned 387 quarts in one day.

Miss Austin announces that about 600 new applicants for work have been received since the first of August. It is related that there are more men employed at present by the R. F. C. than ever have been for some time. At the present there are about 1,200 men employed by the R. F. C.

Miss Austin relates that orders have recently come from Washington, through state director, Thad Holt, that all R. F. C. orders must be given to business houses displaying the Blue Eagle and operating under the NRA Code.

CHILTON TO BE REMOVED AS DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Official announcement was made Tuesday by the Department of Justice at Washington that Arthur B. Chilton has been asked to resign as United States Attorney for this district. Chilton will be succeeded by Col. T. D. Samford of Opeliga, who has been prominent in Democratic politics of the state for many years. Col. Samford was recommended for the appointment by Senators Black and Bankhead several months ago.

The ousting of Chilton is attributed mainly to the influence of Senator Bankhead. Chilton bolted the Democratic ticket in 1928 and he campaigned for Heflin in 1930. Senator Black and several of the house delegation from Alabama have also worked for the removal of Chilton, who was named district attorney by the Hoover administration in 1930 at the request of Heflin.

IN MEMORY

We were very sorry to witness the death of our friend and loved one, Mr. Jessie Traywick. He was a very promising young man. I have been knowing him for eight years and we were the best of pals. There has not been but just a few Saturday nights and Sundays in the past four years that he and I were not together. We never had any secerets apart and I never knew of him having any trouble with anyone. It will always be a mystery to us all why this all happened.

He leaves a vary beautiful young wife and they have only been married two months and twenty days. Jessie was only twenty-one years of age and leaves to mourn, a wife, mother father, three brothers and three sisters. He was laid to rest in the Highland cemetery. We all extend our sympathy toward the loved ones.—A Pal.

POLK BROTHERS GET I.H.C. AGENCY

Will Carry Full Line of Farm Implements and Machinery

Polk Brothers have taken over the complete McCormick-Deering agency from Buford Lawrence, who has been the manager of this business since he left the superintendent's office. Polk Brothers intend to combine this business in the same building with their auto business. They are going to use the room which they formerly used as a used car store room as a display room for the McCormick-Deering implements. The building on the corner north of their auto business is to be used as a store room for the various implements.

It is announced that a full line of everything the farmer needs to make, harvest and carry to market his crop is to be handled. McCormick-Deering, it is related, manufactures and handles one of the most complete lines of farm implements of any business of its type in the country.

Among the implements that are to be handled by Polk Brothers are: planters, cultivators, plows, rakes, hay presses, reapers, and cream separators. Weber wagons and Farmall Tractors and power units for saw mills are to be handled. A new style motor, with fully enclosed gear, is one of the specialties of this agency.

International trucks, anywhere from one-half to seven tons in both four and six cylinders are to be on display. The half ton International pick-up has proved very popular. Parts, supplies and repairs for all McCormick-Deering implements are to be furnished by Polk. A full line of parts for Chattanooga plows, and also parts for McCormick-Deering mowers are to be provided for the public.

Polk Brothers have made a name in this section in the auto business, and now they intend to combine their former service with the farm implement business. They invite their friends to come to see them when they need farm supplies.

For a number of years Mr. Williams has taken an active part in church and civic affairs here and his friends, while regretting that he is leaving the city, wish him continued success at Athens.

Since coming here Mr. Williams has been particularly active in religious work, being a member of the Central Baptist church.—Decatur Daily.

He has enjoyed several years in the banking business and is no novice to the successful conduct of a bank. He will meet a cordial welcome in Athens and we feel sure that his connection with the Limestone County Bank will be for its best interest.—Athens Courier.

WILL BUILD NEW CHURCH NORTHEAST OF THORSBY

Mrs. C. R. Shelby and Miss Versie Jones were in Clanton Monday working in the interest of a new church which they say is being proposed for establishment at a location about three miles northeast of Thorsby near the Nelson place.

A small tract of land for the church has been donated by Mr. Maynard, of Birmingham. People of the vicinity, with the aid of other donations, will erect a church building as soon as they can. Mrs. Shelby and Miss Jones were soliciting cash donations Monday.

For the past six weeks there has been regular Sunday school and prayer service at a temporary building on the property. Mr. Horton is superintendent and Miss Sadie Horton is secretary. In the opinion expressed by Mrs. Shelby, the new church will be Missionary Baptist.

CONSTITUTION PROCLAMATION

Governor Requests Support of American Legion's Patriotism Program

In recognition of the value of the constitution of the United States as the chief agency in the establishment of human liberty and the building of political institutions patriotic groups of citizens which seek to inspire a more wholesome attitude toward constitutional government on the part of all our people, I hereby proclaim the week beginning September 11 and ending September 17 as constitutional week.

To the end that the history and the purposes of the establishment of this greatest of all human documents may be better understood and more really appreciated, it is urged that, in so far as may be practical, the several communities of the state meet at convenient places of assembly to carry out the following program of lecture and instructon suggested by the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion.

Monday, September 11, purpose and cause of the drafting and signing of the constitution.

Tuesday, September 12, the history of the signing of the constitution and the necessity of such a document for our form of government.

Wednesday, September 13, the legislative department.

Thursday, September 14, the executive department.

Friday, Sptember 15, the judicial department.

It is further urged that churches, patriotic societies, service clubs, and all other groups dedicated to public welfare give appropriate recognition in their assemblies for that week to the importance of a knowledge of the fundamental facts of constitutional government and of the application of these facts to the preservation of individual liberty and to the growth and appreciation of the principles of free government.

In those communities in which schools are in session, it is recommended to superintendent, principals and teachers that at least one program be given with pupils as participants and hearers with the design of increasing their knowledge of our constitution and of inspiring a more wholesome respect for its provisions on the part of our juvenile citizens.

In witness of this proclamation, I have hereunto affixed my official signature and have set the great seal of the State of Alabama.

Done in the executive office in the capitol building at Montgomery on this the fifteenth day of August, 1933. —B. M. Miller, Governor.

FORD COUPE STOLEN

A 1930 Model A Ford coupe, belonging to Mr. Grover Harris, carrier for Clanton Route 3, was stolen Saturday night. At the time the car was stolen it was parked in front of the residence of Dr. Edgar on second avenue south in Clanton. Grover, Jr., had come up to Dr. Edgar's in the Ford, and had, unthinkingly, left the key in the car. While he was gone off with the Edgars in their car the coupe was stolen. No trace of the car had been found Tuesday.

It was reported here Wednesday morning that the car had been found and recovered in Birmingham. A man, who gave his name as Sidney Ray, of Jones, Ala., was said to be trying to sell the car. He told the officers he was trying to sell it for another person.

HIGH TARIFFS WILL HELP NRA

Embargo May Be Declared On Goods To Protect Code Followers

Washington, Aug. 22.—The NRA is setting up a new division to handle requests for embargoes and tariff increases from various industries to protect their operations under the industrial recovery act.

Franklin O. Billings, formerly attached to the U. S. tariff commission, has been delegated to direct this important agency. He moved today into an office along "recovery row" in the commerce department, awaiting official word from president Roosevelt to begin his job.

Mr. Billings' appearance was the first recognition of tariff complications under the recovery act. The administration thus took notice of complaints from American concerns that higher costs of production under the act will necessitate protection from cheaply produced foreign goods.

The new machinery will work somewhat as follows: Complaints from industry and business will be received by the NRA. An investigation will be made. If the complaint is found justified the NRA will recommend to the president that the tariff commission investigate. The commission then will recommend to the White House what relief, if any, it considers necessary.

Already about a dozen complaints have been received. Some request outright embragoes. They are expected to come in flocks when the NRA tariff agency is officially created by order of President Roosevelt.

NRA CHECK-UP WILL BE MADE

To Determine The Manner In Which Purposes Are Being Carried Out

Washington. — To ascertain accurately the status of the Blue Eagle, famed insignia of the National Recovery Administration, in every community in the country, local committees of voluntary workers will begin a canvass on Monday, August 28. Men and women in thousands of towns and cities were drafted by General Johnson, and for the past few weeks they have been quietly perfecting local organizations to secure the hearty and prompt cooperation of consumers and employers alike to lift buying power through reemployment. All employers of every grade and size will be urged by their customers and neighbors to aid in restoring normal business and living conditions by complying immediately with the president's emergency reemployment program and flying the emblem which is a safeguard against the coming of a fourth successive harrowing winter of discontent and misery.

C. F. Horner, in charge of organization said, "To local committees has been checked up squarely the responsibility of securing 100 per cent compliance in each community. Every day until the drive starts should see intense activity in giving information concerning the purposes to be accomplished. Local committees should be enlisting their workers to be thoroughly prepared. They will not fail to induce every consumer as well as employer to sign up and provide themselves with the insignia. Members in charge of speakers' bureaus should provide able men and women to address all special and scheduled meetings." Washington headquarters is very anxious to hear without delay from committees which have not responded definitely to appeals for prompt action.

Highway Wreck Sunday Night

There was an auto wreck about a mile below Cooper Saturday night, about 9 p.m., when the V-8 Ford in which Dr. Page F Reed and family of Birmingham were riding was hit by a Whippett Sedan driven by Sam Williams of Lanett, Ala.

A few minor injuries were inflicted, but no serious results were reported. Little Mary Ellen Reed, age 11, was brought to the hospital in Clanton where a few minor cuts were dressed.

No reason was given for the accident. Both parties claimed that the other was in the middle of the road.

The left front wheels of both cars were completely demolished. The wrecked cars were brought to Clanton for repairs by Clanton Motors's wrecker.

Dr. Reed, his wife and two daughters, had been to Florida on vacation and were returning to Birmingham at the time of the accident.

There were two boys in the Whippett, both of whom were of Lanett.

Coopers To Build New Schoolhouse

Will Be Located On The D. S. Robinson Place Near Chestnut Creek

At a meeting of the patrons of Cooper district, held at the old school building last Friday night, it was decided to erect a new modern Junior High School building in the near future. It will be built on the D. S. Robinson place, about one-eighth of a mile north of Chestnut Creek church.

Five acres of land has been procured from the following sources: two acres from D. S. Robinson, one acre from Sid Gibson, one acre from Sam Yates, and one acre from the Bill Cooper estate.

The building will be a modern structure with four class rooms and an auditorium. The cost will be around six thousand dollars, half of which will be state aid, the other half to be raised locally.

There is a natural asset on the premises that may prove much benefit to the facilities of the school. It is a free-flowing spring near where the building will be. Those in charge of the building and preliminary arrangements hope to use this spring to great advantage in supplying water. The building will very likely be equipped with electric lights.

The old building, now located at Cross Roads, about two miles east of Cooper, will be wrecked and as much of it used as possible in the new building.

The trustees are: J. B. Logan, Jno. P. Cagle and Tom Driver. Prof. H. A. Harris of Clanton is principal of the school.

Simmons was carried to the Clanton hospital in Spigener's ambulance.

DEVAUGHN'S SINGING SCHOOL CLOSED WITH FINE CONCERT

Prof. W. M. Devaughn's singing school at Poplar Springs came to a close last Friday night with a concert. The numbers rendered were top-notch. One chorus in particular deserved special mention, and that was the popular sacred number, "The Jericho Road." This song has been used quite a bit as a solo, but Prof. Devaughn's class really brought out the full meaning and feeling of the song Friday night. Everything on the program was fine but this one stood out among them all.

Two or three comedy sketches were given by Cornelius Hand and Archie Devaughn, which served to break the monotony and let the class rest. These numbers were enjoyed, especially by the students of the school.

It will have to be handed to Prof. Devaughn. He is really a musical director and class leader. When he gets through coaching a bunch of singers, you may rest assured that they can sing.

COOPER WANTS PARTY POW-WOW

Committee Member Says Republican Party Needs A "Family Reunion"

As a member of the executive committee of the Republican party of Chilton County, I am taking this method to have a little friendly chat with my brother members of the above mentioned committee.

Now, brethren, I am sure that each of you are conscious of the fact that some of us evidently lay down on our job in our recent election, which resulted in our party having its first loss during the past twenty two years.

Surely you do not want a repetition of this incident in our next year's election.

Since it seems that nearly every man in the county goes to Clanton on Saturdays, I am wondering if it would be a good idea for our committee to get together one of these Saturdays in the near future. I do not mean just for an hour or so, but let's have a good old fashion "family reunion"—spend the day together.

In a meeting of this kind it is possible that we could pick out some candidates that would have the complete cooperation of our committee. With complete cooperation arrived at, it is perfectly reasonable to presume that the voters back home will abide by the unanimous decision of the executive committee.

If we go to sleep on the job now, I feel that someone will soon sow "tares" in the wheat while we are sleeping.

If you brethren are favorable to us having an all day meeting some Saturday in the near future, let me ask that you notify Mr. J. N. Dennis our chairman, accordingly. Just drop him a card or when you are in Clanton, tell him about it. Also tell him what Saturday will suit you best.

I have not said anything to Mr. Dennis about this matter but I feel sure he will call us together at any time we wish to have a "family reunion."

Now, to all those who enjoy fishing, regardless as to your political affiliation, I am pleased to advise that I have my new home two miles above Lay Dam about complete. We can provide shelter in case of rain.

My place is at the end of the road, it is not close to nature—it is right at nature. Fishing is good at this time. Should you fail to catch any fish, then Mr. Jim Dennis or myself will probably be able to supply your demands. — Yours very truly, Chas. Cooper, two miles north of Lay Dam, at the end of the road.

Revival Meeting At Union Grove

Farewell Sermon of Rev. Bean Closed The Meeting Friday Night

The summer revival began at Union Grove Saturday night, August 12th. Rev. Horace Nabors took charge Sunday at 11 o'clock, and his message during the week were enjoyed by large crowds. The attendance continued to increase until the close. At the beginning the church seemed to be ready for a revival, stated the pastor, Rev. J. Robert Bean, and it was not a hard matter to launch into a real spiritual awakening.

The visible results were eight additions for Baptism and one addition by letter. The ordinance of Baptism was administered at the ford on Yellow Leaf Creek Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the pastor in charge. There had just fallen a large rain and the water was muddy and other circumstances adverse, but the candidates insisted in going ahead and the people in general concurred.

The church, having learned that Rev. Bean would tender his resignation as their pastor, prevailed on him to preach a farewell sermon. The final service Friday night was taken for this. In his parting words Rev. Bean insisted that the church take the matter of choosing a successor to the Lord, who is able to send them a strong man to lead their church upward and onward.

The outgoing pastor and the people in general are mighty well pleased with the outcome of the series of meetings, and it is the hope of all that the good done may be enduring.

Miss Helen Crump will return to her home in Tampa, Fla., Friday, after having spent the summer with relatives in Clanton.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

STORRS ADVISES SMALLER CANS FOR SORGHUM SYRUP

Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, is advising Alabama farmers to pack their sorghum syrup in half-gallon cans instead of gallon cans and "not dump it for less than the opening market price of 40 cents per gallon."

"It has been found that there is a greater demand in Birmingham and other large cities for sorghum syrup in half gallon cans than in larger cans and the consumers are willing to pay more for half gallon cans," he said. "This being true farmers should pack their syrup in half gallon cans if they expect to dispose of it in such way as the market demands."

Commissioner Storrs also advised that the opening market price in Birmingham was 40 cents per gallon in gallon cans. "I hope that no farmer will dump syrup for less than this opening price," he declared.

ENTERPRISE 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Enterprise 4-H club went on a field trip Wednesday, August 16. It may seem late for that, but a better estimate of the yield was made.

The club started from Mr. J. B. Boyd's about 7:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Swimming and lunch was had at Baker's Pond.

All the crops are in good condition and a good yield will be had in spite of wet weather and boll weevils.

The judges decided the best cotton was the of Clovis Rushing and Leonard Eiland.—Reporter.

FOREST CAMPS IN FLYING START

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 22.—With the establishment of all of the forestry camps allotted to Alabama completed in final operating condition, full quotas of men are being released to work on the various projects planned for each camp. The housing, feeding and sanitation of a camp capable of supporting 200 or more men represent a tremendous problem, especially so if the camp is to remain for any length of time.

The quarters must be comfortable in the winter time as well as in the summer, which necessitaties screening and flooring the tents. A mess hall must be built so that the men do not have to eat outside in the winter. The water supply, both for drinking and bathing, must be carefully inspected prior to use and maintained so that it will be sufficient during dry periods. In many instances the surface supply is not satisfactory from the standpoint of purity consequently wells must be dug.

Since the period of establishment has passed, practically all the enrolled personnel is being turned over to the forestry agencies for woods work. Out of the total of 200 men, 25 are usually retained in camp for headquarters purposes. The men have entered into the work with enthusiasm, and as they learn the various duties and tasks their daily output is steadily increasing. To most of them woods work, particularly with reference to fire protection, etc., was entirely new. Even those who have had some experience with sawmills and lumber companies have found the work radically different from any they have done before. However, these men have the advantage over the others in that they have learned to handle the ax and saw with skill.

The progress reports coming in from the camps have been very encouraging, and it is anticipated that toward the end of the present enrollment period the amount of work shown on these reports will be practically doubled. Aside from the direct results which will accrue to the forestral interests of the state, there is being inculacated into the minds of the workers the rudiments of the science and art of forestry.

It includes three full days of instruction and recreation for visitors who are expected to number 1,000.

PLAYING 'POSSUM WEEVIL WEAKNESS

Auburn, Ala., Aug 22. — The destructive pecan weevil, cause of the wormy pecan nuts, "plays 'possum." And therein lies his or her weakness.

Research worker H. S. Swingle, of the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has found that the habit of the pecan desperado of "sulling" opens an avenue of control which when followed will greatly lessen depredations in pecan groves.

The insect now on trees in Alabama "sull" when the limbs on which they are resting are slightly jarred. They relax their hold, fall to the ground, and remain motionless for several minutes.

Suggesting a method of control, Mr. Swingle said: "Picking sheets should be placed under the spread of the branches of the tree. Each limb should be sharply jarred two or three times, either by the use of a padded pole from the ground, or in the case of higher trees by climbing the tree and jarring each limb with the foot. Heavy shaking is not necessary or desirable. The weevils should then be picked up from the sheet and dropped into a bucket containing a small amount of kerosene.

"Trees should be jarred twice a week for the next few weeks, or as long as weevils can be found on the trees.

"Schleys and Stuarts are the only varieties which will need jarring, as the weevils prefer these nuts."

The pecan weevil resembles the cotton boll weevil, but is much larger and has a longer beak. They are brown or grayish-brown. They sink their long beaks into the young nuts and drink the contents. The nuts fall off.

NEWS IN BRIEF

An average of $257 of cash income over cash expenses was reported by the annual survey of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics for the year 1932 by 6,383 farmers who operate their farms.

August 23 was the deadline for taking cotton out of production. And Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, reports that Alabama farmers have completed the work of taking out 836,000 acres.

Texas Red Rust Proof, Appler, Fulghum, 100 Bushel and Norton are the best varieties of oats for Alabama, according to the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The Norton variety is splendid for north Alabama but not for central and south Alabama.

A proposal for the purchase and disposal on a charity basis of 1,000,000 brood sows and 4,000,000 pigs has been made to government officials at Washington by farm organization officials. Dr. L. N. Duncan of Auburn is insisting that any means used to cut the surplus of hogs be applied to Alabama.

By Clifford M. Manning

The Value of the Poultry Industry

The value of the poultry industry may be considered from two aspects: first, the place of poultry raising in American agriculture; and, second, the monetary value of the poultry industry itself.

Poultry raising occupies an important place in a well-balanced agriculture. According to the census of 1925, poultry was raised on 86.41 per cent of the farms in the United States and on many farms poultry products were reported to be one of the best paying crops. In 1925 there were 58.52 per cent of the farms in the country keeping dairy cattle and 6.76 per cent keeping sheep. Poultry utilizes enormous quantities of waste products, including grains and meat food, the value of which could hardly be utilized otherwise in as efficient a manner as in the production of eggs and poultry meat. Poultry are foragers and secure part of their living from grass and other green food and insects. The raising of poultry utilizes labor and is a source of cash returns for practically every month of the year. Furthermore, eggs and poultry meat contribute an essential variety to the diet of the farm home table and, in addition, dispense with the necessity of providing for the table much meat food that would otherwise have to be purchased.

The estimated value of poultry products increased from $1,177,000,000 in 1925 to $1,181,000,000 in 1926, and it must be remembered that the above valuations do not take into consideration many thousands of urban flocks.

From the standpoint of composition and nutritive value, poultry meat differs very little from other lean meats. It is an efficient protein food, since the proteins contain all the aminoacids needed for the building of body tissues. These proteins are also well assimilated by the human body. Like other meats, poultry is to be depended on for iron and phosphorus, but is low in calcium. The vitamin content probably varies markedly with the feed of the poultry. The tender meat of chicken that is thoroughly cooked is considered especially good for children because containing little fat and its fibres being rather loosely held together with connective tissue, and is easily digested.

The dietetic value of eggs has received considerable attention during recent years because of the demonstration of their relative richness in three important vitamins, A, B, and D. Of course eggs have long since been regarded as an important food product because of their protein content, their ease of digestibility, and the fact that they can be prepared in a great variety of appetizing ways.

Next week's topic will be "The Breeds of Chickens."

SHIPMENT OF BASS AND BREAM LIBERATED IN CHILTON STREAMS

A shipment of bass and bream from the state fish hatchery was liberated in the streams of Chilton county during the last few days. Some local sportsmen were present and assisted, the planting being under the direction of the district game warden and an assistant from the state hatchery.

One of the considerations in making consignments is the promise by local sportsmen to help protect the streams in this vicinity from seining, dynamiting, poisoning and other illegal methods of taking fish.

The fish were received from the State Fish Hatchery at Estaboga near Anniston, being brought in by truck. In addition to the two hatcheries operated by the State at Estaboga and Aliceville, the Department of Game and Fisheries has control of Oxford Lake, from which it secures both bass and bream. A total of 750,000 fingerling were produced and distrubted last year, these fish going into every county of Alabama, acording to a statement by I. T. Guinn, Commissioner of Game and Fisheries of Alabama.

While this is an exceptional production, it is not nearly sufficient for restocking the numerous streams of the State.

Fishermen hope the day is not far distant when Alabama will have many more hatcheries. With the natural fishing advantages offered in this State, Alabama should be one of the most important fishing states in the Union.

The following local sportsmen were present and assisted in the planting: Hugh McCafferty mesenger, F. L. Thompson, J. W. Thompson, E. E. Upchurch.

The world production of commercial cotton, exclusive of linters, grown in 1932, as compiled from various sources was 22,771,000 bales, while the consumption of cotton, exclusive of linters, in the United States was approximately 22,896,000 bales, reports the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

"My Dear," said the principal's wife, "I wish you wouldn't indulge in such extravagant language."

"Well, Wifie," he said, "since the school board has cut our pay it's the only extravagance I can afford."

"Charles," said the teacher, "what are the effects of heat and cold?"

"Heat expands and cold contracts," answered Charles, promptly.

"Now, give me examples."

"In summer the days are long, and in winter they are very short."

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 22. — The Randolph County Angler's and Hunter's Association is the state's newest organization of sportsmen to enlist in the program of the game and fisheries department for conserving wild life.

Organization of the association, which will be controlled by three commissioners, was reported to commissioner I. T. Quinn by state senator Paul Hooton of Roanoke, one of the members.

Senator Hooton outlined the purposes of the organization as active and energetic cooperation with the game and fisheries department; compliance with state conservation laws; creation and maintenance of interest in rod, reel, fly fishing and hunting in Randolph county; and all possible steps for adequate fish planting and propagation of game.

Requisites for membership in the association include residence of citizenship in Randolph county; each member must own a rod, or fly casting rod, reel, and a shot gun, preferably double-barrel; each member must cast or fly fish once a year and hunt at least once a year. No fees or dues are charged for membership.

"I believe what we need is more efforts on the part of the people to help and aid in true sportsmanship and in game and fish conservation," declared Senator Hooton. "If we can get this idea over to the people in Randolph County we will have more and better game and fish."

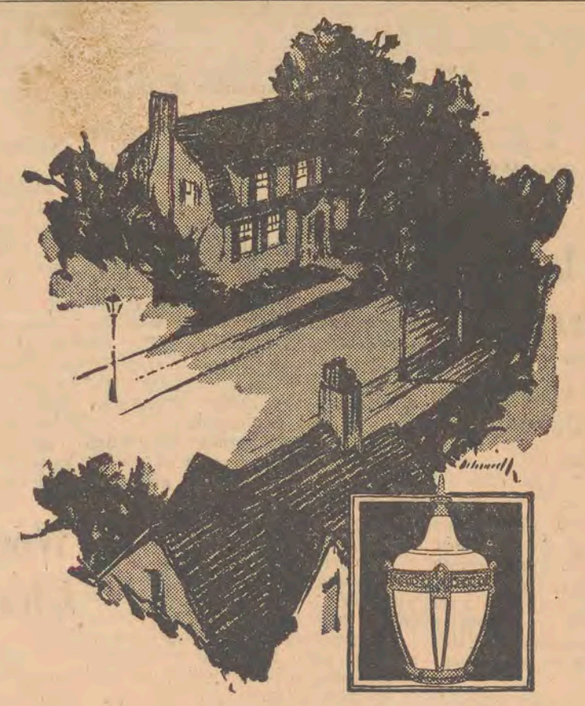
PREACHED AT COURTHOUSE

Dr. T. C. Cassaday, pastor of a Methodist protestant church in Montgomery, preached to a full house at the courthouse Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Rev. Cassaday closed a revival meeting at Walnut Creek last Sunday night.



Are your 'lighted streets' in partial eclipse?

MOST streets are only partially lighted. The lamps make pools of light which are surrounded by stretches of shadow.

But properly lighted streets are those where there is a continuous light-path instead of occasional light pools — where whole thoroughfares from building to building are one strip of uniform illumination.

Such properly lighted streets—free from dark stretches of shadow are a protection—a valuable safeguard against traffic accidents and holdup men, who find no invitation in streets properly flooded with light.

Ally yourself with a movement for more lighting in your city. It is universally conceded that good lighting pays, by preventing crime and accident, by enhancing real estate values, by accelerating business activities.

Lesson for August 27

SAUL

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 15:13-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. I Samuel 15:22.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning to Obey.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why a King Failed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Successes and Failures of Saul.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Strength and Weakness of Saul.

Few men had greater advantages than Saul. Certainly all human history fails to record a more tragic failure. In order to present this lesson properly, it is necessary that the teacher have a synthetic grasp of Saul's history.

I. Saul's Advantages.

1. A worthy inheritance (9:1). His father was "a mighty man of power." One's inheritance is a strong factor in determining his success or failure in life.

2. His natural gifts (9:2).

a. He was humble (10:22). When facing the responsibility of national leadership he hid himself.

b. He was considerate of his father (9:5). Not being successful in the mission committed unto him and thinking that his father would be concerned about him, he proposed to go back.

c. The grace of God was upon him (10:5-7). God visited him with his grace to enable him to perceive the divine choice and to make good in it.

d. The Holy Spirit came upon him (10:10). Acceptable service can only be rendered in the energy of the Holy Spirit.

e. He was zealous for God (11:4-15). As leader he rendered loyal service unto his people because of zeal for God.

3 The friendship of Samuel (15:35). Samuel not only was loyal to Saul in the time of his life, but greatly mourned his death.

II. Saul Made King (chaps. 8-10).

1. The demand of the people (8:1-22). The reason for this demand was threefold:

a. Incapacity of old age (v. 5). This was at least the plea of the people, which seems not to have been denied.

b. The unfaithfulness of his sons (v. 5). Samuel greatly blundered in the appointment of his sons as judges. The office was not hereditary, and they were morally unfit (v. 3).

c. Desired to be like other nations (v. 5). The surrounding nations had strong leaders and rulers, and it was natural that the Israelites should desire proper leadership. Samuel protested, and took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord directed him to solemnly point out to the people the meaning of their action.

2. Saul chosen as king (9:1-11). While on an errand for his father, Samuel found him and anointed him (10:1-16). In due time the divine choice was confirmed by the people at Mizpeh (10:17-27).

3. Saul's leadership displayed (11:1-15). He revealed his military genius in effecting a great victory over the Ammonites at Jabez. Samuel took advantage of this opportunity to have Saul confirmed as king.

III. Saul's Failure (15:1-25).

1. God's command (vv. 1-3). God directed him to utterly destroy the Amalekites because of their evil treatment of Israel (Exod. 17:8; Deut. 25:17).

2. Saul's disobedience (vv. 4-9). Agag, the king, was spared and the best of the goods appropriated.

3. Saul rejected by God (vv. 19-25).

a. Samuel cried to God (v. 11). The news of Saul's disgraceful failure greatly disturbed Samuel, moving him to pray to God day and night.

b. Saul's hypocritical pretense (vv. 15, 16). This pretense carried a lie upon its face. His disobedience was revealed by the bleating of the sheep and the lowing of the herds.

c. Samuel rehearses before Saul God's dealing with him (vv. 17-23). He brought him face to face with his sin. God is more concerned with having obedience on the part of his servants than he is to have them offer sacrifices unto him.

IV. The Divine Judgment Falls Upon Saul (15:26-35).

1. The loss of his kingdom (vv. 26-31). For the presumptuous offering of sacrifice the kingdom was rent from Saul and the dynasty passed from his house.

2. Under the control of an evil spirit (19:9-11). When Saul refused allegiance to God, Satan took control of him.

3. His shameful death (31:1-4). He refused to destroy the Amalekite and was shamefully treated by an Amalekite (II Sam. 1:10), and ended his life by his own hand.

Pray More

No resolution or, better, no determination you can make will mean so much in wonderful results as to determine that you will pray much more than ever, that you will pray longer and more widely and deeply in the closet hours at a time to do it, that you will have a worthwhile daily family worship, and that you will really pray in church services. Real praying breaks turns to mighty steam power, to radio messages farther than you dream, to results immeasurable.

Grady, Jr. and Morgan Reynolds are spending this week at the World's Fair in Chicago.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

The sheriff's business for the past week has been pretty dull. Only two arrests are reported—one for violating the prohibition law and one for assault and battery. There were seven in jail Wednesday.

Judge Tate was in Clanton Monday, and while he was here three men plead guilty to the charges that were against them and were sent to the penitentiary Tuesday morning.

Spurgeon Davis convicted on two charges—one for abusive language—and the other for violating the prohibition law, was sentenced 111 days for fine and costs and six months additional punishment.

Harvey Beaird was sentenced 74 days for fine and costs and three months additional punishment on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Lem Price, colored, was sentenced on a charge of violating the prohibition law. He received a sentence of 78 days for fine and costs and three months additional punishment.

Two preliminary hearings were held during the past week before Justice of Peace Conrad Wilson. The Clark Powell hearing on a charge of theft was held Saturday afternoon and was continued to next Saturday. Lawrence Gerald is attorney for the defense.

The hearing for Napoleon Littleton on a charge of cutting an auto tire was held Tuesday morning and was nol prossed. Buster Foshee was attorney for the defense. Solicitor G. C. Walker prosecuted both cases.

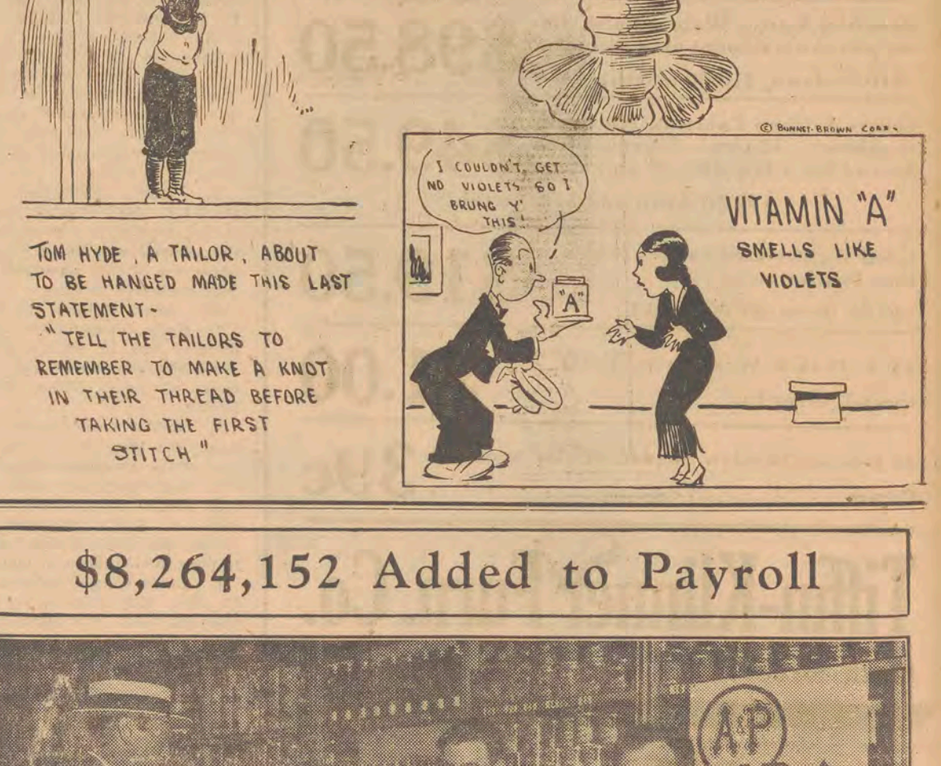
ODD --- BUT TRUE



$8,264,152 Added to Payroll

JAMES FINN HODGSON, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Federal agent for President Roosevelt's National Re-employment Agreement, congratulates three grocery clerks as they receive their week's pay under the N. R. A. code.

The Great A&P Tea Company, which was the first retail grocer to accept the terms of the President's re-employment agreement, is making all changes necessary to operate in complete compliance with the provisions of the code.

The purpose of the Act, as the company understands it, is to increase employment and wages and to continue serving the public as usual. The company's service to the public through its stores has not been reduced because of the changes involved. President Roosevelt's ideas in these respects have been carried through by the company with no qualification of any kind and its stores continue to serve the public during the usual grocery store hours of business.

In every one of its 15,358 stores, in its offices, grocery warehouses in all parts of the country, bakeries, coffee roasting plants, and laundries, its great fish and produce warehouses, and its food plants, the A&P organization is operating 100 percent according to this new code. Hours and wages have been adjusted to meet the new scale, and employment opportunities in various branches of the business are being provided for thousands of men and women as rapidly as possible in all territories.

A&P's preliminary figures for the first week's operation under the recovery program showed an increase of 8,340 employees and an added annual payroll of $8,264,152.

INTERPRETING THE CODES

Throughout the code hearings in Washington and elsewhere, General Johnson seems to be devoting himself to enforcement of the principle that no special interest shall make use of the National Industrial Recovery Act to gain an advantage over another. Where there has been conflict between employers and employes, the open shop and organized labor, the Administrator has kept his eye fixed on the purpose of the whole experiment. It is not only to fix minimum wages, raise prices and spread work, but to distribute benefits equitably throughout the community.

Naturally disagreements are arising, and are approached in many cases from the special and even selfish viewpoint of one party to the argument. In some instances employers have seemed to seek an advantage; in others the employes have sought to use the act to achieve certain long-standing purposes of their own, regardless of the fact that this would be to injure the industry on which they are dependent. Codes agreed upon have been brought back with a plea for change. The difficulties of adjusting the elements that must participate in others, such as steel, coal and oil, are filling pages of testimony in Washington. It will require all the skill, strength and patriotism of General Johnson and his aides to keep every one in the track of recovery.

If certain rulings are made on hour-and-wage controversies, the intent of the act would be defeated. Strong units in an industry could, at a loss, weather for a while the heavy burden of greatly increased payrolls. But others would be forced to discontinue. The net would be a far greater loss of earnings and jobs to workers than would be gained by putting the strong units under an unjust yoke. That would mean the failure of the National Recovery Administration, and it is obvious that General Johnson realizes this fully.—New York Times.

A "Brain Truster" is a university graduate, preferably a Columbia University professor with socialistic learnings, one who has had practical experience neither as a laborer nor as an employer, but who can sit back and tell them how to conduct their personal business.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

There has been a great deal of talk about inflation during the past few months in Washington. Congress, as everybody knows, gave the president authority to introduce, at his will, several forms of inflation, none of which have yet been taken advantage of. There seems to be an impression on the part of a great many people that inflation is a sort of magic remedy for all the ills growing out of depressions. If this were true, depressions, of course, would be short lived. As soon as one descended upon a helpless country, all those who were in authority would have to do would be to turn loose the printing presses at grinding out money and everything would be okeh again.

Uncontrolled inflation, and no inflation has ever been controlled in world history, has never cured a depression. On the other hand it has generally ruined the people on whom it is tried. The recent unfortunate examples of Russia, Germany and Poland will serve as illustrations. A great many people think that we are now in the midst of inflation, but this is not true. It is true that prices have gone up, but this has been due to fundamental laws, unconnected with inflation, and in part perhaps to anticipation of the inflation which is expected to come. Today a paper dollar will buy just as much as a gold dollar in the United States. Under inflation the case would be different. In a recent enlightening article in the Washington Star, under the title, "Who Profits Inflation," Neil Carothers, Professor of Economics, Lehigh University, puts forward the following five propositions which one would do well to remember:

"1. The depression is coming to an end without inflation.

"2. There is ample currency and credit now available without inflation, to bring prices to a 'prosperity' level.

"3. No depression in history has been ended by inflation.

"4. There are no grounds for believing that inflation can end a depression.

"5. Extensive inflation in every country has brought national misery."

Professor Carothers continues that the rich and the provident, those who have the means and the foresight to know that inflation is coming, are usually able to escape its effects by converting their means to securities and commodities which will be, for the time being at least, helped by inflation. But those who have no foresight and advantage, who have a savings account or a few of what they considered "gilt edged" bonds, are the ones who get the worst of it, in loss of purchasing power, when inflation comes. As Professor Carothers puts it:

"Inflation doesn't soak the rich, it soaks the poor. The curse of the poor is their poverty which has been said long before. But another misfortune is that they are inarticulate. They have no voice, no leaders with access to the governmental ear. They are forgotten men in legislation if not in discussion. Inflation hurts all who cannot escape its fell influence, and it is not the poor who can."

Here is something worth thinking over. It is not simly a case, in inflation, of helping the man who owes money at the expense of the man to whom he owes it. There are no strictly debtor and creditor classes. Most men are creditors, in some form, as well as debtors. Uncontrolled inflation will ruin all alike. Only the few who are farsighted enough and nimble enough will escape, and they will not be the multitude of "poor" with motgages overhanging them.

"BLANKET CODE" PLUS TAXES

Excessive taxation, which continues to increase, may prove a serious stumbling block to the success of the administration's "blanket code" says Alexander Hamilton institute in its current bulletin.

"Employment," says the Instftute, "depends upon an increase in purchasing power which in turn depends upon a greater increase in average earnings per worker than in prices, and one of the factors which is now causing this abnormal spread between wages and prices is excessively high taxes."

The "blanket code" which the administration at Washington is now endeavoring to put into effect provides for a minimum wage of $14.00 per week for factory employes and a maximum week of 35 hours. This represents a 14.2 per cent reduction in hours from the May schedule and an increase of 16.7 per cent over May level in wage rates. If the "blanket code" had been in effect in May, average earnings per worker would have been the same as they actualy were, provided that total output remained the same, because the reduction in hours would have offset the increase in wage rates. With total production remaining unchanged and each employe working 35 hours per week instead of 40.8, the number of factory workers employed would have totaled 6,115,000 as compared with the actual 5,246,000, an increase of 16.6 per cent. If employment in all occupations had shown a similar increase, there would have been 5,615,000 more persons employed in May than there actually were. This is the reasoning behind the administration's statement that the adoption of the "blanket code" will put 6,000,000 persons to work.

Under the "blanket code," however, total production in May would have been smaller than it actually was. While the average earnings per worker, would have been the same, the worker's buying power would have been lower because the increase in wage rates would have increased costs and raised prices. This reduction in total out put would have eliminated the need for more workers. Consequently, the calculated increase in employment would not have occurred. In fact, employment would have tended to decrease because of the workers' reduced purchasing power.

Employment is dependent upon purchasing power and purchasing power is lessened by a reductoin in working hours. If employment is increased with a decerase in working hours it is because it is possible by the adjustment of other factors to maintain the worker's buying power. If other factors are adjusted without a reduction in workjng hours, the result is an increase in purchasing power and a greater increase in employment than if working hours are reduced.

Since an increase in employment depends upon an increase in purchasing power which in turn depends upon a greater increase in average earnings per worker than in prices, the solution of the problem is the elimination of the factors which are now causing the abnormal spread between wages and prices. One of the chief factors is excessive taxation which the government continues to increase. Consequently the administration is facing a difficult task in its attempt to increase employment without a reduction in taxation as an offset to the restrictive effect of shorter working hours on employment.

NOT WARRANTED

One notes in some of the statements sent out about the desire for cooperation for recovery the intimation that if it is not successful "national ruin will follow."

Such a declaration is without a shred of warrant, unless Americans are willing to admit that the entire business foundation here is far weaker than in any other land.

Look at the situation coldly. Recovery is under way in other lands, all without departure from accepted procedure. True, there is no extreme advance. Wise leaders doubt the value of sudden and tremendous gains. The evil of such in the exchanges has already been demonstrated.

If there is even a hint of weakness in all that is being attempted now, it is found in the fact that too much emphasis has been placed on what has already been accomplished, also in threats to those who may be disposed to deal with their business as in times past, because of the degree of uncertainty remaining as to the future.

No person with recollection of experiences in other times of reaction will talk of "universal disaster," or "national ruin." Only those of little faith will continue to be fearful. Only those who have some special individual purpose in mind will predict disaster if their proposals are not accepted.

may recall that just such "sure ruin" was

These are things to remember. Also one predicted back in 1837, again in 1857, once more in 1875 and in the free silver experiences of 1893. Only the World War saved the nation from similar predictions for 1914.

The real gain in these times over all other disastrous periods is the immensely increased disposition to cooperate and to work with others for the good on all sides. And it is great gain, of itself alone.—Middletown (Conn.) Press.

PLENTY TO THINK ABOUT WITHOUT BOTHERING OVER RUSSIA

The administration has toyed with the idea of Russian recognition for a good while. It has sent up more than one trial balloon to sound out the sentiment of the business community and the public. The extended discussions of American delegates at London with Maxim Litinoff, we may assure, were not confined to the weather and the new novels. Messrs. Cox, Hull and Moley undoubtedly talked frankly of the conditions of recognition and the possible benefits in trade to both countries.

But no strong sentiment for recognition of Russia has appeared in response to these trial balloons. The public refuses to become interested in the question. Certain business firms, to be sure, are continuing and elaborating their propaganda for recognition, because they can show tangible results in form of increased exports. But those firms are a small minority.

The plain truth seems to be that recognition of Russia does not matter very much one way or the other. It would produce some export business, but undoubtedly the major part of that gain in exports would have to be financed on long terms by American exporters or American banks. It is an epigram worthy of remembering that "you can sell to Russia as much goods as you are willing to lend her money to pay for."

If the administration, after careful inquiry finds that recognition would pay tangible results without danger of political complications, well and good. But if no definite gain is evident, then this is not the time for such venture. In any event, it is useless to throw out broad hints in hope of a well-defined public reaction—the public has plenty to think about without delving into the problem of recognizing Russia.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Gone Cuckoo

Almost everything and everybody I have come in contact with around Cullman I can class as O. K. In a few instances, however, this cannot be said. One of these is their clocks—cuckoo clocks. Cullman is by cuckoo clocks like a dog is fleas—it has them. I have been in several homes in this town, and I have yet to go in the first one and fail to find a cuckoo clock somewhere around the place. No matter how many other timepieces may be kept, there is always a cuckoo clock, too. Some of the stores have them. Just go in pretty near any place you wish around here, sit around a while, and sooner or later you'll hear the cuckoo cut loose with his chirping. As usual, though, these cuckoo clocks here are the usual bad timekeepers. You'll hardly ever find one keeping the right time. They vary over a period of 15 minutes to an hour in time. Why do they keep them? I don't know, unless it is just another one of the many odd customs of the people who go to make up Cullman. A few weeks ago I told you about "Little Jerusalem," and stated that I wanted to take a bunch of our Chilton County people up to see this item of great interest. Since then, pretty near everybody I meet around Clanton has something to say about "Little Jerusalem," and many have given notice that they want to be included on this trip to the little city. It'll be worth your time. And we'll be taking that trip before many weeks.

America's New Friend

America has a new friend—Italy. The recent trip made by the Italian fliers to our shores, and the nice treatment they received all combined to place the United States in a new and better light in the eyes of the Italian government. For many years Italy has had little for the United States, and in return has been considered in some degree in the same boat with Japan, as regards our national relations. Both have been considered (and rightly so) as just spoiling for a scrap with Uncle Sam. Japan has not given any notice of any change of heart, so far, but the friendlier ties with Italy helps quite a bit. In a way, the United States occupies the position of the well known "rich man" of the town, with the majority of the people envying him his position, and always keeping an eye for every chance to bleed him wherever and when ever possible. But a friendly national feeling from a government of the strength of Italy is not to be sneezed at, even by the all-powerful United States. Much better have them for allies than enemies. Just in case of another world conflict, a check-up tends to show that we might reasonably expect an alliance with England and her enormous possessions from which to draw man-power, with Italy, and with Germany, with many other small nations thrown in for good measure. However, of the major powers, we could not expect much friendship from France, strange as that may seem. Japan has a new resentment in the matter of Uncle Sam's slight intervention in the Chino-Japanese trouble of late. Russia is an unknown quantity, their help depending more or less on American recognition of the Soviet government, which is not likely. An alliance of the United States, with her money, England with her men, Italy, and Germany with her great scientific strength to draw from, would place our country in a fairly secure position, even if the rest of the world should decide to take it out of our hides.

Modern Foul Play

There once was a time when fellows got out in a field somewhere, and finished their quarrels and grieviences by duels. At first they used swords, and then after gunpowder and pistols came along, these scrap-settlers used them in their duels. No matter how bad one man hated another, however, he would never take the upper hand of his enemy, but would take every precaution to see that he got an even break. To fail to do so was considered dishonorable, and back then honor was the backbone of the whole world. A man would fight quicker on a question of honor than he would for life. And even after days of the duel were over, men never ambushed their enemies, but always held their fire until they had given the well known "go for your shootin' iron" order. Even as late as the pioneer days of "the golden west," to shoot a man in the back was fit cause for a "Necktie party"—a lynching. If he gave his enemy a chance, all right, but shooting in the back—never. Such as that was done by villians. Not so, now, however. Nowadays, if a man decides to "get" another, he "puts him on the spot," and riddles him, sometimes with a machine gun, in back, front or side, anywhere he happens to "take lead." It remained for a Memphis man to pull the worst trick of all, though, and that on himself. He decided to commit suicide. But he didn't shoot himself in the mouth, or the temple, or the heart. No, he pulled a dirty trick on himself. Maybe the poor fellow didn't have the nerve to look down the gun barrel—don't know about that. Any way, he twisted around and shot himself in the back. How's that? I'd say that fellow didn't have a chance to live. He made up his mind to die; to be sure, he would kill himself; and just in case his nerve might fail he took it in the back. That's a new wrinkle.

Football Shadows

"Coming events cast their shadows before them." I was reminded of that saying a few weeks ago when I picked up a paper, turned to the sports section and, found a long football article, and several football pictures. It all seems a little strange to be thinking of football right now, when it's as hot as hades. Football fields are called gridirons, and if this rough-and-tumble sport should be indulged in at this time of the year the term gridiron would fit perfectly—it would be that hot. Pretty soon, though, the rah-rahs of high school and college will be here again. Then, on Sunday mornings you will see the boys grab the sport sections again — not to see how yesterday's baseball scores turned out, nor to check up on individual batting averages. But then it will be to follow the fortunes of a few of the nearby colleges on the football field. They'll be busy figuring it all out: "If Alabama can get by Tennessee and Vandy it's the coast, Pasedena, and the rose bowl for them again this year. How many yards did so-and-so run on his sprint for a touchdown? How long was that forward pass in the last minute that won the game?" All kinds of things like that can be heard. And it's great to even think of it. Baseball is our national game, and I like it as well as the next one. But for real honest-to-goodness hair-raising interest, a good football game takes the cut-glass wash rag. I don't want to miss a single game of the big baseball event—the world's series, but I'll gladly miss one of them, no matter how many home runs they may slap over the palings, just to see Jesse Frank Foshee or some of the other Chilton High pigskin toters step off the yardage for a good old touchdown. Believe me, that's the life!—Man in the Moon.

PROFESSOR MOLEY AND CRIME PREVENTION

Evidently Professor Moley is the utility man of President Roosevelt's brain trust. Serving first as Assistant Secretary of State, with especial attention to foreign affairs, in which capacity he was said to be closest to the ear of the president, there came a report after the close of the world economic conference in London, that he had so earned the displeasure of Secretary of State Hull that he might be dismissed from the brain trust, at least from interference in the Department of State.

There has been a change, indeed, but Professor Moley has not fallen from grace. He is now to be in charge of organizing the forces of the administration to fight crime in the United States. In this new effort he will of course have the good wishes of the entire country, including Secretary of State Hull.

We are told, however, that this change of the job of Professor Moley is not due to any disagreement among the pillars of the administration but to the fact that Mr. Moley is the best qualified man in the country to take over the job of fighting organized crime and vice. It is said that he has written and lectured much about crime prevention and was research man for New York State's crime commission; that he was research director for the Cleveland Foundation which dealt with crime and other municipal problems and that he has been engaged in and written about crime surveys in Pennsylvania, Virginia and Illinois.

It will be Professor Moley's job to bring about coordination between state and federal agencies which deal with the prevention of crime, to form out the cooperation and coalition a gigantic machine for the prevention of racketeering, kidnapping and similar crimes which seem to require federal and state cooperation.

This is a big job, but Professor Moley, according to those who recommend him, at least, is a big man, capable of handling the situation. Everybody will wish him success, as certainly organized crime is one of the principal dangers of this republic.

Professor Moley is generally credited by those on the inside with having broken up the London economic conference, by insisting that the United States delegates stand up for American rights and not agree to concessions to Europe at the expense of the taxpayers of the United States. If this is true, and he prevented such concessions then he performed a real serivce to the American people by breaking up the conference. He can perform another real service by breaking up organized crime in America. And we trust that Professor Moley realizes that this is even a bigger job than curbing the diplomats of Europe and Asia.

We hope that the code for radio announcers will compel them to wear mufflers while talking about the merits of Siberian Face Cream, etc., etc.

Interested in Landing Field

Mr. H. C. Armstrong, the flying banker of Selma, is interested in Clanton's efforts to establish a landing field in this vicinity. Some weeks ago Mr. Armstrong appeared before the Kiwanis Club of Clanton and talked on this subject. His discussion gave the club a "hunch" that has been the cause of considerable progress toward the airport objective. A letter from Mr. Armstrong this week shows his interest continues. He says: "Keep digging away at this field. I believe there is no better investment Clanton people can make at this time than to provide a landing field. It will put Clanton on the aerial map of Alabama and will attract favorable notice from all fliers in the Southern territory."

A Friend at Silas

For some time the name of J. B. McDaniel, at Silas, Alabama, has been on the subscription list of The Union-Banner. We have wondered who he could be and where he lived. Monday morning a portly gentleman with an air of distinction walked into our sanctorium and announced his desire to renew his subscription. With some hesitancy we inquired his name. "J. M. McDaniel, of Silas, Alabama," he said. Ensuing conversation revealed Mr. McDaniel is a mail carrier at Silas, in Choctaw County. He has been a constant reader of The Union-Banner a long time. When a young man he lived at Mt. Creek for a year, I sized him up as another mail carrier of the kind who is patient, gentle, courteous, and has lots of friends. I think he is the only Republican in Choctaw County. Anyway, he is the only one I ever heard about down there.

International Harvester Agency

Farmers of Chilton County should be very keenly interested in the McCormick-Deering Agency here, which, it is announced, has been placed with Polk Brothers. International Harvester Co. is the greatest farm machinery manfacturing and selling organization on earth. They make and sell every kind of farm machine and implement. Financing plans are liberal, thus making it easy for any farmer to buy any machine he needs. The I. H. C. agent should be the closest friend and adviser of our farmers. Polk Brothers want to occupy that position of trust and confidence. Get in touch with them about your farm needs. This is not an advertisement. We say what is said here because we believe I. H. C. is more to the farmer than a mere organization to sell him machinery. We believe the farmer can prove this for himself if he will get in touch with them.

W. E. Thomas Visitor Here

W. E. Thomas of Sylacauga was a visitor to Clanton during the past week. "I did not spend much time in Clanton," Mr. Thomas said Tuesday as he was leaving for home. "I have many friends over Chilton County, and I try to see all of them when I am down here. I went to the baptizing at Providence in Beat 16 Sunday, where I met a great number of my old acquaintances." Before going to Sylacauga several years ago, Mr. Thomas was a prominent citizen of Chilton County. He was our representative in the legislature one term.

NEW NAVAL ACTIVITIES

The action of the Japanese government in increasing its naval budget to the highest figure in its history for the next fiscal year shows the utter futility of depending on international agreements for the carrying out of programs of various kinds. The Japanese estimates for the next year have been increased by 45 per cent and they are admittedly based on the recent announcement that the United States was about to embark on a $250,000,000 naval building program. There is, however, a difference in the two cases. Back in the Washington naval conference and again at London the leading naval powers of the world agreed to a five-five-three ratio for the navies of Great Britain, the United States and Japan. Great Britain and Japan soon bulit up to treaty strength and greatly increased their naval forces in classes outside the naval agreement. But Uncle Sam was content to lag behind, and he got so far behind that in some respects his naval force was outclassed in size not only by Great Britain, but by Japan.

Only recently do we seem to have awakened to the fact that we are running far behind the treaty agreements in our naval strength. The $250,000,000 naval building program was the first tangible recognition of the fact and it is designed simply and solely to bring our navy up to treaty strength but not beyond. With the case of Japan it is different, however. That nation evidently intends to build beyond the ratio agreed to at the naval conferences.

Japan is said to be in an angry and protesting mood over our new program. Evidently she feels that it is all right for the Japs to build up to treaty strength, but wrong for Uncle Sam to do so. Perhaps the agreement was only meant to be followed by the other naval powers and Uncle Sam was supposed to stay way below it.

But Japan is not the only nation which is speeding up its navy. France has decided to spend more than a half billion dollars for the construction of new naval vessels. In short, France has $550,000,000 to spend for new and unneeded warships but not a penny to apply on the debt which she justly owes the United States. The action of the French has stirred up the Italians who are France's rivals in the Mediterranean and it is said that the Italians will maintain their right to build up to parity with France whenever they have the money to do so. Even Great Britain, which has by far the most powerful navy in the world at this time, is said to be contemplating speeding up the building of additions to her navy.

Te lesson for the United States is plain. We cannot trust too much to international agreements. Japan seems to be getting ready to override one which has been in effect for a dozen years. We cannot afford to have a navy inferior to any other navy on earth. Let us hope that the new United States building program is carried out as expeditiously as possible.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Aug. 22.—A new civilization is going to be built, and it is going to be constructed upon a foundation made up of the old-fashion virtues: honesty, character, dependability, chairty, sobriety and loyalty, Dr. James J. Doster, dean of the college of education, said Friday night, August 18, in an address before the university's summer commencement class of more than 140.

"To build this new civilization, we are going to need trained leaders, and, what is just as important, trained followers. We shall need men of daring initiative, of stout hearts. The exploration of the future in fields of human endeavor calls for fine instruments, the product, of cultivated minds."

President Denny conferred the degrees. Music was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Roberts and Mr. Paul Newell.

Those receiving degrees from Clanton were: Miss Myra Johnson, B. S.; Miss Irene Jones, B. S. education.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The Bible is not written for scholars. There are not many great scholars in the world. The Bible was written for common folks like you and me. There may be literary beauty in the Bible which a person without scholarship cannot appreciate. There may be historical settings that uneducated people cannot grasp. But spiritual truths can be comprehended and appreciated by the human heart when that heart is touched by the power of the holy ghost.

Darwin said several hundred times, "We may suppose," or words to that effect. You never find such expressions in the Bible. There is a finality about every expression. Darwin looked about him in this universe and guessed about how things came into existence. The Bible says, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Shall the old Bible, hoary with the age of centuries, written with the finger of inspiration, born on Sinai and completed amid the splendors of the Apocalypse, flee the stage because somebody guesses about how things are created?

I have no trouble in believing in the authority of the Bible. If man had been the author of the Book, he would not have written so simply about creation. Man would not have said, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." He would have written a volume instead of a verse. Only God could inspire men to write about the creation of this universe in such a plain, simple way.

Simplicity is always truth's most becoming garb. Some one said, "Truth and error went in washing. Error came out and put on truth's clothes. Truth has been naked ever since." Error has to wear the garb of truth to be popular.

The devil told Adam, "When you eat this fruit your eyes will be open and you'll know good from evil." This is partially true. Adam got his eyes open, but he got them open too late. He had ruined his Paradise. He had wrecked his Eden. He had cursed his posterity before he got his eyes open.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS

Billingsley, Ala., July 13. 1933.

To Officers and Members of the Chilton County Masonic Conference:

We, your committee, beg leave to submit this resolution in memorial of our deceased brethren, F. A. Gibson, of Clanton lodge No. 423; T. J. Henderson, of Marbury lodge No. 534 and W. J. Downs of Amand lodge No. 250, who have departed this life since the last session of this conference.

We are constantly reminded of the brevity of life, the changing seasons, the serf leaf, the fading flower, the departing friend; all remind us that life is but a span that leads from earth to glory, connecting the past and the future, the two great eternities.

Though our friends be dead, yet their influence lives on. Of such are those who build monuments which neither rust, corrode, nor time effects.

Therefore, be it resolved, that though we miss their genial presence, their sunny smiles and their wise counsel, we can in humble submission, bow to the will of God, who gives and takes at His pleasure.

Be it further resolved, that, we extend our heartfelt sympathy to all the bereaved and point them to the Star of Hope, the resurrected Lord, who gave this beautiful promise, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, there you may be also."

Be it further resolved, that, a copy of these resolutions be sent to each of the county papers for publication, and one sent to the families of the deceased, and one spread upon the minutes of the Chilton County Masonic Conference. — Respectfully submitted, J. D. Griffin, R. L. Duffey, J. L. Smith, Committee.

Veterans Must Make Written Request To Appear Before the Board

Commander Grover A. Bice, of Chilton County Post, American Legion, has received important information for veterans in a letter from Hunter T. Burnett, representating Congressman W. B. Oliver in veterans affairs. In his letter Mr. Burnett says:

I sincerely urge that Post. Commanders notify every presumtively service connected veteran that if he has not already made application for personal appearance before the special presidential board that is now reviewing cases in Birmingham, to do so at once. On a trip to Birmingham yesterday I learned that no veteran will be notified when his claim will appear before the board, unless the veteran or his representative has made a written request to the board that they notify him when his case will be called. This means that the case of the veterans who neglect to do this will be heard by the board without any representation whatsoever, and his case will, in all probability, be held as not service connected, and his only hope then will be that the president will appoint some special board in Washington to further review his case. The president so far has not made any such appointment, and it is possible that he will not do so.

I want to, and I am perfectly willing to represent any veteran in the Sixth Congressional District. All I ask is that you write the board, sending me a copy of the letter, so that I can prepare his case for him. This must be done this week.—Yours in Service, Hunter T. Burnett.

Any veteran in Chilton County, who needs assistance in writing letters as suggested by Mr. Burnett, is urged to see Commander Bice at Thorsby or Percy Pitts or Mack Wyatt at Clanton this week.

CHILDREN AWAIT SCHOOL OPENING

Greatest Enrollment In History of Alabama Is Expected

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 27.—Children through Alabama glance with uneasy looks at the calendar to calculate the remaining days of summer vacation, for September and school days are just around the corner.

While educator and boards of education scratched their heads to figure ways and means of providing school, not a few of the youngsters secretly hoped something would happen to delay the day.

While some schools in the state already have opened, many school officials said for indeterminate terms, the bulk opening in the state will come next month, and enrollment this year was estimated at 650,000 by Dr. S. Dale Young, of the State Department of Education.

This will make a new high mark for the state, due in part to the new codes governing industry which will put several thousand children in school who might otherwise be aiding the family in garnering a living.

NRA codes affected fewer children in Alabama than in many states, however, as seven-eighths of the children between the ages of 10 and 16 employed in gainful occupations were employed in agricultural pursuits, according to the Federal Census of 1930.

Only 3,388 of the children employed were in manufacturing, despite general opinion to the contrary, particularly with reference to the textile industry. This school officials said was due largely to the work of the Child Welfare Department and close check of attendance records.

While less than 40,000 were employed in manufacturing, transportation and communication, this latter including telegraph messenger boys, 7,890 were enumerated as employed in agriculture, forestry and fishing.

School terms as a whole will be shortened this year, unless unexpected financial assistance comes from a source as yet undiscovered.

John Crump, chief clerk in the department of Education, has announced that the special educational trust fund receipts probably will show an increase this year, but all officials agree that ad valorem revenues will decrease.

Officials in the state department here were unable to give any estimate of the condition as a whole, since the assessment from the counties on which the school funds are founded, were available.

Superintendent of Education Dowling, of Jefferson County, told a recent meeting of superintendents here only two counties, Jefferson and Mobile, would be able to operate a full nine months term this year.

Teachers Named In Other Schools

Notice is being given by the trustees of the Stanton Jr., High school that the school is to open September 4. All patrons of the school are urged to be present on the opening date. Thomas, Miss Willie Nita Campbell, Mrs. Ruth Martin, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Miss Emma Sue Morris, Miss Lucille Sherwood, Miss Tera Dell Williams and Mrs. Amy Gandy, assistants.

Miss Dorothy Pattillo is announced as teacher of English at Verbena.

The following faculty is announced for the Chilton County High School: Principal, L. C. Warr; assistants, H. T. Walker, J. B. Varnell, J. T. Searcy, Jr., Margaret Kendrick, Josephine Martin, Bonnie Clyde Griffin, Sarah Colley and Francis Gulledge.

The teacher for Pilgrim's Rest and one position in the Chilton County High School are yet to be announced.

Sam Billingsley of St. Petersburg, Fla., was here this week visiting his brother, W. J. Billingsley.

CHICAGO JUDGE SUSTAINS THEN ADMINISTERS NRA

Chicago.—Judge H. M. Fisher upheld the constitutionality of NRA in promtly denying an injunction to La Mode garment factory of this city against striking employes. The court held that the company was operating in violation of the recovery act in not fixing minimum wages and also in "not recognizing the exstence of a national emergency as set out in the act itself." He ordered cessation of the strike pending acceptance by both sides of a 40-hour week and minimum wage of $12 a week. The evidence showed, and the company admitted, it had been working its employes 52 hours a week "at from $6 to $8.50 per week."

HIGH SCHOOL TO BEGIN MONDAY

Warr Expects To Have Full Term Without Any Interruption

It is with a great deal of interest that Chilton County High School opens this year with a brighter prospect than it has for the past two years. Chances are we will have a full year's program without any interruptions.

The faculty is as follows: L. C. Warr, principal; T. H. Walker, manual arts and director of athletics; J. B. Varnell, science; J. T. Searcy, mathematics; Miss Gladys Smilie, history; Miss Margaret Kendrick, English; Miss Frances Gulledge, English; Miss Sarah Colley, social studies; Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin, home economics; and Miss Josephine Martin, Junior I work.

While we regret to lose the valuable services of Miss Bernice Williams, who for the past five years has taught mathematics in C. C. H. S., and who is head of the mathematics department of the State Secondary Agricultural High School at Sylcauga, we feel we have gained it back in the personality of Mr. J. T. Searcy, A. B. University of Alabama, and who for the past nine years has taught mathematics in Lamar County High School. Mr. and Mrs. Searcy are citizens of Clanton, and we want them to feel welcome.

Superintendent Luther E. Little won such an eviable record in one year's work as history teacher in C. C. H. S. that we hardly felt his place could be filled. However, we feel we have a very fine teacher for this department. Miss Gladys Smilie comes to us from Hillsboro High School in Tampa, Fla. Miss Smilie has had ten years continued experience as a teacher. Her work has been a success wherever she has taught. Miss Smilie holds an A. B. degree, University of Alabama.

Miss Frances Gulledge, a native of Chilton County, is an A. B. from Judson, has six years successful experience in the English department of the Troy High School, Troy, Alabama. Miss Gulledge has gained splendid observation in traveling, which will add to her success as a teacher. She has visited Europe on two different occasions.

Incidental fees will be $3.00 per semester, payable in advance. This certainly is a small amount and should be paid by every child. Expenses have been figured down as close as possible and this amount is sufficient to take care of necessary running expenses.

The school earnestly solicits your most hearty cooperation in making it the most successful in its history.

CLINICS TO BE AT EIGHT LOCATIONS

Program For Prevention of Diphtheria In Chilton County

An opporunity to be assured of lasting protection against diptheria will be presented to the people of Chilton County next week, when clinics will be held at eight places. At each clinic, a test will be made to determine those persons who are susceptible to the disease, and therefore need the preventive treatment. At a later meeting, this treatment (toxoid) will be given without charge, but only to those shown by the Schick test to need it. Only one dose of toxoid is required.

The diptheria control service is made possible through the financial support of the Rockefeller Foundation, and has the endorsement and support of the local Board of Health and medical profession. The clinics will be conducted by Dr. O. L. Chason, formerly of the State Health Department. It is emphasized that only the one clinic will be held at each place listed, so that persons wishing the service must be present at the time given.

While all clinics will be held at school buildings, white people of all ages will be admitted. Children below school age especially need protection from diptheria. The schedule is given below:

Providence school, Beat 16, Monday, September 4th, from 10 a.m. to 12 m.

Thorsby school, Tuesday, September 5th, from 10 a.m. to 12 m.

EAGLE RANGES SELLING FAST

"Another soul made happy," said Red Sherrod Tuesday as he closed the tenth sale of an Eagle Range in as many days.

Red started to work for Tiffin-Klinner a few days ago and began an intensive drive to sell Eagle Ranges. They have been going like hot cakes ever since.

"It is the finest stove value in the world," said Mr. Sherrod, "and the Lord only knows how many of them I am going to sell. There is one consoling fact, however. They are making them every day at Rome, Georgia, and there will be plenty for every kitchen in Chilton County."

ACCIDENT NEAR WILLIS TOURIST CAMP LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

There was a very peculiar auto accident at Willis Tourist Camp last Saturday night about 8:00 o'clock. The left rear wheel of a Ford coupe, which was coming toward Clanton, ran off about 600 feet up the highway from Willis Tourist Camp Filling Station, came down the highway a distance, then jumped a ditch, whizzed through some bushes and headed into a window in the store of the camp. The wheel not only bursted the glass of the window, but crashed into the burglar bars, and knocked the window facing off.

The Ford ran on three wheels only a short distance and was stopped before it wrecked. The driver was a Mr. Hester of Russellville, Ala.

CLANTON SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY

Statement From Prof. U. H. Abrams, the New Principal

The Canton Grammar School will swing open its doors for the enrollment of pupils on next Monday morning at nine o'clock. "We will keep the children only one hour Monday, for no instruction can be given on this opening day," said Prof. U. H. Abrams, principal.

Continuing his statement about the plans for the opening of school and conduct of the work, the principal said:

"This term promises to be a very successful school year, for we have a splendid faculty, well trained and equipped to do good work. The teachers have pledged themselves to a year of hard work and will spare no energy to give every child the best consideration and advantage possible.

"The Grammar School must have the cooperation and support of every citizen of Clanton, regardless of the differences he may have with his neighbor. If you have criticisms to make, please tell your principal. He will use every effort to see that things are set right. We must all agree that the greatest interest in the world is the education of children—your children.

"The local Board of Trustees have assessed a fee of $2.00 per semester for each child attending school. This money goes to pay the janitor, buy coal and other necessary supplies. Unless its fees are paid, these things can not be bought.

"Under the state law no child can be admitted to the first grade unless it was six years old on or before the first of July of this year."

The following named teachers make up the faculty for the coming year:

U. H. Abrams, principal; Miss Bess Thomas, Mrs. Curry Thomas, Miss Wilnita Campbell, Mrs. Ruth Sessions Martin, Mrs. Barney Burnett, Mrs. Amye Gandy, Miss Sue Morris, Miss Lera Dell Williams and Miss Lucille Sherwood.

The principal requests that children do not buy any school books until after Monday.

Wreck Sunday At Rambler's Rest

There was a head on collision of a new Ford coach and an Essex coach about 150 yards north of Rambler's Rest Filling Station Sunday night about 8:00. No serious injuries were suffered. The Ford was driven by a white man and the Essex was driven by a negro.

W. L. Beard, an employee of the Southern Bell at Tuscaloosa was the driver of the Ford. There was one other man in the car with Beard. The driver of the Essex was Robert Long, an employee of Wood Chevrolet Motor Co., of Birmingham. With Long was his wife and two other negro women.

At the time of the accident the negroes were enroute to Birmingham and Beard and his companion were on their way to Montgomery.

The accident happened on straight road. No one was injured except Beard, who received a minor cut over his right eye.

After the Ford had its left front wheel knocked off in the crash, it skidded some 40 feet down the highway, went over a fill and buried its nose in the ground. The Ford was brought to Clanton by Hayes Chevrolet Co., wrecker. The Essex had its left front wheel knocked off, and the left fender and running board were stripped off. The car was picked up by Wood Chevrolet Co., of Birmingham.

FURTHER STEPS AGAINST UNDUE PRICE ADVANCES

Washington.—Representatives of the National Consumers' Advisory Board are present at all hearings on codes, as are those of the National Labor Advisory Board and the National Industrial Advisory Board and of the research and planning and legal bureaus of NRA.

Yet a further step has been taken by the cabinet advisory board of NRA to protect the public against profiteering after employers secure the Blue Eagle. Request will be made of all operating under codes of fair competition or under the President's Reemployment Agreement to submit information on recent price increases. In addition, at the suggestion of the recently created Central Statistical Board of the Government, each code approved would include provisions requiring submission of such statistical information as may be desired. The purpose is to prevent prices soaring faster than purchasing power can be stimulated.

School Boards Ask For Extra Session

Legislative Provisions Needed For Financing School Operations

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 25.—Without a dissenting vote four hundred and fifty school board members and superintendents of education, in assembly last week in Montgomery, requested Governor Miller "to take the necessary legal steps" to provide enough money to give the school children of Alabama a reasonable school term during the present emergency. It was understood that the necessary steps referred to meant an extraordinary session of the legislature.

The conference, in which sixty-four counties of Alabama were represented, based its request for a special session upon the findings of a special committee of the Alabama Education Association. This committee made a careful examination into the anticipated revenue for schools from both state and local sources. According to this study, approximately one-half of the money appropriated for education in 1932 would become available during the coming fiscal year. This reduction results, in large measure, from the state-wide reductions in property assessments.

It was shown that this fifty per cent reduction in revenues, as compared with the appropriations, means that a majority of Alabama's school children will have a half year, or less, of schooling during 1933-34. Five or six counties are planning a five to eight months term and only two or three at present expect a full term of nine months.

In addition to requesting the governor to call a special session of the legislature, the conference also urged him, together with the state superintendent of education, to use their influence to secure federal aid for public education. Other important recommendations adopted unanimously recommended "that school boards do not further reduce teachers' salaries as compared with those offered last year;" "that teachers not be asked to teach on credit, or under contracts that are indefinte as to monthly salary, or length of school term." The officials urged that the school term not be determined by reducing teachers' salaries below a living wage, citing the stand of President Roosevelt as expressed through the National Recovery Act, that emplyers see that wages and salaries are kept on a level with rising living costs.

APPROVE PAVING SELMA HIGHWAY

Citizens' Meeting Held at The Courthouse Here On Monday

There is a widespread and growing interest among the people of Chilton County on the question of paving the highway from Clanton to Selma. A meeting of representative citizens was held at the courthouse Monday morning to discuss the possibility of getting the Selma road included in the present federal appropriation for paving.

At the meeting Monday Judge Reynolds read a letter from Congressman Oliver in which the Congressman assured the people of Chilton County of his willingness to help get federal aid for any roads we might be interested in.

In response to the letter of Mr. Oliver the men in the meeting Monday addressed to him and signed the following:

"Your letter of August 26, to Judge L. H. Reynolds, Clanton, Alabama, was submitted to a large gathering of representative citizens of Chilton County on August 28, for consideration. All matters contained in this letter were read and discussed and those present expressed their appreciation of your interest and willingness to cooperate with the people of Chilton County in your effort to help us obtain federal aid on road projects in Chilton County.

"It is our understanding that we have no federal aid road projects in Chilton County which can be considered in this appropriation, but we do have a secondary road from Clanton to Selma which our people are very much interested in and desire and urge your assistance in having it paved and included in the present secondary road appropriation.

"We are glad to say to you that the officials of Dallas and Chilton Counties and their representative citizens have jointly made application to the Governor and State Highway Department of Alabama to have this road included in the present secondary road appropriation.

We do not know but what the same will be included, but in any event it is our desire and wish that you will look after our interest in this road project in any manner that you might find opportunity to help and will appreciate any suggestion from you in regard to the paving of this road."

A letter was also signed and sent to Governor Miller and the State highway director notifying them of the interest our people are taking in the Selma road, and asking that they use every effort to get this road paved.

Those who attended the meeting Monday and joined in the letters mentioned above were:

J. D. Rockett, J. Z. Mims, J. B. Atkinson, J. Renfro Mullins, Claudie Pipes, Grady Heflin, J. C. Page, J. Lee Smith, Grady Reynolds, C. Fenn Jones, N. S. Johnson, W. A. Reynolds, Tom Taylor, Billy Smith, W. G. Shaw, Claud Reynolds, G. C. Walker, W. D. Spigener, W. H. Gillespie, W. G. Culp, M. A. Gore, W. M. Wyatt, L. H. Reynolds, Akins Collins, Tom Littlejohn, W. W. Fox, Geo. C. Polk.

It is reported that the people of Selma and Dallas County are active and hearty in their support of the proposal to have the road included in the present paving program. It is a valuable piece of road, forming a very important link in the north and south highway system of Alabama.

Car Wreck Near Thorsby Sunday

There was an auto accident about one mile south of Thorsby late Sunday afternoon in which several injuries were inflicted. Those in the accident were: Mr. Harvey Morris and Misses Versie Mae and Laura Blankenship.

The accident happened when Harvey, who was driving the car, turned too short from the highway into the road leading out toward Mr. S. M. Connatser's home. The car turned over, cutting Harvey's face, and bruising up Versie Mae pretty badly. Laura received only a minor injury on the hand.

Miss Versie Mae was brought to the hospital in Clanton by Bill Parrish, and Mr. Morris also came to Clanton to have his injuries dressed. The seriousness of Miss Versie Mae's injuries had not been determined Monday morning.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Leading Alabama farm men and women are in Auburn this week attending the annual Farmers' Week exercises at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Nearly every county in the state is represented.

President Roosevelt was urged to "use every means at his command to improve the price of cotton and cottonseed before both are out of the hands of the growers," in a letter to him from Col. J. Litt Edwards, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

Nearly 100 leading farm girls spent the week of August 22-26 in Auburn attending the 18 annual state short course for 4-H club girls. They enjoyed a week of instruction and recreation under the leadership of Miss Bess Fleming, specialist in 4-H club work.

Internal revenue collections for the federal government in July rose $69,429,288 over the collections for the same month in 1932, figures issued by the treasury department reveal. This was in in crease of 112 per cent. The total for the month was $131,115,696 as compared with $61,686,468 for July, 1932.

The variable depth attachment for cotton planters was used successfully by several Alabama farmers who tried out the new development last spring, according to John W. Randolph, representative of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Engineering. This attachment makes possible the planting of cotton seed at varying depths and in this way insures a stand regardless of weather conditions.

WALLACE ANNOUNCES EMERGENCY HOG PLAN

Auburn, Ala., Aug. 29.—Recognizing that the farm price of hogs is still only about half the fair exchange value called for in the agricultural adjustment act, and in order to bolster up the purchasing power of hog producers, Secretary Henry A. Wallace has announced an emergency plan for adjusting hog production which is of interest in Alabama.

Under the plan farmers may sell at the regular markets their spring pigs weighing under 100 pounds and their piggy sows due to farrow within three weeks and weighing over 275 pounds at premium prices. Farmers will receive a bonus of $4.00 per head plus the market price of packing sows on the day marketed, without dockage, for their piggy sows. For pigs it is intended to pay $9.50 per hundred pounds for each five pound increase in weight, to the minimum price of $6.00 per hundred for those weighing from 95 to 100 pounds.

The edible products of these animals will be disposed of primarily by relief agencies, and meat so distributed will not be permitted to come into competition with meat sold in the regular trade channels.

This plan, which is a temporary one and is not to be repeated, contemplates the purchase and slaughter of about four million pigs and one million sows. This will effect a reduction in tonnage for the 1933-34 marketing season of probably 1,800,000 pounds of hogs live weight, or about 16 per cent of the hog tonnage normally marketed. Such a reduction, according to past experience, should increase hog prices for the season by anywhere from 25 to 30 per cent.

Funds to handle this premium-buying emergency plan will come from a processing tax to be levied later on hogs and hog products.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN THE COTTO CO-OP PLAN

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 29.—Important changes of general interest to the public affecting the plan of operation of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association have been announced by J. A. Beaty, general manager.

For the marketing year now beginning the customary annual pool which the association has operated for 11 years has been eliminated and only two pools are being offered to the membership. These are known as the immediate sale and special call pools.

Elimination of the annual pool will enable the association to greatly reduce the amount of records it is necessary to keep and consequently the expense of handling the cotton. Few records will have to be kept in the case of the pools operated and this will make the cost of handling the cotton much less.

"Every other conceivable step has been taken to reduce expenses of the association with the result that operating costs of the co-op which have been kept low, especially during the past two seasons, will be considerably lower this year than for any year since the beginning of cooperative marketing of cotton in Alabama," Mr. Beaty said.

Cotton placed in the immediate sale pool will be cosed out immediately and final settlement made with the member as soon as possible after the cotton is classed and weighed. Classing and weighing will be done immediately in a number of important marketing centers where the association will have interior classers. Though basis differential will be esstablished on call pool cotton at time of delivery sale will be deferred until the member notifies the association to sell.

FOREST FIRE REPORT FOR FIRST HALF YEAR

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 29. — Alabama citizens, 15,272 turned out to fight forest fires without pay from the state or federal government during the first half of 1933, according to compilations just completed by the state commission of forestry. Fire holds about the same rank among the enemies of timber production that the boll weevil maintains in cotton growing. The official compilations, based upon intensive observations and research over the entire state, show that two and six-tenths per cent of the 22,500,000 acres of forest land in Alabama burned over during the first six months of 1933. Much of the damage occurred during the month of June, when dryness prevailed through most of the state.

Forest fire conditions are regarded as a fair index of the interest taken in the profitable management of the woodlands by their owners. Prior to the establishment of a joint state and federal agency to stimulate coordinate and supplement the efforts of the landowners in the proper management of their woodland holdings, from thirty to forty per cent of the entire forest area of the state burned over each year. With the widespread interest that developed in forestry after state and federal action was taken, this proportion was reduced to an average of but five and one-quarter per cent for the four year period ending in 1929, but became somewhat greater, about seven and three-quarters per cent, for the years 1930, 1931 and 1932, when the economic depression resulted in reduced funds and lessened the extent of the work that could be done.

During the first half of the present year the proportion burned on the 9,777,222 acres of net forest land comprised within the organized districts amounted to approximately one and nine-tenths per cent. However, on the 12,722,778 acres included in the unorganized territory in which the commission of Forestry, for financial reasons, is not able to maintain agents, the percentage burned over was approximately three and two-tenths per cent.

The total number of fires occurring from January 1 to June 30 was 6,928. Of these lightning caused 16 fires, railroads 272, lumbering operations, 196, brush burning and land clearing 2,246, camp fires 596, smokers 1,365, incendiaries 1,327, and miscellaneous causes were responsible for 910.

BUTLER LOWE TENANT HOUSE BURNED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Fire completely destroyed a tenant house belonging to Mr. Butler Lowe, about midnight last Saturday night. Mr. Wallace Tracy and family were living in the house, but no one was at home at the time of the fire. All the household goods were destroyed in the blaze. The cause of the fire is unknown.

None of the loss was covered by insurance, and the value of the structure was estimated at about $300.

AGRICULTURE

By Clifford M. Manning

THE BREEDS OF CHICKENS

During the first half of the seventeenth century several importations of domestic fowl were made from England, various parts of Europe and Asia. Interest in the breeding of poultry increased and definite attempts were made to develop standards of excellence for the various breeds of chickens that were then being bred. In 1849 the first poultry show was held in America, and this gave an impetus in the development of established standards for the various breeds. In 1874 the first standard of perfection was printed. Since that time, the standard, revised periodically, has served as the basis of guidance in breeding operations in developing many breeds and varieties. In many respects, therefore the standard-bred poultry industry served as a foundation for the subsequent development of the industry. Poultry exhibitions have exercised a remarkable influence in maintaining high standards of excellence and in the interests of the industry.

The breeds are classified largely from the standpoint of their origin, emphasis being placed upon the more important characteristics of economic importance in the more popular breeds and upon the unusual characteristics of those breeds and varieties bred largely for pleasure. The situation has developed so that it is now recognized that "shape makes the breed." (Shape here indicating very largely feather contour.) There is a large grain of truth in the old saying of poultry breeders that "shape makes the breed and color the variety."

A number of breeds have been developed in America to meet the market demand for a bird with a yellow skin, clean shanks and adapted to the conditions of the country. All birds belonging to the American class are spoken of as being "clean legged"; that is, they have shanks free from feathers. They also have yellow shanks and skin, except Java and Jersey Black Giant which have yellow skins but black shanks. All have red earlobes and lay brown-shelled eggs and are classed as broody.

For the best records available, it appears that purely barred chickens of relatively small size and usually with rose combs were common in many parts of the eastern United States as early as 1750. Interest in poultry breeding increased and more attention was given to the improvement of these barred chickens until they came to possess a fair degree of uniformity in type and were more or less the same size. They were recognized under the breed name "Dominique," but their popularity soon waned. In plumage color the dominique has a general bluish or slaty cast, the feather in all sections are barred with altenate, rather irregular light and dark bars. The markings lack the clean-cut effect of the barred plymouth rock barring. The comb is red.

SOCIAL SINGING SOCIETY IS ORGANIZED AT COOPERS

Realizing a paramount need of developing the younger singers of the community, something the larger societies are not meeting, some of the local singers met and organized a society to meet every first and third Sunday afternoons at two o'clock. Mr. Dewey Hughes was elected chairman without opposition. It was also agreed not to interfere with the Central Singing Society, but to cooperate fully with them every other first Sunday afternoon in their meetings here.

We had several visitors with us, and extend to everybody a cordial invitation to meet with us any time they wish and especially do we invite the singers to meet with us.

Our next meeting is next Sunday, September 3rd and we ask everybody to meet with us.—W. W. Allen, secretary.

CORINTH-SHADY GROVE

The Corinth-Shady Grove singing society met in regular session at Shady Grove Sunday afternoon with good attendance, considering the unsettled weather. The singing opened with a song, led by the chairman, Archie Jones, followed with prayer by A. M. Jones.

Directors were: Archie Jones, D. H. Hughes, I. D. Huett, Leroy Mims, Paul Hughes, Katherine Pratt, Orvid Hughes, A. M. Jones, Herman Dubose and N. J. Jones.

Organists were: Mrs. W. G. Pratt and Miss Claudia Hughes.

We appreciate the presence and help of the visitors and extend to them and to everyone a hearty invitation to be with us at Corinth September 10th at 2 o'clock. The singing was concluded with prayer by J. M. Mims.—Mabel Jones, secretary.

Friend—Why didn't you graduate?

Football Player—It was all on account of mixed signals. I signaled to the professor for a pass, but I fumbled on the third question and was thrown for a loss.

First Co-ed—Let's start a secret society.

Second Co-ed—O. K. I was at a bridge party yesterday and heard a lot of secrets.

Givens—I can't graft any more trees for $3 per day.

Employer—Why $3 a day is good pay for work these times.

First—Yeah, but poor returns for grafting.

And there was the Scotchman who bought only one spur. He figured if one side of the horse went the other would follow.

A story is told of a young man who went walking in the country. He suddenly came upon a nice horse grazing in the field. He was perhaps the prettiest horse he had laid eyes on. He walked up to the farmer nearby and said:

"Do you want to sell that horse?"

"Sure I want to sell the horse," the farmer replied.

"Can he run?"

"Can he run, look," thereupon slapping the part of the horse sometimes used for that purpose, and off trotted the horse full speed, running just as prettily as could be.

The young man thought he had never seen a prettier horse. Suddenly the horse ran full speed into a tree.

"Is he blind?" the young fellow hurriedly blurted.

The farmer thought even quicker.

"Gosh, no," he drawled. "He just doesn't give a darn."

Prompt Action Uuged For Navigation of Coosa River

Meeting Held at Gadsden Wednesday Supporting Improvement Project

Prompt action by the citizens of the territory served by the Coosa-Alabama River in bringing to the attention of the next congress the merits of the waterway may result in its inclusion in the $3,300,000,000 public works program, it is pointed out in the statement issued by Lachlan Macleay, executive vice president of the Mississippi Association.

"The improvement of the Coosa-Alabama River for flood control and navigation with a standard nine foot channel, has the full support of the Mississippi Valley Association," Macleay said. "The association has urged a nine-foot channel for this waterway for a number of years. Three years ago it joined with citizens of Alabama and Georgia in making a tonnage survey which demonstrated the improvement of the river would result in public savings which would more than justify the estimated cost of the project.

"While it is true that the district army engineer submitted an adverse report, the project is still before the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors and no final decision has been rendered. Now is the time to marshal facts and figures and to arouse public opinion in support of the waterway so that an effective presentation can be made when congress convenes early in January. The Mississippi Valley Association stands ready to aid in every way possible in securing a favorable decision on this project at the next session of congress.

"The tonnage survey made for the association by Theodore Brent, a recognized authority on transportation, revealed that 1,520,413 tons of freight are available annually for movement by water. This figure is based on freight tonnages now moving in a direction which placed them readily within reach of water carriers on the Coosa-Alabama rivers. It is estimated that the annual public saving on this traffic would be $1,582, 719, or approximately $1.05 a ton.

"In submitting his report, Brent declared that "From the facts at hand and from a careful survey of the traffic available, the public benefits to be derived and the profit to private capital from transportation service on such a channel will thoroughly justify the provision by the government of a nine-foot channel with suitable widths, on the Coosa-Alabama river between Rome, Ga., and its junction with the Mobile River."

"That the waterway will be used is demonstrated by the traffic which moved upon it in 1931 despite the operating handicaps created by its unimproved state. The report of the army engineer for 1931, the last year for which official figures are available, shows that 300,090 tons of freight valued at $1,866,393 moved downstream in that year and 6,129 tons valued at $395,224 moved upstream.

The inland waterways improvement program is admirably suited to meet the immediate objective of the government—relief for unemployment. Figures prepared by the War Department show that approximately 80 per cent of all money spent on river, harbor and flood control work goes directly and indirectly to labor. Of this total 49.1 per cent is paid directly to workers employed on the waterway projects and 29.1 goes to labor in furnishing construction materials and supplies. The monthly progress reports of the federal employment stabilization board show that the corps of engineers' operations on river harbor and flood control projects employ more men in proportion to the amount of money expended than any other federal department.

"In addition the waterways can be put to productive use as rapidly as they are completed. The extension of the economies of low cost water development is essential for the development of industry and agriculture in the territory served by the Coosa-Alabama rivers."—Sylacauga News.

The Sylacauga Advance of last week, announced a meeting in Gadsden for Wednesday, August 30, in support of this river improvement project. At this meeting delegations from the various towns and cities along the two rivers were to attend and representatives of the Mississippi Valley Association were to be present.

It was estimated that the improvement of the channels of these two streams would require about $40,000,000, when surveys were made a few years ago.

CONSTITUTION WEEK

"Constitution Week," which is annually observed by Kiwanis International, is to be a part of the local club's program on September 21, according to plans announced by the president of the club, W. M. Wyatt. Kiwanians of this community will take part in what is a nation-wide observance of the occasion by all Kiwanis clubs in the United States. The time is fixed for the week of September 17-23 which includes the date of the anniversary of the signing of the constitution, September 17, 1787.

One of the objectives of Kiwanis International is "intelligent, aggressive and servicable citizenship," and the purpose of constitution week is to emphasize the value of the constitution and also to inspire a finer citizenship.

Joshua L. Johns, of Appleton, Wisconsin, president of Kiwanis International, urged that all clubs and citizens take part in constitution week and give time, study and serious thought so a greater appreciation of the constitution and its value may be gained.

"Our club is but one of over 1,800 in the United States which will hold constitution week meetings," said President W. M. Wyatt. "Because of the many problems which face our citizens, there never was a more fitting time than the present for our community to study the constitution and to demonstrate its patriotism. We hope that all schools, churches and other civic and fraternal groups will join us in this event."

I think they will help everybody to fully enjoy the love feast."

Thank you, Sam. We will save the biggest apple in the bunch for Mr. Cooper to eat just before he opens the reunion meeting.

FIVE CHILTON PEOPLE IN WRECK AT INDIANAPOLIS

It was reported in the Montgomery Advertiser Tuesday that five Chilton people were in an auto wreck about four miles north of Indianapolis, Indiana, Monday. Those in the wreck were: Miss Vivian Gray, of Clanton; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Duffee and their children, Ruby 9, and Lawrence, 12, of Mt. Creek.

According to the Birmingham Post Tuesday night, Mrs. Duffee was pretty badly cut and bruised, Mr. Duffie and the two children were only slightly injured, and Vivian escaped uninjured. Those injured were carried to the City hospital in Indianapolis.

The wreck happened, it is reported, when the Chilton auto, driven by Miss Gray, attempted to pass two cars and was struck by a bus owned by Smoky Mountain Bus Company of Knoxville, Tennessee. The Chilton company were returning to Clanton from a trip to the World's Fair at Chicago at the time of the accident.

Telegram was received in Clanton Wednesday morning that the group left Indianapolis Tuesday afternoon for Clanton. They will probably arrive late Wednesday.

INDUSTRIES ANXIOUS TO SECURE BENFITS OF NRA

Washington.—Application of industries to avail themselves of the benefits of the president's reemployment agreement through operation under modified codes are being received at the offices of NRA at a rapid rate. These cover trades that have already submitted or, in the majority of cases whose membership are working out myriad details to reach a common basis of operation. Meanwhile, to comply with the president's call to shorten hours of work to absorb more of the unemployed and thus raise buying power throughout the country, employers are anxious to qualify by complying with the provisions of the PRA. This step not only allows ample time for adjustments between elements within industries and coordination to prevent inequalities and to provide against unfair practices against the public interest, but it enables all members promptly to display the Blue Eagle.

Most of the modified agreements provide a general 40-hour week, with allowances for rush periods. Some are as low as 36 hours. None permits reduction of rates of pay. Averaging 14 per day, the following list illustrates the wide diversity of industries whose modified codes were approved in a single day; Manufacturers of mirrors, fabric auto equipment, comforts, glass containers, smoking pipes, pharmaceutical instruments, safety razors and blades, biological equipment, dress snaps, lace curtains, lighting equipment, scientific apparatus, spices, and livestock market agencies.

More than 200 modified codes of this type were approved within 2 weeks. Approvals are increasing at the rate of six per day.

Another striking evidence of determination to comply with the Recovery Act promptly is supplied by the radio industry. The trade group representative of every branch of the industry had filed a code on July 29. Its members voted to withdraw it and to comply with provisions of the electrical manufacturing code, already approved by the president. In this manner many branches of the wool, rayon, silk, thread and other allied industries subscribing to the conditions of the cotton textile code.

Central Singing Society

CENTRAL SINGING SOCIETY WILL ELECT OFFICERS NEXT SUNDAY

The Central Singing Society will meet at Concord next Sunday afternoon. This brings the society around to the time to elect officers to serve the coming year.

So far the interest has been mighty lean for the past several weeks, and it may be that the folks want to rest a while on the singing society. If so, the thing to do is to suspend in order. If the society stops, a plan is under way to have a singing at the courthouse one Sunday afternoon each month.

Everybody think over the matter by next Sunday afternoon, and be ready to decide what to do.

5 NATIONAL TROPHY EVENTS LISTED FOR ALA. RIFLEMEN

Riflemen of Alabama and nearby will make their bid for the National Rifle Association's national high-powered rifle championships and trophies at a tournament to be staged by the Alabama State Rifle Association at Gadsden September 2, 3, and 4.

The Alabama shoot will be one of approximately twenty-five state and regional shoots which are being held to determine the national championships, scores fired at all the shoots being considered in deciding the national championships. Under this arrangement, all competitors at the Alabama matches will get a chance for the honors in the national matches which will be included in the state program.

The matches of the national association listed by the state association for the shoot are the Navy cup match, 20 shots slow fire at 200 yards, and the Camp Perry Instructors' trophy match, 10 shots rapid fire at 200 yards, September 2; Crowell trophy match, 10 shots at 600 yards, and the 200-yard 600-yard stages of the president's match September 3; Wimbledon cup match, 20 shots at 1,000 yards, and 1,000-yard stage of the president's match, September 4. The state championship match, originally sceduled for August 27, will be decided at the Gadsden meet by combining the course of fire with the NRA championship matches.

The president's match is the principal match of the National Rifle Association's annual competitions, the original sponsor of which was President Theodore Roosevelt, who started the custom, which has been followed by all his successors, of sending to the winner a letter of congratulation. It was started in 1901 and is the richest of the matches in point of prizes.

The oldest of the N. R. A. matches to be fired at the Alabama shoot is the Wimbledon cup match. It was started in 1875 after Princess Louise, of England, presented to the National Rifle Association, on behalf of her mother, Queen Victoria, the cup which goes to the winner.

County Agent Stapp was at Auburn a few days the first of this week.

THE DOUBLE SHUFFLE

New Albany Tribune: "What a wonderful 'double-shuffle' the Brain Trust has succeeded in palming off on the people, because of the supineness of congress, under the 'new deal'."

Some people are to be paid for working, and another great and enormous number are to be paid for not working.

It is the old alternative presented to men and women since the days of Adam and Eve. You are damned if you do and damned if you don't.

Two hundred and fifty thousand (250,000) men, together with foremen, overseers, instructors, overlords, as a reforestation army of about 300,000, and at a cost of $300,000,000 or more, is now being established. These are to help rehabilitate farm lands, to raise more crops, to develop power and sites for more factories so more people can be employed.

We are now surfeited with farm products, and also factory products, so much so that twelve millions of factory workers and those in other lines are out of jobs.

While arrangements are being made to make more farms, better farms, so that more people can be employed, the national government is going to attempt to curtail farm production, hence have fewer people at work, but pay them for not working.

The wheat crop is to be shortened many millions of acres and the growers paid about $35 or more for each acre on which they do not raise cotton. That will cost $150,000,000.

The wheat crop is to be shortened millions of acres; so is the corn crop, and the tobacco crop, and those farmers who cut off the acreage will be paid for each acre cut off, and that in each case—wheat, corn and tobacco—will run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Beef cattle, horses, dairy cows, hogs, sheep, poultry, etc., are to be limited, too, so that so many will not be raised.

The only animals that will be produced in larger numbers are "wild jackasses"—and when the government system that pays an increased number of higher wages who are working and also pays an equally large number for not working, then will the taxpayers, the people, be wild as well as the jackasses.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

With the break down of the proposed economic agreements in the London conference, there have been rumors of imminent combinations of certain nations against the United States for waging a trade war. These rumors can be taken with a grain of salt. The same scheme has been tried before against the United States and against other nations but has generally failed to work.

The big card in Uncle Sam's favor is that he has the largest potential market in the world. His people have the highest standard of living, make the most money and spend it—sometimes we think that in certain eras of prosperity they may have spent too much of it. But at any rate, foreign nations always are casting a wistful eye at the American market. They would rather have a share in that market than to be a part of doubtful organization for exploiting other parts of the world at the expense of the United States. They take this view because they know that the American market, if they can once get in it, is worth all the other possible fields of commercial exploitation.

Of course, the American market is generally protected for the home producer against foreign dumping and cheap production from abroad. But even at that more than half of our imports come in duty free and the nations who supply us with these goods are not going to forget the potentialities of the American market.

Since Uncle Sam consumes about ninety per cent of what he produces he is not going to give away this great American market in the hope of finding a pot of gold at the end of the European trade rainbow. At the same time it will always be necessary for him to import, in times of prosperity, great amounts of commodities which he cannot produce for himself, certain raw materials and finished goods, most of those in the latter class coming under what is called "luxury goods." These usually carry a tariff, as a matter of raising a revenue, but few people object to this, even the free traders, because the materials so assessed are non-essentials which are purchased only by the rich and well-to-do. It has been the fact that we have had so few rich and well-to-do during the past three years, and not the effect of Smoot-Hawley tariff, which has played havoc with our foreign trade, so far as our imports are concerned.

At any rate, so long as we have this rich potential market at home, we will not have to worry so much about possible trade arrangements against us. They will fall of their own weight, or break under the strain of rivalry among the participants.

The day is now forecast when an entire house can be lighted by a single electric bulb. It can be done now—in a one room house.

Up to this time there has been no suggestion that in order to speed recovery the length of the baseball game should be reduced to seven innings. Such a plan would help a lot of pitchers at that.

If costs of living continue to rise, the Republican party may find its old McKinley campaign slogan, "A Full Dinner Pail," popular again.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is said to be unable to see any general tariff revision possible in the near future. If he had listened to us he would have known that a year ago.

FACTS AND FIGURES, NOT PREDICTIONS

The man or woman who does his best to make the national recovery program a success can do no more, be it much or little. Some persons and some companies are able to do more than others. It is the spirit that counts. Probably there is not a man, woman or child in the country who has the public welfare at heart that does not hope for a restoration of prosperity either through the present plan or any other that may be devised by anybody. In that sense, therefore, there are virtually no slackers. Even those who fear this drastic program will not "work" hope that it does.

But it is well to keep our heads in this situation and to restrain impulses that might lead the public to believe that overwhelming success is certain immediately. Overstatement will not help the cause. Gen. Johnson predicts that the employment rolls of the nation will be increased by the names of 5,000,000 workers by Labor Day. Everybody trusts this prediction will come true. They would be twice as happy if they were to find out on Labor Day that 10,000,000 of the unemployed were back on their jobs and the wheels of industry were humming again as they hummed in the old days.

But predictions are not of much value, "prosperity has been just around the corner," too often now for us to be guided solely by predictions. Indeed if they are too optimistic in tone they may do actual harm. Supposing those who are holding back on the recovery program, or are seeking ways to avoid complying with it, gain the idea that the job already has been done, indicated by predictions of recovery administration leaders, they may just conclude that they need not do their part. Maybe they will "let George do it."

This is a tremendous nation experiment in both economics and sociology. So far as anybody is aware, nothing like it has been attempted before. Without guiding precedents we cannot know how it will turn out. We trust the results will be favorable, but it is rather important not to raise the people's hopes too high lest they become discouraged should the benefits not be as great as they are intended to be. If 2,000,000 more persons at work a month hence than are employed now, that will be a tremendous help, but those who had been led to believe that 5,000,000 new employes would be on their jobs may lose a little confidence in the prophets in such case. Figures and facts rather than predictions are the indices of recovery.

THE VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS

A lesson for today in the value of preparedness is contained in an illuminating article in the July number of the National Republic. In this article, entitled "Preparedness In Revolution," the author, William L. Pieplow, says in part:

"I have found it tremendously interesting to get acquainted with the noble and splendid personality of Major General Baron Steuben. His noteworthy services to the cause of our country in achieving its independence liberty loving American, who know the history of the Revolutionary War, will ever gratefully acknowledge, and never fail to pay tribute to this gallant and matchless soldier.

"Baron Steuben sprung up from an old noble and military family of Prussia. He was born on the 15th of November, 1730, at Madgeburg, a large fortress on the Elbe. As a child he accompanied his father in his campaign in the Crimea. As a boy of scarcely fourteen years of age, he served as a volunteer in the campaign of 1744, during the war of the Austrian Succession, and was present at the protracted and sanguinary Seige of Prague, and as a youth, he entered the service of the Prussian army, fought in the bloodiest engagements of the Seven Years' War, in which usually more men were killed or wounded than Washington in most cases had under his command.

"Imagine, if you can, the situation in the early days of the Revolution, when the Colonists had troops that were undisciplined and there was an utter lack of a system of tactics, these being pitted against a well equipped and organized enemy. The impression which the country received from the Battle of Bunker Hill that raw recruits are as good as regular troops was soon dispelled. The battle of Long Island and the retreat to Harlem and still later, the Battle of Brandywine, showed how little reliance could be placed on undisciplined militia in the open field, when opposed by a drilled soldiery. The difficulty was not that our troops lacked bravery, for individually they were full of courage; but they became disordered even from their own motion, and in changing their form or position, passed from the firm array of soldiers into the confusion of a crowd of men. In open field fight our army was unwieldy, unmanageable, and could not be thrown steadily or with half the force it really possessed on the enemy. Besides, our officers were almost entirely unfamiliar as regarding information of military tactics, having no books from which to instruct themselves. Hence, the service of officers were sought who could organize and discipline the army, introduce a system of military tactics and create the engineer and artillery corps.

"While on a trip vacationing, Baron Steuben chanced in April 1777, to be in Paris. He enjoyed acquaintanceship with Count de St. Germain, French Minister of War, who knowing that our great weakness lay in an undisciplined army and ignorance of military tactics prevailed upon Steuben to take part in the conflict raging in America. Steuben, this Frenchman recognized, was peculiarly fitted for the purpose of training the army. His military experience was known, and his talents were undoubted. He was the very man for the emergency. The Count had the Baron meet the American envoys, Benjamin Franklin and Silas Deane, then in Paris. . .

"From the moment Baron Steuben took charge, no time or pains were spared to promote the object he had in view. Every fair day he had the troops manoeuver. . . .

"The value of Steuben's services was soon apparent, in the improved condition of the troops, and was appreciated by Washington, the Commander-in-Chief, who wrote to congress, attesting his merits in strong terms. . .

"Washington was the head and soul of the war of Revolution and Steuben was one of the strongest arms. Steuben proved an efficient instrument which served to carry out into practice the projects which Washington conceived. By distinguished services to America, Steuben has earned an honorable and enduring place in the history of this country. His services were devouted to the liberties which we enjoy and we would indeed be ungrateful not to remember them."

The poet tells us that there is a destiny which shapes our ends but the average woman depends a little on the milliner and the shoe clerk.

If Jim Farley really wants to do something to make his department popular why doesn't he flavor the postage stamps with spearmint?

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Soup To Nuts

While I'm up here at Cullman learning to make pictures, both the county papers are being sent to me each week. I don't know why it is, but the Chilton County News gets to me a half day later than the Union-Banner, so I had already finished the dear old Banner last week when the News arrived. But I got at least one good laugh out of it, at that. And that came from reading the article carried in regard to the Blue Creek Camp, being run by Mr. Charlie Gulledge. The News reporter told all about the nice things to be enjoyed at the camp, and how handy Mr. Gulledge had everything arranged, with a kitchen, 'n everything, and finished by relating that he had even planted a bed of worms for the fishermen who might want to use them, and right there I couldn't keep down the old chuckle. I've heard of a place where everything was furnished from "soup to nuts", but never before have I known of a fishing camp which furnished everything from worms to a frying pan. That's sump'n. I think Mr. Gulledge might give the News editor or reporter a right nice little party for that write-up if he happens to blow in down there some time. And if the camp is as complete as all that, I want to drop around down there myself. Maybe I might be able to catch a few of the finny tribe. So far, I'm a total loss as a fisherman, but right now I feel it coming on again, and I think I'll try the next time I'm at home.

Age-Herald vs. Advertiser

That heading up there sounds like a baseball game or something, doesn't it? Well, it isn't. It is just a howl of the pack and the echo thereof in a wordy war which occurred a few days between two of these good old Demmy Alabama dailies, the Age-Herald and the Advertiser. And what a subject they picked to scrap over. "Grandma" (the Advertiser) unlimbered her guns and began shooting the bull about our two fine, young fellows up at Washington—Bankhead and Black—all about us having young blood at the helm, instead of old, washed-up guys "over fifty years of age." And the Age-Herald comes back to inform The Advertiser and the world at large that the two above-named gentlemen cannot be classed as young roosters at all, both of them being fifty years of age or over. Time does fly, but one would expect The Advertiser to keep a calendar any way, and keep in closer touch with their "Who's Who," and why, and when.

Where is "Pork Barrel Jack"?

Way back in 1932, when all the election promises were being made there was a guy in the pack who made lots of these promises, especially to people out in dear old Texas. That was Mr. Garner, our present vice president, in case you may have forgotten who the vice president is. So little has been said of "Pork Barrel Jack" Garner since March 4th that anyone could easily be excused for forgetting just who he is. Now I just wonder, along with about a hundred million other Americans, what has become of him. I haven't seen his name in a newspaper in some time, and history students may have a little difficulty in placing him in the future, if he doesn't start something for us all to remember him by. Fact is, I think he, along with a big bunch of senators, etc., up Washington way are like the desert—they're just there to help fill up space. They don't mean anything, but the Constitution says we must have such, and they'll do as well as any other "pun'kins."

The Last Straw

Back in the days of Hoover, much was said, especially in the dear old lily-white South, about the election of DePriest, the negro congressman, from an almost total negro electoral district in Illinois. The poor old moss-backed, prejudiced Democrats of Alabama and the south fell for it all like a sucker for a worm, and how they did howl about "nigger equality," The Democratic press of Alabama whooped it up loud and long. A few days ago, however, Mr. Roosevelt took it upon himself to place a negro in one of the biggest places he had to give away in the national administrative set-up. And this piece of pie was given in return for work done in support of Roosevelt in the election last year. In a speech made a few days ago, the negro had the following to say, in substance: "My appointment is proof of the consideration the negro vote of the nation may expect from the Democratic party in exchange for our support." As yet, however, I have not been able to find anything in our Democratic papers about this late action of the Democratic officials. They were quick enough to grab at the chance to yell "nigger" at the Republicans, but now that the shoe is pinching their own feet, they seem content to swallow it all without a murmur. Remember, too that in the position this negro occupies, he will have supervision of numbers of whites, and was appointed ahead of the application of white men, some of them being good old "lily-white" Southerners. But that is just another part of the new deal, and good loyal Democrats must not squeal, or they might not be considered loyal any more. "The king can do no wrong," you know. I know it's hard to swallow, my good friend Democrats, but what can you do about it? Answer me that, please.

More NRA Slogans

A few weeks ago we had something to say about what NRA meant and since then the wits have been wracking their heads for more meanings for the term. Here are a few of the latter ones. One fellow says it means "No Rest Anywhere;" another says "No Racking Around;" and still another says it means "National Robbers Association." It may be you have "thunk" up one of your own. If so, keep it under your hat, or else somebody may soon be putting out a book of jokes about it like they did "Hank" Ford and his rattling rambler.—Man in the Moon.

They say that the burnt child dreads the fire but very often the fellow who get his freedom at Reno comes right back home and prepares to "shuffle off to Buffalo."

Indiana is just now celebrating the returning of draft beer which is another indication of how the psychology of the people has changed.

Nowadays a girl is still a flapper until she has to put on spectacles which contain bifocal lenses, and even then she doesn't always give up.

INCONSISTENCES OF NEW DEAL

It would be easier to have faith in the new deal if those who are engineering it did not so often appear surprised at the results of their own actions. It is only a few days since Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, one of the architects of a higher price level for wheat, let out a telegraphic cry of pained astonishment over the fact the the Iowa farm belt had reacted to his wheat program by raising the price of bread. And now here is Gen. Johnson, the author of industrial recovery, indicating that despite all the hullabaloo about raising prices for industrial products he is taken completely unawares by the suggestion that prices of industrial products may rise.

Gen. Johnson's desire to oppose what he is pleased to call "extortionate prices" is pleasant to contemplate. But what does he think he is doing? Doesn't he know that the whole enterprise upon which he is engaged is designed to promote price rises, and that when the snowball of inflation gets going it rolls very, very fast? Take the textile code, on which he was recently engaged. That code by his own calculation, contemplates an advance of some 50 per cent or more in labor costs. What is the manufacturer to do with this additional burden? The textile mills have not been making a lot of money under the old regime. Is it to be expected that they will absorb a 50 per cent wage increase and charge the whole thing up to profit and loss?

Again, the agricultural recovery people are about to slap a processing tax on cotton amounting to 3 cents a pound or $15 a bale. In anticipation, cotton quotations have already started a precipitous rise. This will still further increase the cost of textile operations. It would require a great deal more naivete than we think Gen. Johnson possesses to believe that the operators will not undertake to pass this additional load on to consumers. The recovery administrator may howl about "extortion" until he is hoarse, but so long as he and his colaborators at Washington work in such a way as to make "extortion" inevitable the howling will be about as effective as such gestures usually are.

Much more than mere inconsistency is involved in this matter. There is a great danger that the price rise which is being engineered through the recovery administration, through the agricultural administration, and through the president's talk about inflation may defeat itself. It is one thing to have prices rise by inevitable operation of the law of supply and demand, and it is quite another thing to have them boosted suddenly and artificially. In the latter case there is not a little danger that consumer demand may be checked and that the price rise may operate as a brake on business instead of as a spur.

Gen. Johnson does not seem to have considered this possibility. He just talks about the objections to "extortionate prices." Does he think there can be a cause without an effect?—Baltimore Sun.

COOPERATION WITH NRA

Through its committee on public affairs for the United States, Kiwanis International has promulgated a very clear and forceful appeal for support of the NRA movement. Declaring that Kiwanis as exponent of building, is supporting the president's emergency re-emloyment campaign, the official committee Bulletin says:

"One of the great experiments in our national history is under way. It is apparent that public opinion has not caught up with the real meaning of the NRA. It does not call for a destruction of individualism. The president is operating under authority of congress. The National Recovery Act asks industrialists to establish, by means of an agreement between employer and employe, a code regulating the conditions of work, of production and competition. If interested parties cannot do the work, the government will do it.

"The time for clear thinking is at hand. In the "smash up" of business, the state steps in and will control, but it will not suppress liberty. We all know that in our business world, in the world of production and distribution, anarchy has prevailed. The government now reaches out in a "noble experiment" to clear away the refuse and the confusion.

"Not only the big industrialists and labor are asked to contribute to the program of reconstruction, but all patriotic far-seeing citizens are called to the service of the nation."

Well if the stores and offices close early under the new industrial recovery plan it won't be necessary for the office boy to kill off so many grandmothers in order to get there in time for the first inning.

Coosa County's Picnic

County Agent Stapp carried me with him to the Coosa County picnic last Thursday. The place was McEwen Spring, three miles north of Rockford. The trip was made enjoyable by many things. The good road from here to Rockford, by way of Log Cabin Beach, is fine. What a different job it is to go to Rockford now, as compared with fifteen years ago.

This was Coosa's first county-wide picnic. County Agent, Lauderdale, was in charge of arrangements. The attendance was good. The place was a delightful shady place surrounding the old McEwen Spring by the side of the Rockford-Sylacauga highway. Not quite enough room for all the people and automobiles was the only hindrance.

Music was furnished by Mr. Comer's band from Alex City. Mr. Herzfeld, a banker, brought the band. A very interesting man is he, and the boys and girls of the band furnished a most enjoyable part of the entertainment.

People from all parts of Coosa were there. The county's officials, headed by Judge George McDonald, were present and doing all they could to make everybody have a good time.

Mr. Stapp was the speaker for the morning part of the program. He addressed himself to the subject of "Building a Community." His address was a superb effort and was heartily appreciated by the entire gathering. When Mr. Stapp takes deliberate aim at a subject and turns loose a speech, he can hit right square on the mark.

The dinner was one of the good old fashioned kind like we used to go to years ago. Baskets were brought by the hundreds. Two long tables were loaded. Everybody came up and received bounteous food. A truck load of ice-cold watermelons served as dessert.

Congressman Lister Hill of Montgomery, was speaker in the afternoon. His subject was "The New Deal." Excepting a few introductory remarks about politics and politicians, his address was delightfully rendered and enthusiastically received by everybody.

Opening of Schools

We are now right up to the time of opening our schools. The maze of doubts and uncertainties that hovers over educational business tends to dampen interest generally. Ringing the school bell on the first day used to be attended with a zest of oratory and an eagerness of every teacher, parent and pupil, to get on and into the work. Now there is a slowness on every hand, because nobody knows what to expect. We will have reason to rejoice much when we can sing "Happy Days Are Here Again," in our schools. We must have faith and hope for better school conditions. Whistle and keep up your courage.

The Selma Highway

There is evident now a renewed interest in paving the highway from Selma to Clanton. It is hoped that this project may be included in present appropriations of federal aid for secondary highways. Officials and citizens of both Dallas and Chilton Counties are pushing for the project. Selma has two very vital highway connections—one with Montgomery and one with Birmingham. The former is paved or being paved. The road to Clanton is Selma's outlet to Birmingham. It ought to be paved.

Dr. Chasom, one of Rockefeller Foundation, was in Clanton Monday making preliminary arrangements for holding diptheria clinics in Chilton County. Full announcement from him appears elsewhere in this paper. Dr. Chasom said Chilton has the highest rate of diptheria cases of any county in Alabama south of Birmingham.

J. L. Burnett Here Monday

Former County Commissioner, J. L. Burnett, of Stanton, was a visitor in Clanton Monday. His many friends were glad to greet him again. Mr. Burnett is now engaged in operating a store and filling station at Stanton. He is interested in the proposal to pave the Clanton-Selma Highway.

PACIFIST PROGNOSTICATIONS WRECKED

It will be interesting to note the next warcry of the pacifist element. They bally-hooed the peace conference to a standstill and predicted that the world would go to the damnation bow-wows if perchance it should fail to effect the disarmament of the nations. The world did not disarm and never had any such intention, and she goes on living, with perhaps a little better outlook than when the peace conference began.

Again, when the army was drafted to take over the organization and management of the C. C. C. the pacifist leaders cried out militarism and looked with grave concern on the proposition and the results. And once more they were all wrong. Never in the history of the nation has a major task been so well performed. The C. C. C.—300,000 American youths—were recruited from the highways and byways of the nation. They were assembled at army posts and stations, where they were organized into forestry units. They were clothed and fed. They were given a searching physical examination by army surgeons and protected from camp diseases—smallpox and typhoid fever. With all of this processing completed they were shipped off to some 1,500 forestry camps where the establishment had to be built from the ground up.

All of this has been accomplished with a minimum of friction. There have been few untoward incidents in the whole undertaking. The C. C. C. is on the job and happy.

The pacifist stands on the sidelines in wonderment. There has been no militaryzation of the outfit such as he predicted, and the whole job has been so well performed as to call forth praise of all who have come in contract with it. The pacifist will now have to search out another point of attack. He has been so far off in these two prognostications that he must lie low. That he has done to an alarming extent. We haven't even heard a peep from him regarding the navy building program that is just being entered upon. At that it is to marvel. Can it be that the nation is rid of him for the time being?—Army and Navy Register.

The code for the home town knockers ought to provide that they be equipped with rubber hammers that bounce back and hit them between the eyes.

"—my skin became clear"

—wouldn't you like to be able to say this, too? Then pause a moment and reason . . . skin affections usually result because of lowered resistance from below the skin surface. Then help the blood that purifies the skin, by increasing its red-cells and restoring the vital oxygen-carrying hemoglobin in these cells so that more vitality comes to the tissues. This will increase the ability of the blood to devour infectious pimple germs.

That is just what S.S.S. does—proved by tens of thousands of unsolicited letters of thankfulness.

"Shall I use a good soap?"—certainly—"and cosmetics?"—naturally; but first observe Nature's law and lay the sound foundation from underneath the skin.

S.S.S., in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has the special property of increasing the red-cells and restoring the hemoglobin content of the blood, when deficient. Try a course of S.S.S. and note the constant improvement.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"Sleep on now and take your rest." That is what Jesus told His disciples in the garden the night He was betrayed. He had asked them to watch with Him. But instead of watching they slept. They slept when they had an opportunity to enter into the fellowship of His sufferings. They wasted their opportunity.

"God never intended for hate to win its purposes. Sometimes God let hate win His purposes." That is what my good friend Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama said to me one time. The governor is right. Hate put Christ on the cross. Hate meant to destroy Jesus. But it failed. Jesus is just as much an issue today as He was when He stood in Pilate's Hall.

Jesus beautified all His contacts. He touched babyhood into beauty by taking little children into His arms and saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." You never see any one wearing an electric chair on a watch charm. No one would think of wearing a necklace with a scaffold and a man hanking to it. But people wear crosses and put them on churches. The cross, before Jesus hung on one, was more horrible than electric chairs or scaffolds. He touched the terrible cross and transformed it into radiant beauty. Jesus stayed in a grave for three days and when He walked out He left a lamp burning. Because He died, death has no terror for those who love Him.

"I don't believe in doctrinal preaching. I like practical every day preaching." You hear that expression often. All Bible doctrine is practical. If Christ suffered for us, we should suffer for each other. If He bears our burdens we ought to bear each other's burdens. If He is coming back some time, we ought to be patient in suffering. All through the Bible we find practical applications of all the fundamental doctrines.

Not long ago a modernistic preacher said to a friend, "Bob Jones is one of these "fun-dam-mentalist" preachers." He didn't intend to, but he was complimenting me. I believe the Bible from the first verse of Genesis to the last verse of Revelation. I respect an honest doubter or even an open, frank infidel. I have a contempt for a preacher who will stay in the church and fill a pulpit and make a living by robbing people of their faith in the gospel for which the church is supposed to stand.

LABOR DAY MAY SET PEAK FOR 1933 TRAFFIC

Goodyear Dealer Warns Motorists to Have Brakes, Battery And Tires Checked

The annual "over Labor Day" automobile trip is expected to approach a new peak this year for American motorists. As a result of NRA activity and its resultant shorter working periods with increased employment, Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local distributor for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., says that automobile traffic will be the heaviest of the year, over the holiday.

"A few advance precautions on the part of the motorists will contribute much to making their outings pleasant and free from trouble so far as their transportation is concerned," says Mr. Diefenderfer.

"Tires should be checked for proper air pressure and doubtful casings should be removed in favor of new, safe tires that will insure trouble-free performance for the holiday trip.

"Our Goodyear service station will inspect and properly inflate tires, check the battery and brakes and perfrom other services of similar nature.

"Any average automobile that has its tires, battery and brakes in good shape can be depended upon to contribute its share toward a pleasant and safe holiday outing.

"Another thing to be considered, says Mr. Dief, "is that in the event of rain, tires with reliable traction, such as the Goodyear All-Weather tread, are esential to safe driving. The service men at our station are qualified to give motorists complete information on the important subject of traction," Mr. Diefenderfer concluded.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for September 3

DAVID

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 16:4-13; Psalm 78:70-72.

GOLDEN TEXT—But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth: for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. I Sam. 16:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Shepherd Boy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Shepherd Boy Who Became King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why David Was Chosen King.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Secret of True Greatness.

I. David, the Shepherd Boy (I Sam. 16:11-13; 17:34-37).

As a young man he was engaged in keeping his father's sheep. Such a life might have tended to indolence, but it proved otherwise with David. He became athletic. As he himself tells us, in the defense of his father's sheep he slew a lion and a bear. His musicianship had brought him such fame as to be called to play at the royal court. Then, too, he had become such an expert marksman as to throw his stone to fell the Philistine giant.

II. David Anointed King (16:1-13).

1. Samuel sent to anoint David (vv. 1-3). The situation was delicate. Saul had become a desperate character. For the divine commission to become known to Saul, therefore, would imperil Samuel's life.

2. The method of selection (vv. 6-12). The Lord had made known to Samuel that one of Jesse's sons was to be the king, but not the particular one. All but one of Jesse's sons had been looked upon, and still the Lord's choice had not appeared. When the shepherd lad appeared before Samuel, the Lord indicated his choice. When the oil was applied the Spirit of the Lord came upon him.

III. David, a King Without a Kingdom.

While Saul was rejected, the time had not yet come for David to be head of the nation. He needed much training before assuming such responsibility. Then, too, the evil influences inaugurated by Saul needed time for development so as to be properly discerned and controlled.

1. David's life at the royal court (I Sam. 17-20).

a. He was called as a musician to minister before the king (chaps. 16-23).

b. Victory over Goliath (chap. 17). The armies of Saul and the Philistines were arrayed against each other. According to an ancient custom, the issue was to be determined by a combat between two selected champions. The nation whose champion was victorious was to rule. The Philistine champion was Goliath, the giant. The sight of Israel's cowardice prompted David to offer his service. When Goliath beheld David coming against him, he cursed him by his gods, showing that it was not merely a battle between David and Goliath, but between false gods and the true God.

c. Friendship with Jonathan (chap. 18). This friendship has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince, and therefore heir to the throne. David was heir according to the divine plan. Jonathan knew this and waived his rights to the one whom God had chosen. In the establishment of the covenant between them, Jonathan stripped himself of his coat, robe, and equipment, giving them to David. This meant a virtual abdication of the throne to David. As a friend, Jonathan—

(1) Defended David from Saul's frenzy (19:1-7).

(2) Revealed to David Saul's murderous intent (20:30-40).

2. David's life as an outcast. Chapters 21 to 31 describe David's life between his being driven out from the presence of Saul and his being established king. The praise accorded him following the victory over Goliath provoked such violent jealousy in the heart of Saul that he sought to kill David. To escape Saul's wrath he fled the country and feigned madness.

IV. David Made King (II Sam. 2:1-14; 5:1-5).

1. Over Judah (II Sam. 2:1-14). Upon the death of Saul, God directed David to proceed to Hebron and he was there anointed king over Judah.

2. Over Israel (II Sam. 5:1-5). After the death of Ishbosheth, the children of Israel came and formed a league with David, anointing him as their king. They assigned as their reasons:

a. He was their brother.
b. He was their leader in war.
c. He was the Lord's choice.

The Everlasting Arms

"The everlasting arms." I think of them whenever rest is sweet—how the whole earth and the strength of it, that is, almightiness, is beneath every tired creature, to give it rest, holding us always. No thought of God is closer than that.—Adeline D. T. Whitney.

Heavy to Bear

Losses and crosses are heavy to bear; but when our hearts are right with God, it is wonderful how easy the yoke becomes.—C. H. Spurgeon.

"Fishing?"

"No, just drowning worms."

MAKING IMPROVEMENTS AT LOG CABIN BEACH NOW

It is reported that the United States government, through its representatives at Maxwell Field, Montgomery, has under way some extensive improvements on its property at Log Cabin Beach, two miles below Mitchell Dam. One house has already been built, and reports say that a whole raft of cabins will be constructed. All the government's land down there will be put under a strong high fence, it is said. The plans embody the building of a large swimming pool on the branch just south of where the old cabins are now.

None of this report is authentic, except that one house has been built down there. It is a hard matter to find out what the government is going to do until it has already been done.

N. R. A. OFFICIAL HERE TO ADVISE WITH LOCAL PEOPLE

Mr. Jack Addicks, director of the department of commerce office in Birmingham, was in Clanton Tuesday afternoon for a meeting with all business men concerning the operation of various trade codes of the NRA.

A large gathering met Mr. Addicks at the courthouse. After a brief statement about NRA in a general way Mr. Addicks invited questions from anybody about any particular application or interpretation of the code.

The questions came thick and fast. Mr. Addicks gave prompt answers to every query.

In the course of the meeting discussion and questions were made to cover practically every line of business in Chilton County—saw mills, garages, filling stations, gins, warehouses, general stores, drug stores, restaurants, automobile dealers—all came in for a part of the questioning.

Practically every town and business center in the county was represented at the meeting. Every one present gained valuable information from the discussion by Mr. Addicks.

Railroad Legislation

A RECENT state legislative bill provided that a track man carrying a bell by day and a lantern by night should lead all railroad trains across grade crossings; that conductors must smile when answering questions; that it would be a misdemeanor to serve eggs more than one day old on pullman cars; that trains be required to stop at any time when flagged by hitch-hikers, and that trains crossing rivers wider than twenty-five feet be equipped with lifeboats and life preservers. This one did not pass.

"It almost drives me crazy the way I'm always misplacing little things.

"Yeah, you better watch out or you will lose your mind."

WHAT BANKING WENT THROUGH

By JOHN H. PUELICHER
American Bankers Association

BANKING in its long career has been compelled to withstand many serious shocks, but it ran into the most perplexing entanglement of its whole history since the general breakdown of values in 1929. The commercial structure of the entire world seemed to have been shaken from its foundations and the marvel is that the banker, with everything breaking down all around him, was able to come through as he has.

J. H. PUELICHER

General business failures, agricultural stagnation, income losses, capital losses, inabilities to meet debts and therefore inabilities of bankers to pay back depositors when loans were not paid, were the reasons, in most instances, for the bank failures.

No profession, no department of life is without its weaker elements, but had proper consideration been given to the relatively few instances in banking, had exaggerated and startling headlines been kept in true proportion, had banking not been used as a target for political self-seeking and with vote-seeking motives, had unfounded rumors not been spread the people's confidence might have been retained and financial losses, for many bank failures were caused that need not have happened.

There were factors in our banking experience which every earnest banker deplores—factors which many had worked years to eliminate, which it was fearfully recognized would aggravate any difficult days which might arise. One of the worst of these was due to political regulation which chartered many banks that should never have been chartered.

That there have been incompetence and dishonesty in banking is admitted. That the instances that did occur were used grossly to increase fear in the public mind, we affirm. We shall continue to strive for higher attainments in our profession and strive for laws that require competence and ability in management. That we cannot legislate honesty and unselfishness into either a banker or a borrower must be conceded, but dishonesty, wherever found, should be punished. It is as true in banking as elsewhere that no matter how good the law, dishonest and incompetent men can make it ineffective. Good laws are essential. We must strive for ever better ones, but their enforcement will come only as the public recognizes that it is a matter not of laws or codes alone but of the men who administer them.

The Public's Part

Our people must be brought to realize that the welfare of our country depends upon its banking system, that the strength of the banking system depends upon the public's faith and understanding and the vast majority of banks, because of faithful service rendered, even through the whole of this general breakdown, had the right to expect the trust and confidence of the people.

In every great catastrophe, no matter what its nature, no matter what its cause, someone must be crucified. The banker was this time selected. In the late 90's, political agitation started a tirade against the railroads. Some railroads may have done reprehensible things, but the agitation became so general and so violent as almost to destroy one of the fundamental factors in the progress of a country. Today the same thing has been done to the banker. In spite of all that has happened, the fact remains that even most of the banks which failed are paying out infinitely better than are investments in almost anything else.

OLIVER MANNING HONOR STUDENT

Chilton County Boy Awarded Special Training During This Summer

A Maplesville boy achieved countrywide recognition this spring when word was given out that Oliver O. Manning, junior student at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, was selected as one of 30 American and Canadian college students to receive fellowships calling for four weeks' training in business and agricultural leadership. The thirty young men arrived in St. Louis August 7th and for two weeks were a part of a big business organization—on the inside where they could see "the wheels go 'round." Following this they spent two glorious weeks on the shores of Lake Michigan near Shelby, Michigan, at the American Youth Foundation Camp where in addition to a vacation outing they received leadership training along with other young people from all over the country.

The four weeks' training course was given jointly by the Danforth Foundation and Purina Mills, makers of checkerboard feeds and cereals. Three candidates for the Danforth Foundation felowships were selected by the dean of the agricultural school and from these officials of the Danforth Foundation selected Oliver Manning as the one whose experience and interests seemed to make him best fitted to receive the training.

Shortly after the arrival of this year's winners in St. Louis, they were taken through the St. Louis plant of the Purina Mills.

Next they were taken through the research laboratories where experimental work back of their feeds was explained. This was preparatory to going to the Experimental Farm at Gray Summit, Mo., where, on a 330 acre experimental farm, an average of 1,000 head of livestock and 5,000 chickens are continually undergoing feeding experiments.

On their return to St. Louis, the fellowship men were taken through the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, where cash and future methods of buying grain were explained.

Following this, the trainees went through a regular sales training class where they studied nutrition, manufacturing, merchandising, and distribution of feed and sanitation products for farm animals.

After this the entire group left St. Louis for the American Youth Foundation on the shores of Lake Michigan, near Shelby, Michigan, where they had a two weeks' vacation outing along with a course in leadership training under men who have made outstanding records in the professional field and business world.

Questions About N.R.A. Operation

Q.—I work in a grocery store, that displays the Blue Eagle, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Saturdays; salary $12 per week. Is this in accordance with NRA?

A.—If population is less than 2,500, you are receiving minimum rate and there is no maximum time. If more than 2,500, census 1930, should be $14.

Q.—I employ a boy in my store whom I cannot afford to pay prescribed minimum wage. What must I do to keep him to comply with NRA?

A.—Put him on part-time basis at pro rata of minimum for full time. If your town is under 2,500 population, maximum hour provisions do not apply.

Q.—I have two employees in my store, and if I add a part-time employee will I lose my exemption from the hour provisions of the President's Agreement?

A.—No.

Q.—Where a town has a population of less than 2,500 and the trade area is over 2,500, shall the population of the town or that of the trade area be taken in connection with paragraph 4 of the President's Agreement?

A.—Population of the town; but if it is in a trade area centering up a larger town or city, the population of the latter should be taken as basic.

Q.—I am a storekeeper in a town of 1,500 and employ two clerks. Can I keep open more than 8 hours a day or more than 48 hours a week?

A.—Yes. PRA imposes no minimum limit in town of your size.

MRS. GOODMAN MOVED HER BEAUTY SHOPPE THIS WEEK

Mrs. Claude Goodman has this week moved her beauty shoppe from First Avenue to Second Avenue South, to the large house just one block east of the home and rooming house of Mrs. W. M. Polk.

Mrs. Goodman says that her new location and added new equipment will enable her to better serve her customers. She has added a new Croquinole permanent waving machine, which is a combination affair capable of giving either a Croquinole wave, a spiral or a combination.

She wishes her friends and customers to take notice of her moving and come to see her in her new location.

Kiwanis Club

Leonard Williams had charge of the program at the Kiwanis meeting last Thursday night. Several interesting music number were furnished by Herman Lowery and Odis Ellison.

Miss Alice Mae Polk delighted the club with a humerous reading.

"Bill" Barnett, superintendent of Alabama Mills, was introduced as a new member of the club.

The club set out to make September a one-hundred per cent month in attendance and programs. The program committee has already outlined a series of programs for the month. A special attendance committee will see that every member attends every meeting.

This week at 6'oclock, Thursday, the program will be furnished by a group of Birmingham Kiwanians, including Sam Clabaugh, Dr. Mell Jackson and L. E. Foster of the Chamber of Commerce.

Local Kiwanians are making preparations to attend the state convention of Kiwanis in Birmingham next month.

BURGLARS ENTER ROCKETT'S HARDWARE STORE, CLANTON

Some time between Saturday night and Monday morning burglars entered the hardware store of Clanton Building Supply Company and carried away a few articles of minor importance. The list of missing things included some flash lights, pocket knives, and probably some guns.

The marauders entered through the back window at the northwest corner of the store. The iron bars were pried off and the window raised.

Schools Opened Monday Morning

"The best outlook we have had in several years," said Earle Thomas Monday afternoon when asked about the opening of Isabella High School.

Superintendent Luther Little was present at the opening and made a short address to the student assembly.

Registration was completed and the program of work was begun in earnest Tuesday morning. The grammar school will not open until October 3.

Mr. Thomas was specially enthusiastic over prospects for his vocational work at Isabella this year. "We have added about $125 worth of equipment to our plant," he said, "and this will enable our vocational students to extend their work into subjects and problems which have not been available to them heretofore."

Former County Superintendent, Buford Lawrence, is principal of Isabella this year. The high school enrollment will be about 170, it is thought.

Prof. L. C. Warr, principal, reported the opening of Chilton County High School Monday morning with prospects for a fine year's work. Total enrollment the first day ran up to 278.

Regarding the opening Prof. Warr sais: "We had a fine opening with lots of students. There was no public program or speaking. We just met down there and got ready to really go to work."

The Jemison High School opened Monday morning with a registration of close to 500 students, according to a report given out by principal, J. A. Peterson.

Opening of the school was an event in which many patrons and citizens joined with the teachers and pupils for a program of much interest. County Superintendent, Luther E. Little, made an address in which he discussed length of the school term and other vital points of school work.

Mr. C. C. Conway spoke of some of the outstanding needs of the school, mentioning particularly a waterworks system, improved building facilities and teaching equipment.

Prof. Peterson emphasized the need of cooperation of all forces through the parent-teacher organization.

Little Mary James Patton rendered a delightful vocal solo. Leo Shaw and John Lowery entertained with a group of instrumental numbers using the banjo and mandolin. A piano solo was rendered by Miss Evelyn Cooper.

How You Can Save Time and Money In Buying At Retail Stores

With business operations organized and working with clock-work precision under the various NRA codes and regulations, it has become very apparent that there is a great need for education of the public in how to save time in making purchases at retail stores. Many people no doubt have never thought of the importance of such time-saving, because they have grown into the idea that the store-keeper was unlimited and unrestricted in his time. Realizing the importance of saving every minute of working, and making every minute count for something, The Union-Banner has planned a series of articles giving suggestions to buyers and explaining how time and money can be saved if buyers will observe a few simple rules when they go to the store to trade.

Taking up time of the store clerks uselessly is expensive. It makes the goods you buy cost you more, because somebody has to pay the salary of the clerk. You help pay that salary when you buy goods at the store.

Every person who buys anything at a store should go there, get what he wants, and get through with it as quickly as possible. It will save time and save money.

Watch this space next week for the first article of the series on "How to Save Time in Retail Buying."

REVIVAL MEETING IS IN PROGRESS

Services At Clanton Methodist Church Continue Through All This Week

Revival services at Clanton Methodist church began last Sunday morning when the pastor, Rev. L. P. Cochran, gave his hearers a challenging message on the subject of shifting responsibility, or "Passing the Buck." Sunday night his sermon was a very impressive elucidation of the subject, "What A Town Lives By." This discussion pointed out the need of a revival of Christian interest in the home, the church, the school.

Services have been held each night beginning at 7:45. The pastor is doing the preaching. Work with the young people has been organized and directed by Rev. Herschel Hamner, a young preacher from Bessemer. Special music has been furnished by the church choir and some quartets arranged by local singers. he quartet Sunday night was composed of Percy Pitts, Jesse Jones, Evan Parrish and Jean Wyatt.

Subject of the Sermon Monday night was "A Short Bed and Narrow Cover." Tuesday night, "The Automobile vs. Man." Wednesday night, "Serpents in the Garden of Life."

The meeting will continue to next Sunday night. Subjects of sermons as announced will be as follows:

Thursday night, "Dangers of Youth." Friday night, "A Safe Refuge." Saturday night, "Prepare to Meet Thy God." Sunday morning at eleven, "Set Thy House in Order." Sunday night, "The Anchor of Hope."

All of the night services begin at 7:45. Everybody has a cordial invitation to attend and take part in the worship.

LAY DAM SCHOOL STARTS

The school at Lay Dam opened Monday with both the former teachers, Mrs. Jim Lecroy (Ethel Mize) and Miss Frances O'Neal, on the job.

A new building has been erected by the Alabama Power Co., to take the place of the one destroyed by fire last year. It will be ready for use in a few days.

W. M. DEVAUGHN IS TEACHING SINGING SCHOOL AT SYLACAUGA

Prof. W. M. Devaughn dropped by The Banner office Monday morning early on his way to Sylacauga to take up the second week's work in his singing school there. He began a school on August 28th in the Comer Mill auditorium, and now has an excellent enrollment of 103. He teaches in two shifts—one from 8 o'clock to 11, and the other from 3 o'clock to 6. He has some hormony classes in between regular shifts.

Prof. Devaughn says it is working him mighty hard, but that it is one of the best schools he has ever been in. He has some old former pupils in the school—some who attended under him in this county 25 years ago. There are twenty or twenty-five former pupils attending, he says.

We are proud of Prof. Devaughn as a music teacher, and we feel sure that the people of Sylacauga could not have selected a better trained and more efficient teacher for their school. His heart is really in the work when it comes to the singing school room.

TAX REDUCTION IS ADVOCATED

R. J. Goode, Prominent Farmer and Legislator Is Back of Movement

A reduction in property taxes and efficient and economical expenditure of state and county revenues were advocated by R. J. Goode, farmer, livestock breeder, legislator and member of the state board of agriculture, Gastonburg, in an address before Farmers' Week and the Annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation in Auburn.

"The resent taxation program is unequitable and is causing thousands who are unable to pay their taxes to lose their homes and land" he declared in advocating that taxes be placed on the basis of "ability to pay."

Mr. Goode did not outline the different types of taxes he favors but the convention, following his address, had the following to say in resolution:

"We are wholeheartedly committed to the principle of taxation on the basis of ability to pay, which in practice means that the greater portion of state and federal expenses of government should come from income, corporation, inheritance, and gift taxes, leaving the general property tax largely for local governmental expenses."

Mr. Goode also advocated a definite agricultural program for the state of Alabama and declared that "farmers should ask the legislature to provide sufficient funds to efficiently and economically operate the experiment station, extension service and vocational agriculture."

He gave figures showing that only 2.5 cents out of each $1.00 spent by the state is going for agricultural work. "In the face of the fact that agriculture creates about 74 per cent of the new wealth created in the state, this amount should not be decreased but should be increased" he said.

SHERIFF'S REPORT THIS WEEK

Since last report there have been the following arrests by Sheriff Gillespie and his force of deputies: public drunkenness, 1; vialating prohibition law, 3; desertion, 1; assault and battery, 1; abusive, indecent and obscene language, 1; assault to murder, 1; assault to ravish, 1.

There are now in jail 13; seven negroes, 6 whites.

John P. Bean of Beat 12, former County Commissioner, was a visitor in Clanton Monday.

NO FIXED PRICE FOR COTTON PICKING

It has been reported in some sections of the county that the government has set a price of 30 cents a hundred pounds which the farmer may pay for having cotton picked. The Union-Banner has been requested to find out if the report is true.

We referred the question to County Agent Stapp, who says he knows nothing of any action having been taken by the government in regard to the matter.

In this connection we add that there is nothing in the operation of NRA codes that in any way affects farm labor.

ONE HUNDRED PUT TO WORK UNDER N. R. A.

A survey made by the local committee last week revealed that about one hundred persons in the Clanton territory have been put to work on regular jobs since the N. R. A. program was instituted a month ago.

In addition to those additions to the payrolls it was revealed by the survey that many of the old employees have been granted increase in pay by their employers.

Twenty business concerns reported that NRA has already proven helpful to them. One concern reported positively that it has not been helpful. Many concerns said they could not yet tell whether their business has been benefitted or not.

Firemen Banquet

The Clanton Fire Department gave a banquet at the Exchange Hotel last Friday night entertaining 16 members of the Alabama Power Co., baseball club from Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam.

City Clerk, C. H. Pipes, acted as toastmaster. Mayor J. Lee Smith was guest of honor.

The banquet was given as the culmination of "hostilities" between the two groups. On three prior occasions they had encountered each other on the baseball field, each crowd seeking to "down" the other. Out of these combats the firemen emerged with two victories to the Dam boys one.

It was a contest at the banquet, not to see who could out-class the other in base hits or home runs, but a game to see who could do the best at having a good time.

It was a draw from start to finish, as each group declared the other had done the best job.

SINGING AT MAPLE SPRINGS

We wish to give to everyone a cordial invitation to come, bring your lunch, and, singers, don't forget to bring your song books—both Morris-Henson and Stamps-Baxter, latest books will be used.—O. L. Devaughn.

Honor Birthday Of Bluford Jones

Honoring his seventy-fourth birthday, a number of relatives and friends of Bluford H. Jones gathered at his home in Mulberry community last Sunday, and spent the day with the good old gentleman. The children of Mr. Jones, Mrs. W. B. Williams and Mrs. J. H. Broadhead, with their families were present.

Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Jones of Montgomery, Mrs. Ludie Lenoir, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Swann of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Jones and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jones and family, Mrs. D. W. Vines and children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Springle of Selma, and Mr. Clay Jones. Mrs. Jones, second wife of Mr. Jones, and two unmarried children, Stanley and Lena Mae, of course, were present.

At noon all gathered around a large table which had been prepared and spread out under the shade trees in the yard, and enjoyed a most bounteous dinner. A large birthday cake was presented to Mr. Jones, which was the source of great delight to him, his children and his friends. The day was a most enjoyable one for both Mr. Jones and those present. All wish him many other happy birthdays like the one just passed.

AGED MAN KILLED BY AUTO NEAR CALERA LAST SATURDAY

James Baggard, age 73, was killed near Calera last Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by John T. Kelley of Clanton.

When the accident happened south of Calera Kelley picked up the injured man and carried him back to Calera. He was pronounced dead when a doctor was reached.

Kelley was held by Shelby County officers following the accident until a preliminary trial Monday. After the trial he was released under $500 bond on a charge of manslaughter.

DUFFEY PARTY RETURN HOME

All Safe and Sound After The Serious Wreck of Their Automobile

Mr. Raymond L. Duffey, Mrs. Duffey and children and Miss Vivian Gray returned home last Friday about noon, after a somewhat harrowing experience on their trip to Des Moines, Iowa, and Chicago.

The party got into an automobile wreck near Indianapolis, Indiana, on their return. Their Ford Car was badly damaged when it was struck from the rear by a bus and knocked off the highway. None of the occupants were seriously hurt. Mrs. Duffey suffered the most painful injury of any.

Mr. Duffey stated that their car passed two other cars. Before it got back into the line of traffic a big passenger bus behind them struck the car and caused it to spin around a time or two, turn over, and land bottom side up by the side of the road. Fortunately, said Mr. Duffey, the shatter-proof glass and all-steel body of our car saved us from a most terrible result.

The many friends of Mr. Duffey and those in his party were glad to see them return in good condition. Much apprehension was felt for them for several days last week when accurate information about their condition was not attainable.

"We didn't know the folks at home would hear about our accident," said Mr. Duffey. "We were all right after the wreck, and thought we would just come on home without saying anything to anybody. We did not dream that the radio and newspapers would bring the news to folks at home. If we had known that, we would have sent word that we were all right so nobody would be worried about us."

On the trip Mr. Duffey attended the National Rural Letter Carriers Convention at Des Moines. From there the party came back by Chicago and took in the World's Fair. It was after they left Chicago for home that the wreck happened.

FARMERS DEMAND NEEDED REFORMS

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 5.—A legislative program for Alabama agriculture was drafted here during Farmers' Week by official delegates to the annual convention of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

Nearly a score of resolutions called for varied reforms in currency, taxation, credit facilities, agricultural planning, and other matters.

One resolution stated that the Alabama system of taxation needs further revision in order that the inequitable burden now borne by property owners may be reduced. Another states: "We are committed to a currency system in which the value of the dollar would have a stable purchasing power in terms of commodities. Under such a system a farmer would not every few years be confronted with the problem of paying a debt which was a 10-bale debt when made and a 40-bale debt when due."

The farmers also directed their officers to make plans for a thorough study of state and county government in Alabama as a basis for constructive recommendations. They asked that credit legislation passed by the last session of congress be so administered as to make the agricultural credit system farmer-owned and farmer controlled.

They favored national economic planning for agriculture, asked that the cotton production control program for 1934 and 1935 use as a measure of planning production the number of bales that could be ginned and sold rather than the number of acres that could be planted.

In addition, they favored federal aid to education in the states and stated that land-grant colleges, experiment stations, extension services and vocational agricultural work should be strengthened instead of crippled.

Net operating income in July of the first 48 railroads to report for the month was $48,177,000 against $9,634,000 in July, 1932, an increase of 400.1 per cent, according to a press report.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Senator John H. Bankhead is advocating the use of federal authority to limit at the gins the 1934 cotton crop to 9,000,000 bales.

Industrial output is increasing. Volume of output, according to a federal reserve board statement, advanced from 91 per cent of the 1923-1925 average in June to 98 per cent in July, which compares with 60 per cent in March.

M. L. Robertson of Cullman, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Alabama Bankers Association, is telling of 65 acres of land which grew 5,000 bushels of corn after two years of winter legumes. Before the legumes were planted the land did not produce more than 15 to 20 bushels per acre.

Farmers who borrowed money from the crop production loan office will not be compelled to sell their cotton to pay off the loans when they become due on October 31, according to Governor Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of the Farm Credit Administration. They will be given an opportunity to turn their cotton over to cooperative marketing associations or to store it in a federal bonded warehouse.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 5. — I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, has granted the petitions of sportsmen in 15 Alabama counties for authority to start the three months open season on squirrels on November 1 instead of October 1.

The opening of the squirrel season was moved up one month by a law passed at the 1932 special session of the legislature, making the season from October 1 through December 31.

The act later was amended to provide that on petition of at least 100 licensed hunters or landowners in a county the open season could be changed back to the dates under the old law, opening the season on November 1 and closing it January 31.

Upon receiving the petitions, Commissioner Quinn investigated the advisability of changing the dates and found that the months of November, December and January would be the most propitious season for hunting squirrels in Baldwin, Butler, Choctaw, Clarke, Conecuh, Covington, Crenshaw, Dallas, Escambia, Lowndes, Mobile, Monroe, Montgomery, Washington and Wilcox counties.

More squirrels probably are killed in Alabama each year than any other game animal.

HOW FARMERS FEEL ON COTTON CONTROL

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 5.—Expression on how Alabama farmers are feeling about a cotton production control program for 1934 and 1935 was given here last week through a resolution passed unanimously at the annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation during Farmers' Week. Approximately 1,000 farm people were present.

The resolution insists that a cotton production control program be immediately put into effect for 1934 and 1935. It also states that the number of bales that could be ginned and sold, rather than the number of acres that could be planted, should be used as a measure of planning production.

The resolutions continues:

"A five-year average of production data should be used as a basis for making allotments. This should be a period during which American consumption of cotton was comparatively high.

"We favor that allotments in terms of bales be made to states, counties and individual farmers.

"We believe that a cotton control program on a baleage basis can be carried out in accordance with the voluntary principles of the Agricultural Act and at the same time be made effective for the entire cotton-producing industry.

"We insist that there be strict coordination between the production credit and production control agencies of the government."

CANNING CENTERS

The home agent is delighted with the progress made at the canning centers during the month of August. In 21 communities the white and colored workers filled 13,679 containers with tomatoes, beans, soup mixtures and fruits.

Mrs. W. E. Martin has given up the operation of Martin's Woco Pep Station on the highway in Clanton.

NEW STATE PARK FOR ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 5.—Another state park has been added to Alabama's system through the public spirit of the directors of the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company who donated the site to the state. The area, known as the Little River State Park, is located on the highway between Atmore and Monroeville. This donation constitutes the tenth state park in Alabama.

The area derives its name from historic Little River, the hunting ground of the famous Weatherford, half-breed emperor of the Creek Nation. The river at this point is quite clear with large pools for bathing and fishing. Its banks are lined with Magnolia, cypress and Black Gum trees. The bayous near the river are beautiful with sweet bay, alder and smilax.

Chunnenuggee Ridge which extends from Barbour County almost to the Gulf crosses this especially beautiful tract. From several fine vantage points there may be had commanding views of the surrounding wild country. The ridge breaks off into escarments of iron sandstone which enhance the picturesque quality of the scene.

Most of the upland is covered with young long-leaf pine, and the lowlands are well stocked with young slash pine. Springs are in evidence contiguous to well drained and shaded camp sites. Engineering and landscape plans are now being prepared by the Commission of Forestry for the development of Little River State Park.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW

Cotton prices declined about ¼ cent per pound during the week of August 26-September 1, with the average of the ten designated markets September 1 for Middling seven-eighths inch, 9.01 cents compared with 9.26 cents August 25, and 8.41 cents a year ago. Reported sales of spot cotton by the ten markets for the week amounted to 188,442 bales compared with 162,472 bales for the like week last season. Demand for spot cotton was stated as quiet with offerings of both old and new crop continuing moderate. Seller's asking basis was about unchanged, but some reports indicated a slight narrowing in premiums for 1-one eighth inch and 1-five-thirty-seconds inch in the grades above middling.

According to the weather bureau for the week ending August 29 there was some storm damage to cotton in the extreme northeastern portion of the belt, and localities of the east Gulf area were too dry for proper development, while the moisture in parts of the northwestern belt favored weevil activity. Otherwise, temperatures were moderate and only local showers occurred, which made another favorable week for cotton over much the greater portion of the belt.

Exports from August 1 to September 1 amounted to about 555,000 bales compared with about 503,000 for the like period the year before. Of this year's total over 100,000 bales have gone to Japan compared with about 43,000 a year ago for the same period. To Russia so far this season exports have amounted to a little over 30,000 bales compared with none a year ago for the same time.

No estimate of the 1933 cotton area in Russia is available as yet, but the plan for the current year calls for 5.1 million acres against 6.6 for the 1932. Latest reports indicate, however, that only 5.9 million acres were actually under cultivation in 1932. Cultivation in newer cotton Russian areas was reported as especially backward with consequently heavy growth of weeds inevitable.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, one of the encouraging features of the world cotton situation from the standpoint of the cotton trade of this country is the fact that foreign countries during the past two seasons have materially increased their consumption of American cotton, not only absolutely but relatively to their use of foreign growths. American cotton constituted 43.7 per cent of the total foreign consumption of all growths in 1932-33 compared with 42.8 per cent during 1931-32 and 35.2 per cent in 1930-31.

New York future contracts closed September 1: October 9.35c; December 9.54c; January 9.64c; March 9.81c; July 10.15c. New Orleans closed: October 9.30c; December 9.51c; January 9.59c; March 9.75c; May 9.96c; July 10.11c.

PEARL BUTTON FACTORY TO BE ESTABLISHED AT SELMA

Selma, Ala., Sept. 5.—A pearl button factory, expected to offer employment to 30 persons, will be established here soon to take its place among the state's new industries.

The factory, moved here from Muscadine, Iowa, will utilize mussel shells taken from the Alabama, Cahaba and Tombigbee Rivers in its work, turning out a disc from which the finished button will be produced at other factories.

William Arthur Willis left recently for the University of Alabama.

"We've got to give him something that'll backfire on his nose and make him sneeze," said the veterinarian, called to treat the lumberjack. "Mix up a pint of linseed oil, some castor oil and red pepper. Let me know how he feels in the morning."

The next morning the foreman called the horse doctor on the phone.

"Lars sneezed last night," he said.

"That's fine," said the doctor. "How many times?"

"Three," said the foreman. "Once before and twice after he died."

A chance to win an income of $1,000 a year for life and other cash prizes amounting to many thousands of dollars will be offered next Sunday in The American Weekly, magazine distributed with The Atlanta Sunday American and other Hearst Sunday newspapers.

It will be paid at the rate of $1,000 a year each year the winner lives after the award is made and may amount in all to $50,000 or more if the winner should live that long. The second award is to be $500.000 a year for life and eight other awards will be large sums of cash to be paid annually.

These big gifts of money are to be made simply for an idea, a few words will be suitable for a slogan or subtitle to be used by The American Weekly, the magazine which goes into more than 5,000,000 American homes every Sunday.

The contest, as it will be outlined in next Sunday's American is one of the simplest ever conducted by a newspaper and the easiest to enter. No subscriptions will be required in order to qualify for a prize, no puzzles to work, word lists to build or anything else tedious or troublesome.

AMERICAN BREEDS OF CHICKENS

The Plymouth Rock chicken, one of the most popular breeds in America, largely because it is a bird of good size, with excellent fleshing properties and good egg-laying abilities. The birds belonging to this breed are rather long-bodied, fairly broad, with fairly prominent brest and good depth of body. This breed has single comb. The standard weights in pounds are: Cock, 9½; hen, 7½ cockerel, 8; pullet, 6.

There are a number of different species of the Plymouth Rock, namely: (1) The Barred Plymouth Rock, which seems to have been developed from at least three fairly distinct strains, although Robinson, a leading American authority on the origin of the American breed varieties, has stated that the Barred Plymouth Rock owes much of its history to the dominique. (2) The White Plymouth Rock originated as a "sport" from the barred variety. It is quite possible, however, that other strains of White Plymouth Rocks were developed from crosses of White Dorkings and White Cochins, and it is also possible that White Dorkings were crossed with barred Plymouth Rocks, and then the white color factor extracted from subsequent generations. The plumage color is pure white throughout and should be free from black ticking, brassiness and creaminess. (3) The Buff Plymouth Rock, the plumage color is golden buff in all parts of the surface color, and all sections should be the same shade. The presence of feathers having a shaft of different color from the rest of the feathers and the presence of feathers sprinkled with lighter color are of common occurrence but are undesirable. The undercolor is of little lighter shade than the surface color.

(4) Silver Penciled Plymouth Rock owes its feather markings to the Dark Brahma. The plumage of the male consists of a silvery white surface color, extending over the wing bows and back, and the hackle and saddle are silvery white, striped with black the main tail feathers and sickles are black. The primaries are black, except for a narrow edging of white on the lower edges of the lower webs, and the secondaries are black with some white. In the female, the surface color is gray, with a penciling of dark gray on each feather, neck is silvery white, with a black center. The main tail feathers are black, with the two top feathers showing some penciling.

(5) Partridge Plymouth Rock developed from Partridge Cochin and Brown Leghorns. In color, pattern is practically the same as the Silver Penciled Plymouth Rock, except that the white Silver Penciled is replaced by red or reddish brown.

(6) Columbian Plymouth Rock was developed from crosses between Light Brahmas and White Plymouth Rocks.

(7) Blue Plymouth Rock was first recognized as a standard variety in 1919. Their color is a slaty blue.

"--my skin became clear...

—and you don't know what a happy day that was in my life." Then why not pause a moment and reason in a common-sense way the cause of many skin troubles. Such common ailments often result because of a lowered resistance below the skin surface—frequently due to lowered blood vitality.

Increase the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content and more of the life giving oxygen is carried to every part of the body—even to the skin. "Step up" the ability of the resisting cells to devour infectious pimple germs. Then you will have laid the foundation for a sounder physical condition.

S.S.S., in addition to being a valuable general tonic, has the special property of increasing the red-cells and restoring the hemoglobin content of the blood, when deficient. It is time-tested . . . tens of thousands of unsolicited letters of gratitude over several generations evidence its merit. Don't let anyone "switch" you in your determination to restore your red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content. Two convenient sizes at all drug stores—the larger size is more economical. "SAMARANG" DRAMA OF AGE OLD STRUGGLE

A story of age-old struggle is told in "Samarang" the B. F. Ziedman-United Artists picture at the Wadesonian Theatre Friday night and Saturday midnight, September 8 and 9. There is the struggle of the lowly pearl-diver to win the chieftain's daughter, which is against all tribal tradition, and the struggle to live that goes on incessantly below the water.

Ahmang, the handsomest pearl diver in Samarang, and famed throughout all Malaysia, is as much at home under the water as on the land, and in both elements he has to wrestle to the utmost of his strength to exist. He kills sharks and has encounters with pythons, tigers, tapirs and cannibals.

"Samarang" was made down near the equator, where clothes are not a burden. No Hollywood star was ever perimtted the chance to show the feminine charms that Sai-yu, the beautiful heroine, displays without thought of embarrassment. Ahmang is an Adonis to make Johnny Weissmuller look to his laurels.

Sai-yu is a chief's daughter and, even though she loves Ahmang, who loves her, they may not marry unless Ahmang can produce riches — such as a great pearl. This opportunity comes to Ahmang when Chang Fu, a pearl trader, seeks the diver to join an expidition to a dangerous lagoon that is guarded by cannibals. He promises Ahmang the prize pearl if he'll go.

This expedition proves to be fraught with thrills on land and sea, but Ahmang, who is accompanied by his loving Sai-yu, triumphs over everything and the climax shows them being united in a strange marriage ceremony.

Ward Wing directed "Samarang" from the story by Lori Bara. It moves swiftly and always intrigues with its novelty and thrills. Outstanding are the underwater fights, beautifully photographed by Stacy Woodard. These start with clams snapping at each other and work up to a fight to the death between Ahmang and a man-eating shark, and another between a giant octupus and a tiger shark.

"Samarang" has all the elements that make great entertainments — love, strife, perils, together with strange customs, scenery in nature's most lavish mood and a human touch that simply cannot be gotten in any staged production.

THE N. R. A. IN ACTION

Within the past few weeks the N. R. A. program has sped along with terrific force, over-riding everyone and every obstacle that has confronted it.

The results so far have been three up and three down. Three important codes have been dictated to industry—steel, coal and oil—accompanied by threats of licensing unless the government's new dictates were obeyed. In the turmoil the N. R. A. lost three of the many members if the "Brain Trust," Prof. William F. Ogburn being the most important of those resigning over the breaks in the ranks of the theologists. Ogburn claims the N. R. A. is forging ahead too fast for the consumer's pocketbooks, and that a careful check on price rises in the interest of the consumer is all important to the success of the "New Deal." But these rifts have not caused the N. R. A. to hesitate in its drive.

An addition to the administration's constructive and destructive program is a "New Deal" for hogs, of which hundreds of thousands will be slaughtered to make way for higher pork prices. But will the purpose be accomplished? We may later, if crops and produce fail next year, be drinking cabbage tea, and cannibalized into eating one another sandwiched between slices of black bread to get around high wheat prices, as it is reported the people of Soviet Russia are doing at this time as a result of their "New Deal." But we hope we will all still be here for the next election, anyway.

Hitler is going to abolish machines and make the Germans go back to hand labor. Wonder if this includes machine guns.

The way some of these big industries are shying at the N. R. A. would lead one to believe that they want to sing the Blue Eagle Blues.

An Oregon man has succeeded in developing a plum tree which grows nuts. We have heard of a lot of fellows who became nuts trying to shake the official plum tree in Washington.

One of our friends who is dissatisfied with 3.2 per cent says they ought to take some of the octanes out of the gasoline and put it in the beer.

It is said that not nearly so many workers are taking vacations this year as formerly, but it may be because so many of them have been on a steady vacation for the past year or so.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

No matter how great or how small is the final success of the government's drive for national recovery as exemplified by the NRA, it must be admitted that the people of the country, in general, have entered into the plan with a whole-heartedness that is reminiscent of the days of the World War when we were asked to grow more wheat, eat less wheat, and buy more Liberty bonds. The government enjoys a unanimity of support which has seldom been seen in the United States in time of peace. Newspapers and leaders of both political parties have supported the president and his administration, and have refrained from open criticism, preferring to give the plan a chance to work itself out in the hope that prosperity, or at least something approaching it, might be returned to the nation.

We in the United States have looked upon it as a drive to end the depression and we have entered into agreements which we hope and believe are in the most part temporary, as are sacrifices made in time of war, to be used solely for defeating the enemy, which is in this case the depression. We have not felt that we have undergone any fundametal change in our form of government and we are hopeful that the "good old days" of individual initiative will return again when the cloud of depression has passed away.

What outspoken criticism there has been of the relief scheme has come principally from Europe, where strange enough, Uncle Sam having once been regarded as the mainstay of individualism and capitalism, is now believed to be embarking on a course which may lead him directly into socialism. The criticism, of course, comes principally from the conservative press. For example, one right wing French paper, of international reputation, Les Debatz, declares that "the astounding Rooseveltian adventure reveals that the entire country is launched upon the most feverish socialism without anyone in the United States wishing to admit that that is what it is." This statement will serve to explain the somewhat feverish interest with which European politicians are watching our experiment. For if it should turn out that they were right in their assumptions, then indeed one of the last bulwarks of individualism would be swept away, and the very one on which the individualists have always depended to stem the socialist-communist tide in the final hour of peril.

While the majority of Americans will not agree with the statement of the French newspaper quoted above, yet it is well at times to pause for a moment and read what our neighbors think of us. In the meantime it is well worth repeating that no president, in times of peace, has ever had so nearly uninimous support in working out administrative plans. Mr. Roosevelt could hardly ask for more along this line. The situation is a very pleasant and striking one when we compare it with the support or lack of support accorded the preceding administration. Then, it will be set down in history, criticism and sniping commenced almost with the day that administration went into power. The present administration must be greatly gratified that it has been accorded, since its inauguration, the almost complete bipartisan support that was denied its predecessor.

A HALF AND HALF SYSTEM

The July number of the National Republic magazine, published in Washington, D. C., contains a very timely article of caution to the American public of the government drift to socialism. In part, the article follows:

"A recent article by Upton Sinclair entitled 'An Open Letter to the American People,' which appeared in a leading American journal, brings up a question that is today foremost in the mind of every American, but is built upon ground which few are brave enough to tread.

"Sinclair, one of America's oldest ranking socialist leaders, a graduate of Columbia University, with which institution many of today's political advisers are or have been affiliated—active in many of the past and present day radical movements in the United States—relates to the public many of the aims and successes of the radical movement in penetrating American institutions, which penetration has caused our entire economic structure to rock.

"In the main he points out that America has reached 'half capitalist and half socialist' in its government, and that of course no nation can exist on this 'half and half' basis. This revelation from the socialist ranks is not new to some, but to millions it is. Many outside the socialist ranks have sensed dangers from the socialistic step-by-step program that has been developing in the United States for years. Of course it has been well camouflaged under many guises so that it could be imposed gradually but steadily on an unsuspecting public. Now it is being rammed down the throats of the people as never before.

"Sinclair's and the socialists' remedies for the predicament, are the abandonment of the half that it left of our constitutional form of government, frequently referred to as 'capitalism,' and the complete socialization or taking over of all industry, lands, wages and means of production and placing them under complete direct government control. They would, if they could, supplant our entire constitutional form of government by a complete socialist system, and they hold forth great hopes that the present administration may be forced to travel the complete route.

"Many who have seldom agreed with a socialist can agree with Sinclair that no nation can succeed 'half capitalist and half socialist.' For years it has been the opinion of many, who still cling to the belief, that the gradual drift to socialism away from capitalism would sooner or later rock our constitutional structure. It has been their hope that before we arrived at this climax our government would awaken and regain its stride, turn back from the disastrous socialistic drift and return to 'capitalism,' which name has been given to our 'constitutional form of government' by socialists and communists.

"We are now, however, at the cross roads, as this 'half capitalism and half socialism' has failed. Every attempt to establish socialism, several isolated attempts having been made in the United States, has only failed miserably. 'Capitalism' or constitutional government succeeded here for decades; it can succeed again but only if cleaned of all socialistic tampering. We are actually at the crossroads now between complete socialism or a return to 'capitalism.' Until it has been determined by the people which road we are to take, the deadlock will be maintained. Industries, property owners, farmers and wage earners are hopelessly at sea because they do not know which course will be taken by the administrators of our national and state affairs, much of whose legislation shows socialistic tendencies. As a result business conditions are unsettled and the people are keeping a firm hold on their meager savings and small investments that yet remain their own, in anticipation of the 'rainy day.' Confidence they try to regain, but the question of doubt remains deep in their minds.

"Until America turns the corner there can be no change in the minds of the people. If America turns to complete socialism, there will naturally be a rush of capital and business to other nations and further into hiding. If there is a sharp turn again towards the old 'capitalism' or constitutional form of government in which most Americans continue to maintain their deep confidence, prosperity will quickly return because of that confidence.

"Lincoln said, 'A nation cannot exist half slave and half free;' yet today a large proportion of the workers of the United States are enslaved and depressed through lack of employment, and this adversely affects all of our people. This unemployment is due largely to the adoption of a system of half socialism. Things never were and never could be so bad under complete 'capitalism.' Half socialistic control of industry, finances and agriculture has disorganized our system; doles and government tampering with business have raised taxes; constitution tampering has created a lack of confidence; 'half socialism and half capitalism' has failed. The two systems are contrary and cannot work together."

AMERICA'S NEW TACTICS

A wholesale change is reported to have come over the new administration recently regarding its future tactics in dealing with the international problems, as is evidenced by the exchange of views between the White House and Norman Davis, ambassador-at-large of the State Department.

Heretofore, America has undertaken to lead the way for Europe, leaving Uncle Sam out on a limb when Europe failed to follow him. He did this very thing in the London conference and he got the short end of the deal. The only exception was at the Geneva conference, when President Coolidge refused to lead unless he had assurances of followers and that broke up the conference with Uncle Sam not losing his pants for once.

The new tactics to be used by Davis on his departure for Europe next month it is understood, but few believe that it is worth the trip, will be the extending of a helping hand to any movement designed toward disarmament, but Uncle Sam will not take the initiative. If there are no movements in this direction. Uncle Sam will still come back with all his clothes on.

This new departure in international affairs therefore is pleasing. For we will from now on go only so far as the other fellow has agreed in advance to go through his own plan.

The birth rate in the United States is said to be falling behind. Maybe we had better supplement the blue eagle with a blue stork.

It is said that a sore toe started Joan Blondell on the way to stardom. Well, a lot of people get out of the limelight by cultivating sore heads.

We wish we had an income that was as steady as the losing streak of the Cincinnati Reds.

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

The Wonderful West

Many and varied have been the stories told of the great, glorious and golden west. Every once in a while a new one crops out. And here's two of the best I've heard lately. The first is of a land agent trying to impress a crowd of prospective acreage buyers of the possibilities. "Friends," he exclaimed, "just think. This land can be made to grow anything from beans to bananas. It looks bare and uninviting, but a little irrigation makes it the richest farming land in the world. What is needed is somebody to come here, bore wells, pump water, irrigate the land, and fortunes will follow naturally. In short, all that is needed is just water and good people." He halted a minute, and then some guy over in the crowd smirked up with these words: "Mister, that's all hell needs to become a paradise—some water and good people." The other runs like this: A man decided to build a substantial wire fence, and was looking about for post material. A neighbor had a batch of posts of some kind to sell, but the prospective buyer wanted to know the lasting qualities of that particular kind of wood. "Well," said the man with the posts, "I built a fence several years ago and used posts like these; so far they have worn out only two sets of holes; but remember, I ain't askin' much fer these posts, no how." Yep, the West is a wonderful producer of all things, including liars.

Back to Bicycles

And now comes word that people are going back to bicycles as a mode of travel. Many people who a few years ago went to work, and everywhere else they went, in cars. Then they got to where they didn't go so much. They couldn't go in cars, and they were too proud to walk. But now they have struck a happy medium. Some of them make a fashionable show of it, some claim they do it for the exercise, some do it for one reason or another, and then there are a few good old honest souls who come right out in meeting with an honest admission that the reason they ride bicycles is because they are too lazy to walk, too fidgtey to stay in one place, and can't afford to ride in automobiles. So they take to bicycles. Of course, riding a bicycle is only a scheme by which one may sit down and walk instead of standing up and walking, but it is a little faster, and you know this is a fast age we're in.

Poor Old Huey

Yes, sir, that's what they're calling him nowadays—Poor old Huey. They refer to Huey Long, the Kingfish from Louisiana. No sooner does Huey get in bad with the powers that be up around Washington, than somebody gets him in a jam and proceeds to give him a good hefty clout on the chin. A personal chin, too, if you please. No political scrap to that, as evidenced by the black eye and puffed face Mr. Long is now wearing. And Huey knows just how bad it really is to be in bad with the authorities, too, for, so far, no one has tried to find out just who hit Mr. Long, except newspaper reporters. They would like to find out, but they can't, the regular officials care nothing about it, and Huey, himself, wants the whole affair quashed. He says he has had enough of that guy, whoever he may be. He's bad medicine, and the less he sees of the fellow the better he'll like him. Poor old Huey!

Abiding by the Code

There is much talk these days about business men and people in all walks of life, and their inability or refusal to abide by the several codes being laid down by our government. From all over the country have come complaints of merchants who have put up the blue eagle, but are not abiding by the spirit which the eagle is supposed to show. However, there is one Clanton merchant who can never be accused of this. He is R. W. (Rube) Lowe, of South Clanton. One day last week I was passing his place, and stopped. He was busy as a bee, out cleaning up his stock of guns, etc. Rube is a great hunter, and always gets his share of the game each hunting season. But I am getting off track. Now back to the blue eagle and the code. Rube says the code allows only eight hours for work in a day. Now Rube has a set of false teeth, and he says they fit pretty well, and he likes them. But he also wants to be law-abiding, or rather, code-abiding, and rather than run a chance of violating the code in truth or in spirit, he gets up early in the morning and puts in his teeth. He wears them for eight hours, and then lays them on the shelf until the next morning. That's abiding by the code, if you ask me.

Hi-Up! Two Bits!

A few days ago Will Rogers came out and said that he was for having a special day in each state, to be known as "Our Congressman Day." He said he often met congressmen, in one place and another, but, strange to say, he never met them in their home territory. He thought maybe the congressmen might have the idea they hadn't done just everything the home folks at home had expected of them when they sent them up, and were a bit timid about facing the folks back home. To ease their feelings, he proposed that each state have an "Our Congressman Day," and welcome the boys back home again. That was a great idea. But a day or two later, Mr. Rogers came back and said that wouldn't do, at all. He had received many letters from people all over the country, stating that was what they had elected them to congress for—to get rid of them. So the congressmen were right, after all. Oh, they know their people, these politicians do. I have heard of only one place where they don't feel this way about the old boys they sent to Washington—and that is in the State of Oregon. Up there, when Congressman Martin returned home, they staged a charity affair, flung a tent over Mr. Martin, and proceeded to charge admission to see the gentleman. However, some wag in the crowd had to go and ruin the whole show by mentioning the fact that maybe they were making the correct charge to see Mr. Martin, because he had had a hunch for quite a while that he was a "two-bit" congressman, and now he was sure of it, for that was what they were charging to see him—twenty-five cents—two bits. And, at that, they would let the folks have a look at a Rocky Mountain goat, and one of the biggest snakes alive and in captivity, as an added attraction. Imagine a U. S. Congressman sharing the honors of a sideshow with a goat and a snake. No insinuations, but it does look funny.—Man in the Moon.

MORE "HARMONIZING"

Having been unable to accomplish anything along the line of economic harmony at London for the whole world, certain European nations are said to have adopted a more modest program and are now seeking to restore economic harmony among the nations along the Danube. This section of Central Europe is in a pitiable plight and has been since the world war. Most of it was formerly a part of the Austria which, although a political polyglot nation, was at least an economic unit with its manfacturing, mining and agricultural interests. But the old Austria-Hungary was cut up at the peace conference, to fulfill promises made to certain racial groups during the war and to safeguard the interests of France and Italy in Central Europe. Little nations sprang into existence and along with them came custom barriers and new hatreds and jealousies. As a result, Central Europe for years has been in a state of confusion.

Just how economic harmony is to be established there is somewhat of a mystery. It is hard to get harmony among the small nations when the larger ones refuse to harmonize. France, Italy and Germany have different policies as regards Central Europe. Germany wants to annex Austria, a move opposed by France and Italy. France wants to win Austria into the little entente, and this is opposed by Italy and Germany. Italy wants a strong combination of Austria and Hungary, and this is frowned on by France and Germany.

All of which makes the talk about economic harmony a little out of place, since it would be a little difficult to have economic harmony without political friendship.

One can imagine the state of mind of the citizens of some of these small and helpless states. The official Arbiter Zeitung, of Austria, declares: "We must not allow ourselves to be lured into any combination in which we may some day have to shed the blood of our sons for foreign interests."

If this is good advice for Austria, which is vitally interested in these Central European problems, how much more is it good advice for Uncle Sam who is thousands of miles away, but who has been asked to enter into various combinations which might put him in the position of being called on at some future date to shed the blood of his sons in battles in which he had no direct interest?

WHAT WILL JOHN BULL DO?

For the past few years Great Britain has been inclined to take less and less interest in the affairs of the continent of Europe. This has been partly due to the fact that an increasingly large section of British opinion is inclined to adopt the theory of no entangling alliances, and in part to the fact that the European diplomats have so far been unable to entangle the United States in any continental commitments. Were Uncle Sam to take the icy plunge into the whirlpool of continental European politics, no doubt John Bull would go along with him, but since the latter cannot depend on the support of American money and American lives to maintain any chosen policy in Europe he has been a little chary about getting his feet wet again.

But another fervent plea is now being made to Great Britain by France for a revival of the old entente, and to promote political, and if necessary, military cooperation in Europe. The immediate reason for France's frantic plea is the fear that Mussolini is putting something over on her, and may become the dominant figure in Central Europe. The plea grows out of the closer cooperation between Italy and the little republic of Austria. For some time Mussolini has been making overtures to Austria in the hope of once more uniting that country with Hungary and so forming a real facist bloc in Central Europe. Germany would sooner or later be expected to get into such a combination and then France would be cut off from contact with her little allies in Central and Eastern Europe. It is the fear of such a condition which is now leading France to make frantic overtures to get the backing of Great Britain to block such a move.

Whether she will be successful remains to be seen. There can be little doubt that France will offer all sorts of inducements, and John Bull is nothing if not a good business man. But, on the other hand, there is the growing opinion in England that John Bull should keep out of entangling commitments on the continent and devote his time to building a more compact British Empire. The government must face this feeling in making any hard and fast military agreements with France.

A great Many Britishers believe that the future of their country depends on closer relations between the mother nation and the colonies and they want the principal efforts of the government developed along this line.

Such a theory is not incompatible with the majority opinion in the United States which is to the effect that Uncle Sam should avoid European and Asiatic adventures and devote his time and money to looking after the welfare of his own people and developing closer relations with the nations of Latin-America.

A lot of people in Cincinnati are protesting because the city administration turned off the water that flowed from the fingers of the figure at the top of the statue in Fountain Square. Maybe if they are just a little patient the foundation will begin to flow beer.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—and Some He Saw Not

Called the Eagle a Buzzard

Evan Parrish relates an interesting if not a very pleasant experience with a man at his store. The man, whose name is withheld, came into the store and asked, "Have you got one of those buzzards?" The clerk informed him politely that the store has the Blue Eagle. As he departed the man said: "I am looking for a store that hasn't got the 'Buzzard' because I can buy things cheaper there." The store clerk informed him there are no stores in Clanton that do not have the Blue Eagle.

Alverson In Anniston

A news item from Anniston about schools refers to City Superintendent, S. E. Alverson. Not so many years ago Mr. Alverson was principal of Chilton County High School. He was a good man, and an able school director. It is no surprise that he is now in the "upper crust" of the school business. He deserves the success and distinction he has attained, I am sure.

Ditching Continues Slow

Reports say that the ditching work in the swamp near Clanton continues under slow headway. For several days the tree-pulling machine has been out of commission, which has held back the work. The ditch now extends from Dake's old Mill up to the swamp to Dr. Parrish's property, which is within a few hundred yards of where the city sewer enters the creek. It is hoped the job will hold out until it gets there.

Have You Any Mosquitoes?

Have yau any mosquitoes in your home this summer? Many folks are complaining of plenty of them and some to spare. Personally I have been pestered more by the things this summer than ever before. Some malaria has been reported in town. I wonder if they come from our swamps or from breeding places within the city.

Back From Arkansas

Mr. Hugh Foshee is back at home in Clanton after a visit to Eldorado, Arkansas. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Foshee and Edwin Mullins. Eldorado is the native home of Mrs. Foshee, where she was married to her husband 59 years ago. Mr. Foshee has property interests in the oil fields out there. It was a very delightful trip, especially driving through Louisiana.

Sunday Picture Show

Mr. Wade wants to run his picture show in Clanton on Sunday afternoons and nights. When the question comes up before the public, I predict it will cause a rucus. Some will say yes. Others will say no. Folks will continue to do something with their idle hours on Sunday. They may go away to a ball game or picture show. They may go to the lake or river for a stroll over the hills and beside the waters. Some might go fishing. Some may stay at home and sleep. Some may get out in their cars and ride to no telling where. Take your choice of what you want to do, and let your conscience be your guide. That's my plan.

Begins Twelfth Year

Last Sunday Rev. Sam Ezell began the twelfth year of his work as pastor of Clanton Baptist church. His address on Sunday morning was a very interesting resume of the eleven years he has served with the people of Clanton and surrounding territory. His pastorate has been peaceful, which is one mark of difference as compared with some of the stormy periods before he came. I can remember in years past the air was continually charged with rackets about our preachers. It has been fine that we have had no such troubles for such a long time. It means much when a preacher not only preaches the right kind of preaching, but also lives the right kind of living.

MANY NEW TAXES FACE NATION

With the close of June and the end of the fiscal year, corporations of the nation began a new year that brings them many new taxes.

Some of the changes carried in the industrial recovery law affect individuals, too.

The individual is denied the privilege formerly granted of carrying over and deducting from his income for the taxable year a net loss he had in the preceding year.

He also is denied the right to carry over losses from sale or exchange of stocks and bonds, which are not capital assets, to apply these losses toward reducing his tax on gains from similar transactions in the next taxable year.

Another change requires that no part of any loss disallowed to a partnership as a deduction under the section which permitted partners to reduce their individual net incomes by their distributive share of net loss incurred by the partnership shall be allowed to a partner in computing net income. The section prohibits a partnership from deducting a net loss that is attributable to a loss from the sale or exchange of stocks or bonds which are not capital assets and to this extent would be denied the individual.

Much of the new corporation levy is new or a revival of similar laws of years ago.

The act levies a tax of $1 for each $1,000 of adjusted declared value of the corporation's stock.

It imposes upon dividends to be paid to any person other than a domestic corporation an excise tax of five per cent to be deducted at the source and withheld from such dividends by the payor corporation.

It imposes upon the net income of every corporation an excess profits tax equivalent to five per cent of such part of its net income for each income tax year ending after June 30, 1933, as is in excess of 12½ per cent of the adjusted declared value of its capital stock.

It imposes an additional tax of one-fourth of one per cent on corporations which file consolidated net tax returns for 1934 and 1935, making the rate 14 and three-fourths per cent.

It imposes a tax on accumulation of earnings held to avoid payment of excise tax on dividends.

It removes the exemption formerly allowed private bankers for stock losses by requiring that losses from the sale of stock and bonds which are not capital assets be applied only against gains from similar transactions and cannot be used to reduce income from other sources.

The law gives the president the right to set aside any of the new taxes at the end of any year in which the government balances its budget or when the eighteenth amendment is repealed.

We are in favor of putting the chiselers on less than a thirty-five hour week.

THORSBY SECTION

What may be called a "community song service" was held last Sunday evening at the Congregational church. Last week three young women came to the library from 15 to 20 miles away to ask if they could join the library. They seemed both surprised and pleased to find that all that was necessary to entitle them to draw a book was to give their names and addresses. The oldest of the three said she was starving for some good reading and hadn't known where she could get good books. Perhaps there are others who do not know that the Institute library is glad to serve the general public as well as the school.

Ford V8 Makes 22 Miles to Gallon Gas

Record Made In Contest By American Automobile Association

An official certificate attesting to the highly economical preformance record made by a Ford V-8 during a 5,022-mile economy run in Washington, D. C., and on the famous Mt. Vernon Memorial highway has just been issued by the contest board of the American Automobile Association. The certificate is signed by E. V. Rickenbacker, famous war-time ace and chairman of the contest board.

Briefly, the Ford's record, as certified by the board was: Fuel consumed: 222.89 gallons, or at the rate of 22.532 miles per gallon. Oil consumed: 1.578 gallons, or at the rate of 3,182.57 miles per gallon.

The test was in charge of Chester S. Ricker for the contest board, with P. W. Lewis, technical representative assisting. Ricker, Lewis and T. E. Allen, secretary of the board, also signed the certificate.

The economy run was entirely in charge of the contest board personnel and was made with a strictly stock Ford car. Sent on its way by United States Senator R. R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, the crew operated the car day and night for more than seven days, both on Washington streets and the superb motor highway which connects the capital with Mount Vernon, the colonial home of George Washington on the bank of the Potomac river.

During the entire run the Ford functioned perfectly. No mechanical adjustments were required. The crankcase was filled with new oil after every 1,000 miles, but no additional oil was required. After the initial filling at the start of the run no additional water was required in the radiator. The board's certificate shows that the run was made at an average speed of 27.468 miles per hour. The speed was less in city streets and greater along the Mt. Vernon highway.

The capital test only served to confirm the results in similar dealer runs during the last few weeks in many parts of the United States. In these tests, sometimes in the face of heavy traffic conditons, Ford V-8 cars registered an average fuel economy ranging from more than 18.5 miles per gallon to 20.25 miles per gallon. In all cases the only oil required was the regular change each 1,000 miles.

Fuel economy demonstrations established in these different runs vary slightly because of the difference in the terrain covered and the speeds at which the runs were made. Some of these results were:

Buffalo, N. Y., 10,000 miles, 18.51 miles per gallon. Philadelphia, Pa., 9,680, 19.20 miles per gallon. Des Moines, Iowa, 10,000 miles, 19.66 miles per gallon. Bartlesville, Okla., 10,054 miles, 18.8 miles per gallon. Omaha, Nebraska, 10,148 miles, 20.25 miles per gallon.

Other such demonstrations are now in progress in Dallas, Texas, and Seattle, Washington. The Ford in the Dallas run already has completed 30,000 miles, covering a route touching 55 dealer points in surrounding cities. A total of 1,008 miles is covered every 24 hours. In order to maintain this schedule the test car is required to average 60 to 65 miles per hour during part of each day, yet despite this no additional oil is required except the regular filling each 1,000 miles.

RETAIL CODE TO PROVIDE ABOUT 900,008 NEW JOBS

Washington. — Because it affects daily purchases in every American home and the salaries and hours of work of 5,000,000 persons now employed in stores all over the country, besides affording new jobs for at least 900,000 people, interest now centers in the code of the retail trades on which hearings are in progress.

Experts studying the code, which includes all retailers except the food and drug groups, determining whether its provisions affect as many workers as possible, based on hours and rates of pay. Their national estimate for retail reemployment, under the provisions of the code, is 900,000. Decision as to inclusion of drug stores in the general retail code will probably be reached at an early date. The chief difficulty in coordinating the retail drug trade with other classes of retail stores involves differences in hours. Other obstacles relate to various price fixing proposals supported by many engaged in identical lines and guarantees not to sell below cost, vigorously opposed by a considerable minority. Some merchants claim that the 10 per cent profit over cost price would still permit ruinous price wars.

"Dat's de second time you gave me the wrong size underwear. Another slip like dat and it'll cost you your job."

SINGING AT CHESTNUT CREEK

A large crowd attend the singing at Chestnut Creek last Sunday.

The local singing society met at its regular time the first Sunday, and was well attended by a large number of singers as well as listeners. The singing spirit predominated and as a result many stirring songs were rendered.

We were glad to welcome a large number of visiting singers whose help we were appreciative of. Visitors from Clanton, Corinth, Pleasant Valley, Bethsalem and Shady Grove were present.

Owing to the fact that there will be an all day singing on our next meeting day, the third Sunday in this month at Maple Springs church, it was decided not to meet. All singers are urged to attend that singing.

Our next meeting Sunday will be on the first Sunday in October. Again we take this means of extending a cordial invitation to all singers to meet with us at any time they wish.—W. W. Allen, secretary.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT BY THE MASONIC LODGE

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Clanton Lodge, No. 423:

We, the undersigned committee, heretofore appointed to draft and present suitable resolutions on the death of Brother Francis Asberry Gibson, beg leave to submit the following:

Brother Gibson was born near Troy, Alabama, December 1st, 1855. He was married to Mary Henley in 1883 to which union was born one son, who, together with the mother survive him. Brother Gibson also leaves one sister in Tampa, Fla., and one brother in California, to mourn his going.

Brother Gibson was a minister in the Methodist protestant church to which he gave faithful service for more than 45 years, and we doubt not that he has many stars in the crown awaiting him in that celestial city, in that house not made with hands eternal in the heavens.

Brother Gibson affiliated with the Clanton Lodge No. 423, January 4, 1909 from Harrison Lodge No. 426. He was made a Mark Master, Past Master, Most Excellent Master and exalted to the August degree of Royal Arch Mason in Clanton Chapter No. 116 in the year 1906. He received the Red Cross, Malta and Knighted in Clanton Commandery No. 27 Knights Templar on July 12th, 1927, and to all his masonic bodies he was faithful to the end.

On June 29, 1933 at the home of his son, Joe, he heard the summons of his Lord to "Come up higher" and he quietly and peacefully fell asleep, and in the cemetery at Pleasant Grove church, near his old home in Chilton County, his body was laid to rest with full Masonic honors. A good man and mason has gone to his reward.

Therefore be it resolved—

First, this lodge has lost a faithful and devoted member, one whom we all loved and admired, and whose example we should strive to emulate.

Second, that we deeply sympathize with the bereaved family and can only point to that supreme architect of the universe, who doeth all things well.

Third that this preamble and resolutions be spread upon the minute book of this lodge and a special page be dedicated to that purpose, and a copy be sent to the family of our deceased brother, and a copy furnished the county papers for publication.—Respectfully submitted, J. R. Mullins, B. J. Sessions, W. H. Sartor, Committee.

Well, Well, I Thought It Was Hard Times

The reason I thought so was because I could not collect. Everybody passed me up so easy it made my head swim. But I have been getting letters from the fellows that I owed and they told me times was better everywhere and that I had the wrong idea and to just get my mind changed and collect my accounts because I had to "come across" with what I owed.—So now please come one and all—you will find me at Lorenza Popwell's old and reliable stand near the courthouse. Please come "right away" because the other fellow says he MUST have his.

Lesson for September 10

JONATHAN

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-7, 20:30-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity. Proverbs 17:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—New Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David's True Friend.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing Worthy Friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Be a Friend.

I. Friendship Established Between Jonathan and David (I Sam. 18:1-4).

The friendship of Jonathan and David has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince and heir to the throne, according to hereditary rights David was to be king according to divine choice and arrangement. Jonathan knew this and yet magnanimously waived his natural, personal rights in favor of God's chosen.

1. Love at first sight (vv. 1, 2). At the end of the interview between David and Saul, following the victory over Goliath, Jonathan's soul was knit with that of David. While there was mutual love, this trait stands out preeminently in Jonathan. To him it meant great loss, the loss of the throne, while to David it meant immense gain, the acquisition of the throne, to which he had no natural right.

2. A covenant established (vv. 3, 4). This mutual love found expression in the establishment of a covenant between them. Following this love covenant, Jonathan stripped himself of his court robe and equipment and gave them to David. This act was a virtual abdication of the throne to David. Truly, "Love seeketh not her own." (I Cor. 13:5).

II. Jonathan Defended David Against Saul's Frenzy (I Sam. 19:1-7).

David went into the battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion, not for personal glory; but it turned out as always, that because he put God first, God honored him. It is always true that those who honor God shall in turn be honored of God.

On David's return from victory over Goliath, he was met by a triumphal chorus of women of all the cities of Israel, chanting praises to him of the victory over their enemy. They ascribed more praise to David than to Saul. The one group sang "Saul has slain his thousands," and the other answered, "And David his ten thousands." This praise of David aroused the murderous envy in Saul's heart and moved him twice to attempt to kill David.

This wickedness was in Saul's heart. The occasion fanned it into a flame making it a burning passion of evil. Let no one think of this as an imaginary sin. Its counterpart may be found in many of us. The supreme test is as to whether the success of others and the honor bestowed upon others arouses within us envy and jealousy. It is hard to forgive those who outdistance us in the race of life.

In Saul's third attempt to kill David, Jonathan defended him and secured from his father the oath that David should not be slain. He thus exposed himself to the anger of his infuriated father for David's sake. This willingness to lay down his life for David proved his real friendship (John 15:13).

III. Jonathan Revealed to David Saul's Murderous Attempt (I Sam. 20:30-40.)

The beginning of the new moon was celebrated by sacrifices and feasting, at which all the members of the family were expected to be present (v. 5). David's excuse for being absent was that he might go home to attend the yearly sacrifice of his family. Matters were now so serious that Jonathan and David renewed their covenant. In this renewal the terms were broadened beyond the life of Jonathan (vv. 14, 15).

Saul's anger was now so fierce that for Jonathan to be found in David's company was most dangerous, so he cleverly planned this sign by which he could make known to David Saul's attitude and purpose. True friendship warns those who are exposed to danger. This pledge was faithfully carried out by David (II Sam. 9:7, 8).

Testing Christianity

To examine its evidences is not to try Christianity; to admire its martyrs is not to try Christianity; to compare and estimate its teachers is not to try Christianity; but for one week, for one day, to have lived in the pure atmosphere of faith and love to God, and tenderness to man, that, indeed is to have made experiment of Christianity.—William Archer Butler.

Beautiful Sentence

One of the most beautiful sentences in the Bible is this brief sentence from the thirty-second chapter of Genesis: "He blessed him there." No life can be at its fullest, strongest and best until one can say, referring to some time and place: "He blessed me there."

Like a Diamond

"The nature of a human being is like a finely-cut diamond; it reflects a multitude of color-flashes as the light of other personalities is played upon it.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By DAN SMITH

Another summer gone. Another period of lounging, dreaming and doing nothing ended. Familiar faces seen on the streets. Boys and girls hurrying here and there. Upchurch's is crowded with youths, all around one counter. The stock of writing paper, pens, pencils, ink, etc., rapidly decrease at Elmore's, Alred's and all other stores. And a certain auto is seen going through town at regular intervals. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, school has opened. On last Monday at 8 o'clock a.m., the doors of C. C. H. S. opened to hundreds of ambitious boys and girls, their gay minds still filled with the thrilling spirit of a summer vacation yet slowly and surely coming back down to earth. And there are our dear teachers ready for another nine (?) months of grueling, yet patient coaching and teaching, which has already sent many off on the path of life. Without them, where would we be? Let's remember that this year.

I see some new faces among our faculty this time. I hope they will like us as well as we are going to like them. Misses Clyde Smilie and Frances Gulledge are the two new feminine members and Mr. Searcy is the new masculine addition. We hope they can fill the shoes of our absent ones—Miss Berniece Williams and Mr. Luther E. Little—not only in an academic way, but also possess that quality of friendliness, cooperation and loyalty that Miss Williams and Mr. Little were well known for. We will not forget them, their memories will linger on at C. C. H. S. I am sure that our new teachers will achieve the same respect and honor that the student body had for Miss Williams and Mr. Little, if not more.

Who is that walking down the driveway? Don't you recognize that beaming smile and that friendly air of personality. That's Mr. Warr, our beloved principal, back again. This is the beginning of his sixth year as the head man here. That really speaks good of him. Don't you worry, he merited it. Gee, but it looks familiar to see Mr. Varnell turn the corner at the office and head for the laboratory with that thoughful look on his face. And there is Miss Colley and that ever welcoming smile of hers, Miss Martin (still Miss) with her notebook in her hand, but a smile on her face and ready to help you in any way, and Miss Griffin, the boys' friend (she teaches girls to cook, and does she know her stuff?) standing at their leased places by the radiator. There she is just as she was last year, Miss Kendrick, seated at her desk in the home room of the juniors, working, always glad to see you. And driving up in a new Chevrolet is none other than Lieut. Horton Walker, our able coach and manual arts instructor. He still has that magnetic personality. All of our eyes are upon him in regard to our football team this year. We were proud of our team last year and especially near the close of the season. Here's hoping he does the first of this season the same as he did at the last of the past year. Come on, let us not wait until the last of the games to show our school spirit, but now. We're with you, coach.

We are really glad to see our last year's teachers back again and we welcome our new teachers with an open hand. Don't forget opinions are often formed at the first meeting.

Let's look around and see what the summer has done with our students. Helen Moore still retains her dignity and her happy expression. I wonder if Ova Lee misses Hilda. Maybe he will take Hilda's place. The place looks empty without Tina, who will step into her footsteps, Bill? There goes Mary Courtney. The summer didn't slow her up. She's still in a hurry. I knew it, Joe is still like he was last year. Poor teachers, he still wants to argue. Well, you can't blame him if an A is at stake. And the vacation didn't speed John up. He is still slow but sure, and dependable. Hello, Dixie, same smile, same handshake, but a little more dignified. Did Old Man Vacation ease Helen Roberts's temper? Look for yourself. Why ask me? Good ole Roberta Cochran still there with her ready, helping hand and studious mind.

Where's Gabby?

I see some grand old seniors back with us and they are going to stay as usual. We have several new students, not meaning the "rats". There is Miss Dorothy Waites, seems a very friendly young lady. Make her feel at home here. Speak to all the new students. They are strangers here. Welcome them in.

Time for class elections. Why wait until the middle of the year.

You should think quite a bit before casting your vote. Haste makes waste.

Don't forget to remind your parents that the Parent-Teachers Association will meet at the high school next Tuesday, September 12 at three p.m. Tell them that immediately following the business meeting there will be a social. We should be and I hope that we are proud of our P.-T. A. They have done lots for us.

Remember that it takes money to run a school just as any other business, and the money a school gets comes from your tuition. If you want to be warm this winter, if you want good seats, if you want good equipment, just don't forget your tuition.

Good ole Mack, faithful and loyal to C. C. H. S. He's back with us again. We couldn't do without Mack. He's the ebony member of the faculty.

Quite a number of last year's graduates are still looking around getting one good look at their dear old Alma Mater before they are on their way to college and .....? Among them are: Hilda Hart, Louise Knox, Pearl Vinson and some year-old graduates, too, Sallye Mahan, Eloyse Jones, Mary Nell Jones and others.

It looks like several people have lost their popularity lately. I wonder why and so do they. I wonder if they know that they are better off.

We miss the seniors of last year, but we hope that the class of 33-34, with Miss Frances Gulledge as their capable leader, can live up to, and pass the standards left by the class of 32-33.

We students are patriotic also. Therefore, we will adopt a students' code, so that we, too, can keep in step with Roosevelt's program. Here it is, subject to change, by the faculty, of course: shorter hours, shorter assignments, higher grades and no exams.

We appoint Joe Moore and John Ezell as directors of this code. They are much in the favor for it.

Looks as if we will really have a large attendance this term, over three hundred have already enrolled.

Another one of our graduates made a name for himself, and how? Watch next week for more about it. We sure are proud of him.

I wonder how many schoolday romances lasted throughout the summer. There are ..... Oh well, look for yourself.

PLEASANT VALLEY SINGING

We wish to remind the singers of this and surrounding communities that our singing society meets next Sunday afternoon. We have a good instrument now that is ready for use, and we expect to make use of it. Singers of this community are urged to be present and singers from other communities are cordially invited as we feel your help is indispensible to the success of our society. Of course if you don't sing, we want you to be present to hear us. Remember the date, the second Sunday afternoon.—Howard Boockholdt, secretary.

Do Not Let Ballyhoo Deprive You of The POWER -- SPEED -- SMOOTHNESS of a V-8

Why Let Ballyhoo Deny You The SAFETY -- FREEDOM FROM ROT AND RATTLES That Only A Welded Steel Body Assures

Consider The Trade-In of A Wood Body 6-Cylinder Car When The Last Manufacturer Changes To The Inevitable Steel Body Eight

Of course, it is more expensive to make an all-steel body than to make a wooden frame and nail steel panels on to it. The better way involves an initial expenditure of several millions of dollars for new dies, which renders a change very costly. Cars, especially large expensive cars which are produced in small volume, cannot afford this, because the dies cost as much as for a million. That alone explains why all-steel bodies are not used in all cars.

W. T. Bean Denies Charges Placed Against Him In Election Campaign

A few weeks ago I wrote through the paper and stated that I would later denounce some falsehoods that were circulated against me in my candidacy for county superintendent of education. I realize that this may be a little stale now, but I had a reason in waiting. I am not writing this because I believe the public believes any of the falsehoods, but should I remain silent, someone might believe them.

In this election my opponent and I had an agreement that we would conduct a clean campaign, and I believe that we both conducted ourselves above criticism, but there were a few who stooped to the base falsehoods which they themselves knew were absolute falsehoods and without one cintilla of a starting point.

The first thing that I want to mention is that it was circulated in one section of the county that when I was superintendent of education before, that I served only six years and then resigned before my term was out. This was done to make people think that I would resign if elected. The whole matter is an absolute falsehood. I served my full two terms. I served one four year term and then the county board of education appointed me for a two year term. The board made the term only two years for the following several years. Before my last term was out, I notified the board that I would not be an applicant for reappointment, because I was opposed to any one holding three successive terms under any ordinary circumstances. In the Beat where this was circulated most, I received every vote except one. This shows that the people there had more confidence in me than they did in the one who circulated it.

It was circulated in another part of the county by some filthy mouths that when I was superintendent of education that my books were checked several thousands dollars short. Had the one who started this and those who helped spread it been honest and wanted to be fairminded and respectful citizens, they would have come to the records and found the truth, but I am glad to say that I can and will, if necessary, make an affidavit that no examiner ever found one penny error in my books during the entire time that I served in that office.

It was talked before the primary and also before the general election that I was instrumental in helping defraud the people out of $16,000 in the canning factory deal. A blacker falsehood was never told. The one who started it and those who helped spread it did not believe it, and to show the honest people of Chilton County that they did not believe it, I will give any of them or any one else $50 to show one word or even a half of a word proof that I ever had anything whatsoever to do with helping defraud anyone out of one penny. Don't stand around and say that you can prove it; come on with your proof and get your money. It will be ready for you.

Here is the whole truth in the matter: The Peterman Construction Company of Chicago in 1923 came before the Clanton Chamber of Commerce and wanted to construct a canning factory. The Chamber of Commerce advised them to take it up with a farm organization that was in operation in the county. The canning company was started and I was solicited to buy stock. I refused then, because I had little confidence in the project. I advised several farmers who came to stay out of it, and I will give any man $50 to prove that I ever asked anyone to buy stock, or ever solicited stock in any manner whatsoever. I was not a member of the farmer organization, neither did I have anything whatsoever to do with organizing the canning company. After the company had sold about all the stock it could and then lacked some having the amount raised that the Peterman Construction Company required, I, with a few other merchants, bought stock at $100 per share. I did not buy this stock because I had full confidence in it, but I desired to help the farmers to find something besides cotton that they could make a profit on. After there had been about $13,200 paid in to the Peterman Construction Company, and their representative, a Mr. Clay, had left the country, I was elected president of the canning company to serve without pay, with four other men as a board of directors for the company. I accepted the presidency of the company without ever seeing the plant, and the first time that I saw the plant and went through it, I realized that about 132 men had each paid a hundred dollars into a fake proposition.

I think that the plant could have easily been built for $3,000, but I was not then and am not now responsible for that blunder the people made. The one mistake that I made was to accept the presidency of the company. I bit just like the other 132 men did and got soaked just like they did. When we started to put the plant into operation, there was not one cent in the treasury. We found that land upon which the plant was built had never been paid for, and we could not turn a wheel until it was paid for. The board of directors mortgaged the plant for $5,000 to secure money with which to pay off the land deed, pay the farmers for their tomatoes, pay for the tin cans and pay the hands and other operation expenses. I was not treasurer and never saw one dollar. Mr. O. M. Mastin was treasurer and was fully bonded and his books were found correct when audited. We paid the farmers $18.000 per ton cash for their tomatoes. The plant put up an excellent pack, but the tomatoes would not sell for enough to justify the company even as much as $18 per ton another year, and the farmers said they could not raise them at eighteen dollars. Therefore there was nothing the board of directors could do but let the thing sell under a mortgage. It sold according to law, and, of course, to the highest bidder, and brought $2,100. I want the honest people of Chilton County to think of a plant that cost $14,000 (had it all been paid in) after being operated only about one month, selling for $2,100, and see if you think I soaked the people or did they let the Peterman Construction Company soak them. Too, after the plant sold under a mortgage it lacked over $500 bringing enough to pay off the mortgage, and I and the other four members of the Board of Directors had to put up over another hundred dollars each with which to pay off the mortgage.

The above is a true explanation, and if any one doubts the truthfulness of any of the statements above, relative to the canning factory, I refer you to the other members of the board of directors, who are among the most reliable men in Chilton County. The members of this board were Messrs. D. O Manning, J. P. Lawrence, Jim Gardner and O. M. Mastin. I also refer you to Mr. Frank Callen, president of the Peoples Savings Bank, who financed the whole project and knows the details of the financial end of it.

If any one pretends that he believes any of the false statements mentioned in this letter after he has had the absolute facts in the case, he is to be pitied rather than consured. Isn't it remarkable that it took from 1923 until just the day before the primary in May, 1933, ten years, for this wonderful intelligent propaganda to be thought up?

This is the first time in life that my honesty has been called into question, and I am exceedingly glad that I live in a county where civilization, intelligence, and enlightenment are so high that so very, very few believe one word of the false statements. I have made a diligent inquiry and have found or heard of but eight who pretend to believe any of them.—Very sincerely, W. T. Bean.

Ala. Merchants Meet In B'ham

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 5.—With a record breaking crowd of more than 5,000 expected to attend the seventeenth annual convention of the Alabama Merchants Association here on September 13 and 14, all details for the entertainment of this large host have been perfected, it is announced by George Bellsnyder, chairman of the entertainment committee.

T. A. McGough, chairman of the executive committee of the wholesale merchants and manufacturers division of the Chamber of Commerce, hosts of the convention, in extending the invitation to all retail merchants to attend, assures all visitors of a royal welcome and a fine time, and all are urged to "leave your worries and business cares, trials and tribulations at home."

James C. Lee, general chairman, and F. M. Jackson, Jr., vice chairman of the convention arrangements, announce that as their first night entertainment, September 13, visitors will witness an aerial demonstration and regular war time maneuvers at the Municipal Airport put on by army planes and defense guns. The airport will be "attacked" by the One Hundred and Sixth Observation Squadron and a battery of the Sixty-ninth Coast Artillery from Fort McClellan, will defend, with anti-aircraft guns, while the powerful searchlights flash over the district. Not less than 100 men, six regular officers and a host of reserve officers will participate.

A gala floor show, with peppy music, a bevy of feminine beauties and dancers and music by a famous orchestra will feature the second night's entertainment, presented at the Municipal Auditorium to accomodate the anticipated large crowd, which is promised an unusually "different" event.

To Hear Fine Speaker

Frederick V. Fisher, of Washington, D. C., national field co-ordinator for the NRA and a national speaker of note, has been especially designated to address the thousands of merchants and visitors on the evening of September 14, on some of the problems facing the cotton states and the merchants of those states, particularly Alabama and adjoining states, and a special appeal has been made by Jeff P. Beeland, of Greenville, president of the A. M. A. to all who possibly can do so to hear the vital message this national authority will bring to you on this occasion.

Registration will open at an early hour on September 13, at the Municipal Auditorium, with M. R. Norton as chairman of the registration committee assisted by the welcome committee, of which W. A. Sheppard is chairman.

James M. Jones, president of the City Commission, has extended the official invitation of the city to the convention, as have also heads of the Chamber of Commerce, and other leading civic bodies, all assuring a good time and real southern hospitality to the visitors—All entertainment features and other meetings and lectures are absolutely free to all visitors.

Officers of the A. M. A. in addition to President Beeland of Greenville, are: G. W. Ponder, Cullman, first vice president; R. L. Holcomb, Calera, second vice president; W. T. Wells, of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, secretary; and M. R. Norton, Birmingham, treasurer.

The crowds paused as she was presented with a set of five tires, just out of the molds. Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., who was attending the fair during Farmers' Week, made the presentation.

Central Singing Society

CENTRAL SINGING SOCIETY SUSPENDS REGULAR MEETS

At the annual meeting of the Central Singing Society at Concord last Sunday afternoon it was decided to suspend regular weekly meetings at the eight churches belonging to the society for the time being. The society is not disbanded by any means, but owing to several things beyond the society's control, it was thought advisable to make this temporary change. The question was voted upon in regular order and carried without a dissenting vote.

Besides suspending the regular meetings, the motion adopted carried the provision that singings be held at the courthouse in Clanton at some regular intervals. The time and frequency of the meetings will be determined later, inasmuch as it is expected to cooperate with the other societies of the county in this venture. The matter will be taken up with the officers of the other societies at the county convention the fourth Sunday in this month.

Billy Sunday, Sam Jones, and the other great evangelists of this generation and the past generation, drew crowds and moved crowds not just because they were unique personalities. They did the job because they could preach. Sam Jones startled the crowds with his peculiar style of saying things. But in every great meeting he conducted, there were a few services when Sam Jones preached the gospel with tremendous power. These were the services when he accomplished results.

In the Bob Jones College we had last year about fifty young men studying for the ministry. I tell these boys that they cannot all be great preachers, but that they can all preach a great gospel. They are human, but their message is divine. Men may reject the messenger, but they cannot reject the message without doing it at the peril of their souls.

"I don't like the way he preaches." That is what a young lady told me about a certain preacher. "How do you like what he preaches?" I inquired. "I don't know," she said, "I just don't like his style." This young lady thought she was very cultured and broad. As a matter of fact, she was very narrow. I go to a dining room and the waiter brings me well-cooked, palatable food. I don't like the waiter, therefore, I won't eat the food. That is not my way of doing things. I don't eat the waiter, but if he brings me good food, I eat it. I make it a rule to accept truth from whatever source it may come, even though it may be brought to me by crude messengers.

"I like Dr. So-and-So. When he preaches he makes me feel so good. I go to his church thinking I am a sinner, and I come away feeling like a saint." I heard that one time from a very cultured woman. "Did you know that you can give a man who has cancer a hypodermic of morphine and make him feel good? But that is not what he needs. He needs an operation." That was my answer.

Nowhere does the Bible tell a preacher to comfort sinners. It is the business of a minister to make sinners uncomfortable. Comfort the saints—that is religious. Comfort sinners while they are in sin—that is wicked.

Religion is reliance. Every man has some kind of religion. That is, he relies on something for salvation. He may rely upon the hope that there is no hell. He may rely on his own morality. He may rely upon his church membership. A Christian is a person who relies upon the atoning blood of Jesus Chrust for salvation. In other words, a man knowing that he cannot save imself, depends upon what Jesus Christ did for him when He died on the cross.

MRS. SCOTTIE MOORE HURT BY A HIT AND RUN DRIVER HERE

Mrs. Scottie Moore of South Clanton was slightly injured last Saturday night when she was struck and knocked down by an automobile on the highway near her home. She was walking along the highway when she observed the car approaching her. She states that she got off the highway in order to avoid the car, and the driver apparently pulled the car off the pavement and struck her.

When the car struck her she was knocked down and fell out of the way of the car. The driver of the machine did not stop, and no one knows who it was nor where he was from.

It is stated that Mrs. Moore did not think she was hurt at first, but later found it was necessary to call for medical attention. She is getting along all right Wednesday morning.

BUTTER AN AMAZING FOOD

It's human nature to take everyday things for granted. Probably not one person in a hundred who buys a pound of butter realizes that over ten and a half quarts of milk of average richness are required to make one pound of butter. That's a lot of milk.

In spite of the fact that butter has been selling at low prices nevertheless the dairy farmers are confronted with a difficult situation because they have an enormous surplus of butter.

To assist in relieving this situation The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company announced that, beginning Thursday, August 31st, and until further notice, butter would be sold in all its stores throughout the country without profit. For example, if butter is selling at twenty-three cents per pound in the wholesale market, A&P has set the retail price of twenty-five cents per pound. This two cents only partially covers the retail stores expense. The twenty- three cents goes to the dairy farmer.

Second Farmer—Yes, I know. He came over to call on my daughter last night.

College lad — Nope. I'm gonna drink the whole jug.

Maid—I can give a better kiss than you.

Maid—Oh, no, ma'am . . . the chaffeur told me.

PLAN OPENING OF COOSA RIVER

Two States Sent Delegates To Parley at Gadsden On Last Thursday

Gadsden, Ala., Sept. 7.—Civic leaders of two states came here today for a conference aimed at pushing along the movement for a nine foot navigation channel in the Coosa-Alabama river system from Mobile, Ala., to Rome, Ga.

Lachlan MacCleay, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley association, was on the program as a principal speaker, along with a number of senators and congressmen for Alabama and Georgia.

The Mississippi Valley association is sponsoring the project as a unit of the national plan for developing inland waterways. Construction would be financed with money obtained out of the $3,300,000,000 federal public waters fund. Proponents have estimated the channel would cost in the neighborhood of $40,000,000 including a flood control system.

They are pressing for construction at this time with the view that two purposes would be served—give cities far inland the benefit of cheap freight rates and help along the restoration of prosperity by furnishing employment to many workers.

The valley association claims the work could be done without the approval of congress, providing sanction of General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, is obtained.

One objective of the Gadsden conference was the compilation of data designed to convince federal authorities that the plan is practical and would serve a vital public need.

The above mentioned project will be of considerable interest to citizens of Chilton county, since it will mean navigable waters on all the eastern boundary of the county, being a distance of around forty miles. It will necessitate locks being put in at both Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam, which are in our portion of the Coosa.

Miss Mary Cochran left Tuesday for Woman's College, Montgomery, where she will major in scenic painting.

RELIEF WORKERS URGED TO TAKE OTHER JOBS IF OFFERED

Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, in charge of Chilton County Relief Administration, urges that all pepole on relief work in Chilton County accept other work if it is offered to them, at such wages as they may be able to get.

It is reported that some people on the relief list have been offered other work, and turned it down because the wages were not as high as relief work pays.

FRUIT DESTROYED IN RECENT STORM

Description Furnished By Will Plier, Former Citizen of Chilton County

A Providential solution of a puzzling situation is the way Will Plier sizes up the destruction wrought to the fruit crop in Florida by the recent storm. In his letter to The Union-Banner Mr. Plier says:

"Just a few lines to let you hear from me after the storm is over. You people had to turn to the government to help you take care of the cotton situation. But just as we were wondering what we would do with so much fruit, Providence took charge of the situation by sending us a storm, which we think at present will fully take care of the situation throughout the citrus fruit section.

"After the storm my biggest job was to get my truck in my back yard and begin loading it with green oranges blown off the trees by the storm. My trees seem to have plenty left on them yet. We had a bumper crop until the storm."

Mr. Plier lives in Lakeland, where he moved from Chilton County about two years ago. Along with his letter he sends several newspaper clippings which give many interesting facts about the recent storm which swept Florida.

From reading Mr. Plier's letter and the newspaper clippings, it is gathered that the fruit growers of Florida think the storm will prove a blessing to them, because it destroyed a great surplus of fruit that would have deluged the markets this winter.

One of the newspaper stories says the Texas grapefruit crop was completely destroyed, which will take 12,000 car loads off the market. That with the damage done in Florida, it is stated, will make the grapefruit crop about 16,000 car loads short.

The storm is reported to have brought a total of over 11 inches of rain in the Lakeland neighborhood in a period of only a few hours.

SCOUT WORK TO GET MORE AID

Plan of Financing Outlined at A Meeting Held Here Tuesday Afternoon

Within the next week an organized and systematic campaign will be conducted in Clanton, Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam, to get subscriptions for a fund to support the work of Boy Scouts in the Chilton County district. A meeting was held at the office of County Agent, C. E. Stapp, Tuesday afternoon at which tentative plans for the campaign were drafted.

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will form the main staff of workers in this drive. Contact will be made through various members of the club with citizens who will be asked to subscribe to the support of Scouting pledges to give a stated small amount each month.

In attendance at the organization meeting Tuesday afternoon were Mr. J. V. Dabbs, of Memphis, who is Deputy Regional Executive of Region Five, Boy Scouts of America, covering the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, and northwest Florida. Also Mr. John J. Sigwald, of Opelika, who is Scout Executive for the Central Alabama Area. Local persons in attendance at the meeting were C. E. Stapp, S. J. Ezell, J. Mell Martin, W. M. Wyatt and Scoutmaster, Louie Smith.

Mr. Sigwald rendered a brief report of activities of the scout camp at Treasure Island this summer. He expressed sincere and hearty appreciation for the support received from the Kiwanis Club and other citizens of Clanton, Lay Dam and Mitchell Dam in making such a splendid success of Treasure Island Camp. He said scouts are looking forward to next summer when they shall again have the fun that awaits them at Treasure Island.

Mr. Sigwald also reported interestingly upon his trip with a group of scouts to the World's Fair a month ago. Callen Alred of Clanton and Virgil Newton, of Mitchell Dam, accompanied him on this trip. At the Methodist church Tuesday night Mr. Sigwald showed 100 feet of moving pictures which he and the boys took while at the Fair.

LUZIANNE COFFEE AT J. H. BROADHEAD'S STORE

In the adv. of J. H. Broadhead, west end, in The Union-Banner last week, the price of Luzianne coffee was printed, "per pound, 75c." It should have read, "per pail, 75c." Mr. Broadhead says Luzianne is mighty good coffee, but even with its goodness and aroma it won't sell much at 75c a pound. We are glad to make this correction, and hope that no ill-convenience was caused Mr. Broadhead or his customers by our error.

J. H. Broadhead always has some exceptinal values at his store. It would pay the people who trade at west end to look over his list most every week in The Union-Banner. You can't go wrong by trading with him.

JUDGE BEN F. RAY AT KIWANIS CLUB

Birmingham Jurist Talked of Patriotic Purposes of the N. R. A.

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton enjoyed an exceptionally fine program at its regular weekly meeting at the Exchange Hotel last Thursday night. A group of visitors from Birmingham, headed by Dr. M. F. Jackson, were guests of the club, and furnished the program.

Cohen Stapp, club secretary, introduced Dr. Jackson, who in turn, introduced the visitors, as follows: Mr. L. E. Foster, secretary of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Reed, also of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce; Judge Ben F. Ray, president of the Optimist Club, of Birmingham; Dock Smith, president of Roberts & Son; Jack Addicks, manager of the Birmingham office of the United States Department of Commerce.

Mr. Foster spoke concerning the objectives of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce with relation to cultivating acquaintance and fostering trade relations with cities and towns adjacent to Birmingham. At the conclusion of his address he introduced Judge Ben Ray for the main address of the occasion.

Judge Ray captivated his audience with a discussion of the patriotic conception of the National Industrial Recovery Act of Congress. He very graphically illustrated the economic situation in the United States which brought about the depression.

"Fair Play" is the keynote of the N. R. A., as represented by the discussion of Judge Ray. He said our country must institute a system of industrial employment and commercial activity that will be fair in its every application to the needs and welfare of the ten million of our citizens who are idle. He pointed out that a restoration of buying power to our unemployed is all that is needed to wipe out the depression in our business and economic life. He said "If the buying power of our ten million unemployed could be suddenly restored, they would buy out the reserve stocks of goods of this whole country before tomorrow night. If Santa Claus could take the order of these ten million who want and need so many things, you have never in all the world seen such an order as it would be."

There was a good attendance of Kiwanis Club members at the meeting, and all were greatly inspired by the fine address of Judge Ray.

Kiwanian Sam Ezell gave a three-minute discussion of the object of Kiwanis for higher social, business and professional standards. The return of our people to the rugged virtues of Christian integrity in all their social, business and professional relationships was stressed by the speaker as being the supreme need of our present age in facing and solving the many perplexing problems with which we are confronted.

SATURDAY NIGHT IS TAX DEAD LINE

List of Delinquents Will Be Advertised in The Paper Next Week

Tax Collector W. G. Culp gives final notice that the advertisement of property for delinquent taxes will begin in next week's paper. He has deferred this action from time to time in order to give every opportunity possible to the people in meeting their tax payments. But he has gone the limit, and must proceed to take action at once.

Those who are affected by this matter are advised that they have until Saturday night of this week in which to pay their taxes without additional costs. After that time the cost of advertising and other fees will be added.

Mr. Culp also states that there are many who have partly paid their taxes, but still owe a balance. He points out that under the law he will have to advertise such property just the same as if no part of the tax had been paid. Those who are so situated in their tax business are advised to finish paying up the balance they owe this week in order to avoid further fees and costs.

Mr. Culp has been liberal and patient with the people of Chilton County in this matter. He has realized the stress our people have been under and their inability to pay. Therefore, he has extended every favor possible to them. But he is now faced with executing the law according to the statutes, and he can make no further extensions.

Rev. Herschel Hamner, who has been working with the young people in connection with the revival at the Methodist church for the past week, returned to his home in Bessemer Monday.

Stapp Points Out Reasons Why We May Expect Better Business

County Agent Says It Took Us Four Years To Go Down the Hill, and We Should Not Expect to Get Back Up The Hill In Just A Few Months

We are in the midst of a terrific battle against the depression. Many seem to feel that the battle should have been over before now and that victory should have been proclaimed. Maybe the above is true, but as I told more than 3,000 farmers assembled in meetings over the county last winter, it has taken us four years to get down the hill and I do not expect to get up the hill in a few months.

Many of us seem to have forgotten the condition that existed the first part of this year. I believe conditions generally are much better now than then. Cotton was 6 then, now it is 8:50. I agree that we don't think that 8:50 is enough, but I can't recall when we ever felt that we were getting enough.

People engaged in every walk of life were down so to speak at the beginning of 1933. Some are beginning to see their way now. We can't all see it at the same time. A survey in the city of Birmingham shows that more than 4,200 men have been given employment there during the past month. In the little town of Clanton more than 80 have been put back to work. Some of the above haven't had work in three years. Figures on possible new money to be spent in Alabama during the next few months look like this:

Cotton crop	$50,000,000
For cotton destroyed	10,000,000
Highway money	12,000,000
Relief funds	3,000,000
Public works	50,000,000
State warrants	17,000,000
Total	$142,000,000

At a meeting of the bankers of the county at my office Tuesday afternoon, the fact was brought out that even at present prices, farmers are going to be able to take care of their 1933 obligations and pay more of their old obligations than they have in three years. Many are getting enough money for cotton acreage reduction to meet their 1933 obligations and have the balance of their crop for present needs and old obligations.

I may be wrong, but I can't help feeling optimistic. I realize fully that this is a critical time, just as comes in any battle, and that if we give up and turn back we will lose, but if we get a new hold on ourselves and all push right ahead, every fellow with his eyes, heart and energy to the front, that we will go over the top, and that in another year we will see much better conditions with less suffering humanity.—C. E. Stapp.

JOE E. BROWN COMING IN "ELMER THE GREAT" SOON

Followers of Joe E. Brown will see the versatile comedian in what is probably the greatest role of his long laugh-making career when his latest First National picture, "Elmer The Great," opens at the Wadesonian Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, September 20 and 21.

There is every reason why this hilarious comedy-drama of big league baseball should fit Joe E. Brown more perfectly than any role he has yet played. Joe's middle name should have been baseball, for if making millions laugh is his business, baseball is his hobby. In fact it's more than a hobby with Joe, for he was once a big league player himself. For several years he has maintained his own semi-professional team in Southern California, and recently he topped all his previous baseball activities by buying an interest in the Kansas City baseball club.

Ring Lardner doubtless didn't have Joe E. Brown in mind when he wrote, in dramatic form, the life story of Elmer Kane, as only Ring Lardner knows how to write it. But the role of the Gentryville, Indiana, boy who modestly admits that he is the greatest batter the world has even seen, couldn't fit Joe E. Brown more perfectly if he had been the playwright-humorist's official model.

Elmer Kane has three interests in life—eating, sleeping and baseball; and he's champion at all three.

As if this were not enough to consume all of one man's time and energy, Elmer proceeds to fall in love, with side-splitting complications developing too fast for him.

How Elmer gets into jail, is liberated only to fall into a brand new disgrace and be ruled off the team on the eve of the World's Serise games, and how he finally goes to bat and pulls the game out of the mud—literally as well as figuratively—is said to make one of the most uproariously funny pictures that the screen has seen this year.

Mervyn LeRoy, director of many Warner-First National hits, piloted "Elmer The Great" to its winning climax.

A splendid cast of players seconds Joe E. Brown's fun-making efforts. Patricia Ellis is the girl with whom Joe is in love. Frank McHugh, able comedian in such outstanding hits as "One Way Passage," "Parachute Jumper," "Wax Museum," "Ex-Lady," and "Grand Slam", has the role of Joe's buddy, "High - Hips" Healy. Preston S. Foster is seen as the manager of the Chicago club, and Claire Dodd, Berton Churchill, Emma Dunn and Sterling Holloway have other important roles.

The picture is an adaptation of the stage success by Ring Lardner and George M. Cohan, with Tom Geraghty being the author of the screen-play.

In "Hallelujah, I'm A Bum," his United Artists picture which comes to the Wadesonian Theatre on Friday night, September 15 and Saturday night at 10:30, Al Jolson corralled a cast of Hollywood comedians the like of which has never before been seen in one film production unit.

The story of "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," written especially for Jolson by Ben Hercht, lends itself admirably to comedy, but it is the pathetic and poignant sort rather than slapstick. It is also the sort which had to be handled properly in order to get over.

Because of this several weeks were spent in selecting the cast of characters, and all sorts of care was exercised in choosing the right people. First Harry Langdon, comedy star, was selected for one of the principal roles, and the Chester Conklin and his walrus mustache were signed. Frank Morgan, Broadway stage star, come next, and Tammany Young, who has played both on Broadway and in Hollywood, stepped into the picture, too.

Bert Roach, who has been the comic appeal in scores of films, won one of the coveted roles, and Victor Potel, veteran film comedian, also was signed.

There was one role however, which caused some difficulty. This was the part of a young negro roustabout whose portrayal had to be of a high standard. Jolson, Lewis Mileston and Joseph M. Schenck, President of United Artists, interviewed countless applications, but none fitted the bill.

One night Jolson and Mr. Schenck heard of a young negro playing in an outlying Los Angeles Theatre, so they went to that theatre to see what he could do. But they never did see him. For, soon after they arrived, another young negro of the company came upon the stage, and he won their hearts immediately. Jolson looked at Schenck and Schenck looked at Jolson, and both nodded knowingly.

The result was that Edgar (Blue Boy) Connor deserted the stage and became a member of the Jolson company. And now almost every company in Hollywood is trying to sign him for a picture.

"Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," has not been slighted on the feminine side of comedy, either. The lead is filled by Madge Evans, and Dorothea Wolbert and Louise Carver have other important roles.

POPLAR SPRINGS

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are progressing nicely. We had a large crowd Sunday and Sunday night. We have elected our new Sunday school officers for another year. They are as follows: Superintendent, Mr. Joseph McDowell; adult Bible class teacher, Mr. Lawton McDowell; advance quarterly teacher, Miss Lena Downs; intermediate, Mrs. Gertie Jones; junior, Miss Gladys Wilson; card class, Mrs. Moore. Let's all cooperate with these officers and make it the best year for our Sunday school. We are going to elect our B. Y. P. U. officers September 28. Let's be praying about this, that we may get the right ones.

We have organized a singing class. We meet for the first time Sunday night with the following directors singing two and three songs each: Mr. Dock Harris, Mr. Joe Ben Downs, Mr. Raymond Gilliland, Miss Myrtice Smith, Miss Velma Jones, Miss Annie Laura Devaughn, Miss Ester Lou McDowell. We are expecting to have some special music next Sunday night. We had several visitors last Sunday night. We were glad to have them. We invite them back again. We are all very glad to have visitors, and welcome them at any time. We extend to all singers a special invitation to meet with us next Sunday night at 6:30.

On account of the death of Mr. Aaron Clackler of this place, we did not have any Sunday school or preaching last Sunday, but will have both next Sunday. Bro. Daniels gives his text for next Sunday, "The Pardon of Two Sons." This sermon is mostly for old people. Give him a good, crowded house. I want to ask everyone to be present in Sunday school Sunday, for it is necessary that we make arrangements for our books. It has been stated that the singing class would meet every second Sunday. I want to correct that. We will meet the first Sunday at 2 p.m., and we invite everybody to attend.

I understand that there will be an all day singing in the sacred harp next Sunday at New Harmony.

Next Sunday is Rev. Perry Mims's day to preach at the Lomax tabernacle.

R. F. C. School at Ridersville

A special course in gradening is being given to the farmers at Ridersville. This five weeks course was made possible by the R. F. C. administration. This is the first course ever given to the farmers in Ridersville. They were never successful in getting an opportunity school down there. It is quite pleasing to see how interested they are, down there, and how regular they are in attendance. From all indications great good is being accomplished in this enterprise. The gardens have been prepared and will be planted this week. The first demonstration on planting a garden was given Monday. Prof. E. W. Burt is teaching, with the assistance of the teacher of vocational agriculture.

In connection with this course many farmers have taken the advantage to learn of and apply for aid from the federal government, which was made possible by the Farm Mortgage Foreclosure Act, last May. Such men as J. E. Ford, Hubbard Goodwin, Will Waters, Ed Monroe and others are taking advantage of this opportunity.

School Opens October 2nd

The County Training School opens its doors October 2nd. Let me emphasize the importance of starting your children the first day and urge you to send them every day thereafter. The term was very short last year, and some changes in the regular grading will be necessary. It is the patron's business to have his child present the first day. Incidental fees will be only two dollars.

Members of the faculty are as follows: Prof. T. E. Lewis, science and mathematics; Miss G. L. Hardy, English and literature; Miss B. W. Mitchell, social science; Mrs. L. M. Anderson, intermediate grades; Miss Mattie Webb, elementary grades; Miss Louise Riley, primary grades; Benjamin Anderson, principal, and teacher of vocational agriculture.

Vetch and Pea Time Near

Remember that September 15 to October 15th is considered the golden date for putting these winter legumes in the ground. I shall plant about the 25th of September. These winter legumes cannot be too highly recommended. It would be well for those who have never planted any to try these wonderfud soil builders. Many farmers have planted them and attest to their real value. Such men as A. T. Holifield, A. G. Gordon, Nute Brazil, Rodda Varner, Tom Bailey, Otho McKinney, Richard Turpin, Ben Brown, Matthew Chatman, Robert Spence and Arthur Cleckler know from experience. Try 100 per cent this year.—Benjamin Anderson.

MORE VETERANS TO BE TAKEN INTO U.S. CONSERVATION CORPS

Authority has been granted the Veterans administration to enroll approximately 135 additional veterans for the second period of the Civilian Conservation Corps, according to T. J. Calvert, manager of the Alabama regional office with headquarters in Birmingham. This additional quota will be selected between September 25 and 30, and it is expected will be apportioned between the 68 counties of the State on practically the same ratio as the first allotment.

It is the plan of the administration, Mr. Calvert stated, to discharge all members of the veterans contingent of the Emergency Conservation Work prior to October 15th; however such members will have the privilege of re-enlisting for a second period of six months beginning immediately subsequent to their discharge from the present enrollment. It is understood that the veterans being selected now will be used as replacements in camps where those discharged from the first camp do not re-enlist, thereby keeping the veterans contingent at full strength.

In order to be eligible for duty in the forestry camps, veterans must be honorably discharged from the World War or Spanish-American War service. Preference will be given to those unemployed who have persons dependent upon them for support. In addition to the above requirements all applicants must pass a medical examination given by the War Department and be physically fit to perfarm ordinary manual labor, 8 hours a day, in the forestry camps.

Selection of veterans for this quota will be made from applications now on hand and such applications as may be subsequently received and veterans interested in being selected for this additional enrollment contingent need to submit their applications prior to September 25. Any veterans interested in making application should write the Veterans Administration, Birmingham, Ala., for the proper banks.

THOUGHTS FOR MEDITATION

The baptism of the holy spirit came with a sound. "Suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting," Acts 2:2. Does this happen these days? "And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and sat upon each of them," Does this ever happen these days? "They were filled with the holy ghost, and began to speak in other tongues, as the spirit gave them utterance." They spoke so that Jews out of every nation under heaven could hear "every man in his own language," Acts 2:4-14. Does this ever happen these days?

Those who received this baptismal power of the holy spirit raised the dead, Acts 9:36-41. Does this ever happen these days? They had power to take up serpents and drink a "deadly thing" and have no hurt. Does this ever happen these days? See Mark 16:17-20; Acts 28:3-6. Some times when they prayed the places where they prayed were shaken, Acts 4: 31; Acts 16: 23:34. Does this ever happen these days? No doubt that Jesus had a miraculous faith in mind when he said, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say to this mountain, remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you." Matt. 17:20. Does this ever happen these days

Those who had the baptismal power of the holy spirit gave to us the New Testament. Can any man or set of men give to us another new testament? Paul pronounces a curse even upon an angel who would preach another gospel, Gal. 1:8-9. The holy spirit forbids anything to be added to or taken from the scriptures we have. Rev. 22: 18-19. There are delusions, false prophets, and lying wonders that we are warned against. See II Thes. 2:4-13; I Tim. 4:1-5.—Sincerely, R. L. Huffman.

THE OX WITH THE IDEA AND WHAT THE FARMER DID

Washington.—National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson illustrated to a Pennsylvania audience what the government is doing under the sign of the Blue Eagle with a story of an ox who developed an idea. "Once there was a very poor farmer plowing a field with an ox and a mule," said the general. "In the midst of a furrow the ox got to thinking: 'I don't need to go on pulling together," so he lay down and chewed his cud. The farmer couldn't budge the ox, so he got into the yoke with the mule. At sundown the mule came home tired, but the ox was rested and talkative, and he asked the mule: 'What did the boss say?' 'Nothing; he just pulled on together with me.' 'Well, didn't he even mention my name?' 'No—oh yes, he did say something about you, but that was later. A man drove up to the gate just now, and they talked some and mentioned you.' "Who was that man?' asked the ox. 'That was the butcher.'"

AN ADMINISTRATION INCONSISTENCY

Secretary Hull's resolution, presented at the London economic conference, calling for a 'gradual reduction and removal of artificial trade barriers' does not harmonize with the plan his party is launching at home for the rehabilitation of agriculture. The bill passed last month to provide relief for agriculture would fall flat without a tariff wall behind which to operate. That fact is recognized in the bill which stipulates that the processor's tax shall be refunded if the article is exported.

The farm bill is designed to re-establish such balance between the production and consumption of agricultural commodities as will restore to the farmer the purchasing power he had in the prewar period. That is to be accomplished by levying a processor's tax on farm products, the tax to be paid by the miller, packer or whoever handles the product. The mony will be paid into a fund to be distributed to the growers as an addition to the sums they received when they marketed their produce.

The processor of course would add the feet to the cost of his product when it is sold and the consumer would pay the bill. That all presupposes we are to be free to do as we please in our own market. The farm relief program would not work for a moment without a protective tariff. The only way in which the processor can hope to be recompensed is by raising the price of his output. He could not do that under a free trade program putting him in competition with outsiders selling in our own market.

The American farmer recognizes the fact that he must sell his surplus abroad at the world market price and in competition with others. The farm relief act calls for the reduction of acreage and other devices to cut down the surplus to be sold abroad under unfavorable conditions. The resolutions presented by Secretary Hull, as expressing the policy of this country, would put the American farmer at a disadvantage at home as well as abroad. It is not consistent with what the administration is undertaking under the guise of equalizing the farmer's buying power.—Indianapolis Star.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

A great many newspapers which are generally to be found advocating lower tariffs for the United States, are showing some more or less concealed satisfaction over the return of Prof. Raymond Moley from the President's official family to private life. Most of them, of course, say that they are sorry to see the professor leave Washington but they are at the same time finding easy consolation in the belief that the tariff policy of the United States in the future will be more nearly in the hands of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. They intimate that this will be much more satisfactory in that Mr. Hull will pay more attention to tariff agreements for the promotion of what they call the very important matter of foreign trade.

Of course everybody hopes that the United States will increase its foreign trade, but not at the expense of American industry and American labor. The international free traders are living in the past and have been unable to grasp the full significance of economic developments which have come to the world since the close of the World War. The day of a great world revival of international trade along old fashioned lines with each nation buying where it can buy cheapest is gone, and will not dawn again. The modern nation is seeking to become as self-sufficint as possible. It wants to produce as much for its own people as it can and buy from outside its borders only what is necessary. It learned a lesson in the World War and in the days following it, and the coming of the great depression which was as inevitable as the closing of war itself, has only accelerated this tendency. This does not mean that the days of foreign trade are over. We will always have foreign trade and plenty of it, perhaps more in the days to come than ever before. But in the future the enlightened nations will only buy from abroad what they cannot produce at home. And as each nation raises the living standard of its people this demand for foreign goods, whether it be in the shape of raw materials or finished products, will increase, because as people become more prosperous they find more wants to fill, more luxuries and semi-luxuries which they think they need.

The experience of the United States is a case in point. Under the tariff theory which we have had in practice during the past half century, we have sought to buy only what we could not produce at home. We have thus built up the greatest home market the world have ever seen. In days of prosperity this has increased rather than decreased our foreign trade, because our people with steady jobs have used more of the raw materials we have to import and more of the finished goods which we do not produce at home. Other nations are beginning to follow suit. This is not as the free traders would have us believe, to "punish" the United States. It is a matter of self preservation, and in adopting our system they are paying us a compliment. If we stand by our gunss the ultimate effect will be beneficial to other nations as well as the United States, and we will be in a new era and not an era in which often the scramble over foreign trade leads to war as it has many times in the past.

FEAR NOT ESSENTIAL —

One of the mistakes which some of the N. R. A. engineers are making in the addresses in support of the movement is asserting that in case this plan fails nothing remains but chaos. While such a statement may spur some people to further action by placing fear in their hearts, it is very likely that it will really do more harm than good, by adding to any feeling of uncertainty as to the future which may remain in the country. In fact it will and is already causing the average person to save up for a rainy day, and this is hurting retail business

In the first place the statement is undoubtedly an exaggeration. There is no reason to assume that if the N. R. A. movement should unexpectedly fail to fulfill all of its advance promises, that we are due for nothing but anarchy and chaos. By thinking back a little we can remmeber that the country was slowly and painfully working his way toward recovery even before the N. R. A. program was inaugurated. The first faint signs that we had crossed the broad valley at the bottom of the depression came over a year ago when the stock market hit bottom and started a slow climb. It is true that this climb halted, due to the uncertainties of the political campaign, and the political stagnation which ensued between the election and the inauguration, but it is not to be forgotten that stocks did not descend again to the levels of July, 1932 Then after the bank holiday there was an undoubted reversal. Confidence replaced fear and we started on the upgrade Many people went back to work, carloadings increased, hoarding of money almost ceased, and the various indices of business indicated that we were on the verge of a major upturn. All of this, it is to be remembered, got under way before the N. R. A. was put into effect.

Of course every American hopes the N. R. A. plan will succeed and believes that it will do so. Everyone is putting a shoulder to the wheel to make the movement a success. Party lines have been buried, many conservative business leaders have swallowed such doubts as they may have had, and everyone, high and low, is supporting the administration. No president in peace times has ever had more generous support on the part of the people and better cooperation from the business interests of the country.

The American people are going ahead and doing their best. It is unnecessary to try to spur them on by threatening them with chaos in case the present plan fails. It occurs to us that President Roosevelt himself said that if some of his plans didn't work he would try something else; that he did not expect to make a hit every time he went to bat. Europe is going ahead, and is improving economically, and there is no indication that England or France or Italy are slipping into chaos though they are not using the recovery plan. Why then shoud this happen to America alone,

What America wants to do is to get back to normal, but it wants to get there by constitutional, not bulldozing methods. If the present plans bring this about, all well and good and every American is behind them. But to say that if they fail nothing but chaos is ahead is to create unnecessary doubt and fear —to weaken our faith in America.

LOSS IN NATION'S SHIPPING

More ships were lost at sea, broken up, condemned, or otherwise disappeared from service during the last year than were added to the American merchant marine, resulting in a net loss in available ship tonnage which points to an ultimate renewed demand on the shipyards.

Just as world trade is showing unmistakable signs of reviving and the need for more bottoms is in sight, these shipping facilities have undergone this shrinkage. It appears to be a part of the age-old cycle. When the depression struck, ships were tied up in every port for lack of cargo. Fewer orders for new vessels were given and shipyards were stilled because of lack of demand. Now that revival is at hand, a deficit appears a possibility.

In the fiscal year just ended 749 steam, motor, sail, unrigged and yachting vessels were constructed in American shipyards. The figures include every kind of craft of five tons and over, so a wide variety of vessels is covered, from large liners and cargo freighters to small motor boats. The aggregate tonnage, however, amounted to 193,313 gross tons.

During the identical period the losses from every cause which puts a vessel permanently out of service amounted to 901 and the loss tonnage to 875,971 gross tons. The numbers of new ships built compared with those lost are sufficiently impressive. The net loss was 152 vessels. But far more important is the tonnage figure, the real test when it comes to cargo carrying. There was a loss of available ship space of 682,658 gross tons.

The inescapable conclusion is that the ships lost during the year to the American merchant marine have been ships of commerce, freighters and liners, revenue-producing vessels. The figures suggest that the new ships are largely small and intended for inland waterway use, for pleasure craft, and for similar purposes not calculated to strengthen the United States marine in terms of foreign trade or national defense.

Such a situation points directly to a period of busy shipbuilding for the deficit being accumulated so rapidly must be made up. It is not charcateristic for the American merchant marine to slip backward so rapidly. But, even with recovery in the shipyards, the lost ships can never be brought back again.—Richmond, Ind., Item.

IT REALLY HAPPENED

It is really getting too late in the season for fish stories, but this one is so good we are passing it on. It was contributed by Andy Burke, of Lincoln, Nebraska, who writes:

Honestly, a local fisherman spending some time at a Minnesota lake this summer puts it out as gospel truth that on the Fourth of July his 10-year-old boy was shooting firecrackers at the shore of the lake, tossing the crackers out over the lake to explode, and that once a three pound bass leaped from the water and grabbed one of the firecrackers. The firecracker exploded in the bass's mouth and knocked him 20 feet from shore (inalnd). The man made haste to lay hands on the fish and had it for dinner. The fish was not harmed in any way, merely blown out of the water onto dry land.

A free trade newspaper talking about the tendency of men and women to organize concludes that "Odd Fellows do not go to war with Elks nor put up tariffs against the Ancient Order of Buffaloes." Is that so? Well you just try to join another order, Brother Buffalo, and see whether there isn't a tariff.

We will continue to have faith in the code until somebody writes a popular song about it.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Recovery and Waste

Every wise and succesful man has his enemies, no matter what his calling. Christ, Himself, sent to save the world, had His enemies, and they crucified Him, although we KNOW He was right. Washington had his enemies, and they were successful in having him removed from the leadership of the army just when the country needed him most. Lincoln had his enemies, one of whom killed him and robbed our country of a born leader, and the loss of Lincoln may be felt in this country to this very day—the curse of prejudice and misunderstanding between the sections of this country might never have existed if Lincoln's steady hand could have stayed at the helm of the nation. These examples are given merely to prove that no matter how big and fine a person may be, there will be someone who will not like him nor his ideas. Such a man is Clarence Darrow, nationally known lawyer. Sure, he has been maligned time after time—he has enemies, too. But even his enemies will admit that he is a very shrewd man. Darrow has this to say in regard to the recovery program: "I hope the program goes through as planned. I want to see this nation out of the dumps and back on the high road of presperity again, and I am willing to do all that I can to help in any way possible. But there are certain natural laws that cannot be disregarded. 'Waste causes want' is one of the truest of these laws. And I cannot construe the throwing of money to the four winds in a reckless trial at recovery, nor the plowing up of cotton, nor destruction of basic food supplies as anything but waste. Sooner or later we must pay and pay dear for our 'forced recovery.' Recovery by waste seems a strange method." No matter how you may see the matter, you must admit that Mr. Darrow's view is a sensible one.

"Spare The Rod"

Back in the olden, golden days for which our Bible is our history, quite a few very wise men lived. One of these said: "Spare the rod and spoil the child." For thousands of years this saying was heeded, and the results proved the wisdom of the teaching. But nowadays we seem to have grown a new crop of wiseacres. One of these is a Birmingham kindergarten teacher, who comes forth and states that the above-quoted adage "is as obsolete as the horse and buggy." Now that's what I call getting to be smart, when a two-by-four school teacher dares take issue with such an authority as the Bible. Maybe she is right, though, after all. The word "obsolete" is defined as "gone out of use." Maybe the rod has gone out of use in some degree. And maybe, too, this is one of the reasons why statistics show that over fifty per cent of our criminals are under voting age. I don't think the teacher had this in mind, though, when she made her statement—she meant it was just another old fogy idea that had outlived its usefulness. To all of which I would like to hasten to add that it may be old and fogy, and it may have outlived popular usage, but it most certainly has not outlived the truth in it, and never will.

"The Marines Have Landed"

Although the United States has been forced to fight but few wars, yet there have been many times when the War Department has had to send forces to straighten out little differences and quell disturbances of a minor nature. We have a division of the military department which is kept for this very purpose—the Marine Corps. The "Leathernecks" as this division is called have never failed on their job. The late Chinese trouble, the Nicagagua affair, and others of a like nature, have all been handled by them. Of course, if the trouble proves to be worse than first considered, then the regular army comes in and helps to mop up the place, but this is rarely the case. Usually, after a short skirmish with the Marines, the War Department receives this message: "The Marines have landed, and have the situation well in hand." This has happened so many times that it has become a stock phrase with the Marines. And now the Marines are taking off again—this time to straighten out our little baby government down in Cuba. The Cubans, of Spanish extraction, had rather fight than eat, anyway, so, just to pass the time away, they have staged a revolution and set themselves up a new regime. Now comes word that a counter-revolution is brewing. Uncle Sam knows that too many revolutions is not good for his youngest child, much as they may enjoy it, so he is sending the Leathernecks down to fix them up again. And, any day now, we may expect to read that "The Marines have landed and have the situation well in hand." The Marines are Uncle Sam's handy man about the place, and so far they have always done their job well.

Satisfied With Business

I heard something a few days ago the like of which I have not heard before in some time. Uncle John Robinson, the plainer mill man, said he was well satisfied with his business. "I can't kick," he said. "I have all the business in sight that I can do for some several months to come, so I'm not worrying. I have no right to ask for more business than I can attend to, and if I had any more, that would be the case." But I don't envy him. I just wish I could say the same, and make it ring true like he did.

F. D. R. and "Hank"

In a way "Hank" Ford has told the government to "go fish," and use our blue eagle for bait, but as for him, he will sit still and saw wood, or rather, make Fords. It makes no difference to "Hank" if the Lincoln organization, owned by Ford, does sign up, he says: "Oh well, boys will be boys. You've got to let them sow their wild oats some time—it might as well be now. Pretty soon they'll come crawling back to "Papa Henry", and then I'll just forgive 'em, and that'll be all." Just now, we can't tell just how it will all end. But something is bound to fly—F. D. R.'s blue eagle feathers or Henry's wool. Place your bets, gentlemen, and then wait till the little ball stops, and we'll see who wins.

MOLEY RETIRES —

The passing of Prof. Raymond Moley from the President's official family is creating more than passing interest for two reasons—first, people are wondering whether it means the beginning of the expected collapse of college professor direction in the national government, and second, they are asking themselves whether it spells a change in our foreign policy through giving Secretary of State Cordell Hull the "big say" in the Department of State.

Will Rogers in his inimitable way has expressed the belief that it means the beginning of the end of the brain trust, and that a more intelligent political school of thought will have full sway. Just whether or not this is true remains to be seen. Certain it is that a great many people would breathe a sigh of relief if this were so. There is still a widespread belief in America that after all the professional statesman who devotes his life to public political affairs will come nearer to pulling the nation through the storm than theoretical educators who have spent most of their time toying with their utopian dreams in the class room. On the other hand of course the so-called liberals would regard the passing of the brain trust as a lapse into "barbarism."

Just what is to be the role of President Roosevelt's collegiate advisors in the future remains to be seen. The question is more or less of an academic one after all. It would be regrettable, however, if the passing of Professor Moley were to spell a change in our foreign policy which would place the direction of this policy in the hands of the internationalists who just now seem to be regarding Secretary of State Cordell Hull as their particular idol.

The United States fared pretty well in a negative way at the London conference. The reason it fared pretty well is to found in the fact that the conference accomplished nothing. It could ony have had tangible results at the expense of the United States. European diplomatic bargain hunters at the conference had nothing to offer. They were only seeing sacrifices from Uncle Sam. The way Mr. Hull was talking about international brotherhood and the reduction of tariffs, when he went abroad, indicated that these sacrifices might be made and Uncle Sam one more time be made the cambination goat and Santa Claus to Europe. But it did not turn out that way. Uncle Sam stood pat and refused to trade his shirt for a soiled European collar. The result was that the conference adjourned, after Mr. Hull made desperate efforts to save it, with the European diplomats boiling with rage because Uncle Sam brought them a crow rather than a nice fat goose ready for a banquet.

It was generally believed here at the time that the nationalist stand taken by the American delegates was due in no small part to the advice and efforts of a few of the President's advisors like Professor Moley. Whether this is true or not, it would plainly be unfortunate if the retirement of Professor Moley meant that the direction of our economic foreign affairs would pass entirely to Mr. Hull, the near free trader.

Of course President Roosevelt is the man who has the final word in any event. Let us hope he will not trade the administration's present foreign policy for one smacking of low tariffs and other forms of internationalism.

COMPARATIVE WAGES —

We are hearing a great deal nowadays about the increase in wages in the United States through application of the national recovery act. This is all fine, provided all other phases of American social and business structures can keep apace with the advances in wages, and that such increases may be maintained and made permanent.

In this respect it is interesting to note the comparative wages today of the United States workers and those in other countries. According to the Department of Labor and National Industrial Conference reports, these comparisons are made:

United States	$26.30 per week
England	11.37 per week
Sweden	10.20 per week
Germany	9.02 per week
France	7.25 per week
Belgium	6.21 per week
Japan	5.37 per week
Hungary	5.08 per week
China	1.31 per week

Certainly we want to increase wages further, and above all to increase the number of employed. We cannot do this, and will not be able to raise the American standard of living or even to maintain it at the present level unless we maintain a tariff which will keep out a flood of foreign goods from countries which still go along on the theory of cheap production and the lowest possible living standards for the workers.

Tariffs must be increased instead of lowered if the machinery of the general recovery program is to hit on all cogs.

Another Teaser

A little while ago I offered a little Bible problem, and asked for a solution. I got the solution, and a cute little note stating that it was no brain teaser at all, and the writer asked for something a little harder. All right. There is Bible proof that Paul was a Southerner—what is it, and where?—Man in the Moon.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Uncle George's Beetle Dust

Uncle George Willis says; "I was working in my strawberry patch the other day and I got purty hot. I stopped in the shade a few minutes at the end of the row by the side of the road. I saw lots of folks going back and forth with nothing to do. If they would set them out a few rows of strawberries they would have a job the year round. I have discovered a crack shot remedy for killing bean beetles and all kinds of bugs. Just get you some of this Red Cross flour and sprinkle on them and they will sit right there and starve to death."

More About Mosquitoes

Day by day more people of Clanton are becoming worried and annoyed by pesky mosquitoes. Where are they coming from? is the question that is asked by everyone. Some have suggested that the newspapers raise a loud noise in the hope of getting the attention of the city authorities. I think a better plan is for those citizens who are bothered with mosquitoes to tell the town officials about it in person. That is what I am going to do about my part of it. From my own experience, and from what I have heard others say, I believe the question is of sufficient moment to command an investigation by the proper authorities. There surely must be great danger of an epidemic of malaria with as many mosquitoes as we have in Clanton this summer.

No Fertilizer Nor Work

Uncle Tom Littlefield is displaying some fine corn, which he declares he grew without any fertilizer or work. Samples of it are to be seen at The Union-Banner office. Uncle Tom has some of this kind of corn to sell for seed. It ought to prove a very popular variety if it will produce without fertilizer or work.

Legion Membership Cards Ready

Adjutant Vaughn C. McKee, of Chilton County Post, American Legion, reports that he has already received his batch of 1934 membership cards, and will be ready to start issuing them in a few days. All of the ex-soldiers should begin to make arrangements to enroll in the Legion. Membership of the local Post this year went just a shade over 60. With over 200 ex-soldiers in the county, the Post membership surely ought to go over the hundred mark easily.

Good Tariff Argument

At a recent local meeting a statesman who was trying to explain to his home folks why he pleaded for tariff protection for local industries and free trade for those of other states became somewhat tangled with his own words before he got through. And no wonder, for this is what he said: "Fellow citizens —if you don't stop shearing the wool off the sheep that lays the golden eggs you're going to pump it dry."—Pathfinder.

Yes, It Might Be Worse

A group of fellows gathered on my corner Tuesday afternoon. As usual, different comments were being offered upon the signs, conditions and prospects of the times. Tom McKee came along. "What have you got to say that might clear us up, Tom?" someone asked. "Well," he said, "I lost my fine mule yesterday, I haven't got very much to eat, no money to pay my debts with, the code has shut down my saw mill, and I haven't got enough Hoover Hay left to make a cigarette. Otherwise, I guess I might say that everything is going all right with me." That broke up the meeting.

Bibb Graves For Governor

Strange as it may seem to some of us, former Governor Bibb Graves appears to have the edge on the chances of being the next Governor of Alabama. This is, of course, a political possibility that will not be admitted by many Alabamians until after a whole lot of campaigning, politicking and voting has been done in our state. Bibb has cut out for himself a bargain that has never before been made by a Governor of Alabama—that of serving a term as chief executive, retiring for a term and then coming back for another four years at the capitol. But when we remember that Governor Bibb did lots of things no other Governor ever did, we may not find it so hard to imagine that ex-Governor Bibb may do something no other ex-Governor has ever done. It will be hot times in Alabama politics next year, and you may lay to that.

Warr Pleased With School

Principal L. C. Warr is literally beaming with satisfaction over the outlook for this year at Chilton County High School. Imagine the optimism it must require for him to venture the hope that the school will have a full term without interruption. That is faith for you all right, even if it is not bigger than a mustard seed. We hope his enthusiasm is prophetic of what is before the school. Mr. Warr is plannnig something in the way of a parents' visiting day right away. That is a fine idea. Every parent will enjoy a few hours visit to the school. It will do you good to go and see the fine order and system with which the place is run. I always did like to see a school run by the teachers. They can have so much better school than one run by the pupils.

Good for the Blues

Make a date with Scoutmaster Louie Smith and go with him to one of his Boy Scout meetings on a Friday night. It will be good for your blues. If you watch twenty or more peppery boys go through the scout games for an hour it will give you a new hold for the battle of business tomorrow. This brings me to the place where I shall say that Louie Smith has a most important job in directing those boys. If you have a boy in the Scouts, let me urge that you give the Scoutmaster and the boys some real support. Tell Louie you appreciate the effort he is making for the proper training of your boy. If you are the daddy of a boy not in the scouts, put him in there and get behind him for all you are worth. It is the best means you have of giving your boy the first and most important lessons in fair play and honest competition in dealing with his fellows.

Speaking of the Detroit banking investigation, it may be said that an inquiry about closed banks is about as productive of relief as an investigation of a theaire disaster. In one case it doesn't bring back the money, and in the other it doesn't restore the lives that were lost.

Young John Jacob Astor, the third, arriving at the age of twenty-one, has inherited an estate of many million dollars. Now, let's see whether he can hold on to it

Let us hope that one sound interpretation of the N. R. A. is "No Reds Allowed."

CHILTON COUNTY SOIL BUILDING ASSOCIATION IS FORMED HERE

At a meeting of Chilton County bankers at County Agent Stapp's office Tuesday afternoon, a movement was started to create more interest in soil building in Chilton County.

The meeting was called by "Key Banker," Mr. John C. Page. Mr. Page suggested the idea of an association for the purpose of creating more interest in soil building, and that prizes be offered to farmers who save most Austrian pea seed per acre, also for farmers making best showing as result of crops or peas or vetch turned under.

Mr. F. J. Callen, president of Peoples Savings Bank, suggested that membership be free and that funds for the prizes for this year be raised by the banks and other interested parties, and that possibly by another year members of the association could pay fees to be used as prizes.

J. C. Page, cashier of First National Bank, was elected president of the Chilton County Soil Building Association and C. E. Stapp was elected secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Stapp pointed out that we are interested in soil improvement, because better soils mean higher production at lower cost. Mr. Stapp stated that from a mass production standpoint we may have too much now, but that he doesn't know any one man in the county who is making too much cotton, corn or other crops per acre, and that he does know that some are cultivating soil so poor that the cost of production of any crop on it is high.

The bankers assembled felt optimistic about business conditions in general.

NEW CONSERVATION CAMPS IN ALABAMA

Washington, Sept. 12.—At least three new camps of the civilian conservation corps are to be established in Alabama for winter use, whether they will be in addition to the 18 already etablished in the state or shifts from some of the old camps has not been determined, but indications are the present 18 camps, each with approximately 200 youths, will be enlarged in numbers to well over 20 as some 300 camps in the north are to be transferred to the south for the cold weather.

Only one of the 18 old comps thus far has been approved for winter use in Alabama, that being State Park No. 1 near Geneva. The other 17 still are being checked for winter use.

New winter use camps for Alabama were decided upon Tuesday at Cheaha, Ciebourne County, State Park No. 2; Little River, State Park No. 3, in Monroe and Escambia Counties; and Weogufka, State Park No. 4, in Coosa County.

GIVING DIPHTHERIA TOXOID

Dr. O. L. Chason, of the Rockefeller Foundation and the State Board of Health, was in Chilton County again this week, following up his program of giving diphtheria toxoid to school children at eight points in the county.

He reports that the clinics were held last week according to schedule previously announced, and that over 800 tests were made. About ninety per cent of the tests were children. This week Dr. Chason is engaged in seeing those who had the tests and determining which need the toxoid, and in giving the toxoid to those who need it.

According to Dr. Chason, children below six years are most generally found to need diphtheria toxoid. In older people he advises that the test always be taken before giving toxoid, because there is a majority of older people who are already immune from diphtheria.

IN A CEMETERY AFTER MIDNIGHT

The Police Reporter has a story every day in The Birmingham Age-Herald, which he heads "After Midnight." It is necessary for us to borrow his heading to use as a part of ours to start off a story of a police happening here a few nights ago.

It was Sunday night, or rather Monday morning just after midnight. Uncle Billie Foshee and Deputy Lewis Gillespie were lying concealed in some shrubbery in the Clanton cemetery; and incidentally they were lying near a half-gallon jug about half full of spirits—not the kind of spirits that are supposed to be in cemeteries at such hours of the night—but liquid spirits. Soon the officers heard a rustling of feet approaching. Soon a bunch of three or four boys came in sight and went to the jug. Some of them apparently took a drink, and the officers made themselves known. One of the boys was caught, but he had only a chaser. The rest of them joined the bird gang, running over bushes, turning over tombstones and everything that got in their way. The only evidence left was part of a shirt and some shreds of clothing. Probably there is a black eye or so, where some of them collided with a tombstone.

This was what you might call a mixture of spirits.

Cotton Checks Are Expected Soon

On Monday of this week, Mr. C. E. Stapp sent the following telegram to C. A. Cobb, Cotton section, A. A. A., U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.:

"Taxes of more than six hundred farmers delinquent. They will have to pay extra cost after September 14. They are anxious for their cotton reduction checks to meet delinquent taxes.—C. E. Stapp, County Agent."

In reply, he received the following telegram: "C. E. Stapp, County Agent, Clanton, Ala. Regarding telegram September 11th. Batches of checks to the counties in the cotton belt aggregating many thousands are being mailed out daily. You should begin to receive your quota. E. A. Miller, Acting Chief Cotton Section."

Mr. Stapp is looking for checks to show up at any time and will send them out as soon as he receives them.

Mr. Stapp states that farmers who borrowed money from the government for 1933 crop production, and who are due checks for cotton reduction, may call at his office and get release of amount the government is due them.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Steele, of Rockford, were here Tuesday conferring with County Superintendent, Luther E. Little, in a comparison study of schools in the two counties. Mr. Steele is secretary to Superintendent J. G. Pinson of Coosa County.

The reason I thought so was because I could not collect. Everybody passed me up so easy it made my head swim. But I have been getting letters from the fellows that I owed and they told me times was better everywhere and that I had the wrong idea and to just get my mind changed and collect my accounts because I had to "come across" with what I owed.—So now please come one and all—you will find me at Lorenza Popwell's old and reliable stand near the courthouse. Lesson for September 17

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 8:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise: be thankful unto him, and bless his name. Psalm 100:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—In God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A King Worshiping God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Learning to Worship God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of a House of Worship.

I. Solomon Anointed King (I Kings 1:5-40).

The divine choice as to David's successor had not been known (v. 20). David is stirred to action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. At David's command the faithful three, Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah, speedily anointed Solomon king.

II. Solomon's Acts to Establish His Kingdom (I Kings 1:41-2:46). He noted certain dangerous elements which if allowed to develop would weaken, if not destroy, his rule.

1. Adonijah placed under surveillance (vv. 41-53). Placing him on good behavior displayed both clemency and dignity on the part of Solomon. Adonijah fled to the altar, not to worship God, but to save his life. His repentance was not real. Solomon ordered his execution (2:13-25).

2. Abiathar removed from the priesthood (2:26, 27). He had joined Adonijah in his plot of usurpation.

3. Joab executed (2:28-35). Joab was a party to Adonijah's rebellion. Besides this, he had treacherously murdered his rivals in the army.

4. Shimei executed (2:36-46). Solomon first paroled him and confined him to Jerusalem, but when he broke his parole, had him executed.

III. The Divine Favor Upon Solomon (1 Kings 3:4-14).

1. God's gracious offer (vv. 4, 5). Solomon made a lavish sacrifice, showing that he had strong impulses toward the Lord. This was followed by the Lord's gracious offer.

2. Solomon's wise choice (vv. 6-9). He was keenly sensible of the difficulty and of the responsibility of his position.

3. God's unstinted gift to Solomon (vv. 10-14). Because Solomon appeared before the Lord in the proper attitude, God gave him more than he asked for.

IV. Solomon Building the Temple (1 Kings 5:1-8:66).

1. Preparation (5:1-18). He secured from King Hiram:

a. Wood for beams, ceilings, etc.
b. Stones for the great foundation.
c. Skilled workmen.

2. The erection of the temple (6:1-38).

a. Located on Mt. Moriah (II Chron. 3:1).

b. Dimensions. Ninety feet long; thirty feet wide; forty-five feet high—this on the assumption that the cubit was eighteen inches in length.

c. Its contents.

(1) The brazen alter. (2) The layer. (3) The golden candlesticks. (4) The cherubim.

3. The dedication of the temple (8:1-66). The dedicatory services consisted of:

a. Bringing up the ark (vv. 1-11). The ark was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among his people through Jesus Christ (John 1:14).

b. Solomon's address to the people (vv. 12-21). He pointed out to them that God had chosen David to be king, yet did not allow him to build the temple, but promised that his son should complete the work.

c. Solomon's dedicatory prayer (vv. 22-53). In his prayer, Solomon gratefully acknowledged God's goodness in the past, and plead that the promises made to his father should be verified. He asked that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple, so that:

(1) In case of contention he would be their judge (vv. 31, 32).

(2) If smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34).

(3) In famine, upon confession, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36).

(4) In pestilence and sickness, God would hear and forgive (vv. 37-40).

(5) In case of the coming of the foreigner, because of the news of God's favor toward Jerusalem, his prayer should be heard (vv. 41-43).

(6) In going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45).

(7) If taken captive, God would hear their prayers and restore them (vv. 46-53).

d. Solomon blesses the people (vv. 54-61).

e. Solomon offering sacrifices of thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

STORRS CONTINUES FIGHT ON COTTON GINNERS' CODE

Seth P. Storrs, Commissioner of Agriculture, went to Memphis Monday to fight the new National Cotton Ginners' Code which, he says, proposes to give ginners $5.50 per 500 pound bale for ginning cotton.

Commissioner Storrs filed a brief asking that ginning charges not exceed $3.50 per bale which he believes to be a fair price.

"Most of our Alabama ginners are charging an average of about $3.50 per bale including bagging and ties and are satisfied, therefore, I am vigorously opposed to the adoption of any code which will increase the ginning cost to Alabama farmers of $2 per bale or a total of about $2,000,000," he said. "I cannot see where the proposed code or any other condition or circumstance warrants an increase in ginning to over $3.50 per 500 pound bale including bagging and ties."

Mr. Storrs also filed a brief against other sections of the proposed code declaring: "If adopted they will force hundreds of our small ginners out of the ginning business. These ginners are performing an essential function and should be permitted to continue operation."

"Everybody interested in the 'Cotton Dollar' should write immediately to Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, Washington, D. C., urging him to protect the hundreds of thousands cotton farmers against unfair ginning charges" he declared. "Cotton seed and cotton seed prices are too low to think of increasing ginning charges."

Mrs. S. Lande has returned to her home in Chicago after spending six weeks in Clanton with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lande.

Teacher—Johnny, would you like to go to heaven?

Johnny—Yes, but mother told me to come right home after school.

Shocked old lady—And on the way here we passed about twenty-five people in parked cars.

Young hostess—Oh, I'm sure you are mistaken. It must have been an even number.

Major—Haven't you been here long enough to know how to stand at attention?

Fresh Frosh (attired in uniform twice his size)—I am standing at attention, sir. It is my uniform that is at ease.

Country gentleman—Here, hold my horse a minute, will you?

Senator from Kentucky—Sir, I am a member of congress.

C.G.—That's all right. I'll trust you.

Diner—Here's a piece of rubber in my hash.

Waiter—No doubt. The motor is replacing the horse everywhere.

"Shipwrecked for a whole week."

"My, my, do tell."

"Lived a whole week on a can of sardines."

"Tsk, tsk, how could you move around?"

ELLIS YEARGER DIED

Our hearts are grieved over the death of our dear friend, Mr. Ellis Yearger, who was instantly killed by lightning last Friday, September 8. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife, one sister, four brothers, an uncle, grandmother, Mrs. Black, also his mother and father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Maddox, and a host of friends.

He was loved by everyone who knew him. He was 23 years old and was married to Miss Louise Maddox June 27, 1931. He joined the church last Sunday night, September 3. We truly believe he made his peace, calling and election sure with God, and that he is not dead, but only asleep with Jesus.

It is hard indeed to give him up, but we should remember our loss is heaven's gain, and we know that is where he is. He was another one of those precious flower buds that God plucked for his bouquet up in heaven. We should all live a life, so when our time has come to go, we can join him with a smile.

Funeral services were held at New Salem Church Sunday, September 10. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge.—A Friend.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glass and family, of Florida, have been visiting Mrs. Glass's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Webb and family spent the week end in Birmingham visiting friends.

Don't forget our preaching services on the first Sunday in October; also Saturday night before.

County Farm Agent's Notes

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12. — Through authority granted by an act passed at the last special session of the legisature, I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, has prescribed reefs and bottoms in Mobile Bay and adjoining waters that may be dredged for oysters. The oyster season opened September 1 and will continue until May 15.

Commissioner Quinn, in a letter to Captain W. E. Akridge, chief state oyster inspector at Bayou LaBatre, designated the areas that may be dredged as the bottoms in all waters north of a line extending from No. 2 beacon in Mobile Bay to the Mobile channel, which includes Cedar Point Reef, Kings Bayou Reef, Buoy Reef, White House Reef, and Fowl River Reef, all in Mobile County.

"All persons using dredges as provided by law must conform strictly to the law," said the commissioner. "Failure or refusal to do this requires that the Commissioner of Game and Fisheries, in addition to the courts imposing a fine for such violation, must cancel the dredging license which cannot be renewed for a period of 12 months from the date of cancellation."

He directed Captain Akridge and his corps of assistants to closely supervise the dredging of these areas and prevent depletion of stock for replenishing the bottoms.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

Rye, oats, vetch, Canadian and Austrian peas sowed now will furnish excellent grazing next February and March when the dairy herd is in need of something green.

Cows bred in September, October, and November will calve next June, July and August during the peak of the milk season when dairy products will likely bring the lowest prices of the year.

September brings us again to silo filling time—see that all harvesting machinery is in ample working order.

Culled sweet potatoes make a splendid feed for cows. See that they are finely chopped to prevent the cow from choking.

BRIEF FARM TOPICS

Dry cotton, a loose seed roll, and moderate rates of speed are factors in ginning which help give cotton of superior quality.

Many farmers are beginning to raise mules in order to avoid having to buy them at high prices.

Erosion is becoming known as the farmer's worst enemies. It will soon be time for building and repairing terraces.

Legumes add nitrogen and humus to soils, thereby increasing profits.

Miss Carrie Foshee has returned from Birmingham, where she spent last week visiting friends and relatives.

INTERPRETATION OF TERM "AGRICULTURAL WORKER"

Washington.—The following interpretation of "agricultural workers," having been approved by Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the National Recovery Administration's Labor Advisory Board, Charles Brand, Coadministrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Wayne C. Taylor, executive assistant to Coadministrator George Peek has been made public by NRA:

"Agricultural workers" are all those employed by farmers on the farm when they are engaged in growing and preparing for sale the products of the soil and or livestock; also, all labor used in growing and preparing perishable agricultural commodities for market in original perishable fresh form. When workers are employed in processing farm products or preparing them for market, beyond the stage customarily performed within the area of production, such workers are not to be deemed agricultural workers."

PRICE DISPARITY IS LESS SERIOUS NOW

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 12. — Since March 15 some progress has been made in closing the big gap of disparity between the prices of things farmers buy and prices of things they sell.

Prices of things purchased rose from 100 per cent of the pre-war level on March 15 to 112 per cent of that level on August 15. During the same period the prices of thnigs farmers sell rose from 50 per cent of the pre-war level on March 15 to 72 per cent of that level on August 15. Thus the prices of things purchased rose only 12 per cent during the period, while the prices of things sold rose 22 per cent. The figures are given by the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The aim of the new Agricultural Adjustment Administration is to bring a parity between the prices of things farmers sell and the things they buy. It is desired that if farmers pay 112 per cent of the pre-war level that prices of things they sell be at 112 per cent of that level. On August 15 the things they sell being at 72, lacked 40 points of being at parity, but since March 15 some progress has been made because of things farmers sell rose 22 per cent and prices of things they buy rose only 12 per cent.

It is interesting also to see what changes are taking place with different farm commodities. During the period from March 15 to August 15 cotton rose from 49 to 71, or 22 per cent, which is the same as the average gain for all farm commodities sold. Cotton seed made a bigger gain, from 42 to 71, or 29 points. Corn made a bigger gain, that is, 44 per cent; and wool a still bigger gain, 77 per cent.

Animal products, exclusive of wool, made much smaller gains. They are as follows: Hogs, 6 per cent; cattle, 7 per cent; chickens, 4 per cent; and eggs, 11 per cent.

LEGUME PLANTING WILL BEGIN SOON

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 12.—Beginning September 15 and continuing through the first half of October, Alabama farmers will plant thousands of acres of hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas. This will be done to enrich land, as these legumes gather nitrogen from the air and store it and humus in the soil.

"Vetch and Austrian peas should be planted either during the last half of September or the first half of October," said J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He continued: "Hairy vetch should be drilled at the rate of not less than 20 pounds of seed per acre, and Austrian winter peas at the rate of not less than 30 pounds per acre."

"The legumes should have a liberal application of phosphate at planting time. Apply superphosphate at the rate of 400 pounds per acre or the equivalent in basic slag. Basic slag may be mixed with the seed and inoculating soil and put through the distributor without injury to the inoculation, but superphosphate may kill the inoculation if used in this manner. Basic slag also contains lime, which has been shown to be very beneficial to winter legumes.

Experimental results and field experience show that drilling is the safest and surest methods of planting.

It is essential that both hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas be inoculated if being grown on the land for the first time. Farmers should see their county agent for instructions on inoculation and other problems in connection with planting legumes.

TREE RELATIVES OF CARROTS AND CELERY

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12.—That carrots, parsnip, celery and parsley have near relatives that are trees is not generally known, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. However, certain species of Peucedanum, which belongs to the same family as the plants named, develop into tree forms, according to Colonel Bunker.

The carrot family, scientifically konwn as the Apiaceae or Umbelliferae, is one of the largest among plants. Nearly all of its members are herbaceous in form. According to Colonel Bunker, however, in the genus Peucedanum at least two African species are trees. One of the species grows to a height of twenty-five feet with compound umbels of small white flowers.

Running gin saws at too rapid a rate results in cutting of the fiber and lowering the grade. Under no condition should cotton be picked, stored, or ginned while wet. If ginned when wet, the length of the staple is often shortened, and the grade lowered, in some instances as much as four grades. Exposure to dew, dust and rain lower the grade and lessen the price.—Progressive Farmer.

You can control the insects on your cabbage and collards by spraying with three teaspoons full of nicotine sulphate, the same amount of arsenate of lead and a lump of soap about the size of a walnut to three gallons of water.—Prof. Cooper in Southern Agriculturist.

"We Serve to Serve Again"

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

In the second chapter of the first Epistle of John the inspired writer says that he has written unto the little children in order that they may not sin. However, if they do sin, he assures them that they have an advocate with the Father.

In this instance "little children" means "born ones." The Bible nowhere calls any man God's child who has not been born a second time. God created all men, but there is not one thing in the Bible which teaches the universal fatherhood of God. The New Testament teaches that we are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ.

God's standard to those who have been born again is "Don't sin." God always asks us for the best. But infinite grace provides for the worst. "Don't sin," says the Father, "but if you do, you have an advocate."

It is wonderful when we understand that God is our Father. We are not tramps. We don't go to the back door and ask the lady of the house to give us a piece of bread We are children. We go into the dining room and sit down at the table and say "Pass the biscuit."

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me," is a Bible quotation. This doesn't mean a man can do everything. I can't fly. I can not play the violin like a master. But I can do everything that God wants me to do. God did not intend for me to fly; He did not intend for me to be a master violinist. But God did intend for me to fill my divinely appointed place in the universe. So within the bounds of God's plan for my life, I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. By and through the power of a risen Christ I can do all God wants me to do.

"Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." A father said to me one time, "I don't care what my daughter has done, I'm going to stand by her. She is my child." I think our Heavenly Father who knoweth our frame and remembereth that we are dust, will at least be as kind to us as our earthly father who can't know all about us.

LEGION URGES GOVERNOR TO CALL EXTRA SESSION SOON

Montgomery, Sept. 8.—Teachers and school patrons throughout the state were vitally interested in the news released from Montgomery on Thursday of the past week to the effect that a committee from the American Legion had called upon Governor Miller and requested him to convene the legislature in special session to provide additional revenue for schools. The committee outlined to the governor the conditions which make it impossible for the majority of the schools to run but half a year without additional money.

The governor did not commit himself as to the extra session except to say that he would issue the call if and when he is convinced that a crisis in the school situation arises. When he was told that some teachers are being paid salaries as low as $40 per month, the governor was quoted as saying that such sum is too low, and that he himself would not teach for that amount.

The Legion committee at a later meeting decided to direct each post in the state to compile immediately facts concerning the local school situations, and to see to what extent these conditions demand relief. The Legion is pledged to do what it can to guarantee a seven months school term throughout the state.

Some of the facts on which the committee based its request for a special session are as follows:

Recent investigations show that only one-half of the 1932 appropriations for schools will be paid for the year beginning October 1. These appropriations are greatly reduced as compared with those of the 1927 quadrennium.

Advance reports on tax assessments for the new year show very large reductions in many of the counties, and that unpaid taxes will further reduce the revenue made available for the schools.

Because of the sump in school revenue during the past two years, a number of systems have anticipated much of the revenue which will become available after October 1, leaving little monty for operating the new school term.

Only two counties, so far reported, Jefferson and Mobile, have planned a nine-months term; few have planned a term ranging from five to eight months; while schools enrolling more than half of the children of the state will be operated for a half year or less, under present conditions.

The committee that called upon Governor Miller was composed of a representative from each of the nine congressional districts, and of five school men, members of the Legion who acted as advisory sub-committee. The delegation was headed by Commander Arthur Abramson, of Florence.

SACRED HARP CONVENTION AT NEW HARMONY, LOMAX

The Chiton County Sacred Harp Singing Convention will be held at New Harmony church, near Lomax, on the third Sunday in September, 17. Visiting singers from Perry and Shelby counties are expected. All singers and lovers of music are invited.—W. L. Sanders.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. MASSEY

On Sunday night, September 3rd, near 11 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mrs. Daisie Massey and took her away to her home in Heaven to rest. Death came after a long illness. She was operated on in May, and never regained her health. Her suffering was very great, yet she bore it patiently. Everything was done that could be, but God saw best and called her home. All her children but one was at her bedside when death came.

Mrs. Massey was a devout Christian and a faithful mother. She was loved by all who knew her. The beautiful life she lived not only won her many friends but made them love her. She has been a member of Liberty Hill Baptist church for twenty-eight years. Since there has been a Sunday school at Mt. Pleasant she has been a teacher, until her health failed.

Before her marriage she was Miss Daisie Baxley, a native of Coosa county. She was nearing her fifty-fourth year. Her husband, G. H. Massey, had preceded her to the grave over thirteen years ago. She leaves seven children—six boys and one girl: Aron of Pittsburg, Pa., Stilman of Birmingham, Monroe of Bartow, Fla., J. C. of Selma, Lewin, Ilar and Roddie of Canton. Five brothers and four sisters survive: Will and Dixon Baxley of Weogufka, Rev. A. B. Baxley of Calera, King and Charley Baxley of Texas, Mrs. Freda Askins of Selma, Mrs. Mattie Crawford of Shelby, Mrs. Clemmie Richardson of Texas, Mrs. Stella Richardson of Texas. There are four half brothers and one half sister, and a step mother; also two grand children, Daisy and Willodean Massey of Birmingham.

She was laid to rest in Liberty Hill cemetery Monday, with Rev. W. P. Lowery conducting the funeral, assisted by Rev. A. L. Foshee. Pall bearers were: Ralph Mims, Dick Massey, Bill Wilson, Carl Pate, Luther Mims, Houston Melton. Flower girls were Mearl Wilson, Mayme Logan, Frances Massey, Bessie Marie Eiland. Spigener was in charge.

The large crowd and the beautiful floral offerings showed that she had a great number of friends.

LIBERTY HILL SINGING

The Liberty Hill singing society met last Sunday afternoon. The society was called to order by the chairman, Hiram Littlejohn. Mr. D. T. Melton led the opening prayer.

Directors for the afternoon were: Hiram Littlejohn, L. T. Grant, Kermit Lowery, Marvin Lowery, Houston Melton, Leonard Culp and D. T. Melton.

Pianist was Miss Olene Mims.

We were glad to have so many visitors present, and we want them to come again. Our singing society meets every second Sunday afternoon. Remember visitors are always welcome. —Secretary.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By DAN SMITH

Over a week has passed and now everything is sailing along smoothly. During the first week it was rather difficult to arrange a schedule to fit the regular students and those who did not attend the private school the last term of last year. For the benefit of those who are interested in this fact, I will explain how the faculty is meeting this important problem. Those students who did not return for the second semester last year have been allowed to advance a grade and pick up what he missed when he stayed out of private school. There are a few exceptions to this, some students are doubling up on their work and others very few are waiting until the second semester of this year begins before entering.

Our new teachers are certainly making a hit with us students according to the remarks I hear, not here and there but everywhere. Yes sir, Miss Gulledge,, Miss Smilie and Mr. Searcy have made good impressions on the students. But wait, folks, we haven't had any examinations or received any grades from them yet.

Nope, Gabby, good ole Gabby didn't leave us. We need you on that football field and in the class, too, Gabby.

Along with our football team we need and need them badly, some real good enthusiastic cheer leaders. Somebody who can get on the sidelines and lead the students in those school spirited yells that put that punch in those tired bodies on the gridiron. How does the team know that we appreciate their efforts. No way except by seeing us on the sidelines, not just a handful but the entire student body, and hear those yells. Other schools do it and there is no reason why we can't. If it's finances, Mr. Warr and Mr. Walker and maybe some of the other students could see to that.

We have almost three hundred students enrolled. There should be at least one hundred and fifty at each home game.

Too bad, Bill, you have a competitor. There he goes, Roy Wilkinson.

There are still a few students who want everything their way, regardless of the hardships and difficulties it will put on the teachers and other students. They will learn some day where they are wrong.

The editor of this column would greatly appreciate all the contributions any student and any teacher has ot offer. Any suggestions you have to offer or any criticisms you want to give, please don't hesitate.

Is this school too small for an Honor Council? It would be a mighty fine and noble thing to have at C. C. H. S. I know that I am stepping on some students' toes when I say we need one badly.

There is nothing to prevent a real instructive, educative, interesting and ideal academic and atheletic season this year, filled with a zest of school spirit, enjoyment and pleasure to liven things up. Our faculty is capable of providing each and everyone of the above qualities and to make this program perfect we need only the cooperation of each student as an individual and every class as a whole. And up to now it seems that there will be no doubt about the students doing their part.

Things are straightened out now and this week we are ready to go. Don't some of us be contrary and wander off the wrong track and get lost. Don't some of us lag behind. All of that will throw a monkey wrench in the wheels of this school. Come on, let's get the spirit of real Americans and the spirit of the New Deal and GO.

What's in a name. Watch in the near future for some queer and humorous names. Yes right here. What name has the largest representation? What name has the smallest? Who has the oldest name?

Say, why can't the students take a hand in this NRA movement? I believe we can. Trade with those stores that display the Blue Eagle. Push the NRA. Give Miss Nira a rush. It is up to the public to do their own selves some good.

Chilton County High School should be congratulated by its students, its patrons and all others interested in education. This school is offering to its students a course as rich as any school of its size and as rich as some that are larger. Under the direction of our capable faculty we students can have the opportunity of being well tutored in four of the most practical sixes. This school includes in its course: home economics, physics, chemistry, and biology all in one year. We will not now have to go to college lacking one of these important courses. Congratulations to our faculty who by hard effort and no few sacrifices have provided those who graduate from C. C. H. S. a thorough fundamental training in the four most important sciences. This year will go down in our school history as the year providing the most for we students

There are some classes here that need a little discipline. It may be the teacher, it may be the students. I think it's the latter.

Oh boy, look at Mack's sporty shoes. Another woman?

Eight, 26, 9, 26, 6, 14, 22, 26, 13, 15, 12, 7, 8, 12, 14, 22 added together is what? That's what is on the faces of those little freshmen as they come out of those math classes. Poor things, wait until they hit advanced algebra.

John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive, of Opelika, was in Clanton Tuesday in the interest of scout work of the Central Alabama Area.

John Cooper, son of Brady Cooper, of Mt. Creek, leaves Saturday for a visit to Chicago and the World's Fair. He will go alone on the train, and will be gone for about two weeks.

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

Mooted questions nowadays in the Capital City are, "When will the Governor call the legislature into extraordinary session?" and "When will draft sell for five cents?"

Political gossip around the Gay-Teague lobby has it that Judge Hugh Merrill of Anniston will be the north Alabama man to beat the field for Governor. Bibb Graves cohorts, however, don't seem to be worried the least bit about sectionalism, "We have got 'em beat no matter from which section they come," they say with much emphasis. On the other hand, anti-Graveites point with confidence to the fact that no Alabama Governor, no matter how outstanding his administration, has been able to come back "Comer tried it," they say "and failed, and when he failed, no chance was left for anybody else." Maybe Graves can break the precedent; maybe not.

Dr. Henry J. Willingham, head of State Teachers College, Florence, has added another page to his book of achievements. This time it is the distinction of being the best political prognosticator in Alabama. The achievement was accomplished during the recent income tax campaign. Dr. Willingham was the directing head of the campaign and as everybody knows, it was the greatest victory of its kind ever won in this State. Fully one week before the votes were cast, the Doctor told the world, in public print, that the tax amendment would win by 20,000 majority It did and then some. The Doctor is very conservative, else he would have missed the count by about ten votes. He said that the opposition would carry eight counties. It carried five. He said that every county in the State, with the exception of Houston, would give the amendment a larger vote than was accorded it in November of last year. The guess was 100 per cent correct, based on a ratio of the 1932 and 1933 balloting. He came within three votes of guessing the exact vote in more than twenty counties.

With such a record, we would like to ask Dr. Willingham to tell us who the next Governor will be. Dimes to doughnuts he could do so and not bat an eye.

Newspaper scribes will read with interest an announcement that Billie Moffatt, head of the Gay-Teague Hotel, has donated one of the large rooms on the mezzanine floor to the exclusive use of visiting editors. The room will be equipt with every means for comfort and convenience. Typewrters, writing desks, and stationery will be available for writing emergency "copy." A reading table with current literature, deep-upholstered furniture, a radio and other things will add to the comfort of the visitors. The room will be open at all times and every editor will find welcome written all over the place. This columnist will be an official host. The room will be ready for use on or about September 15th.

IN MEMORY OF A. C. CLACKLER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express our thanks and appreciation shown our father and grandfather during his illness and death.

Everything possible was done, but God saw fit to take him to a better home. We miss him, but are happy to think of his farewell statement—I am read to go. May we all realize that we must make our last statement soon. Even though we live to be considered an aged person here, it is only a few days, and let's all be able to say as grandfather did—I am ready to go.

We especially thank the doctors and Martin and Sons for their considerate attention; also the people of Providence community, where he was laid to rest Sunday, September 10th.

He leaves to mourn his loss, six boys, one girl, and a host of grandchildren and friends.—J. A. Clackler and family, by Mrs. Hattie Jones, grandaughter.

How You Can Save Time and Money In Buying at Retail Stores

1.—Make A List of What You Want

The subject of buying groceries is chosen for the first discussion in a series of suggestions on the subject, "How You Can Save Money in Buying at Retail Stores."

This subject was suggested to me in this way: I went to a grocery store and said to the clerks and the manager, "I want to educate the public toward better methods and more systematic practices in buying their groceries. What is the most needful thing you could suggest that your customers be taught?" With one accord they all agreed that the one thing that would bring more order into the grocery buying, and save more time to both the customers and the store operators would be for the buyers to make a list of what they want before they come to the store.

Now, for the sake of impressing this first lesson on the minds of my readers, I want you to come with me to a very busy grocery store in Clanton on Saturday afternoon and let us observe just two people as they come to the store to do some buying.

Here comes a man into the store. He has come to buy the groceries he needs for his family a week. Perhaps he and his folks will be busy picking cotton all next week, and will not come to town again before next Saturday.

The man comes in apparently with no accurate idea of what he wants or needs. The clerk approaches to wait on him. He wants something but does not know exactly what it is. The clerk gives a subdued sigh, rubs his hands, scratches his head, and otherwise shows signs of nervousness.

Finally, he grabs the first article at hand and suggests maybe this is what the customer wants. No, that is not it. Now, the customer thinks of one thing he wants. That is secured by the clerk and placed on the counter. There is a general conglomeration of other clerks and other customers in the same muddle as the one we have selected to observe.

Our customer whom we are watching pushes his way through the turmoil of the crowded store away down to the far end. He looks at things as he comes to them. The clerk does his best to stay in touch with the customer. Finally he sees something else he remembers he wants. All the while the exasperated clerk has tried to keep at hand and be ready for action when another definite idea struck his buyer. Now, that has settled two of the things the man wanted.

In this same haphazard, confusing, and uncertain fashion we watch this customer blunder through the process of buying a dozen or more items, taking perhaps thirty minutes of time. Then when the purchases are all assembled the customer happens to remember he wanted six pounds of something instead of three. Five more minutes are consumed in rectifying this mistake. At last the poor clerk has to assume that the man has bought all he needs. The man is slow in getting out his wallet to pay the bill, and the clerk is more nervous than ever, because there are other wandering aimless customers coming in to harass him. But what can he do about it but grin and endure the agony.

Let a grocery store clerk get hold of a dozen or so of such customers on a busy Saturday in Clanton and by night he will be a fit subject for the bughouse. Also the manager will soon be crazy too, because he can't get enough clerks in his store to wait on the trade when they come shopping with such haphazard ideas of what they want.

Look now. Here comes another customer we want to observe. It is a lady who has come for a few days supply of groceries for her family. The important part of her shopping took place before she left home. She took an hour's time to study carefully what she needs, and made an accurate list of everything before she started for the store.

Observe the clerk when the lady enters the store. She hands him the list, and he smiles, bows and scrapes with much evidence of pleasure. The lady takes her place beside the counter. The clerk begins to dodge here and there, picking up things with lightning speed as he passes showcases and shelves.

In about two minutes he has assembled for his customer every article she had on her list. The amount is quickly calculated on the adding machine. The lady pays the bill. The clerk piles all the things in her car at the curb, and enters the store ready for another customer.

Here is the conclusion we get from watching these two people in the store: If folks would take time to figure out what they need, make their lists, and do their buying in a systematic manner, it would save much time for the store clerks. And time saved is money saved.

HOME LOANS NOW POSSIBLE

W. M. Polk, Appraiser, and Lawrence F. Gerald, Attorney, Are Local Men in Charge of Government's Aid Plan

An enactment of the last national congress was a plan whereby small home owners over the country, who had mortgaged their homes, could borrow money from the government at a lower rate of interest, and thus stay off foreclosures under mortgages. A branch of the government, under the treasury department, was set up by this Act, which is called the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Below we are printing some excerpts from a government bulletin, explaining some of the more important phases of the scheme. For information other than given below, we refer you to either Mr. W. M. Polk or Mr. Lawrence Gerald, who have been appointed to take care of the work in this county:

Financial Organization, Management

The Corporation has capital stock subscribed by the United States of America of $200,000,000, and may issue bonds up to $2,000,000,000 in order to carry out the objects for which it was created.

The earnings of the corporation will be derived from interest received on the loans made and|or temporary investments in Government securities. The margin between the rate of interest paid on the bonds and the interest received on the loans and investments will, it is anticipated, cover the expense of operation and, eventually, the setting up of adequate surplus and reserves. The organization of the corporation has just been completed. Financial statements will be issued from time to time after the corporation is in full operation.

The five members of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, a bi-partisan body created under the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, constitute the Board of Directors of the corporation. The operations of the corporation are separate and distinct from those of the Federal Home Loan Bank system.

Operations

The corporation will function for a 3-year period ending June 13, 1936, by (1) making an exchange of its bonds in acquisition of first mortgages on homes, and (2) making loans in cash in certain cases. Negotiations will be conducted through local managers who have been appointed in every state. At the expiration of the 3-year period the corporation will not make additional loans, but will remain in existence until final liquidation. In extending loans, the following are the principal conditions and limitations imposed by the law:

(a) The obligations must have originated on the house prior to June 13, 1933, when the act became a law.

(b) The property must not exceed $20,000 in value, based on present-day appraisals.

(c) The lona cannot exceed the present lien indebtedness (which included delinquent taxes, interest, repairs, etc.) against the property and is limited to 80 per cent of the appraised value if the loan is made in bonds, nor can it in any event exceed $14,000. If made in bands, the rate of interest charged the borrower is not over 5 per cent. These terms are also authorized in redeeming homes lost by foreclosure within 2 prior years.

(d) The loan if made in cash (where the creditor will not take bonds and the situation is especially acute) cannot exceed 40 per cent of the value of the property, and the rate of interest charged the borrower is not over 6 per cent.

(e) If the loan is made to pay taxes, assessments, repairs, etc., where there is no lien, it may be made in cash but cannot exceed 50 per cent of the value and the rate of interest charged is not over 5 per cent.

(f) The loan must be secured by a first lien on the home.

(g) The property must be occupied by the owner as a home or held as a homestead and designed for not more than four families.

(h) All loans shall be amortized within a period of not exceeding 15 years, the corporation having the right to grant extensions under warrantable conditions in accordance with the provisions of the act.

Severe penalties are provdied in the act for false statements and willful overvaluing of property. All appraisals are made by employees of the corporation, and also by independent local appraisers who are carefully selected by the board. Only appraisals of recognized experience, integrity, and knowledge of local values are eligible for appointment. In making the title examinations all loans are certified as first liens by responsible title companies or attorneys.

RELIEF WORK IS TO BE EXTENDED

Commissioners Court Passed Order To Carry on R. F. C. Work Program In County Until December 31st

At a meeting of the Commissioners Court held last Friday, there was passed unanimously an order continuing the R. F. C. work program in the county until December 31st. Under this order the relief work will be conducted during the months of October, November and December, upon the same basis as has been done during August and September, the county appropriating a certain amount of funds out of the gasoline tax, against which the state relief administration puts up a fund, all of which constitutes the relief fund for the county.

In view of the great number of people who are being cared for on the relief program, it is commendable on the part of our county officials that they have determined to use every possible means available to them to help out our suffering populace.

According to the records of Miss Kitty Clyde Austin's office, there are over fifteen hundred families in Chilton County who have been on the relief list. Those people have been provided sufficient work to keep their families from starvation, and in many cases medical attention has been given to the sick.

With the approach of the winter months the need of the unfortunate will be more acute. Clothing will have to be provided. Sickness will be more widespread, and the only means at hand for relief is through the R. F. C. funds available. While there may be a few of the people who are in comfortable circumstances who will criticize the relief program, there are hundreds and hundreds of poor men, fathers, mothers, boys and girls, who will rejoice with a renewed hope when they know that our county has determined to carry on the program of relief as far as the last day of this year.

For each month during the year Miss Pardue will prepare a definite schedule of work under the subject allotted for that month. This schedule will be announced at the beginning of each month, giving the dates and places where meetings will be held.

INDIANS ARE PROUD OF ORIGIN OF BLUE EAGLE

Washington. — Some persons with leisure attributed NRA's energetic emblem to foreign origin. There were traducers who tried to label it a German or a Russian importation. One stilted editorial published in a community which subsequently "went 100 per cent for NRA", there being not a store or head of family in it which did not sign the president's reemployment agreement, undertook to show its Austrian origin. Meanwhile, no one working under it in Washington had time to explain that its author, a young Philadelphia artist, is an authority on the subject. He became one after borrowing an armful of books from the Indian Bureau and reading them through during four nights and days. The fact is the Blue Eagle far antedates the Pilgrim Fathers, and is an American, and as exclusively American, as anything can be. It is the thunderbird, ancient emblem used by the Navajo and Pueblo Indians as a good omen, a symbol of good times. That the old bird is living up to the reputation, even in the barren spaces where those more intimately acquainted with its purpose still reside, is attested in many cordial messages to NRA from the Indians of the far West.

Red Cross Policy Is Told By Stapp

Not the Aim to Help Those Who Sit and Wait For Help

Mr. Stapp, chairman of the Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross, makes the following announcement:

"The Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross desires to take care of needy cases as far as possible in order to help relieve undue suffering and distress. It is not the policy of the Red Cross to help those who sit and wait for help."

Mr. Stapp states that recently numerous cases have been reported to him that some of the people in the County are refusing to accept work at reasonable wages. He requested that all such cases be reported to him and that an investigation will be made, and if found true, persons offered work at reasonable wages, whether in money or food stuff, will be discontinued help from charity.

Mr. Stapp feels that every person who can make his or her way should do so without caling on charity, and that very strict attention is going to be given these cases in the future.

Considerable damage was done by fire at the home of Leonard Hays in Thorsby last Thursday. It is thought the blaze started from the stove flue. Damage was chiefly on the roof of the buliding. Water used in extinguishing the fire marred the inside of the house.

All of the contents of the home were taken out before the fire was stopped.

Another fire in Thorsby about two o'clock Wednesday morning is reported to have completely destroyed a vacant house belonging to Henderson Hays. The fire was discovered by Akins Collins, who got up early to start on a trip to Florida. The alarm was spread but to was too late to save the building.

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

If you want to GET RID of Constipation worries—

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the unwise choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable; you can make constipated spells as rare as colds.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:

First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Syrup pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By DAN SMITH

Our chapel speaker last Wednesday was a beloved former member of our faculty, Prof. Luther E. Little. And did he get a welcome when he came upon the stage? He did and how? We were glad to have Mr. Little back with us for a while and I believe he was sort of glad to be back again too. He made a fine speech phares of the Constitution of the United States. He explained to us our ed States. He explained to us how our president got his power to make the moves that Roosevelt has made since his term began. We all enjoyed his brief but interesting talk immensely, and hope to see him back amongst us again.

Not much school spirit was shown last Thursday at the students' meeting. But I think their main trouble is that we we are shy and really have the school spirit, but are timid when the time comes to show it. Come on out of that. You can't learn to swim until you go in water.

Let's give our new cheer leaders all the cooperation we have. They will need it Four or five people yelling won't amount to much but one hundred mouths open make a difference.

Pat the Jr. III civics class on the back for that splendid poster made by them, boosting the students' cooperation with our football team. If we all were only like that!

Our first game ended in a victory, 13 to 0 for dear ole C. C. H. S. Great work our team did. Verbena was no easy meat. And since we have been training only nine days we should be proud of our eleven. They are working hard for us so why shouldn't we show our appreciation of their efforts and come out on the field every Friday and root for them.

Hats off to that group of girls who under the direction of our cheer leaders, Mary Edith Jones, Jeanette Summers and Dan Smith, really brought out that genuine school spirit last Friday. There was not a boy, a single soliatry boy, who helped those girls. Looks as if the girls have a lot more school spirit. Those boys were just shy. They will do one hundred per cent better next time. Come on, boys, show the girls that a queen can't beat a king.

Don't forget the pep meeting tomorrow. Let's give our team a good send off.

There are two passes to our next home game waiting for the person or persons who submits the best two yells. Put a lot of pep in them.

Now it is time for class elections. Let's get busy. School has been going three weeks.

How about some new songs. A new school song will be introduced some time in the near future and it's a knockout, and how? It was written by two members of our student body and has the tune of a popular song, "Marching Along Together." Let's all learn this tune and be ready to sing it when the words are issued.

It's sad but true. C. C. H. S. is slowly beginning to be thought of as a school with no spirit. Outsiders who attended the games in the past commented on the lack of school spirit the student body displayed. Listen, we have it in us, so let's fool everybody and show them that we DO have some school spirit.

Hope to see some of this year's graduates making a name for themselves.

We were glad to have two former students among us last Friday. They were Margaret Jones, president of the Seniors last year, Mary Robinson and Clyde Jones. Margaret assumed her old role as cheer leader at the pep meeting in chapel Friday and put some real spirit in those yells too.

I really would like to know just how many read this space filler I write.

Two brothers. Almost alike and one is named Dolphine and the other Delphine. Poor teachers.

Appears like HE has a competitor in the form of a former alumni. Don't know who HE is? See week before last's paper.

Wonder what the senior class will leave as a memorial this year. Annual? Another gate entrance? or what have you?

Nelson Parrish, graduate of dear ole C. C. H. S. is making a name for himself at Auburn. This year he was highly commended for and awarded the post as Executive Cadet Captain of the Battalion Staff of the First Battalion, First F. A. in the R. O. T. C., unit at Auburn. Go to it Nelson. We are proud of you.

From reports I hear that Jarrell is doing good on the freshman football team at Howard College. Another C. C. H. S. graduate.

Out of thirty-nine names in the Sr. II class there are only two given names that are the same. In the same class there are only two pairs of identical last names. Out of 138 names in three classes, there are only five Joneses and only three Smiths and no Browns. In the Sr. I class there are only two given names that are alike, leaving forty-four different names. Someone used an encyclopedia. Watch for more next week.

Let's everybody get the spirit and learn all these new yells and songs that will be given to you soon.

BREAKS RECORD IN THE PIKE'S PEAK AUTO CLIMB

When Al Miller established a new record for the Pikes Peak climb on Labor Day, he negotiated the distance in 19 minutes, 55.2 seconds with a Goodyear-equipped Essex terraplane, according to Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local Goodyear dealer.

"The Pike's Peak course," says Mr. Diefendrefer, "is a rough gravel trail that ascends from an altitude of 9,150 feet to 14,109 feet with 160 treacherous curves enroute.

"Miller broke the existing record by one minute, 25.7 seconds. Immediately following his successful climb, he wired Goodyear the following message: 'Your tires played important part in my record breaking climb up Pike's Peak and helped me win this event today with Hudson Essex terraplane.

"'The sharp edges of your All-Weather tread design enabled me to take the dangerous curves at a speed that I believe would have been impossible with any other combination. Your tires took tremendous punishment and it was a real test of your Supertwist cord construction.

"'I have had previous experience with Goodyears and was confident they would come through just as they did. The Goodyears I used were the regular four-ply All-Weathers with which every Hudson Essex car is equipped at the factory. I congratulate you on your product,' the telegram said."

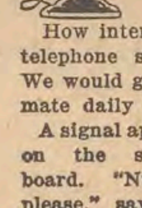
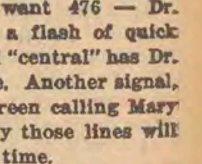
IF TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARDS COULD TALK



By T. E. Harris,
DISTRICT MANAGER

SOUTHERN BELL
Telephone and Telegraph Co.

How interesting it would be if a telephone switchboard could talk. We would get a picture of the intimate daily life of our community.

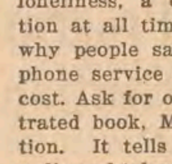


A signal appears on the switchboard. "Number please," says the operator, and comes an excited voice, "Operator, please, quick I want 476 — Dr. Brown." There's a flash of quick moving hands and "central" has Dr. Brown on the wire. Another signal, and it's Johnny Green calling Mary Doe, and it's likely those lines will be busy for some time.

"Number please," and this time a stock buyer, is calling a distant city about a carload of hogs. Then it's Farmer Brown calling in a hurry for the town veterinary. His prize jersey cow is sick.

Then come a string of signals in quick order. Several women are calling friends to organize a church social. In the midst of this flurry a long distance call comes for Mrs. Jackson. Her married son, a hundred miles away, is calling to give the news that "it's a boy."

So on and on in never ending succession the signals come in while "central" sits at her post and with deft hands and sympathetic understanding weaves them together to form the fabric of the social and business life of the community. As some one so well expressed it, "Central and her switchboard are the nerve center of our community's 'life.'"



The telephone plays a leading part in every phase, station and activity of life. We turn to it in emergencies. It is a means of banishing loneliness, a comfort and protection at all times. Probably that's why people say the value of telephone service outweighs the small cost. Ask for our free 64-page illustrated book, Magic of Communication. It tells how the telephone, radio and television work, and other interesting things.

APPERSON ADVISES HOW TO REGISTER COMPLAINTS

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 19.—National trade associations and the National Recovery Administration are requesting that individual complaints and requests for rulings, interpretations and detailed information be made through local and state trade associations because the Washington office is being flooded with requests and, despite increased office personnel, is unable to give attention to communication from every individual, B. C. Apperson, secretary of the Alabama Independent Merchants Association, Inc., advised today.

"Due to the ever increasing quantity of complaints and requests for special rulings, stays, etc., said Mr. Apperson, "it is our information that the Washington office finds it impossible to deal with individual cases without long delays. And in most instances designated local and state organizations can promptly supply the required information, since national associations and official NRA bulletins covering every important ruling and other developments are received daily by the state associations and forwarded without delay to local affiliated bodies."

Contrary to opinion prevailing in many quarters, merchants finding complete adherence to the president's reemployment agreement injurious to their business because of some particular provision may apply for and obtain temporary stays or exceptions through designated organizations, such as the Alabama Independent Merchants Association and affiliated units, Mr. Apperson said.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

As a Man Meriteth, so is He Rewarded

I am thinking now of the colored people, particularly the younger people in Clanton. It seems that they have lost all dignity, self respect and respect for their fellow man. There seems to be no indication of culture whatever. I have in mind a recent visit to the Wadesonian Theatre in Clanton. As soon as I reached the door I heard voices, gruff, harsh, shrieky, and clamorous and everything that goes along with rowdiness. From the outside one would get the impression that some sort of contest was going on inside. I know these folks have been taught better. They have sat before cultured people and know just how to deport themselves in public places. My appeal to you is, "Show your training." No one wants to sit in a picture show and listen to your hilarious voices all the time. Pretty soon you'll find that you have been excluded. Then you wonder why. You say "They stopped us from going," when in reality you stopped yourselves. If you want to be respected, you must carry yourself in such a way as to demand respect. Abuse your privileges and they shall be taken from you. Then, not only you, but others, will have to suffer the consequences. "As a man meriteth, so he is rewarded."

Canning Ends This Week

Friday ends the canning at the County Training school for the summer. Since the opening of the canning center in July, twenty-five hundred quarts of fruits and vegetables have been preserved. This is without question the record for the county. Our people show their sincere gratitude for the opportunity by coming up ninety-eight per cent. Too much praise can not be accorded them.

At Riderville

Next week will mark the end of the five weeks R. F. C. school at Riderville, and the end of a very appreciated course. Those people down there and their white neighbors seem to be inseparable. I never saw such good spirit existing between the two races. It makes me feel good to know that our county is free of racial animosity. I believe we can keep it up.—Benjamin Anderson.

JEMISON F. F. A. NEWS

The Jemison F. F. A. started the new year with an enrollment of 15 members. Hubbard Watson and Ervin Beasley recited the Future Farmers Creed and are now ready to be initiated into the Future Farmers Degree.

The officers elected for the new year are: J. T. Cobb, president; Hubbard Watson, vice president; Joyce Howard, secretary; Ervin Beasley, reporter; J. P. Montgomery, chapter adviser.

The F. F. A. boys will have charge of the chapel exercises on Friday, September 22, at 10 o'clock. At that time they will feature the national NRA program. The public is cordially invited to be present.

Within the next few days the F. F. A. Boys are going to put on a rat campaign in the Town of Jemison and with all farmers interested. At present a list is being compiled of farmers who want poison. The poison will cost 40 cents per farm. The rats should be destroyed now before the fall corn crop is harvested. If you want rat poison, notify J. T. Cobb, president F. F. A., Jemison, Ala.—Ervin Beasley, reporter.

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

Education and public health will not play second-fiddle to prohibition in the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign. Prohibition will play the second part. That sounds rather absurd, but an analysis of public temper, and the judgment and opinions of political wiseacres at the Gay Teague Hotel, from which Alabama political news emanates nowadays, says it is not absurd.

The mothers and fathers of six hundred thousand school boys and girls have decreed that Alabama's schools shall remain open for full terms, the teachers paid promptly and nothing left undone to take the commonwealth out of the low class of illiterate states. These mothers and fathers issued their warning when they voted overwhelmingly in favor of debt-validation and an income tax, and the prospective candidates for governor still hear the echo of that warning. As a result, no middle ground will be tolerated. Every candidate will stand flatfooted for education just as these mothers and fathers want it. On the other hand, not one candidate will stand flatfooted for the complete repeal of Alabama's prohibition laws. Not one will stand for retention of the dry laws as they now stand on the statute books. All of them will be semi-wet—sincerely or politically.

Only five counties voted against an income tax, while twenty-four voted against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. That showed that Alabama is predominantly in favor of education and only luke warm on the liquor question. Thus, you see why education will not play second-fiddle. And with the some bow, the same fiddle and in the same tune, public health will take its place in the orchestra of public demand right along side education.

No matter how hard he tries to keep his name out of the pot, Dr. Henry J. Willingham has to grin and bear the pleadings of his friends to become Alabama's next governor.

With Lewey Robinson having been elected a member of the Birmingham city commission, Grover Hall having been appointed probate judge of Montgomery County, Editor Mitchell receiving a similar appointment in his home county, five editors and publishers in the Alabama legislature and Editor Pride of Georgiana serving his home town as mayor, it looks like the newspaper profession is being taxed to supply efficient talent for public office. Betcha you never hear of them being impeached.

Sheriff A. N. Barrentine of Walker County, guest of the Gay Teague, is of the opinion that the coal operators of Alabama will soon be operating under an NRA code, and that they will set a standard of patriotism for the whole nation once they get going good.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE OCTOBER 2

The Chilton County Teachers Institute will be held at the Chilton County High School building in Clanton on Monday, October 2. All teachers in the county will attend.

Tuesday, October 3, all other schools in the county will open for their regular terms, the length of which is not yet definitely known.

Information obtanied at the office of County Superintendent Luther Little, says the school buildings at Union Grove, Mineral Springs, and Cane Creek are being rebuilt and made ready for school.

Also the new $5,000 building at Vermont, in the Sardis community has been completed and is ready for inspection and acceptance by the state authorities.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

The Church of Christ is the institution that Christ built, (Matt. 16:18. Christ is the "head over all things" to it (Eph. 1:22-23). There is "none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved", (Acts 4:12). It is the "house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth, (I Tim. 3:15), and "built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord" (Eph. 2:19-22). "Other foundation can no man lay" (I Cor. 3:11).

The church that Jesus built is "his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all" (Eph. 1:23). His body is His church (Col. 1:18). "There is one body," (Eph 4:4). He saves His body, which is His church (Eph. 5:23). His church is constituted and made up of the "new" creatures that are "in Christ." (II Cor. 5:17); Gal. 3:26-27). All the saved are "in Christ and are the body of Christ, and members in particular," (I Cor. 12:27). All that "walk in the light as he is in the light have fellowship one with another" (1 Jno. 1:17).

Christ intended that no schism or division should be in His body or church, (I Cor. 12: 24), and those who "cause divisions and offenses contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned" are to be "marked," and avoided (Rom. 16:17). The name, doctrine, or practice in religion that does not reach back to the apostles of Christ is condemned by the New Testament. Those who call the church of Christ a "Campbellite church" are either very ignorant or prejudiced. The Church of Christ has the New Testament for its only creed, and Campbell had nothing to do with writing it.—Sincerely, R. L. Huffman.

MRS. ALICE MIMS DIED LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Alice Mims, wife of Frank M. Mims, died at the the family home in Temple community, southeast of Clanton, last Thursday night, September 14 at 10:30 p.m. She had suffered for several years from a complcation of diseases; about two years ago she underwent a minor opeartion and her condition improved somewhat; however, early in this year she grew worse again, and although everything was done for her that could be done, it availed nothing, and although her death was a shock to her relatives and many friends, it was not entirely unexpected.

Mrs. Alice Mims was born December 25, 1882, the daughter of Ben L. and Malissa Dennis; she would have been 51 years of age had she lived until Christmas Day. She was preceded to the grave by her father, mother, two brothers, Charlie and Harvey Dennis, and one sister, Mrs. Docia Mims, wife of Rev. W. P. Mims. She is survived by her husband, F. M. Mims, two sons, Wm. J., and Lester Mims, and two daughters, Mrs. E. V. Mims, and Mrs. Marion Thompson; six brothers, C. C. Dennis, of near Wadsworth, J. E., and I. A. Dennis, of Maplesville, M. D. Dennis of Clanton Route 6, Horace and Levi Dennis, of Clanton Route 2; and one sister, Mrs. J. A. Dykes, of Clanton Route 2.

She married F. M. Mims January 16, 1898 at the age of 15 years. She became a member of Walnut Creek church in 1899, and changed her membership to Temple church when it was established about the year 1904, retaining her membership and active work in that church until her death.

Mrs. Mims lived a life of utmost devotion to her church, her husband and family, and was held in high esteem by her neighbors and friends. A devout Christian, she ever held as her life's motto her Master's command: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," and obeyed that command to the letter. She stood always ready to help wherever and whenever she could. To finish a perfect Christian life, she leaves a testimony of her complete submission to her Master's will; of her readiness and willingness to go to her reward for which she has lived and labored so long. A few hours before her death, the approach of which she was fully conscious, she told her family: "Do not worry and mourn for me, for I have lived the best I could, and I know that my home in heaven is waiting for me." And so, intermingled with the mortal sorrow for a wife and mother here on earth, her family may still experience immortal joy that she was welcomed home by her Lord and Master with the words: "Thou hast been faithful; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

The funeral was held at Temple church at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon, September 16, in charge of Rev. W. E. Thurmond, of Laurel, Miss. Interment was in the cemetery at Temple church, with Martin in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deramus spent the week end in Verbena with relatives.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

In these hot September days when everyone is struggling with a code and trying to help put over the N. R. A. program regardless of his personal or political convictions, it is difficult to realize that another political campaign is just around the corner. Yet this is exactly the case. In a few short months the nominations for Congress, for state offices and for county positionss will be in full blast all over the country. Conventions and primaries will be held on every hand, depending on the laws of the state in which the selections are being made. And then the biennial campaign will be on once more—the one which always comes at the half-way point in every national administration. It seems only yesterday that President Roosevelt took office and issued his famous edict temporarily closing the banks. Yet here we are almost on the verge of another political campaign.

Up to this time the Republicans at Washington have been quiescent. Mid-summer when people who have the money to spend are away on vacations, is never regarded as a very good time for politics. But this year has been less political than ever. Following the big landslide last fall the Republicans very properly decided to give the new administration a chance to see what it could do. There has been planty of action. Just how it is all going to turn out remains to be seen. The N. R. A. is the final number in the program, and the success or failure of the full program depends in large measure on the success or failure of this drive. The Republicans have "done their bit" just as they did in war time, and if the program does not meet the full measure of success that its sponsors expect, certainly the blame can not be placed on the lack of political cooperation.

But those who believe it and those who are dubious say that within the next few weeks the N. R. A. program will either prove or disprove of itself. If it is a success and prosperity comes back to us the Democrats will be in good shape for the campaign for 1934, and the Republicans will be handicapped. But if the program does not come up to expectations, and if Eurcpe is ahead of us in pulinng out of the depression, then it is natural to believe that the Republicans will have a great deal to say in the next campaign and that they will make serious inroads on the strength of the party in power. Only time can tell the story.

Of course it is only natural to expect that the Democratic majority in Congress will be trimmed some in the elections next year. Mr. Roosevelt rode into the presidency on a landslide, and a victory of such proportions as he achieved usually brings into power congressmen of the victorious party who could not expect to win under normal conditions. The next congressional election then brings a reaction and many of these "freak" congressmen go down before the assaults of the party which usually controls their district.

That the Democrats themselves do not expect to hold the gains they made in 1932 is indicated by many of the dispatches being sent out of Washington by the political correspondents—dispatches going to Democratic as well as Republican newspapers. For example, Kirke Simpson, Washington correspondent of the politically neutral Associated Press, recently wrote that the Democratic congressman who went back home have learned that the going is not going to be any too good next year at best, and that it is going to be more difficult to get re-elected in 1934 than would have been thought possible a few months ago. Mr. Simpson whimsically adds: "The Democratic National Committee is getting a lot of inquiries as to what help it is going to give them next year. The answers received are described as diplomatic, not to say vague."

The quietude of the Republicans is not to be regarded entirely as somnolence. They are busy now with codes and other business affairs but they are keeping an eye to windward. They can be depended on to put up a real battle when the time comes. Whether it will be successful depends a great deal on how successful a bird is the Blue Eagle within the next few months.

DANGEROUS BACKFIRE

The N. R. A. program is a daring and brilliant experiment. Furthermore, it is the LAW, and all good citizens will support it in every way possible. However, there may be a great temptation in some trades and industries to try to take selfish advantages of the opportunities presented.

One of the smaller but very important industries that has submitted a code for approval is that of the publishers of school textbooks. We have just read this code, and we see several imprints of what looks like the cloven hoof.

It appears that the schoolbook publishers have had two main aims in formulating this code: first, to get the right to raise prices, even where books are already under contract for a period of years at a stipulated price; perhaps all the publishers are united on this; second, it appears on reading this code that one group, or several groups, of these publishers may be trying to put something over on another group or groups.

Certainly the public schools do not stand to profit from either of the above objectives. We can see no present justification for publishers wanting to raise prices when they have entered into a sworn contract with a state and certainly such state and all the citizens thereof should raise a mighty protest if this is attempted, or even if it is formulated in a code. The states entered into these contracts with the publishers in good faith and, as in all such contracts, both parties take a gamble as to falling prices or as to rising prices in the future.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS—

Those who believe that we have passed the bottom of the valley of depression and are now on the way up again draw a great deal of consolation from the fact that the apparent recovery from the depression is world wide, and is sot therefore confined to our own country. While the stock market has gone up faster in the United States than in England and France due in part to the fact that it went down farther in the beginning, employment and building construction have improved more substantially in Great Britain than in the United States. France, of course, was never so hard hit by depression as we were.

In view of these comparisons it is interesting to note, too, what is going on in Italy, where the improvement is quite pronounced. The Italians are facing the coming winter with much more confidence than they faced the last one a year ago. Unemployment has been decreased by eleven and a half per cent during the year, up to August 1, which is surely an encouraging performance. Public construction is being pushed and Mussolini's wheat program is meeting with success. In this respect it may be noted that the wheat problem in Italy is entirely different from that of the United States. While we are seeking to decrease our supply by cutting down production, Italy has been trying to stimulate production to the point where she will not have to import any wheat at all. And the campaign is about 100 per cent successful, and the country almost self sustaining, so far as wheat is concerned. This has increased employment and is a good thing for Italy but not so good for the wheat exporting countries like our own, who are losing a valuable customer.

Railroad travel has increased a great deal during the year in Italy and the number of tourists entering the country has gained 55 per cent. Industrial activity has increased in the basic trades and the Associated Press, in a dispatch from Rome, concludes:

"Hardship was undoubtedly experienced last winter, and hardship will be again experienced this winter, but Italians in general believe the crisis is past and that Mussolini has won his battle against the specter of idleness."

All of which is encouraging news not only to Italians but to the people of other lands. For coupled with the reports we get from other countries it seems to indicate that the depression is on the wane.

FACTS AND FICTION—

George McKee, of Anderson, S. C., claims that times "Ain't hard." Writing in the Bandera, Texas, New Era, he says:

Don't talk to me about hard times. I was born eight miles from a railroad, five miles from a schoolhouse, nine miles from a church, 885 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole and 15 feet from a cornfield.

Our nearest neighbors lived two miles away and they couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear until I was 17 years old, and that revelation didn't belong to anybody in our family. The only books in the house were a Bible and a catalogue.

There were 12 members in our family, but, you see, we had three rooms to live in, including a dining room, which was also the kitchen. Everybody worked at our house. We thought everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin hoecake for dinner, buttermilk and corn pone for supper, 'cause that's just what we had.

Some of us wore brogan shoes occasionally in the wintertime. We had nice white shirts for summertime use. We slept on straw ticks, and pillows were not thought of or required. I didn't know that money would rattle until I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half-dollars at the same time, and let us hear them rattle. Taxes were no higher, but harder to pay.

We owned two kerosene lamps neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't sealed, but two of our rooms had lofts in them. We had a glass window in our "company" room. Our nicest peice of furniture was a homemade rocking chair. Our beds were of the slat or tight-rope variety.

We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car; we used a two-mule wagon. We dressed up on Sundays, but not in silks or satins.

We sopped our own molasses; we ate our own meat; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preachers to eat; we heard of cheese, but never saw any; we knew of some store-bought clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we loved ma and pa and were never hungry, enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothin. That's why our so-called hard times ain't hard to me.—By Frank Nunalee in Montgomery Weekly.

Professor Moley is the first of the brain trust to resign. He is going to start a magazine, but it is a good bet that the lead article will not be "The Story of Professor Moley and Cordell Hull."

Down in North Carolina they are having an instruction course for public school janitors, to teach them their job. Doubtless one of the first things the janitor will learn is how to remove wads of chewing gum from the under-side of a desk.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Pickin' 'Em Young

And now I see by the papers that they are taking this new deal business pretty serious out in Oklahoma, especially one man. He thinks the new deal gives him the right to pick another wife, inasmuch as his first matrimonial venture was nothing to write home about. He says, too, that his first wife was not brought up in a manner to make a wife that suits him, exactly, and so, though he is 68 years old, he has taken as his second wife an 11-year-old girl. He proposes to bring her up according to his own ideas of what a wife should be like—I suppose you'd call her a made-to-order wife. About the only fly in the ointment is that just about the time the spry old boy gets his new wife all trained just like he wants her, he'll very probably kick the bucket, and then she'll go looking for another hubby, who won't have the same ideas of a wife that husband No. 1 had, and so the old man's work will be for nothing after all. That's just like life, though—we're not all made alike, you know.

Twenty-Cent Cotton

The administration at Washington is finding that speed in dealing with farmers' problems is very essential. A few days ago delegates from nine Southern states met at the capitol to ask for a set price of 15 cents a pound for cotton this year. The hearing was put off until the next day, and the delay cost the commission a nickel a pound, as the delegates got together and decided that 20 cents a pound was not too much to ask. These delegates from the South can't understand why we can't get a set price for our "money crop", if the oil and corn belts can have their raw products' price set. Maybe they will set a price—maybe not. If they do, it will be the first time in history that the dear old Southland has ever drawn any recognition for its unalterable devotion to the Democratic cause. But wonders never cease, it is said, and it may be that the "deep South" may be recognized in some degree. The Lord knows we've waited long enough—nearly 70 years — and that's a long time to wait for anything. Oh, we're a very patient people—either patient or foolish, and I can't decide which.

Gandhi and the Britons

Mahatma Gandhi is a problem to the British government. They don't know just how to take him, nor just what to make of him. Himself one of the better caste of the many tribes that dwell in British-controlled India, Gandhi has taken it upon himself to champion the cause of India's millions of "untouchables," and has been using all kinds of methods to attain his desired results. The British at first imprisoned Gandhi on the theory that he was causing unrest among the masses, but that didn't work, because these masses took the idea that their hero was being persecuted for them, and their resentment grew. Then Gandhi was released, and took up fasting as a protest move in favor of his people. The situation grew more and more tense when the government made no move to recognize Gandhi's fight for the "untouchables," when several other of the higher caste Indians fell in with him and his protests. Then Gandhi was arrested again, to "keep him from perishing," which would have bad results with the Indian masses, as they have come to recognize him as some kind of God. On top of all that, even English people, themselves, are seeing Gandhi's point of view, and are clamoring at the government to do something for the Indian unfortunates. And now comes the big laugh—England has offered Gandhi his liberty again, if he will refrain from his tactics. That puts the government in a close corner—if it allows Gandhi to roam at will, he stirs up trouble by his passive resistance; if he is imprisoned, his followers take it as an affront to them, and the condition grows worse; and the government considers it impossible to grant his demands. "Between the devil and the deep, blue sea"—that's where they are. They mgiht have him shot as an undesirable, but that would bring about Indian revolt instantly. Some problem.

Preparing For the Worst

Here's a good one I picked up a few days ago. The postmaster in a certain town in Alabama has a very good friend—postmaster is a Republican and the friend is a Democrat. These two gentlemen are forever trying to get good jokes on each other. A few weeks ago the postal department issued a new kind of postage stamp, bearing the picture of three men—one of them represents agriculture, another capital, and another industry of all kinds. These three are shown going arm in arm under the NRA emblem. The Democrat came in and wanted a stamp. The postmaster shoved it out to him, with this remark: "See what the Democrats have done for this country? They've taken the picture of Washington, the father of our country, off the stamps, and substituted this instead. Isn't that a shame?" The Democrat scratched his head a minute and looked at the stamp. Then he had an answer: "Yes, sir, that is bad." Then noticing the figure representing agriculture carried a scythe, he added: "I see here one of these fellers is totin' a grass blade. I wonder if he's got that thing along to cut all that grass Hoover kept talking about was going to grow in the streets if Roosevelt was elected."

50,000,000 Gallons

I notice the government is making preparations to increase the national supply of "medicinal liquor" from four million to fifty million gallons, figuring on the country repealing the 18th amendment in the near future. What I'd like to know is, what relation has "medicinal liquor" with the 18th Amendment? Are they expecting to have more sickness, or something, after the law goes out? Or is it a case of being prepared for the long-thirsty brethren if and when the law goes out? The authorities state that the supply has run low, but it is a bit curious, don't you think, that they woke up to this fact just at a time when free liquor seems a sure-fire probability. So if you like good bonded liquor, brother, prepare to get very sick—there'll be plenty of stimulant for all and to spare. And, by the way, that's going to hurt Cuba, Mexico and Canada just a bit, too, I reckon. Inasmuch as Uncle Sam is going into the wholesale distilling and warehousing of liquor, that'll cut down on their liquor exports to some extent. The liquor interests of our near neighbors have been reaping a bountiful harvest for the last few years, and now I guess there will be a surplus along that line, too.

Another Teaser

Last week I put in a little brain teaser, which ran like this: "There is Bible proof that Paul was a Southerner"—and an explanation was asked for. So far I have had no answers to this one. So, I'll give another, and you can think over both of them. This one goes this way: "Moses was the foster-son of Pharaoh's daughter, and the daughter of Pharaoh's foster-son." There's a good one for the smart guys.—Man in the Moon.

MR. WALLACE IS WRONG—

Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, appeals to the nation to change from its forefathers' "spirit of rugged individualism" to one of "genuine concern for your neighbor." And the Secretary asserts that if we cannot "attain this broader view, our material wealth will only intensify the inevitable crash."

Delivered with oratorical fervor, the words of the Secertary doubtless had a high and lofty sound to his immediate auditors. But in cold type they are the reverse of inspiring. Heaven knows this land has faults, shortcomings and tendencies that endanger its future in a most serious way. But continuance of the "rugged individualism" of the fathers of the republic certainly is not among them.

Furthermore, there is, as a matter of practice, no clash whatever between such individualism and proper concern for one's neighbor. Intelligent individualism compels concern for the welfare of others and the whole history of the people of the United States has been featured by generosity in impulse and practice and by fidelity to the spirit of fair play and helpfulness.

Indeed the genuiness of the concern of Americans for their neighbors has been an outstanding characteristic of the breed in both their domestic and international relationships, and the extent to which it has been carried in the latter field in recent years has added considerably to the present economic troubles.

When Mr. Wallace urges desertion of American individualism, he is not advocating a policy of progress and strength; he is urging a policy of weakness and surrender.

Individuals working together in voluntary and free cooperation built this country. Its future as a free land depends upon the ability of its people to continue along those lines as far as is at all possible amid the complexities a dense population and an intricate civilization create. If they cannot do so, the republic as such is doomed as every other republic in history has been doomed as soon as courageous, self-respecting, enlightened and rugged individualism has lost its grip.

Surrender of that individualism today in favor of some form of communistic of Fascist substitute would mean the failure and utter collapse of the great experiment in freedom started by our ancestors in 1776. And all the euphemisms about "cooperation" and concern for one's neighbor that be invented by Mr. Wallace or by anybody else, will not alter that fact.

Such a surrender will mean an end of personal freedom and rights, it will mean an end of the sovereignty of the 48 states, it will mean the submersion of Congress, it will mean the commencement of socialistic or imperialistic autocracy, and the decadence of American manhood and citizenship.—Detroit Free Press.

The Fate of the Franc.—The ultimate fate of the franc is certain. In the end it will be devalued, too. France's imports far exceed her exports. Her chief export is not in the form of goods but service. The service France performs is catering to tourists. This trade has slumped disastrously for her. It has risen in Britain.—London Daily Express.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Keeping Up Relief Work

Many more thousands of dollars for relief of the needy in Chilton County is the sum total of an order passed by the County Commissioners last week. A highly commendable act on the part of those officials, I think. Some will perhaps criticize the action. Criticism will come from a very few who do not need any of the money. I am sure all who need a few dollars to buy bread and clothes and medicine for hungry, naked and sick children will be glad they are to have a chance to get some of the relief money for three more months. Fifteen hundred families have been sharing in the R. F. C. program. What could we do with and for them this winter without the R. F. C. money? That is the question that faced our commissioners.

New Hope for Our Ditch

For a while last week it looked like our ditch in the swamp might have to stop in a quarter of a mile of its objective—the end of the sewer. The action of the commissioners in extending its relief work program another three months gives us a new hope that the ditch will be completed. There are many of us who believe ditching the swamp from Dake's old mill to Clanton is the most worth-while project that has been attempted in our county this year.

Cotton Up to Ten Cents

The price of cotton went up to ten cents in Clanton Tuesday. This makes everybody feel better. It is no secret or mystery that our prosperity is involved in the price of cotton. The South can have little hope in NRA or anything else so long as the price of cotton is below ten cents. Cotton is moving fast, and if we are to get what we need for cotton, something must be done now. It will do no good if the price goes to twelve or fifteen cents after the crop has passed out of the hands of those who grew it.

Sale of Lands for Taxes

Tax Collector, W. G. Culp, has set the delinquent tax machinery in motion. In course of a few weeks a great amount of Chilton County property will be sold for taxes, unless the owners can scrape up the necessary funds. New taxes are due also on the first of October. Do we need ten cent cotton? I say we do, and then some. Gee whiz! Automobile tags must be bought in October too. More you think of it, worse it gets.

Luther Patrick at Kiwanis

Members of Clanton Kiwanis Club have a rare treat in store for the Thursday night meeting. Hon. Luther Patrick of Birmingham, the widely known radio humorist-philosopher, will appear in person, for an address. There is no telling what Mr. Patrick will talk about. But that makes no difference. He could talk about the dryest subject in the world and his native wit and original humor would make it a refreshing fountain of enjoyment.

Dr. Gragg at "Doctor" Popwell's

Dr. Gragg now has his down-town office at "Doctor" Popwell's jewelry shop. According to his own statement, this office is established by Dr. Gragg for the convenience of those who may wish to pay their doctor bills. "I want to get right in the middle of things so I will not be hard to find when folks sell cotton. In fact, I hope to get right where some folks can't help but find me. I need the money and I am not ashamed to admit it."

Dr. Gragg Has An Eagle

Dr. V. J. Gragg now has an eagle that is not of the familiar Blue Eagle brand. It is a real honest-to-goodness live eagle. He shot it Tuesday afternoon at Irvin Baker's fish pond. The bird came down in the pond with a broken wing. Irvin waded in to get it, which he did only after a lively fight. Though wounded and down in the water, Mr. Eagle was not at all willing to surrender himself to human hands. The eagle, a young bird, was brought to town by the doctor. He has been placed in a pheasant pen and will be cared for in the hope that he may live and thrive.

Buck Hart at Rockett's

Seems just as natural as a duck in a pond to see Buck Hart behind the counter at Rockett's hardware store. At this same place Buck spent many happy, successful years in dealing with the people of Chilton County. An old customer walked in the other day. Buck greeted him. "Well, I'll be dogged, Buck, glad to see you back in here," he said, "and where is C. Fenn, is he back too?" "Yes, he is back here too," said Buck." "There he sits right back there reading the paper." And there Fenn was.

Johnny, Get your Gun, Get your Gun

Johnny, get your gun, get your gun, get your gun; shoot 'em on the run, on the run, on the run. Thus begins the little song Dewey Rockett is singing to the hunters hereabouts. October first is squirrel shooting day. On the last day of September Dewey is going to put on a hunters' special with bargains in shot gun shells. Watch the paper next week for his advertisement.

Screening the Jail House

Carpenters Farley, Teel and Downs are putting screens in the jailhouse windows. I presume they intend to keep the mosquitoes out. I have a suggestion to offer the jail authorities: Turn the prisoners out. Open all the doors and windows. Put all the mosquitoes in jail and shut her up air tight till frost.

The seats in the hall were arranged in four sections, one section for each season of the year. The program was also in four sections, as Spring, Summer, Autumn, and Winter, each sponsoring a program. The result was varied and very interesting, as there were recitations, music, flag drill, charades, and contests. The hall was decorated with beautiful dahlias.

The ice cream social given by the Congregational Laides Aid at the parsonage last Tuesday evening was quite a success. Quite a crowd assembled, notwithstanding the rain. FORD PRODUCTION AND SALES ON INCREASE

Production of Ford cars and trucks in September has been scheduled at the same high daily rate as in August, it was announced at the office of the Ford Motor Company in Detroit. This situation, it was said, is unprecedented. August production was the greatest for the year to date.

August retail deliveries of Ford cars and trucks reached the greatest volume for the year thus far, and were 41 per cent greater than August, 1932, indicating the rising volume of Ford sales during a time usually sales volume registers a decline.

The retail sales volume of Ford passenger cars in August was the largest since June, 1932 and the retail sales of Ford trucks the greatest since October 1931.

Daily sales volume in August is being maintained in September, it is said, on the basis of reports of sales by dealers for the first six business days in the month.

On September 16, 1933, the death agnels visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards and bore away from them their loving baby, which was born March 26, 1933. The beloved one only lived a few months in this world of sorrow. The little babe suffered a pain that no human tongue can tell. Just what the little one suffered no one can tell. The Lord knows best, He giveth and He taketh. So he took this little one out of this world of it's suffering. There is a vacant place in that home that can not be filled.

It was hard to give up little Rosella, but we know she is at rest. She has gone on to sing with the angels and to reign with the Lord forever. The only thing for us to do is to live a life to meet this little one in heaven to part no more.

Little Rosella leaves to mourn her loss a mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards, and three sisters and three brothers. They are; Velma, Lera, Drucilla, Odis, Marvin, and Darvin, besides a host of relatives and friends.

We want to thank the doctors and friends for their loving hands they lent toward the little one. All was done that could be done for the little one. Beloved ones, weep not, for our loss is heavens gain.—The one that loved her, Grandmother Cleckler.

A BANK OF APPROVED SOUNDNESS

DO YOU KNOW what it means to this community and to you, that the governing authorities have put their stamp of approval upon this bank, giving it the right to operate without restrictions?

It means that our assets have been examined and offically certified as sound and liquid. It establishes beyond question that this is a strong, well-managed bank, able to serve and protect the interests of every depositor.

For years this bank has been known for its conservatism; in fact, many people felt that often we were too conservative; too strict in our observance of certain rules of caution and safety. However, we feel that our strong position today is a sufficient justification of our polices in the past.

What of the future? The outlook today is brighter than it has been in years. The vigorous program of economy and reconstruction launched by the new administration, has given a powerful impetus to business recovery.

The spirit of the nation has changed from an attitude of fear to one of hope and courage. All signs point forward and upward. Aiding in this recovery will be the strong, accredited banks of the nation; each one a tested and accepted unit in a new and stronger banking system.

We are glad to be able to offer the service, cooperation, and protection of this bank to our old friends and new friends in this community. We have kept faith with you throughout the whole of a dark and difficult period. We shall continue to keep faith with you in the brighter days ahead, serving and protecting your interests, as always.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Here we come this week telling you what a wonderful singing we had here last Sunday. As you know, it was the day for our all day singing. We had with us some very fine singers. Everybody seemed to be in the singing mood.

There also was preaching here Saturday and Saturday night. Bro. Lockhart brought to us his farewell sermon Saturday night. Everybody's heart seemed to be saddened when he told us good bye. He has been with us three long years, and during these years he brought to us many wonderful messages. To know him was to love him. He always wears a smile. He worked faithful with the people around Maple Springs to bring those who were out of Christ, and were backsliders, to the the front. He always did his duty. We are asking him to continue praying for us and come back to see us any time.

We didn't have any B. Y. P. U. Sunday night on account of bad weather, but let's everybody come back to B. Y. P. U. and Sunday school next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Parrish were the Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Glenn and family.

Mr. Ottis Glenn and mother were visiting relatives in Cooper Sunday night.

Miss Nora Guy was the Saturday night guest of Miss Delene Davis.

Mr. Oliver Glenn had as his Sunday dinner guest Mr. Raymond Kelley.

Mr. and Mrs. Evan Downs of Birmingham were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Downs Sunday.

Mr. Claud Downs, Jr., was the Saturday night guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Downs.

Mr. Glaucus Baker, Jr., spent a few hours Sunday afternoon with Mr. Arnold Glenn.

The wedding of Miss Evelyn Brown to Mr. Reuben Devaughn was quietly solemnized Saturday night. The couple will make their home with Mr. O. L. Devaughn. The many friends of the couple wish them much success and happiness in their future life.

Oliver Mims was the Saturday night guest of Mr. Cecil Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Thomas of Sylacauga spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rockett.

Miss Floyd Clayton is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Dick Hayes.

Lesson for September 24

REVIEW: SOME EARLY LEADERS OF ISRAEL

GOLDEN TEXT—Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Ephesians 6:10.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends From God's Book.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Some Heroes of God's Book.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons From Great Leaders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Makes a Great Leader?

For senior and adult classes, two methods are suggested.

First—The grouping of the men and women as leaders.

The material of this lesson is adapted from the Lutheran lesson commentary.

I. The Military Leaders (Lessons 1, 2 and 5).

1. Joshua (Lesson 1). He was skillful in military tactics as well as organization. He possessed natural gifts, but his success was due mainly to his obedience to God.

2. Caleb (Lesson 2). As one of the twelve spies, he insisted that by God's help they could possess Canaan.

3. Gideon (Lesson 5). He obeyed God's strange command to reduce his army to 300 men. With them he routed the host of Midian, and made Israel free for about forty years.

II. Women (Lessons 3, 6, and 7).

1. Deborah (Lesson 3). She was called in an emergency and led the people forward to victory.

2. Ruth (Lesson 6). She adopted a new people, a new God, and a new country, with no thought of personal gain. She became the ancestress of David and thus of Christ.

3. Hannah (Lesson 7). In Hannah shines forth ideal motherhood.

III. Prophets (Lessons 4 and 8).

1. Isaiah (Lesson 4). He has the place of first rank among the prophets. He denounced the sins of Israel. Drunkenness was one of the sins which destroyed Israel.

2. Samuel (Lesson 8). He was director-general of Israel while serving as a prophet of God.

IV. Royalty (Lessons 9, 10, 11 and 12).

1. Saul (Lesson 9). He had the anointing of God and the approval of the people. His days were filled with blunders, largely because he trusted and exalted himself rather than God.

2. David (Lesson 10). David came into prominence unexpectedly. He had the inner qualities that God could use for a true king. He brought the scattered tribes under one government, bound together with the bond of one religion.

3. Jonathan (Lesson 11). He is noted for his friendship for David. He was legal heir to the throne, but renounced his right in favor of David.

4. Solomon (Lesson 12). He came to the throne welcomed by a united nation. The idea of building the temple as well as much material for its erection came to him from his father. He built the temple and dedicated it to God, setting forth that its supreme purpose was God's glory.

Second—The Summary Method.

The aim here is to state the leading fact and principal teaching of the several lessons. The following suggestions are made:

Lesson for July 2. Joshua's faith in the promises of God and obedience to the divine command enabled him to carry forward to success the work begun by Moses.

Lesson for July 9. Because Caleb wholly followed the Lord, his strength was preserved.

Lesson for July 16. It was out of the ordinary for God to call a woman to a place of national leadership. Deborah had the good judgment to urge Barak forward.

Lesson for July 23.—Drunkenness and other sins caused Israel's ruin.

Lesson for July 30. Gideon, with a small band of men, routed and destroyed the Midianites because he trusted and obeyed God.

Lesson for August 6. Because Ruth chose to identify herself with the people of God she was abundantly blessed.

Lesson for August 13. Hannah stands out as the ideal godly mother.

Lesson for August 20. Samuel heard the call of God while serving in the capacity in which his mother dedicated him.

Lesson for August 27. Saul shamefully failed because he disobeyed God.

Lesson for September 3. Because David was a man after God's own heart, God used him and blessed him in spite of his sins.

Lesson for September 10. Jonathan is an example of a true friend.

Lesson for September 17. Solomon chose wisdom rather than honor and riches. Because of this God was able to give riches and honor.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The religions of the world say, "Do and Live." The religion of the Bible says, "Live and Do."

Someone has said, "A good man could not have written the Bible and a bad man would not have written the Bible." A good man could not have written it because it claims God for its author. A bad man would not have written it because it tells men how bad they are.

When men write biographies of friends they usually leave out any disgrace or shortcoming in the lives of their subjects. The Bible says that David was a man after God's own heart; but when God wrote David's biography, God told the story of David's sin and He told this story in plain language without any trimming or dodging. This is one of a number of proofs that the Bible is the Word of God.

Some time ago a friend said to me, "Bob, aren't you glad you didn't live in the old days when men used to have religious debates?" I replied, "I'm Not so sure. There is one good thing you can say about those old people, they believed something. They had convictions. They believed in the absolute authority of the Bible. They didn't argue about whether the Bible was so or not. They argued about what the Bible said. The modern controversy is not about the interpretation of the Bible, but about the authority of the Book."

There is quite a controversy between Fundamentalists and Modernists. There always will be controversy between them. The Modernist says that the Bible CONTAINS the word of God. The Fundamentalist says that the Bible IS the word of God. It is impossible to harmonize these two positions.

The Bible is a book made up of what God has said, what man has said, and what the devil has said. What God has said is always true. What man has said may be true or may not be true. Paul said in one place, "I speak as a man." He simply means, "This is my opinion, take it for what it is worth." What the devil said is a lie. When I say I believe in an inspired Bible, I mean that the record of the Book is absolutely correct. What God has said, what man has said, and what the devil has said, you will find ACCURATELY recorded in the Bible.

ANSWERS TO NRA INQUIRIES

Q.—Are juvenile actors, including night-club entertainers, under the age of 14 prohibited from working?

A—Yes.

Q.—What are the rules concerning newspaper advertisements under the NRA?

A.—Newspapers cannot accept advertising carrying the Blue Eagle until advertisers' names are actually posted on the Honor Roll. It is not permitted to publish so-called "honor lists" purporting to enumerate NRA members unless all are included or unless labeled a partial list.

Q.—What is the status of apprentices?

A.—Employers can hire apprentices after singing PRA but not at less than minimum wage unless such apprentices were under contract prior to August 1, 1933, or unless specifically provided for under a substitute agreement.

Q.—Are so-called "barbecue and hot dog stands" considered restaurants?

A.—Yes.

Q.—I have sublet chairs in barber and beauty shops; how are they to be classified?

A.—A barber who sublet a chair in his shop on this basis prior to June 16, 1933, is an independent contractor and not subject either to maximum hour or minimum wage provisions.

Q.—Barter leagues which employ help and pay them with food, shelter and other necessities of life come within the NRA?

A.—Yes; such employees must receive at least minimum wage and work not to exceed the maximum hours provided in PRA and substitute provisions, except in towns of less than 2,500 population. Whether they receive compensation in commodities or money is a matter of adjustment between employees and employer.

Q.—Do chambers of commerce come under PRA or NRA?

A.—Yes. If a chamber of commerce should want a stay of the provisions of PRA respecting wages and hours of employees, it cannot of course approve its own application for such relief but must secure approval from another organization in its community, such as Rotary, Kiwanis, etc.

Q.—Please explain status of workers on commission.

A.—Considerable misunderstanding has arisen over the term "salesmen solely on commission," both inside and outside. A salesman solely on commission is not defined as an employee, consequently is not under provisions of PRA as to wages and hours. When codes of various industries are finally approved changes may be made in status of such salesmen.

Frosh—I woke up last night with the feeling that my watch was gone, so I got up and looked for it.

Soph—Well, was it gone?

Frosh—No, but it was going.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., Sept. 19.—Appointment of Robert F. Jonas, of New York, as instructor in violin in the University of Alabama department of music is announced by Mrs. Harry N. Eddins, head of the department. Mr. Jonas has studied under world-famous teachers, including Mms. Suzanne K. Gussow, Carl Schiovitz, the Roumanian virtuoso, and the late Prof. Leopold Auer.

Jonas has appeared on programs of leading broadcasting stations and served as first violinist with the National Orchestral Society.

Harry Schmitz, son of Prof. R. R. Schmitz of the department of vocational education, has been appointed cadet colonel of the University of Alabama R. O. T. C., according to announcement by Maj. Edgar H. Underwood, commandant of cadets. Tom Starling, president of the student association, is to serve as brigade adjutant with the rank of major.

"Never before have the newspapers of America played such a significant part in government as they are at present," stated Prof. C. E. Cason, head of the department of journalism at the University, following a visit to Wishington during the summer. Prof. Cason made a special study of the New Deal as correspondent for the New York Times.

President Roosevelt took time off from his duties to ask Pro. Cason about the Alabama football team and the season's prospects.

Fossilized remains of what is thought to be a prehistoric reptile over 100,000 years old have been discovered within 35 miles of the University, according to a story in The Crimson-White, student newspaper.

Two University students, J. J. Renger and Victor Mulberg, discovered the remains in chalk deposits along the banks of the Warrior River in Green County. J. Henry Walker, of the University zoology department, encouraged the two students to their find.

They drew near one another slowly. The dull haze from the shimmering light far above enveloped them in its scintillating glow. Slowly the one in red drew closer and closer—the soft curves of her sides glistening and gleaming in the hazy transparency of the great orb above.

The audience held its breath as she moved slowly onward, nearer, nearer, until after a great sigh from the eager onlookers they met with a dull subtle kiss.

"Attaboy, Jake," some one screamed, "thatsaway to play a three cornered billiard shot."

"YES, MR. BROWN

Jack Buchanan, international stage and screen star, adds immeasurably to his laurels in "Yes, Mr. Brown," latest United Artist picture, which will be shown at the Wadesonian Theatre Monday and Tuesday, September 24 and 25. The feature is the second Buchanan film distributed this season.

In "Yes, Mr. Brown" Buchanan returns to farce, which is undoubtedly the basis of his enviable reputation. Entirely aside from his great proficiency in singing and dancing—and there are few male dancers in the world who can surpass him—Buchanan's real bid to fame comes from his deft touch in the handling of farce particularly that brand of farce which is slightly insane.

A New Foil

And he has a remarkable foil in Elsie Randolph, London musical comedy star, who is nearly as proficient as he is in the tongue-in-cheek sort of comedy in which he shines. This is the first appearance of the Buchanan-Randolph team, but you can rest assured that it won't be the last. They are perfectly balanced.

As was the case with "Magic Night," Buchanan's last picture, the background of "Yes, Mr. Brown" is in Vienna, but it is not the Vienna of waltzes and pomp and ceremony. Rather it is a business story, with a musical background, and the tale it tells is just a little mad. It concerns a dashing manager of a toy manufactory who, in his attempt to curry favor with the big boss, gets into an awful jam when his young wife walks out on him, and he is put to the necessity of having his very efficient secretary pose as his frau. The resultant situations are side-splitting.

Margot Grahame, believed by thousands to be the most beautiful young woman on the London stage, plays the part of the wife, and even if she hasn't much to do, she certainly provides the eye with pulchritude. Hartley Power, American actor, has one of the principal roles and he, too, proves a remarkable foil for the star's comic antics.

Buchanan himself directed "Yes, Mr. Brown," this being his debut as director-star upon the screen. And he has managed to bring a fine sense of production to this maiden effort. Technically, the film is one of the best ever made outside Hollywood, and a fine imagination and artistic treatment make an entirely worthwhile effort.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLANT AUSTRIAN WINTER PEAS

County Agent Stapp calls to our attention recent recommendations of the Alabama Experiment Station. At the recent conference held at Auburn, Mr. Funchess, director of the experiment station, stated that apparently best results with vetch might be expected from planting made from the middle of September to the middle of October, while best results might be expected from plantings of Austrian peas made between the first of October to the first of November.

Mr. Stapp is stressing the importance of thoroughly inoculating vetch and pea seed. He suggests that the farmers who have not planted vetch or peas before, go to some farmer who has planted them and get about a bushel of soil from the field which had a good growth this year, for each hundred pounds of seed they expect to sow. And that this inoculated dirt be mixed with the seed after the bought inoculation is put on.

Mr. Stapp also stresses the importance of covering the seed well, soon after they are sown so as to keep the hot sun from killing the inoculation.

Mr. Stapp asks that all who plant peas or vetch this fall become members of the Chilton County Soil Bulding Association by turning their name in to him at his office. By turning their name in they will be eligible for the valuable prizes to be offered next summer and fall.

COMPARISONS OF COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER AND AUSTRIAN PEAS AND VETCH FOR COUNTY

It is estimated that 20,000 acres of corn in Chilton County are fertilized with an average of 1,000 tons of commercial fertilizer annually at a cost of $35,000 to $40,000. Should this 1,000 tons of commercial fertilizer be applied to corn according to the recommendationss of the experiment station, the increased yield on the 20,000 acres would not be more than 160,000 bushels. If the farmers of Chilton County would spend this same $35,000 for peas and vetch this fall they could seed more than 14,000 acres of land to be planted in corn next spring. On the basis of an average increase in yield following peas or vetch, we might expect 280,000 bushels. In other words, do you think it would be better to spend $35,000 for Austrian winter peas and vetch this fall and for that get 280,000 bushels of corn, or would it be better to spend $35,000 next spring for commercial fertilizer and get 160,000 bushels of corn?

There is a difference of 120,000 bushels of corn in favor of vetch and peas. Are such figures worth considering, I ask you?

The above figures do not tell the whole story, because vetch or peas grown in the winter prevent soil erosion and when turned under in the spring makes the ground easier worked, liberates other needed plant foods and lasts more than one year.

Proper inoculation is extremely important in successful growing of hairy vetch and Austrian winter peas. Farmers may obtain reliable advice and assistance from their county agent.

Succulent silage is splendid for dairy cows. It may be provided inexpensively through the use of a trench silo. Corn or sorghum make good silage.

COUNTY AGENT STAPP POINTS OUT NEED FOR MORE FEED

Mr. Stapp states that many farmers had to buy feed for their livestock in 1933. He also states that many farmers lost livestock because of insufficient amounts of the proper feeds. He points out that there are approximately 5,000 mules and horses in Chilton County, and that there should be two acres of oats planted for each mule or horse in the county. These should be planted this fall.

Mr. Stapp further states that the livestock of Chilton County do not get sufficient hay; that farmers would do well to plant oats and vetch or peas to be cut for hay next spring. He recommends about two bushels of oats and 20 pounds of vetch, or 30 pounds of Austrian winter peas, per acre, and states that the farmers should figure about one acre for each mule and milk cow on the farm.

COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE

Weekly grade and staple reports for cotton issued in Atlanta today by the United States department of agriculture show lower grades ginned in Georgia, Alabama, and South Caroline for the past week. The report for Florida shows no significant changes in grades. The report for North Carolina the first report this season for this state, reflects the customary good grades for early ginning.

The lowering of averages for Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina was principally the result of greatly increased proportions of spotted and yellow tinged grades during the past week. Spotted and tinged grades combined represented over 24 per cent for Georgia for the past week, over 18 per cent for Alabama, and over 6 per cent for South Carolina. For the previous week the percentages of spotted and tinged cotton ranged from 2 per cent to 7 per cent for these states. A surprisingly large amount of the ginnings for last week from the Piedmont section of Georgia, about 54 per cent was either spotted or tinged according to the report. It may be said that spotted cotton is the first stage in discoloration but such designation does not necessarily indicate low value as the specific grade is also a governing factor.

The grade of the total crop to date for each state continues to be high, with percentages of white middling and better being about 84 per cent for Georgia, Alabama, and South Carolina, 88 per cent for Florida and 92 per cent for North Carolina.

The length of staple for Alabama for the past week represented a considerable improvement over the previous week.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

The first Jersey cattle were imported to America in 1850.

Jacob Fussel, Baltimore, Maryland, in 1851 sold the first ice cream in wholesale quantities.

In 1873 Fred C. Hatch of McHenry County, Ill., built the first silo.

In 1883 William Horlick invented malted milk.

The first certified milk was produced by Stephen Francisco in New Jersey in 1894.

Vitamins were discovered during the years 1915 to 1920.

WINTER FORESTRY CAMPS TO BE MOVED TO THIS STATE

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 19.—It is probable that there will be several camps removed to Alabama from northern localities where climatic conditions during the coming winter will render their operation impracticable, according to a statement issued by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The number of winter camps allotted to each of the southern states will vary according to many factors that enter into the situation.

The wishes of the local communities and even the intrinsic need for the work of the camps are not the prevailing considerations, according to the commission. The federal government in allotting the locations places principal stress upon the extent of the state forestry appropriation available in maintaing the improvements construted by the work crews and also upon the exact character of the cooperation in forestry that has been accorded by the local landowners in the past and that is in effect at the present time.

States that appropriated larger sums for public forestry work enabling them to establish close cooperative agreements with individual and associated forest landowners will probably be given preference as to the number of winter camps assigned. In recent years the average expenditures for forestral purposes by the various states that have had departments in operation as long as or longer than that of Alabama has been approximately three and one-half cents per acre of forest land. In Alabama it is less than one-tenth of one cent per acre.

It is understood to be the express desire of the president that his extensive program be centered chiefly in the states that have made the most substantial provision for carrying on their own forestry work. It is anticipated, however, that Alabama's quota of winter camps will be amply commensurate with the facilities provided by the state.

SEED SELECTION IS OCTOBER JOB

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 19.—Selection of seed corn on the farm gives planting seed superior to that which might be secured from other sections where different soil and climatic conditions prevail, said J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in emphasizing the importance of this October job.

"Slection should be made both before and after harvest," he said. Before harvest go through the field and select seed ears, keeping in mind the following points:

"Select for vigorous stalks as shown by superiority over surrounding stalks. Do not select ears that are good because of space or favorable conditions. Select from stalks of medium height that do not break.

"Select for two or more ears per stalk and preferably with ears turning down. Use both ears from a stalk.

"Select ears with shucks extending well over tips.

"Select ears from stalks which are free from disease. It is necessary to select many more ears than will be needed for planting, for a reselection should be made after harvesting."

In the reselection after harvest, Mr. Lowery said that the following points should be kept in mind.

Select ears having hard, dense, heavy and relatively large grains. Select long heavy ears which do not have too many kernels. The shuck and cob should be clean and show no discoloration. Preferably, the ears should be well filled out. This character, however, is of minor importance.

He emphasized the importance of storing seed corn so as to protect it from rats and insects.

NATIONAL PECAN MEET IN STATE

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 19.—The annual meeting of the National Pecan Association is to be held this year in Montgomery, Ala., according to Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, who is chairman of the program committee, and has extended a blanket invitation to all those interested in pecan culture to attend the session to be held at the Gay Teague Hotel, September 26, 27, and 28.

The meeting of the national education association of those associated with pecan growing will bring together 300 to 400 representatives from Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Arizona.

The program will include discussions by a host of national authorities on cultural practices, spraying, fertilization, disease and insect control, thinning, harvesting and all other problems of the industry.

A special subject which is expected to come in for consideration is that of a code for the pecan industry. Discussions on this point will center around the protection of producers in any code that might be accepted by the Recovery Administration for the pecan industry.

The meeting will serve in general for a celaring house for the latest information from all sections of the belt on pecan culture, Mr. Brown said. Proceedings are usually published and furnish a valuable and timely treatise on pecan problems.

Actively sponsoring the meeting is J. Lloyd Abbot of Spring Hill, prominent pecan grower, and secretary of the association.

A Jungle Tale

Along came a great mamma elephant trudging through the deep jungle of darkest Africa, when, presto, and she had heedlessly stepped on a mamma partridge just a few inches from the nest of little partridges. The kind hearted elephant saw what she had done and having babies of her own who sometimes got very cold, she felt sorry for the little birds and sat down over the nest to keep them warm.

GINNERS FREE TO OPERATE AS THEY HAVE IN THE PAST

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 19.—Alabama ginners are free to operate their gins just as they have been doing in the past, reports commissioner of agriculture Seth P. Storrs, who announces that Secretary Wallace has not approved a ginners' code and that commissioners of agriculture of four cotton growing states have filed a brief asking that no code be approved this season.

The brief contained the objections and proposed amendments to the ginners marketing agreement or code was submitted by commissioners Storrs, G. C. Adams, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, J. Roy Jones, commissioner of agriculture of North Carolina. They declare that $3.50 per bale including bagging and ties is a reasonable price to charge for ginning.

"We are filing this brief in beahlf of approximately 1,000,000 cotton farmers of these four states and to save the thousands of small ginners who would be forced out of business if the code or agreement was approved" Storrs said.

JAMES CAGNEY TURNED IN HIS STORY AND THEN RAN

When an actor starts out in search of "atmosphere" for the part he is to play in his next picture, anything is liable to happen. The pugnacious nose of James Cagney, according to Cagney himself, needed some developing into what is known in newspaper parlance as a "nose for news" if he were to put any authenticity into his latest Warner Bros. picture of newspaper life. "Picture Snatcher," which opens at the Wadesonian Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, September 27 and 28.

Accordingly, he presented himself at the editorial office of the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News and poured his tale of desire for knowledge into the ear of the day city editor, Mat Weinstock.

"Ever had any experience?" Weinstock inquired.

"I was once an office boy in the New York Sun," Jimmie sheepishly answered.

Mat Weinstock thrust a bit of scrawled paper under Jimmie's nose.

"Go to this address," he commanded, "and get me a human interest story on this woman who just gave birth to triplets. And go over to George Watson at the picture bureau on the other side of this room and get him to give you a camera. We must have a picture on it."

One hour later, Jimmie returned to the paper. He calmly handed in the camera and the film to be developed to the picture bureau and then sat down at a typewriter to dash off the story.

The news had gone the rounds that James Cagney, the movie star, was on the editorial staff for the day. Everyone wanted to be helpful. No sooner had he inserted the copy paper in the machine than he was surrounded by kibbitizing reporters.

"You ought to get a by-line," suggested "Brick" Garrigus.

Gene Coughlin, J. W. Ward and "Nick" Carter had other suggestions and advice to offer, and by the time the story came out of the typewriter, Jimmie had almost forgotten what the story was all about.

"What do I do with it now?" he asked of Mat Weinstock.

"Get it set up," the city editor grinned, pointing to the composing room.

The composing room was a maze of half-filled forms and clattering linotype machines. Jimmie handed his copy to the nearest linotyper who set the story in type and had a proof pulled for Cagney who carried it to the city desk.

George Watson was standing here with Mat Weinstock, showing him a wet print of Jimmie's photographic effort.

"I want to congratulate you," Watson said. "It's the finest picture of the Aurora Borealis I have yet seen."

"I hope your story is a little better," said Weinstock as Jimmie handed him the proof.

A casual glance was enough to disillusion the trusting city editor.

"Where did you say you learned to be a newspaper man?" he queried.

Jimmie is, if nothing else, a quick thinker. He had to think and act quickly now, for he sensed something was wrong.

In answer to Mat Weinstock's stormy query, he shouted as he dived through the door:

"I was once an office boy on the New York Sun."

And the last that the Illustrated Daily News heard of James Cagney was a quick clatter of footsteps on the stairway leading to the street.

Then he went back to the studio and reported to Director Lloyd Bacon that he was an experienced reporter. In the production Jimmie is not so hot in handling a story. In fact, he can't write at all. But he becomes an adept in stealing pictures, having had an early training as a crook, recently released from jail, and becomes his tabloid's star picture snatcher.

Patricia Ellis is his leading lady and others in the cast include Ralph Bellamy, Alice White, Ralf Harolde, and Robert Emmet O'Connor.

STATE GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17.—The start of the new fiscal year October 1 will find hunting, fishing and trapping licenses for the approaching season in the hands of the judges of probate in all the counties of the state and the commissioner of licenses in Jefferson county.

Announcing the mailing of the new licenses, Commissioner I. T. Quinn of the Game and Fisheriess Department, stated that the revenue by which that department carries on its functions of protecting, conserving, propagating and rehabilitating the wild life resources of the state is derived almost entirely from these sources.

"The trend back toward better times bids fair to increase the amount of revenue this year for conservation purposes through an increase in the sale of licenses over the past two or three years," he said.

"This increase is sorely needed if the department is to maintain the essential features of its program and it is important that all persons who contemplate the enjoyment that comes with the pursuit of game make their contribution to the cause of conservation and the maintenance of field sports by the purchase of hunting licenses.

"With the prospect of the best crop of game in recent years there is promise of the greatest return to the hunter for the small investment he makes in a hunting license. The food value to a hunter's family of a dozen quail, three less than one day's bag limit, will equal in amount the sum required of him in the purchase of a state hunting license.

"Game killed in season constitutes a wholesome food supply to supplement the usual products of field, orchard and garden which find their way to the table of every family in the state.

"The sale of all game is prohibited by law in Alabama and all persons desiring a share of the bountiful crop of game birds and animals during the coming season must equip themselves with hunting licenses. Thus equipped, they may pursue the sport of hunting in a legal way and enjoy the rich harvest which nature has provided for them."

INFORMATION REGARDING SEED LOANS FOR 1933

In our advice of July 19, 1933, Seed or Crop Production Loan borrowers for the season 1932 and all prior seasons whose debts are secured by cotton held as collateral are authorized to sell such cotton, the proceeds to be applied in the liquidation, so far as possible, of their Seed or Crop Production Loan debts.

As successor to the Secretary of Agriculture under the executive order dated March 27, 1933, and under the Agricultural Adjustmnet Act approved May 12, 1933 the Farm Credit Administration has been authorized to obtain complete title to this cotton and to transfer it or its equivalent to the Secretary of Agriculture. In order to act upon this authority it will be necessary either for growers voluntarily to sell this cotton, or for the Farm Credit Administration to exercise the power of sale covering this cotton contained in borrowers' applications for 1933 loans or in any other agreements or any power of sale by law.

If prior to September 20, 1933, you desire one of the following steps:

1. If your cotton is not being handled by a cotton cooperative marketing association, notify the seed and crop production loan office of your district that you desire to have your cotton sold immediately, which will be done and your account credited in accordance with the procedure set out below.

2. If your cotton is being handled by a cotton cooperative marketing association, notify such association that you desire your cotton to be sold immediately, which will be done and your account credited in accordance with the procedure set out below.

On the other hand, if you fail yourself to sell this cotton prior to September 20, 1933, we shall offer it for sale at any future date in accordance with the terms of the power of sale contained in the applications for 1933 loans or in any other agreements or any power of sale conferred by law and shall take necessary steps to secure title to cotton on which authority has not been given us to sell.

Whether the cotton is sold by your authority or by the authority of the Farm Credit Administration, the proceeds will be applied to the liquidation, so far as possbile, of your indebtedness as follows:

1. If any residue remains after the application of the proceeds of sale to the full liquidation of your indebtedness and all costs of storage, insurance, brokerage and other charges in connection with this cotton, it will be remitted to you.

2. If your loan was fully collateralized at the time of collateralization, upon sale your note will be considered paid in full and will be canceled and the mortgage covering this cotton collateral will be released. If your loan was not fully collateralized or not collateralized at all, then of course any unpaid balance will remain outstanding after the application of the net sales proceeds or the collateral value, if any, whichever is high, to the reduction of the loan.

In order to insure prompt action and orderly marketing, the warehouse receipts covering your cotton will be held by the crop production loan office for your district or by a cotton cooperative marketing association, when such association is handling the cotton. In neither case will it be possible from the date of this letter for you to obtain warehouse receipts covering your cotton if you have given the Farm Credit Administration the power of sale covering this cotton in the borrowers' application for 1933 loans or in any other agreement or any power of sale is conferred by law.

"KING OF JAZZ"

"King of Jazz," opens at the Wadesonian Theatre Friday night, September 22; and will also be shown at 10 o'clock Saturday night. This revival of the most popular of the music extravaganzas of three years ago is an interesting indication of a mood which is sweeping over the movies and the country.

Moving pictures have always been regarded as a necessity by the powers that be. During the War, their province in maintaining morale back home was essential. During these times, comedy has been the predominating note, but it is really the times which are bringing back musicals to the place they once occupied. Sophisticated pictures seem to be all right during prosperity, but now people desire to amuse themselves with merry and melodious fare. "King of Jazz," is mighty timely.

As soon as Carl Laemmle was convinced of this trend he took steps to revive, re-edit and re-print the famous "King of Jazz," starring Paul Whiteman and directed by John Murrah Anderson. Its place in the hearts of music lovers has never been taken by any other picture, and its return will be welcomed by every moving picture lover in this city.

Many of the singers and dancers and performers who were not stars at the time "King of Jazz" was first produced, reached stardom because of their work. These lucky stars include Jeanie Lang, Bing Crosby, Nell O'Day and Jack Fulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Akins Collins left Wednesday morning on a trip to Florida. Mrs. Collins will remain for a visit with her people. Mr. Collins will return in a fwe days.

HEARING IN PROCESS ON FARM EQUIPMENT CODE

Washington. — Declaring that the farm-equipment industry lost $32,500,000 in 1932 and that American farmers last year spent only one-fifth of their 1929 outlay for farming machinery, the proponents of the code for the industry represented that they now employ 45,000 workers with an annual pay roll of $68,000,000. Other claims made were that over a period of 21 years ending in 1929, earnings on the capital invested averaged 7 per cent annually, and that it always has been highly diversified, making about 3,000 types and sizes of products. On the basis of 40 hours per week, the industry would employ 14,212 more than were required in 1929. Representatives of the farmers' organizations are attending the hearings.

County Agent Says He Is Not Interested In Being Probate Judge

In a clear cut and positive statement County Agent, C. E. Stapp, has settled a rumor that he might be using his offices and functions as County Agent to build himself up to some County office. "I am not interested in being Judge of Probate," he says, "My first interest is in county agency work."

Following is the complete statement issued by Mr. Stapp. It is clear and fully self-explanatory:

'To my several friends throughout Chilton County, representing both parties, who have asked me to consider running for the office of Probate Judge, I wish to say that I thank you for your many expressions of confidence and good will, but I am not interested in being Judge of Probate. My first interest is in county agency work. I feel that county agency work offers one of the biggest fields of service in this or any other county. It is my desire to render service to mankind.

"I am interested in putting over a real agricultural program in Chilton County so that farmers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, and in fact, people engaged in every vocation, may enjoy a richer, fuller, and happier life.

"It has occurred to me several times within the past few months that some people in the county seem to feel that I am trying to build up a sentiment that I might be elected to some county office. If such idea has prevailed in the mind of anyone, I wish to correct it now, and further say that what I have done since coming to the county has been done for what I thought was for the best interest of the people of Chilton County.

"I hope to continue in county agent work in Chilton County, and I solicit the cooperattion of every man, woman, and child in the county in doing something to bring agriculture and the whole citizenship to a higher level.—C. E. Stapp, County Agent."

TWO DIED FROM TRUCK ACCIDENT

Clyde Popwell and Andrew Bone Died Sunday From Injuries Sustained In Accident On Highway Saturday Night

Clyde Popwell, age 20 years, and Andrew Bone, age 35 years, died last Sunday at Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton, as a result of injuries sustained in the wreck of a truck Saturday night about 11:30. The wreck happened at the curve just beyond George Freeman's place about 15 miles north of Clanton. They were returning form Birmingham with an empty truck in which they had been for several days engaged in hauling fruit from points in Georgia to Birmingham.

As the truck came down a long hill and approached the curve it left the road to the right, plunging through the guard rail. Eight concrete posts were knocked down. The front wheels of the truck were left hanging to the guard rails, and the machine plunged headfirst down a twenty-foot embankment. The cab was completely demolished, and Popwell and Bone, only occupants, were victims of a most terrible result. Popwell was driving the truck when the accident happened, and it is said Bone was asleep.

Martin's ambulance was summoned and brought the injured men to the hospital in Clanton. Medical and surgical attention was given them promptly, but little hope was held for their recovery. Both victims were conscious when brought to the hospital, and told the complete story of the accident.

Clyde Popwell was a son of Mr. Walter Popwell, of Clanton. He was one of the most popular and promising young men of our city. All his life he has been an industrious worker, a dilligent student in school, and for many years has taken a leading part in Boys Club Work of the County. Last year he served as president of the County Club, and was the idol of every boy who knew him. He was destined, we thought, to become one of the foremost leaders and citizens of our county. His every trait indicated a most promising future. His sudden and tragic death brings to naught many a gloriuos ambition which his family and his friends held for him.

He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Popwell; three brothers, George, Buster, and Julius; four sisters, Jettie (Mrs. Cecil Smith), of Lakeland, Florida, Willie, Dalene and Betty Jean. His brother, Tip, was killed a year and seven months ago in a truck wreck on the highway near Mt. Creek.

Funeral services were held at Pleasant Grove Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell, assisted by Rev. J. S. Johnson. Pallbearers were Durwood and J. L. Teel, Morris Popwell, James Dennis, Ted Littlejohn and Arthur Watson. Burial was in charge of Martin.

Andrew Bone was a son of O. D. Bone. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maude Gray Bone, and two daughters, ages 10 and 12. The family live at the Ezell place three miles south of Clanton.

Burial services were at Bethany on Monday afternoon in charge of Martin. The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell and Rev. B. F. Dykes. Mr. Bone formerly worked for R. W. Lowe in South Clanton.

Mims Ferry Will Get A New Barge And Other Needed Improvements

The Commissioners Courts of Chilton and Coosa Counties, headed by Judge L. H. Reynolds and Judge George McDonald, respectively, held a joint meeting last Friday morning at 10:30 at Mims Ferry on Coosa River below Lay Dam. Judge Reynolds was elected chairman of the joint meeting.

The purpose of the meeting was to consider the matter of rebuilding and operating the ferry at that place. A thorough discussion of the question was had, at the conclusion of which it was determined and properly ordered that a new ferry boat be constructed. The new barge will be built according to modern specifications that will insure its operation without dangers of leaking, sinking, and other ordinary mishaps. Construction of the barge will be under supervision of Commissioner Joe Cobb, of Chilton, and Commissioner Ferguson, of Coosa.

Location of the ferry will be at the same place as formerly. A change of rates to passengers was made as follows: For all vehicles, including passengers the fare will in future be 30 cents each way from 5 o'clock a.m. to 8 o'clock p.m.; and 50 cents each way from 8 o'clock p.m. Charge for trailers will be 10 cents extra. These new prices were also ordered to go into effect at the Log Cabin Beach ferry below Mitchell Dam.

The ferry below Lay Dam is owned by Oscar Mims, of Miami, Fla. Mr. John Thompson was vested with authority from Mr. Mims to act in carrying out arrangements with the county authorities. Some dissatisfaction has been voiced about recent operations of the ferry. The court agreed with Mr. Thompson for him to personally supervise the operation in future and see that the convenience of the traveling public is properly served. Mr. Mims will continue ownership of the business.

Having completed the business at hand the courts adjourned at 11:30 and went to a spring about a mile from the river. There was waiting for them a fish fry dinner which had been prepared under supervision of Commissioner Ferguson of Coosa. According to all reports, there has never been a better fish fry anywhere in all history.

Two hours or more was consumed in eating fish and having a jolly good time together. A free-for-all joke telling contest was engaged in, and much fun was provoked by the lively jests that were cracked.

According to a report given by Judge Reynolds, the governing boards of the two counties feel that they have made ample arrangements that will guarantee the operation of a safe and convenient ferry in the future. This will be interesting news to many people in both Chilton and Coosa Counties.

$200,000 For Destroyed Cotton Now Being Distributed To Farmers

Government checks to pay for cotton taken out of production in Chilton County began coming into County Agent Stapp's office last Friday. The first batch of 136 checks to arrive amounted to $9,858. The second batch came in Monday amounting to $11,358. Distribution of these checks will reach into every Beat in the county.

Total amount of checks for cotton taken out of production in Chilton County will amount to about $200,000, according to Mr. Stapp. He expects the checks to arrive in small bunches every few days now until all of them get here.

According to regulations, the County Agent must deliver the checks to the cotton grower in person, and the grower must sign receipt for them. In order to save the cotton growers trouble and expense of making long trips to Clanton, Mr. Stapp has arranged for distribution of checks to be made at Verbena, Thorsby Jemison, Stanton, Maplesville, and Pletcher, in addition to his office at Clanton. On Thursday of this week he will be at each of the above named places some time during the day with all checks he has ready for farmers in those sections.

Notification is made to the owners of the checks in advance so that they will know when and where to meet the county agent to get their checks. When the cotton grower to whom the check is issued is notified, Mr. Stapp also notifies all parties who are interested.

Should anyone get a notice to meet the county agent at any of the places in the county and be unable to meet him, he may call at the office in Clanton and get his check.

Lewis Charged With Killing Vinzant

Dewey Lewis, of Keystone, was indicted by the grand jury of Chilton County last week for the killing of Will Vinzant some months ago. The charge preferred against him was for manslaughter in the second degree.

Vinzant was injured by a truck on the highway above Jemison, and died a few days later. It is charged that Lewis was driving the truck while intoxicated, for which he was also indicted by the grand jury. Warrants have been served on him by the Sheriff of Chilton County and he has made bond.

Russell Hayes and William Parker of Thorsby, who are said to have been with Lewis when the fatal accident happened to Vinzant, were also indicted for violating the prohibtiion law. They also have made bond.

SINGING DRAWS RECORD CROWD

County Convention Held at the Courthouse Here Last Sunday

Probably the best and certainly the most largely attended singing of recent times was held at the courthouse last Sunday. According to announcement the Morris-Henson quartet from Atlanta was there and put on several numbers both before and after noon. There were two other quartets present—the Jemison Quartet and a bunch from Sylacauga headed by Elbert Hall. The numbers by all were greatly appreciated by the huge audience.

The class singing was exceptionally good, considering the crowded condition. Both the Henson and Stamps books were used. W. G. Culp, county chairman, called the singing to order about 10:30 by singing, and prayer was offered by Rev. T. W. Billingsley. A program committee was appointed consisting of Akins Collins, A. H. Glasscock and J. B. Hammonds. Directors before noon were: O. L. Devaughn, W. M. Devaughn, Ira Grant, Lee J. Grant, A. H. Glasscock, Joe Painter, Jasper Robinson, Herbert Lowery, Marion Easterling and Gresham Lowery. In the afternoon the directors were: Olin Williams, Jesse Jones, Jean Wyatt, Ralph Grant, J. E. Martin, Hudson Williams, J. T. Cook, Edward Jones, G. C. Weldon, Sam Collins, J. E. Varner, E. L. Glasscock, Ammie Boswell, Mr. Deason of Centreville, Miss Grace Ward of Centreville, Robert Dupriest, O. P. Bennett, F. A. Thomas, Andy Hughes, L. T. Grant.

Owing to the long list of directors and the scarcity of time, the election of officers was postponed. This matter will be attended to at the afternoon singing at the courthouse the fifth Sunday in October.

The dismissing number was sung by the Morris-Henson Quartet, and thus was brought to a close a singing which will be remembered and cherished by hundreds of people from every nook and corner of the county, and from over the state besides.

License Buying Starts Monday

State and county business licenses and automobile tags will be on sale at the office of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds on next Monday morning, October 2. They become due and payable on October 1st, which date this year happens to fall on Sunday.

Although motorists will have until November 15 to purchase license plates without penalty, only thirty days is permitted under the law for purchase of business licenses, which become delinquent November 1. Penalties and citation fees will be charged those who fail to buy licenses on time.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that motorists can not use their cars until November 15, then put them in a garage until January 1 and buy a three-quarter year tag. A car used any time during October or November will be liable for a whole year tag.

Therefore, if you intend to park your tin lizzie and take to walking to save the tag cost, you must put her in storage on Saturday night of this week, September 30, before midnight.

Tags for all private automobiles will be issued on a weight basis under the new legislative act, although tags for trucks and busses will be issued on the same basis as heretofore.

Under the new weight basis cars are classified as follows: Cars weighing 2,501 pounds, A tags $11.75; cars weighing between 2,501 and 3,001, B tags $17.25; cars weighing between 3,001 and 3,501 C tags $19.75; cars weighing between 3,501 and 4,0001, D tags $26.75; all cars weighing over 4,001 pounds E tags $30.50. Now, if you want to find out how much your tag will cost, weigh your car and apply the above scale.

As heretofore, assessment for advalorem tax and payment of the advalorem tax due on automobiles October 1 will have to be made before you can get a license tag from the Probate office.

REPORT MADE BY CO. GRAND JURY

Examined 110 Witnesses and Returned 49 Indictments In 56 Cases

To the Honorable Judge of Probate and Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama:

Upon the recommendation of the Grand Jury of Chilton County, Alabama, organized for the July, 1933 Term, and the instructions of the Hon. F. Loyd Tate, Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, I hereby submit to your honorable body a true, correct and exact copy of the report of said Grand Jury to the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama, on September the 21st, 1933, which report is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

State of Alabama, Chilton County. To Hon. F. Loyd Tate as Judge of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Alabama.

We, the Grand Jury impanelled for the July term of the Circuit Court, after receiving your Honor's able and instructive charge, entered upon our investigation of the matters that came before us as Grand Jurors, and herewith submit the following report:

During our investigation we have considered 56 cases and have examined 110 witnesses, and are returning herewith 49 true bills.

We have examined the fee book of the Probate Judge and find it neatly kept and correct in so far as we were able to ascertain. We have examined the bonds of the various county officials and find that they are ample for the protection of the public, and on our examination of the sheriff's account with the State for feeding prisoners we find it being kept in accordance with the law. On our examination of the office of the County Superintendent of Education we find that his books, records and papers are being kept neatly and in accordance with the law in so far as we were able to ascertain.

We have made a personal inspection of the county jail, and believe it to be sufficiently safe for the keeping of the prisoners, and find that the prisoners confined therein are being well fed and cared for with reasonable comfort. The Grand Jury, in a body, made a personal inspection of the alms house, which is located about 4 mlies from Clanton, and found that it is being well handled by those in charge and that the occupants get meals and attention in so far as the arrangements for taking care of the inmates will reasonably permit.

The Grand Jury observed that two of the dwelling houses on the premises of the alms house were in need of new roofs and that some of the houses had holes in the floors. The steps to two of the houses are badly in need of repairs. We recommend that the attention of the proper authorities be called to these matters and that the needed repairs be attended to as soon as is practicable.

The Grand Jury wishes especially to thank your Honor for the very able charge given us when we were first impanelled, as it has been most helpful to us throughout all our investigations.

Sheriff Gillespie and his deputies and Mr. Ellison, the bailiff for the Grand Jury, were most courteous to us during our investigations, and rendered us valuable assistance in the dispatch of the business before us, all of which we greatly appreciate.

We, having complied to the best of our ability with your Honor's charge, respectfully ask that we now be dismissed until such time as your Honor may see fit and think proper to have us again convene.

This, September 21st, 1933.

V. J. ELMORE, Foreman.

Information On Cotton Marketing

To Chilton County Cotton Growers:

In our desire to give you full information on the cotton marketing program we give you the following information:

1. In an announcement made by Secretary of Agriculture, Honorable Henry A. Wallace, Friday, September 22, in discussing the plans for cotton production control in 1934 and 1935 he outlined in part a plan to—

"Offer loans to cotton producers of 10 cents per pound on their present crop, enabling them to hold their cotton until prices are nearer fair exchange value."

It is probable that the 10 cents per pound would be loaned on basis middling seven-eights cotton, with lower grades taking lower loan values.

2. Working details of this plan have not yet been received. This office at present cannot make loans on cotton. It will not be necessary to visit this office for information as any additional facts will be sent you promptly as received.

5. This letter is not meant to indicate that cotton prices will go up or will go down but is sent you to give you the above information for whatever it may be worth to you.

Yours truly,

C. E. STAPP, County Agent.

These bonds are the direct obligations of the Home Owner's Loan Corporation, "an instrumentality of the United States," the capital stock of which is $2,000,000,000 and has been fully subscribed by the United States Government.

Under authority of the "Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933," approved June 13, 1933, these bonds have the following provisions:

The Attorney General of the United States has rendered an option upholding the legality and regularity of this issue of bonds.

The purposes for which these bonds have been authorized and the scope of the operations of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation are described by William F. Stevenson, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Corporation.

These bonds are now being issued by the corporation in exchange for mortgages as more fully described herein, and are ready for delivery in the form of temporary receipts, exchangeable for definitive bonds now being prepared. No public offering of these bonds is being made at the present time.

PRODUCTION AND SEED LOANS

Amending our letter to all borrowers, under date of August 25, 1933, at which time we stated that no claim will be made to the cotton seed of borrowers of this office but instead will permit the seed to be used for picking and ginning and, where necessary, an additional amount not to exceed ½ cent per pound of lint cotton.

Believing that the allowance of ½ cent per pound is insufficient to cover the ginning and picking charges, we are hereby authorizing an increase in this allowance from ½ cent to four-fifths cent per pound, or $4 per bale of 500 pounds. The full proceeds of the lint, however, must be handled for the account of this office.

Where cotton is sold in the seed, the allowance for picking will be not to exceed 40 cents per 100 pounds of seed cotton.—Very truly yours, Karl M. Blanchard, regional manager, crop production loan office.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pitts and children spent last Sunday with relatives and friends in Shelby County. Mr. Pitts was born and reared at Vincent and enjoys frequent visits to the old childhood haunts.

"--my skin became clear...

Increase the red-blood-cells and their hemoglobin content and more of the life giving oxygen is carried to every part of the body—even to the skin. "Step up" the ability of the resisting cells to devour infectious pimple germs. Then you will have laid the foundation for a sounder physical condition.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARMERS LOSE MONEY ON 100 POUNDS ACRE YIELD

Southern farmers who plant cotton on land that yields less than 100 lbs. an acre will lose money, warns F. W. Gist, statistican of the department of agriculture.

A study of six years was behind the statement, and the announcement was hastened by the recent cotton acreage reduction campaign which did not pay for acreage that yielded less than 100 pounds.

"According to the reports of the United States Department of Agriculture, the cost of producing cotton at around 74 pounds per acre during the six years averaged about 21.8 cents per pound. The price obtained by the producer during the same period averaged 11.7 cents per pound, including an actual loss due to the low yield of this portion of the acreage of 10.1 cents per pound," Gist said.

In concluding his report Mr. Gist suggested that farmers not plant land to cotton which will not produce over 100 pounds to the acre. "Each individual farmer will probably know that part of his land which may be expected to fall within this class and it would appear to be the part of wisdom to leave this type of land out of cultivation as one of the best means of meeting current prices with the lowest possible cost of production, since production costs depend upon acre yields more than upon any one other item," he added.

ALABAMA PECAN CROP DOUBLES YIELD OF LAST YEAR, SAYS GIST

A pecan crop that is 100 per cent ahead of last year is announced by F. W. Gist, statistican of the Department of Agriculture.

This state will produce a total of 2,900,000 pounds of nuts this year, compared with 1,400,000 pounds last year and a five-year average of 2,442,000.

Production of pecans for 1933 in the entire United States is placed at 55,73,000 pounds, compared with 53,160,000 pounds in 1932.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith, of Lakeland, Florida, were here Monday to attend the funeral of Clyde Popwell, brother of Mrs. Smith.

MORE COVER CROPS NEEDED THIS FALL

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 26.—Add to the usual argument for planting vetch and winter peas the fact that more land will be released from cultivation of cash crops next season and there is additional reason for increased plantings of winter legumes this fall.

"The usual reasons for planting winter cover crops are that they prevent leaching of plant foods from the soil, improve the land when turned under, and furnish winter grazing as well as excellent hay," says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

"In addition to these excellent arguments, there are some special reasons that will apply this fall. Most farmers have plowed up part of their cotton. There will be a movement to reduce the cotton acreage in 1934 also."

Therefore, Mr. Lowery regards it as extremely inadvisable that the land so released from production will be turned over to weeds and gullies.

On the other hand, he points out that the rules of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration will not allow the extensive planting of money crops on the land released from cotton.

"The logical thing to do," he says, "is to plant cover crops this fall and follow these cover crops next spring with food, feed, and other soil improving crops. The man who will do this for the next two years will find that he is more nearly independent of the supply merchant, fertilizer dealer, and credit agencies than he has ever been before. He will have less worry, a better farm and more fertile soil."

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

Circular 59 from the experiment station at Auburn contains valuable information pertaining to the trench silo.

The trench silo is easy to build and is expensive, requiring mainly man and mule labor.

The trench silo can be built to suit the needs of any number of cows. A cow should consume about 35 pounds or one cubic foot of silage daily.

A trench silo will preserve silage satisfactorily. Silage taken from a trench silo at Auburn was considered equal in equality to that removed from a concrete silo.

BLACKSHER GIVES LAND FOR A STATE PARK

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 25.—Little River State Park on the line between Monroe and Escambia Counties has been increased in area by a gift of 640 acres from the Blacksher Company of Mobile. This brings the area of the park to nearly 1,100 acres.

Since the establishment of the little River Park, Mr. J. U. Blacksher has been interested in its extension to include a larger acreage. With the excellent prospects of a number of additional park camps in Alabama during the coming winter, Mr. Blacksher decided that the present was a good time to take definite steps. The State Commission of Forestry regards the public spirited action of the Blacksher Company as of very great assistance in Alabama's park program. The development of the added acreage will take place with the improvement of the original site already scheduled.

POLICY GOVERNS RECOMMENDATIONS

Auburn, Ala., Sept. 26.—A written policy governing recommendations on feed, fertilizer, variety of plants, farm implements, and other materials used in agricultural production has been announced by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service, and Dean M. J. Funchess, director of the experiment station, of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in response to numerous inquiries.

It requires that all recommendations bearing the stamp of approval of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will be based upon experiments and demonstrations officially conducted and by scientific means and methods, and that no preference will be given one mixture or brand over another where the ingredients, contents, and quality are standard.

The entire statement follows:

"All recommendations by the experiment station and the extension service will be based upon the results obtained from definite experiments and demonstrations conducted by the various divisions and departments, or upon definite results obtained by other state experiment stations, the United States Department of Agriculture, or other similar recognized institutions and agencies of a non-partisan unbiased nature.

"In the case of commercial feed or fertilizer mixtures or brands of feed or fertilizer, including secret or closed formulas, recommendations will be based upon animal and crop requirements and no preference will be given one mixture or brand over another where the ingredients, contents, and quality are standard.

"Recommendations dealing with varieties of plants, implements, patent devices, and similar matters will be governed solely by the requirements in each case and the efficiency and practical application of the variety or implement or device for accomplishing the desired results."

BRIEF RURAL ITEMS

That there will be a cotton production control program for 1934 now seems a certainty. It is expected that details will be announced soon.

Soil erosion is one of the worst enemies of good farming. It takes a heavy toll. Terraces and winter legumes are good preventatives. The legumes also add nitrogen and humus to the soils.

Phosphate and inoculation are important factors in successful growing of hairy vetch or Austrian peas for soil improvement. Basic slag is a form of phosphate which contains lime. It is splendid for use with legumes.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 25.—The opening of the shrimping season started the wheels of Alabama's seafood industry to grinding, has provided income for approximately 5,000 persons.

Capt. W. E. Akridge, state oyster inspector at Byaou LaBatre, reports 250 boatmen have been engaged in commercial shrimping since the season opened August 1.

"This gives employment to about 1,000 persons, including both men and women, and benefits in the neighborhood of 5,000 people," he said. "So far, this has been one of the best seasons we have had in shrimping industry." The season closes May 31.

The shrimp, unlike oysters, have no way of being cultivated and the state's only alternative is to provide protection. Up until recently very little has been known of shrimp life. Within recent months, however, the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries made a detailed study in Louisinaa and discovered shrimp are very similar to the salmon in their habits. They are said to spawn once a year and, after spawning, die.

"The fascinating part of shrimping is the gamble involved," said Capt. Akridge. "This appeals to a majority of the fishermen. When the trawl is placed overboard one never knows whether the quantity caught will be one pound or 4,000 pounds. Oftentime the trawl may be caught on some obstruction and lost entirely, or it may be ripped to pieces by sharks endeavoring to eat the fish that are gilled in the net.

"It usually requires about an hour to make a drag and frequently there are as many as 22 barrels of shrimp caught in one drag. Raw shrimp will bring $6.00 a barrel at the factories, with each barrel averaging about 200 pounds."

The farmer lad, strange to city methods, had been directed on his arrivel in the great city to telephone his uncle. The number he wished was MAin 1996, which he proceeded to call in the following manner: "Hello, Central. I want big MA and small in 1-9-9-6."

"What's come between Phyllis and Teddy? I thought that they were engaged."

"So they were, until he absentmindedly agreed with her when she told him that she wasn't half good enough for him."

A hold-up man thinks the world owes him a living, so he's always sticking up for his rights.

I will start off this week with the Wyandotte. The body of this bird is comparatively round, and the general shape and character of feathering give it the appearance of having a rather short back and being low set. Like the Plymouth Rock it is a good general-purpose breed, well adapted for flesh production and a good layer when bred for egg production. All Wyandottes have rose combs. The standard weights in pounds are: cock, 8½; hen, 6½; cockrel, 7½; and pullet 5½. Of course there are a number of different types of the Wyandotte. A few of them are as follows: Silver-laced, Golderlaced, White, Buff, Partridge, Silver-Penciled, Columbian and the Black.

The next is the Rhode Island Red, which has a rather long, rectangular body and appears somewhat more upstanding than the Plymouth Rock or the Wyandotte. At the same time, the body has a good depth and is wide and of good length, making a good meat-producing bird. There are two varieties—single-comb and rose-comb, which are otherwise identical. The plumage color is a rich brownish red. The beak is reddish horn and the shanks and toes are rich yellow or reddish horn.

The Rhode Island White, of which the Rose Comb is the only variety, is identical in size and type with the rose-comb Rhode Island Red, and was developed from White Wyandotte, Partridge Cochins and Rose-Comb White Leghorns. The plumage should be pure white.

The Jersey Black Giant, developed largely from Asiatic sources, is the largest of the American breeds. Its comb is single and the plumage in all sections is black with a greenish sheen. The shanks are black with yellow on the under surface of the feet and toes.

The Java originated from the Black Cochin, used on the common fowls of the country in the early history of the American poultry industry. It is a bird of good size, having a long and deep body with good width of back and full, well-rounded brest. The comb is single. There are two types of this breed—the Black Java and the Molted Java.

The Buckeye is an American product resulting from the infusion of blood from the Barred Plymouth Rock Buff Cochin, Rark Cornish, and Black breasted Red Game. The comb is pea shaped, the surdface color is mahogany bay with a slightly darker shade on the wing bows of the males.

The Chantecler originated in Canada between 1908 and 1920, from crosses between Cornish, White Leghorn, White Wyandottee, White Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Reds. It is pure white in all sections of its plumage. The average weight is 7 pounds.

STATE RAISES LESS PEANUTS

Alabama's 1933 peanut harvest is estimated at 144,900,000 pounds by the State Department of Agriculture.

This figure compares with 170,560,000 pounds last year and a five-year average of 121,030,000 pounds.

The total harvested crop of the United States is estimated this year at 912,000,000 pounds against 1,000,000,000 pounds last year and a five-year average of 811,000,000. — L. O. Brackeen.

How Do Our NEW LOW RATES Affect You?

ALABAMA Public Service Commission has ordered certain revisions in the rates of this Company for urban, residential, suburban and rural service to be effective on all bills rendered on and after October 1st, 1933.

The effect of these revisions, which are the most drastic in the entire history of Alabama Power Company, is to reduce substantially the cost of electric service to our customers.

These NEW LOW RATES will bring an immediate reduction of $336,000 annually in electric costs to our residential customers. The new rate schedule provides also for further progressive reductions over a three year period, bringing the total saving to our customers to over $600.000 annually.

In addition to these rate reductions, the Federal Tax (amounting to approximately $82.000 annually, which heretofore has been charged to the customers) henceforth will be paid by the company. These reductions added to the increased operating expenses, as shown in the report of the Commission, result in an $825,000 ANNUAL REDUCTION IN THE INCOME OF THE COMPANY. This does not include the new State Income Tax, nor does it take into consideration the increase in cost of materials used by the company.

BENEFITS TO SMALL CONSUMERS

The largest beneficiary under the revised rates is the small consumer using 45 (and less) kilowatt hours per month. Over 70 per cent of our domestic customers are in this class. This class receives an immediate average reduction of 23.1 per cent in electric service costs.

Important as this saving appears, it is even exceeded in importance by the opportunity our new low rates open to the small consumer to increase his consumption of electricity—either at no additional cost whatever, or for a negligible amount, depending on his individual use of our service.

WATCH FOR EXPLANATORY ADVERTISEMENTS

In a series of explanations which follow this announcement, the new rates—the savings they make possible and the opportunities they create—will be explained in detail. It will be shown how each class of consumers—small, medium, and large—can obtain the fullest benefits from the new rates in both the comfort and the economy of living.

We sincerely hope that every customer will read these advertisements as they contain a message of genuine interest and utmost importance.

The next advertisement about our New Low Rates will appear in next week's issue of this newspaper.

Barney Oldfield Sets A.A.A. Tractor Record of 39.045 m.p.h. at Indianapolis

Roaring around the track at Indianapolis State Fair the old "master driver of the world," Barney Oldfield, recently set a new world's tractor record of 39.045 miles per hour, handling the wheel of this "iron plowhorse" with all the skill and daring that has made his name the synonym for speed. He drove an Allis-Chalmers standard farm tractor with high speed gears and Firestone pneumatic tractor tires.

It was an amazing race—amid a strange scene, for the driver who pressed him closest all the way, and the A.A.A. timer who scored the event were sons of two great rivals of Oldfield's racing career.

The lad on the tractor was Denny Duesenberg, who is already a shrewd racing head and has entered cars in the Indianapolis 500-Mile Classic several years. His father, the late Fred Duesenberg, automobile manufacturer and famous builder of racing creations, raced against Barney in the days when they were bicycle champions—then on through the pioneer racing days that brought on such amazing advancement in automobiles, dating back from Barney's first race in 1902.

The A.A.A. official was Charles Louis Chevrolet, Indianapolis engineer and son of Louis Chevrolet, of General Motors, whose name is among the foremost in the history of the automobile. He was probably Barney's greatest rival on the tracks—and as his son describes it "If Barney didn't win a race in those days Dad did win it." Gaston Chevrolet, Louis' brother, was another great hero of the speedways, and won the Indianapolis Race of 1920.

Oldfield, with his familiar cigar, powerful in build, clear eyed and rich in racing strategy, fought his way to victory. The tractor race, he says, was just as thrilling as a racing car event, as the big machines flashed around the curves hub to hub in a cloud of dust.

The tractor which set this record is capable of plowing and doing all the other farm operations at increased speed and with new comfort and fuel economy. This is made possible by the new Firestone tire development, the tires requiring only 12 pounds air pressure to operate successfully at the plow or on the highway.

FARM ACCOUNTING CONTEST LAUNCHED

Bankers Evolve Plan for Stimulating Important Aid to Farm Success

THE Cache county, Utah, bankers recently added a stimulus to banker-farmer cooperative work by launching a farm accounting contest. At a meeting of the Clearing House Association the project was put before the bankers, and methods and plans formulated.

Each bank in the county agreed to enroll a minimum of five farmers in the farm accounting project. The names of the farmers when enrolled will be sent to the Secretary of the Clearing House, and also to the Extension Division of the Utah State Agricultural College. The bankers agree to cooperate and keep in close touch with each farmer they enroll so as to insure the completion of a maximum number. The bank which succeeds at the conclusion of the contest in enrolling the largest number of farmers completing the project will be given a special recognition at the annual meeting.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

School Opening

It appears that pupils from practically every section of the county are making ready to enter school on Monday, October 2nd. Those people down at Billingsley are making game efforts to get transportation facilities to come to us. If they are successful, it will mean fifty more pupils entering the training school. Here is hoping that their plans will mature. There are a great many people there and it is necessary that some steps should be taken in order to get the children in school.

Buy Vetch and Peas with Cotton Money

You will soon be getting your check for that cotton you took out of production. If you invest a part of it in peas or vetch, you will get a much larger check for your corn and cotton crops next year. Too many of us have the wrong conceptions of using money. If we were more definite in planning our spending, the results would be amazing. There is no gain without sacrifice. Let us make a greater sacrifice this year to get peas or vetch for our corn land next spring. You will actually be proud of the increased yield.—Benjamin Anderson.

The Scope and Purpose of The President's Emergency Re-employment Campaign

The President's Emergency Re-employment Campaign may be described briefly as a plan to add from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 persons to the nation's payrolls within the next six weeks or so, through agreements made with the president of the United States by some 5,000,000 concerns or individuals, employing two or more persons each.

In order that this number of jobs may be made available, it will be necessary, of course, for employers in many cases to shorten working hours. The plan also provides for certain minimum wage scales which also in many cases will mean added labor cost for the employer.

The President's Agreement, however, includes a pledge of cooperation from the consuming public, and it is thus anticipated that the employer, while undertaking a larger expense as the direct result of his agreement with the president, will gain added patronage as the just reward of his public spirited attitude.

The fact is also to be born in mind that where all employers act together to put people back on their payrolls or to raise wages, no employer, as the president himself pointed out, "will suffer because the relative level of competitive cost will advance by the same amount for all."

It is to be understood that this plan is supplementary to the plan of code adoption by various industrial and trade groups which has for its purpose the elimination of unfair competition, the establishment of more equable rewards for labor, the spread of employment and the control of production. This plan for speeding business recovery, launched under the provisions of the National Recovery Act passed by the last congress, is rapidly being made effective, and there will be no let-up on the drive to make its adoption widespread.

The President's Emergency Re-employment plan will bridge time and bring the nation out of the depression more rapidly than if the code adoption plan were depended upon exclusively. The President's Agreement also covers many business groups that would not be amenable to any of the code arrangements.

And what is still more important, perhaps, the President's Emergency Re-employment campaign carries certain psychological values that are as priceless as patriotism at this juncture of our economic history. The president himself made this quite clear in his recent radio address to the nation when he said: "On the basis of this simple principle of everybody doing things together, we are starting out on this nationwide attack on unemployment. It will succeed if our people understand it—in the big industries, in the little shops, in the great cities and in the small villages. There is nothing complicated about it and there is nothing particularly new in the principle. It goes back to the basic idea of society, and of the nation itself, that people acting in a group can accomplish things which no individual acting alone could ever hope to bring about."

Thus we have all the power and potency of mass attack directed along sound lines of organization and system. Here briefly, is an outline of this organized attack on unemployment: In every community, organizations are formed along military lines, which is fitting enough, because the President's Emergency Re-employment campaign is Uncle Sam's war on unemployment and the nation is rallying to the colors just as loyally as though we were actually engaged in a war against a foreign foe.

The local committee is made up of the active heads of the leading business and civic organizations, and includes also the mayor. These committees in the thousands of cities and towns throughout the country were formed following telegrams and letters sent by General Johnson to the presidents of Chambers of Commerce or similar trade bodies in every section of the United States. These local committees elect a general to have charge of the city campaign and a lieutenant general who is a woman. The general selects three colonels, each of whom is to take over a certain part of the campaign work. For example, Colonel No. 1 has charge of the "man-power" or organization department. Under his direction block-to-block canvasses will be made to check up on compliance with the President's Agreement, and to make a survey of the unemployed, as to adaptability by experience as to trades and industries and thus be able more readily to help in the proceses of assimilation of labor by expanding industries. Colonel No. 2, briefly, has charge of newspaper publicity and kindred activities; and Colonel No. 3 has the training and direction of public speakers under his charge.

Each of these three colonels has seven or more majors on his staff, and each major has about the same number of captains. Each captain has seven or more field workers. All of the local organizations are, of course, constantly supplied with educational and inspirational material of all kinds from the National Recovery Administration in Washington. Literally tons and tons of printed matter has been shipped to every nook and corner of the country.

The N. R. A. emblem, known popularly as the Blue Eagle, is one of the most interesting and vital features of the campaign. All employers who sign the President's Agreement are entitled to display the Blue Eagle with the initials N. R. A. and the words "We do our Part." Merchants, manufacturers and all others who have the right to display the insignia by reason of their having complied with the President's Agreement, are permitted to hang it on their walls, or in their windows, or on trucks and cars, and, in fact, the desire of the Recovery Administration that all make liberal use of this badge of patriotism.

Any person in the United States who wishes to cooperate in the President's Emergency Re-employment Campaign and be considered as a member of the N.R.A. may go to the authorized establishment in his locality and sign a statement of cooperation as follows:

"I will cooperate in re-employment by supporting and patronizing employers and workers who are members of N.R.A."

Any such signer will then be given and may thereafter use the insignia of consumer membership in N.R.A.

Every phase of the progress of this mighty campaign will be flashed in the newspapers of the country and announced constantly over the radio. In this way everyone will be in a position to know just what the campaign is doing from day to day in actually putting people back on the payrolls and adding to the mass purchasing power of the country.

While, as has been stated, it is desired that liberal use of the insignia be made by employer and consumers, it is to be remembered that the official N.R.A. emblem is the property of the United States Government and may not be used or reproduced without authority of the National Recovery Administration.

The lists of all employers who sign the President's Agreement are displayed in local post-offices and it is urged that all employers who have not yet signed the agreement do so immediately and deliver them to their local post-master.

With some minor exceptions, the terms of the President's Agreement with employers is, briefly, as follows: Any employer of a factory or mechanical worker or artisan must not pay him less than 40 cents an hour or work him more than 35 hours a week, except that if the employer were paying less than 40 cents for that kind of work on July 15 the employer can pay that rate now, but not less than 30 cents an hour. As to all other employes—those on a weekly rate—the employer will pay not less than $15 a week in a city of over 500,000 population; or $14.50 a week in cities of between 250,000 and 500,000; or $14 a week in cities between 2,500 and 250,000 population; or $12.00 a week in cities of less than 2,500 population, and the employer agrees not to work this class of workers more than 40 hours a week. As to employes who were getting a higher wage, the employer must not reduce their wages because of a reduction in their hours and he should generally keep the usual pay differences as between the lower and the higher paid employes. And after August 31, he must not work children under 16 years of age. There are, of course, some other rules which apply to special cases, but the terms of the agreement as here outlined cover the bulk of cases.

BANNER EXTENDS APPRECIATION TO SINGING SCHOOL TEACHERS

The Banner Print Shop wishes publicly to express its appreciation to the singing school teachers of Chilton County for the patronage given us in our music tablet business. It shows that these people believe in and practice trading at home when it is possible to do so.

The Union-Banner, all through past years, has assisted in the upbuilding of the cause of sacred song. It has helped the teachers advertise their schools, and made numerous announcements of interest to the singers of the county and state. And when the teachers had the opportunity to repay us for our services, they were only too glad to do it. The Union-Banner is most grateful to them for the business turned our way. We have really done more than twice the business we expected when we began making and selling music tablets this summer.

Any time this paper can serve the interest of sacred music in this county in any way we will be more than glad to do it.

PUBLIC WILL PROFIT FROM THE MOTION PICTURE CODE

Washington.—It is evident from the hearings on the motion-picture code now in progress that the public will get better and cleaner films in the future, and the owners of small as well as large picture theaters throughout the country will no longer be subjected to such impositions as being required to rent three or more inferior pictures in order to obtain the promise of one 'superfeature.' The producers, who have been merged under the code with distributors all other elements in the industry, upon the insistence of NRA, agreed in advance to increase wages 14.6 per cent and reduction of hours from an average of 60 per week to 40. Barring plagiarism is under consideration, together with many alleged unfair practices, such as lending of artists and writers, and definite steps have been taken to improve the condition, and prospects, if any, of the 27,000 extras said to be in Hollywood, seldom more than 800 of whom receive any employment. This will be done by eliminating favoritism and members of the families or friends of executives or employes of the companies or persons who do not need the income for such service, whether competent or not. Will H. Hays voiced the pledge of the entire industry to maintain moral standards in production of films.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deramus spent Sunday in Montgomery.

CONCERT HERE MONDAY NIGHT WAS A VERY SUCCESSFUL ONE

A large and appreciative audience attended the concert put on at the courthouse in Clanton Monday night of this week by the Morris-Henson quartet of Atlanta, Ga. It was very regrettable that so many people had to stand, but after the program started there was no complaining. Late comers were glad to get even standing room in order to get to hear the enticing and entertaining numbers put on by the singers.

There was a total of $103.80 collected at the door, all of which went to the quartet. However, the boys very graciously donated to the singers of the county seventy-five of the new Morris-Henson song books, which will be kept at the courthouse and used when the singers meet there. It is the custom of the Morris-Henson Quartet to get all the proceeds from one concert when they make a convention on Sunday as they did here, but inasmuch as the turn-out at this concert was so good, they felt that they were due something back to the people of the county—hence the donation of the song books.

This quartet went from Clanton to Holtville, where they put on a concert in the school building Tuesday night. Wednesday night they were at Thorsby school building, and on Thursday night will be at Rockford. They will make Electic Friday night, and are planning to sing at Ashland in Clay County Saturday night.

The quartet is composed of Andy Hughes, F. A. Thomas, J. T. Cook, and J. P. Waits.

SAUL IN TARSUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:39; 22:3, 27, 28; 26:4-7; Phil. 3:3-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. II Timothy 2:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A School Boy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A School Boy of Tarsus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Preparation for Life Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Training Christian Leaders.

I. Saul's Birth (Acts 21:39).

He was born at Tarsus, the capital of Cilicia. Tarsus was a gateway between the east and west, therefore a great commercial center. It was a self-governing city, making citizenship therein honorable. It was also one of the great educational centers of the Roman empire. In the providence of God the great apostle to the Gentiles was born in the city where he would encounter men of every class and nation.

II. Saul's Education (Acts 22:3).

1. In the home (Phil. 3:5). His parents were pious people and doubtless carefully cultured him according to Jewish standards. He was brought up as a strict Pharisee.

2. In college at Jerusalem (Acts 22:3). About the age of thirteen, as was the custom, he became a child of the law. It was doubtless at this age that he went to Jerusalem and entered upon his course of study under Gamaliel, one of the most eminent teachers of Israel. His course of study here, doubtless, was largely restricted to the Holy Scriptures. In this school he was prepared for the great work of a Christian theologian. Included in his education was:

a. Patriotism. He proudly affirmed "I am a Jew." He was brought up to love his nation. He was a nationalist of the true type.

b. A love for the Bible. To him the Scriptures were the very Word of God, the final word of authority.

c. Zeal for God. The word "zealous" literally means "to boil."

d. He was conscientious. His supreme aim was to have a conscience void of offense. Because of the blight of sin conscience needs to be disciplined by the Word of God.

3. A trade at Tarsus. Perhaps after his college course at Jerusalem he returned to Tarsus and learned tent making. Thus in later life he was able to support himself while preaching the gospel. One rabbi said "He that teacheth not his son a trade doeth the same as if he had taught him to steal."

III. Saul's Citizenship (Acts 22:27, 28).

In the providence of God, the apostle to the Gentiles was a free-born Roman citizen. He was loyal to his country, while at the same time strictly religious. Right relationship to God sanctifies loyalty to one's country.

IV. Saul's Defense Before Agrippa (Acts 26:1,27).

He expressed his delight that he now could speak and tell his case to one who could follow his line of argument, but doubtless, he was more delighted in that he could witness to him of the Saviour.

1. His manner of life (vv. 4-12). He had been in accord with the most rigid sect of the Jews. Therefore, he possessed the common Jewish hope of a coming Deliverer.

2. His supernatural conversion (vv. 13-15). It was through the personal appearance of Jesus Christ to him on the way to Damascus.

3. Commissioned by Jesus Christ and sent to the Gentiles (vv. 16-18).

4. His consecration (vv. 19-23). Upon receipt of his commission he instantly obeyed.

5. His appeal to Agrippa (vv. 25-27). He was anxious to have Agrippa act on the knowledge that he had.

V. Saul's Ground of Confidence (Phil. 3:4-6).

He had everything a true Jew gloried in.

1. Circumcised the eighth day (v. 5).
2. Of the stock of Israel (v. 5).
3. Of the tribe of Benjamin (v. 5). Benjamin had always remained loyal to the national customs.
4. A Hebrew of the Hebrews (v. 5). He was of Hebrew parentage, not a proselyte.
5. Touching the law, a Pharisee (v.5). The Pharisees were a sect among the Jews most zealous for the rights and ceremonies of Judaism.
6. Concerning zeal, persecuting the church (v. 6). He proved his zeal by the positive effort to stamp out that which was threatening Judaism.
7. Touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless (v. 6).

Pass Through Fire

Christians are like vases, they must pass through the fire ere they can shine. And often the very furnace and the flame, which they call destruction, are only burning in the graces which are to be their everlasting beauty and glory.

Joy Out of Sorrow

There are joys which can come to us only through sorrow. There are revealings of divine truth which we can get only when earth's lights have gone out.

The little son of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence has been sick for several days with pneumonia.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

We hear people talk about believing in your fellow man. "Trust people," they tell us. I do; but God doesn't tell us to. God says, "Love people." But God is always reasonable, and God knows some people are not trustworthy.

God doesn't tell us to admire everybody. I know people who I wouldn't want to eat with at the table three times a day. I just don't admire them. But I love everybody. Love is the greatest thing in the world. You can love people you don't admire, and you can even love people you can't trust.

The man who says "everybody has his price" means that he himself is crooked. A woman who believes everything bad she hears about other women is fundamentally unsound in her own character. An honest man knows that there are honest people. Pure women know that there are other women who are pure.

"I can't help what I think," a man said to me one day. "Then you are a dangerous character," I replied. A man who can't control his thinking can't control his actions. The Bible says, "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." No man was ever able to soar higher than he is able to think by the grace of God.

Back of every tragedy in human character there is a slow, long process of wicked thinking. Men are not thieves because they steal. They steal because they are thieves. Men are not murderers because they murder. They murder because they are murderers. Men are not liars because they lie. They lie because they are liars.

Jesus said, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." This does not mean that they will see God just in the next world. The pure in heart see God in this world. Wicked men may see beauty in flowers, but good men see God back of the flowers. Wicked men may see beauty in the sunset, but godly men know that god gave that sky its exquisite coloring.

VETERANS AGAIN UNDER FIRE

The two Special Boards appointed by the President of the United States are now functioning in the Birmingham office of the veterans Administration.

According to Hugh E. McClung, Department Rehabiliation Chairman, of the American Legion in Alabama there are 800 more cases to be considered.

Out of the first 300 cases considered only about 16 per cent received favorable action.

According to available data it appears that many cases were denied on account of insufficient evidence.

For the benefit of the hundreds of veterans whose cases are yet to be heard it is stated that they should immediately secure all available evidence that would have a bearing on their claims.

Their evidence should be in the form of statements from doctors who treated them within one year from date of discharge or affidavits from friends and neighbors who can testify that the veteran was sufferring within a year from discharge with the same ailment which now disables him. In cases of tuberculosis the evidence should cover the first two years from date of discharge.

All evidence should be forwarded directly to the veterans administration, Birmingham, Alabama, as quickly as possible.

Furthermore it is believed that in many cases the veteran's personal appearance before the board would be in his favor and whenever possible he should come to Birmingham and appear before the board. If he desires the American Legion to represent him he should secure a blank power of attorney from his nearest Legion Service Officer. This blank should be signed by the veteran and mailed to The State Service Commissioner, 924 Martin Building, Birmingham, Alabama, with a brief note stating the date case is to be heard.—D. Trotter Jones, Department Adjutant.

"Just a minute, mister."

"Yes, what is it?"

"My wife is starving."

"So's mine," responded the affable millionaire. "It's tough on the girls, but it is the only way to get that fashionable figure."

"My dear, listen to this and tell me what you make of it!" exclaimed the elderly English woman to her husband on her first visit to the States. She held the hotel menu almost at arm's length and spoke in a tone of horror "'Baked Indian Pudding!' Can it be possible in a civilized country?"

Manageress: "I'm sorry you don't like my cakes. This business has been built up almost entirely on my cookery."

Customer: "I don't doubt it. With a few more buns like those, you could build a hotel."

"Both Hubert and Ronald proposed to me yesterday."

"And I suppose you refused both."

"Yes, but how did you guess it?"

"I saw them shaking hands over something in the street this morning."

At 6 o'clock she laid out his dress suit, shirt and studs. He did not appear. At 11 o'clock she laid out his pajamas. He did not turn up. At 3 o'clock he came in. And then she laid him out.

IN MEMORY OF GRANDMOTHER HAYES

On last Monday afternoon, September 18, at four o'clock, God, in His great power and wisdom, sent the angels of heaven to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cox of Centreville and carried away the spirit of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Jim Hayes.

Grandmother lived to the ripe age of seventy years. She had been failing in health quite a number of years. She leaves to mourn her departure ten children—three sons and seven daughters, Jack and David of Clanton; Walter of Centreville; Mrs. John Cherry, of Pletcher; Mrs. Lee Smith, of Florida; Mrs. Willie Nichols, of Stanton; Mrs. Charles Cox, of Centreville; Mrs. Pate Headley, of Clanton; Mrs. Mose Donovan, of Sardis community; forty grandchildren, eighteen great grand children, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Grandmother had such pleasant disposition and winning ways that everyone who knew her loved her.

Grieve not loved ones, for our loss is heaven's gain, for grandmother was a true Christian wife and mother, always ready and willing to lend a helping hand to those in need, to speak comforting words to those who were troubled.

Grandmother isn't dead. She is only sleeping that sweet peaceful sleep. She's resting in the arms of Jesus in that beautiful land where we'll never grow old, away from this old world of sorrow, pains and cares. God did not take her away from us to make us sad. He only granted her the privilege of going on to heaven, where she can be with her loving husband and three children that have already gone on.

We know all was done that could be done while she was here on earth with us. But there is yet one more thing we can do for her to make her happy and rejoice, and that is to be ready to meet her when God sends for us, If we will all live as grandmother did, and follow the advice she has so often given us, we will surely meet her again some day, where we will never have to part again. Isn't it wonderful that God will give us the priviledge of meeting our loved ones and friends to be with them always, if we will only do His will.

The remains were laid to rest in the Sardis cemetery, with Martin in charge, funeral services being conducted by Rev. A. L. Foshee.—By a granddaughter, Miss Mary Hayes.

Insurance Man: "You want your office furniture insured against theft, don't you?"

Manager: "Yes, all except the clock. Everybody watches that."

Mrs. Withers had been to the talking picture for the first time.

"Oh, did you like it, Nell?" asked her friend.

"All right enough, but to tell yer the truth, I'd rather have been to one of the old unspeakable ones."

Walter Anderson says that Matt Johnson has found a way to keep down his ice bill. He keeps his cow out in his fish pond, and the milk is already cool when they milch it.

George Mims of Temple community is advertising his fine 60-acre farm for sale. It is only about two miles from Clanton.

There will be a school meeting at Jackson Chapel next Thursday night, September 28, at 7:30 o'clock. All partons are urged to be present.—Trustees.

An Irishman, while walking down the street, was stopped by a gentleman who asked him for a match.

"Thank you, responded the gentleman. "You know I am a man of importance at home. I am Sir John Bally-Burley, Knight of the Iron Cross, Knight of the Garter, Knight of the Golden Fleece, and Knight of the Eagle. And what's your name, my man?"

"Me name's Michael Murphy, night before last, last night, tonight and tomorrow night, and every other night."

For the fourth time the corporation lawyer conducting the cross examination led the witness to the accident.

"You say that after the street car passed, the man was seen lying on the ground with his scalp bleeding. Did the car hit him?"

"Naw," exploded the exasperated witness. "The conductor leaned out and bit him as he went by."

WALTER CLARK IS FATHER NOW

The many friends in this county of Walter L. Clark and wife will be glad to learn that a son was born to them at their home in Shelby on September 19th. The new-comer has been named Carl Wallace. Late reports say that the mother and son are doing fine. Walter Clark will be remembered as the circus bill poster, and used to live in the Vanderslice settlement in northeast Chilton.

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

Just heard this over the radio: "Alabama's minerals, her white fields of cotton, her navigable streams, her enviable climate and her great commercial centers are valuable assets, but her greatest and most priceless possession are the boys and girls who in years to come will guide the destiny of the commonwealth and see to it that all other natural resources are utilized for the greatest benefit to the state." When a man says that there are great and more important things in the life of Alabama than education, child welfare and health, and he asks the people to put him in the governor's office, he is a traitor and not a patriot. The next governor of Alabama will have to have the same ideals in this respect which characterize Governor B. M. Miller. Governor Miller has his faults. Christ was the only perfect man. But with his faults, no one has dared challenge the governor's honesty of purpose, particularly his high ideals and ambition to put Alabama on top educationally. The man who succeeds him will have had a fine example of devotion and patriotism set before him. More than one administration is necessary to wipe out Alabama school debts and to raise sufficient money with which to put the schools back on a normal-term basis. The people of Alabama will see to it that the next governor carries out governor Miller's plans for the proper education of their greatest asset—YOUTH.

Cheap Electricity

The Tennessee Valley Authority, entrusted with the administration of the Tennessee River power — developed and undeveloped—has made another grandstand play for public applause. It is going to sell electricity at an average cost to the consumer of 7 mills per kilowatt hour and make money while doing it. Nobody wishes the authority the slightest degree of failure. If it can and will sell electricity at 7 mills and make money on it, more power to it. But can it be done? There's no such animal as a profit in seven mill electricity sold to domestic consumers and Uncle Sam will discover the fact once he has had time to collect one month's bills and pay one month's overhead. Mark the prediction.

The Press Room

Through the generosity of manager Billie Moffat, of the Gay-Teague Hotel, Alabama's political headquarters, the newspaper scribes have a place in Montgomery where they can meet at any hour of the day or night; where they can grind out copy; where they can listen to the radioed news of the world. The room is never locked. Already it has proved to be a mecca for visiting and local newspapermen.

A Momentous Decision

The entire political atmosphere of Alabama and the future welfare of the public school system, as well as the institutions of higher learning, hinge to a very large extent on the decision of the state supreme court in the contested constitutionality of the enabling act which set in motion the recent imposition of an income tax. The briefs in the case were placed Monday in the hands of the justices, and it is expected that during the next ten days a decision will be handed down. Prospective candidates for the governorship visiting the Gay-Teague during the past week emphatically declared that the time of their final decisions to run or not to run depends entirely on what the court says. If it says the act is constitutional, there are those who will stay out of the race, believing the decision will presage the final decision of Governor Miller not to call the legislature back into session. On the other hand, if the act is declared unconstitutional, there are those who believe an extraordinary session of the legislature will be imperative and that such a session will enable them to better frame their platforms for successful campaigns. What constitutes a "critical occasion"? If you can answer that question and then successfully predict when that "critical occasion" will arise, then have the answer to the oft-repeated query, "When will Governor Miller call an extra session?" Nobody knows. Even Governor Miller doesn't know. This much is certain, however, if those who seek an extra session would base their pleas not on the legalization of beer but upon constructive legislation to meet school needs, they might make a little more progress. Every appeal thus made for an extra session has been based on an alleged demand for legalization of beer. Every petitioner knows the governor's attitude toward beer and all other forms of alcoholic drinks, and yet no one has seen fit to approach him exclusively on grounds which appeal to his ideals. Would these same men attempt to appease an irate bull by waving a red flag in its face?

Dr. Gragg Appeals In Farmers Behalf

Asks That Big Cotton Holders Destroy Part of Their Surplus Next Time Reduction Necessary

Dear Editor:

Some months ago, in an article in your paper, I begged for consideration of the farmer and insisted at that time that he was not getting fair consideration. I said that he was the foundation and keystone to our very economic existence. That every other laborer, business man, lawyer, doctor, teacher, office holder, or what not, was entirely dependent on the farmer for food and clothes; and that every school, college, factory, business house and bank owed its living to the farmer; and this being true, I set forth that it was necessary for the farmer to prosper in order to avoid ultimate downfall of others dependent on him, resulting finally, in absolute destruction of all. I still see this in the same light, but I believe there are others that do not so see it.

Is the game being played fair for or with the farmer? He was liberal, he was loyal, he plowed up his cotton as requested, and while destroying the fruits of his labor, he, himself, was in many instances barefoot and clad in rags with patches planted up on top of each other.

Understand, I do not say he should not have done this, when so requested. I think he did the right thing, but listen, we are told that there is more than 13,000,000 bales of cotton in the warehouses and we know that much of this is an inferior grade of damaged cotton, some rotten and unfit for almost anything. Yet, as long as it remains in the warehouse it is a "bale" of cotton and as a bale of cotton helps to hold up the volume in the warehouses and keep down the price of the growing crop of the farmer year after year.

Just allow me to suggest that the next time it becomes necessary to destroy 12,000,000 acres or 4,000,000 bales, that we ask the big cotton speculators who are holding these millions of bales of cotton, to be just as enthusiastically loyal as our cotton farmers have been; and truck out 4,000,000 bales of their cotton and burn it. We would suggest they destroy the poorer grades and be paid what it cost them, plus interest and storage, then they would not have lost anything. However, under the plan of the farmer destroying the growing crop, it leaves him only a relative chance of a small profit on what is undestroyed, while the speculator has his chances of profit on his entire holding.

This is what I mean, let me make myself clear. If cotton should go to 15 cents and a farmer has plowed up half of his crop, the other half will only bring as much as his entire crop would bring at 7½ cents. On the other hand the speculator would get the 15 cents on his entire holdings and double or in some instances, treble his money invested.

Then there is another side to it. When this 12,000,000 acres of the South's cotton land was plowed under, how many millions of days of unemployment was caused at one fell swoop? At $5.00 per bale, and I think that very conservative, that would have meant $20,000,000 for picking alone, not to have mentioned hauling, ginning, marketing, etc., and the $20,000,000 would have gone mostly to that class of needy women and children who are in a distressing, yes alarming condition, without work or employment of any kind whatsoever.

Then let us see what the cotton farmer is getting for his product. If he desires to buy food or clothing, a bale of cotton would go about as far September 1st, 1932 as two bales would go September 1st this year. Flour is just about double in price, so is manufacturd cotton goods, but the price of cotton was little different, The wheat farmer in the West is now getting fair prices, so is the corn grower in the northwest, but I cannot see that our southern cotton farmer is getting fair play.

Let our farmers get together, cut their acreage in cotton, make some hog and hominy, peas and potatoes; live at home, and above all, demand fair play from the speculator, manufacturer, tax gatherer and money sharks in general. And, what I have said about the farmer holds good, in a great measure, with the laboring class in general.

If we have no job our condition grows worse as necessities of life go higher in price and our buying power is reduced, we must buy less, therefore our groceryman and merchant must sell less and less.

If we are fortunate enough to have a job and our wages are double, then we can buy about the same we did before, but if we are more fortunate and are saving part of our wages above a living, then we can profit by the higher wages. So it would seem the only hope is to be careful and not live up to or above our income. To help our farmer friend in his demand that he and we be given a fair deal.

I would not, for one minute, have it understood that I am objecting to the ruling of the NRA or some such centralized controling power. I have seen clearly for months and years that there must be some kind of control or safety element to call a halt on the rich growing richer and the poor growing poorer day by day. I have seen that the prevailing economic conditions would ultimately place the wealth of the nation in the hands of a few while the masses would be standing on the brink of starvation. Now that we have some such ruling power, I am desiring to see it hastily arranged to help the man who is at the same time most needy and most useful to the life of our government, the farmer and laborer.—V. J. Gragg.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. Mr. Clarence Latham was elected Superintendent for the coming year. We know he will do great things.

The members of the W. M. S. met last Saturday afternoon and rendered a very interesting missionary program. Active membership has increased 50 per cent during this year. We hope to enlist every woman in our church during the coming year.

Rev. Wallace Cook, our pastor, met with the members recently and taught a book on Stewardship, "Our Lord and Ours." This study has proved beneficial to all who attended.

Miss Alice Walker and Miss Sarah McAfee entertained the senior B. Y. P. U. at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. J. R. McAfee's last Saturday night. Games and contests were enjoyed. Salad and grape juice was served to the following members: Misses Bessie Mae and Vera Lee Moore, Amber Jata, Buzelle Shoults, Novice Garner. Messrs. Lavern Shoults, Lumon Hicks, Ben Burnett, Anglis and Ottis Moore, Oda Kelley, Lindsey McAfee, Raymond Oden, and Lewis McAfee. Visitors were Misses Mary and Zella Fae McGee of Tuscaloosa.

The older people should do more to encourage the young people in their work here. For their leader, Miss Allie Walker, is working hard and giving her time for the building up of this organization in our church. She should have the cooperation of everyone.

Mrs. Johnnie McAfee and two little daughters of Birmingham visited relatives here last week end.

Miss Nettie Johnson of Rockford a former teacher of Shoults school, was here Sunday visiting friends. She has many friends here who were delighted to see her.

Mr. and Mrs. Carson Snead and children of Centreville spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Walker.

SCOUT PROTESTS RAGGED FLAG ON DOME OF CAPITOL

Glancing up from a mass of parole records on which he was working in the state capitol at Montgomery last Friday, W. F. Covington, Jr., recording secretary to Governor Miller, encountered the level gaze of a sturdy Boy Scout. The youngster, somewhere between 12 and 14 years old, had apparently been standing there for several minutes waiting for an opportunity to make his presence known.

"Hello," said the Secretary, and noting the expression of grave concern on the visitor's face, inquired, "What can I do for you?"

"I want to see the Governor," was the brief reply.

"Sorry," said the Secretary. "The Governor is out of his office just now and won't be back until late. Is there anything I can do for you?"

The Scout hesitated. "Well, I wanted to see Governor Miller personally, but if he is away, I'll tell you. The United States flag on the capitol dome is torn and ragged. I noticed it just now. I don't think it's right to fly a torn flag at the capitol, and I don't think it's treating the taxpayers right either to have a torn flag up there. That's what I wanted to see the Governor about."

"I'll attend to it," the Secretary said, and immediately got up from his desk. Within a few minutes he had located Howard Thames, capitol custodian.

When the Secretary returned to his office the boy was gone. No one knew his name.

The American flag that was lowered from the staff on the state-house dome at sunset Friday afternoon was a bright, brand new one.

Things To Remember

In these days of national efforts to put over the recovery program as outlined by the administration, with the assertion frequently made by some of the over-enthusiastic proponents that unless the program succeeds fully there will be chaos, a great deal of doubt and confusion seems to occupy the public mind.

Any temporary recession of business, any report in a decline in car loadings, or electric power production, is apt to cause cold shivers to run down the spines of those who take these graveyard stories too seriously.

Everybody hopes that the national recovery program will succeed in speeding us on our way out of the depression. But the fact is that there has been abundant evidence that things had begun to get better anyhow, as the improvement in European nations evidences. This is not taken to mean that we should relax our efforts, but that we ought not become panicky when improvement does not come along as rapidly as we might wish. We have been in depressions before and have pulled out of them, just as we give evidences that we are going to pull out now. Other nations have been in depressions and have pulled out, some in the days even before the United States was a nation, when there were not enough brains to organize a trust.

In this respect, what the Baltimore Sun said recently is well worth reading. It runs as follows:

"Amid all the hullabaloo about codes, blue eagles and processing taxes, we are in danger of forgetting that business is actually improving, that the improvement began before the hullabaloo set in, that it is in progress not only in this country but in Europe, and that it is running more or less true to the form of recovery set after each of the other major depressions since the Civil war.

"To recall the fact of normal basic gains is not, of course, to say that the present position is free from danger. There is always serious danger that by undertaking artifically to expedite recovery in one direction we may disturb the relationship between costs and prices, between supply and demand, in such a way as to retard rather than hasten our arrival at the goal. But the fact that we have begun to move along the lines by which we have escaped from previous depressions is the main and the truly encouraging thing. It is just as important to remember this fundamental factor as it is to hang on the latest ruling from the NRA."

Here is some pretty good food for thought. By all means let us "hope and pray for the NRA," (no poesy intended), but let us at the same time remember that natural factors are working for recovery too, and that it may not mean anarchy or chaos if any phase of the recovery program doesn't happen to work out. What we need just now is less doubt and less shuddering and more confidence in the future of America. It may be, as some of the professional members of the brain trust would have us believe, that we are now in a new era, and that the days of individualism are gone forever and nothing but new ideas will work. But let's just wait and see. Individuals are still pretty important even if it does take a lot of them to make a big nation. Some of the old principles do seem to have a grain of truth in them, and it is barely possible that we may have to rely on them some of these days. They have never led us to anarchy and chaos before and maybe they won't this time.

At any rate, Mother Nature has always been a great doctor, and she doesn't even posses a college degree.

Educational "experts recommend the tearing down of small school houses and the building of "central educational plants" with N. R. A. funds. Maybe it would be just as well to dismantle some of the "central educational plants" and build a few red brick school houses.

British bankers say so much American money is being deposited in British banks that they hardly know what to do with it. Can't the N. R. A. do something about this?

Russia Speaks

When one has been regaled for weeks with the fatuous arguments of those who, for one reason or another, want to recognize Soviet Russia, it is interesting to get a peep behind the curtain and to ascertain what the communisis themselves are driving at.

One of the most popular arguments of the pro-recognitionistsis that recognition will add to our prosperity by greatly increasing our foreign trade. Russia is ready to buy billions in commodities from us. Just how she is going to pay for these commodities nobody has yet figured out. This is even more than a pink college professor can do. Russia cannot pay us in money because she has none. She might pay us in raw materials, but we produce now in our own country surpluses of the only things she could send us. Of course we can lend her the money to buy from us, and this might work until she has exhausted her credit with us, just as she has exhausted it with the nations of Europe. How then and when will pay day come?

But the most touching thing is the childlike faith among the proponents of Russian recognition that the Soviets have had a sudden conversion and want to be admitted with clean hands to the family of nations and to "be good" economically and politically from now on.

In this respect it is interesting to note what the Soviets themselves say about the purposes of their economic foreign policy. In a pamphlet entitled "The Basis of Soviet International Policy," recently issued by the executive committee of the Russian communist party, of which Mr. Stalin himself is the head, appear the following explanatory paragraphs:

The task of Soviet foreign policy is to exploit the liberal and pacifist tendency of certain groups of the bourgeoisie and of industrial circles interested in trade with the U. S. S. R., thus prolonging the breathing space and insuring an inflow of foreign credits, machinery and materials for the industrialization of the U. S. S. R. For this purpose of the U. S. S. R. energetically confronts the aggressive military plans of its enemies with proposals for the present to let both systems live peacefully together.

"This is only a temporary measure, required by the anomalies of both systems. Soviet proposals for co-existence of these systems have already spread confusion among imperialists, resulting in the extension of credits by Germany, Italy and Great Britain, and in French proposals to conclude a Franco-Soviet trade agreement. Capitalist governments were routed by our peace policy. When making peace proposals the bolshevists knew full well that the imperialists would not accept them, and that a socialist revolution was the only issue.

"We must politically exploit economic discords among our enemies. Discord between Great Britain and France was one of the reasons why France did not break with the U. S. S. R. in 1927, when Great Britain did. Soviet foreign policy remains based on revolutionary prospects abroad, and the Soviet government therefore maintains constant contact with the foreign proletariat."

Our advice to our pink friends in America concerning these paragraphs is not "read 'em and weep." It is "read 'em and get your eyes really opened."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

September is a historic month in many respects, not the least of which is that it is the month in which the Constitution of the United States was completed by its authors. The date is September seventeenth and this year it marked the 147th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution.

When one has favorable things to say these days of our Constitution, he runs the risk of being called old fashioned, if nothing worse. It is now the practice of certain educators and agitators to make light of the Constitution, to refer to it as an outworn document, the work of unlettered provinciais who just happened to frame an agreement under which our forefathers were able to consolidate the thirteen colonies. They like to tell us that we would be much better off were we to do away with this fundamental law which they infer "cramps the style" of the great reformers of the present day, statesmen who could make everybody prosperous adn happy with our work, if only given the chance.

The Constitution, however, needs no defense among thinking people. The results speak for themselves. Before its adoption, while the new American nationals were working under the Articles of Confederation, the country went from bad to worse and was facing dissolution so far as its political fabric was concerned. There was even talk of importing a Eurpean monarch to try to start the new ship of state in the proper direction.

But the new Constitution changed all this. The colonies grew into one nation, and the colonists became Americans. The credit of the new nation grew at home and abroad and almost immediately the United States started on its new path of progress. This progress, with a few interruptions, has continued ever since. We are now in the latest and severest of the interruptions. But the Constitution is not to blame for this one, any more than it has been the author of those in the past. By its fine system of checks and balances it enabled the American people to develop the most prosperous nation in the entire world, to do it in a space of time the brevity of which amazed the world; to accomplish this and still preserve the freedom of the individual to work out his own destiny according to his merits.

The interruptions to our progress have come not because of our Constitutional government, but through the errors of our people and their haste to become rich. In fact so long as we have adhered closely to the provisions of our Constitution and the teashings thereof we have prospered. Our sins have been chiefly those of straying away from the sount and conservative principles of economics and government.

After all, a government can be no better than the people who compose it. No constitution written or unwritten can save a people who have become indolent, thriftless or dishonest, who have lost the ideals of the founders of the nation. Nor can a change of fundamental government alter such a people for the better. What we need in the United States just now is not a new Constitution, but a rededication of our lives and our efforts to the task of keeping America what it has always been—the best place on the globe in which to live and rear a family, and to build a nation of families.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Who Is Wise?

Henry Ford's failure to sign up with the NRA has created quite a furore over the nation, and the government's action in regard to Mr. Ford has been watched with much interest. In fact, the powers at Washington, themselves, are interested in the outcome. It is a kind of test, and the system of the winner may be adopted for national use. Mr. Ford has stated that his action is the result of much study of conditions; that he stands ready at all times to do anything in his power to better conditions, but that so far he is not convinced that the NRA's system will bring the desired results. Rather, he thinks his own system is better, and points to results he is getting as proof of his contention. And now, since there has been time for some of the big men at the head of affairs t osize up the situation, some of these are apparently sold on Henry's ideas. One of these is Edward A. Filene, one of the biggest mercantile men of the East, and chairman of the Massachusetts NRA board. In a recent interview, Mr. Filene had the following to say, in substance: "Mr. Ford has always been considered a man apart from the general run. Many times his ideas and systems have appeared ridiculous on their face, but not once have they failed to work out. He alone of all manufacturers has solved the gigantic problem of effecting mass production without being forced to cut off part of his labor force. He has taken the machine age with its methods, whipped it to a frazzle, used its good features, and succeeded in discarding the bad features. In his little world there is labor contentment; there are no strikes; living conditions are good; everybody is satisfied; here capital and labor combine in a union that is the nearest to perfection that may be found. All this is a result of Mr. Ford's ideas and systems. If those systems will work for him, I see no reason why they would not work for the entire nation. And, although I would be glad to see the NRA work out, yet I cannot afford to discount the fact that Mr. Ford's ideas have worked in the past, leaving us all a sound supposition that they will work in the future."

Room At The Top

Nowadays we hear much about how keen competition is. Too, we hear much about unfair competition. Not long ago I read an article dealing with this question, which was quite interesting. A young lawyer, just out of school, was complaining to an older lawyer about the unfair tactics being used by some of his profession. Said the young man: "I want experience; I want business; I want cases to try; but I can't get them, because there are so many so-called lawyers who will take a case for alittle or nothing. Certainly these lawyers have no big reputations to uphold, but they keep a new man from getting a chance. I do not want to be a cut-rate lawyer, but it looks like I will have this forcupon me. What advice can you give me?" The grizzled old court warrior looked his young caller over keenly, and then gave this answer: "This profession is much like a ladder. Down around the lower rungs, where the most lawyers work, there is much squabbling and scrapping for a foot-hold. A little higher up, the competition isn't so keen. And up at the top, there is plenty of room; there is no competition. You are a bright looking chap. You say you can't get a chance to prove that you are a lawyer; all right, I'll give you one—better still, I'll give you three chances; if you make good on any one of the three, you will be recognized as having the "stuff" and you will not have to hunt for work. I have three hard cases; these I will give to you; chances are that all three of these men will go to the chair; if you succeed in keeping just one of the three out, you will have set your mark; and always remember there is room at the top." The young man won; one of his clients was freed, and the others drew sentences. And today he is recognized as one of the smartest criminal lawyers in Illinois. His old friend and adviser has long since gone on, but today when asked the secret of his popularity in his profession, these are his words: "There is always room at the top. Prove to the public that you are good in your line, and success is yours."

Our Standing Army

According to agreements between the world powers, we are allowed a standing army of just so many men. Realizing, however, that our friends from across the big pond do not love us any too much, and some of them are simply spoiling for a scrap, our war department heads have been wise enough to understand that something had to be done—that our standing army (the size of which was really set by foreign powers) was too small for safety. So, they hit upon the sapling-planting scheme. And, we can't say it is such a bad idea, after all, if it is the government's way of keeping an enormous army in the pink of condition and ready to go as soon as they have guns and bullets issued to them. The only think I can see that seems wrong about it all is that the World War veterans are having their pittances cut in order to keep the camps going. I believe it is important that we have a safe standing army, but I do not believe our veterans should be penalized to provide it. Surely, if Uncle Sam has so many million to cast to the four winds in such manner as has been the case during the past half year, he can still find a few dollars to help those fellows who gave their all to secure our leading position among world powers. It is well enough to look into the future, but we cannot afford to forget so soon the obligations we have incurred in the past.

Who Will Pay?

It will not be long, now, until our government will start its periodical squabblings with several nations over payments of debts these nations owe the United States. For the past several years there has been a growing demand that Uncle Sam cancel these debts, and allow these nations to buy from us again. These demands come from two different classes of people—those who do not understand our national economic condition, and people within our borders who care more for the welfare of other countries than thy do for our own welfare. The first of these two classes—those who do not understand conditions—hold no regard for the fact that the debts represent somebody's cold cash. They see in cancellation a chance to sell off some of our surplus, and that they may get some benefit from this. Theirs is a purely selfish view. The second of the two classes is made up mostly of foreigners or their descendents—their demands border on rank treason to our country. They care nothing for us nor our country, except for what they can filch out of us. There can be no such thing as cancellation. Even if the foreign nations were to have their debts cancelled, the debt would still be owed to the American people, by the American government. The government did not lend the money—it gave its bonds to Americans—Liberty Bonds and Victory Bonds—and the American people were the real lenders. Our people gave until it hurt, because they considered it their patriotic duty, and the government will see that they get their money back. If the borrowers across the pond cannot and will not pay, then Uncle Sam will be forced to take up their debts, and you, Mr. Taxpayer, will have your part in paying Europe's debts. This being the case, do you still favor cancellation of the debts?

Where Is Houdini?

President Roosevelt has picked a man named Durbin for some high office in the Treasury Department at Washington. Lots of people close to national affairs around Washington took to wondering just why this man was picked for this job. No one had ever heard of him nor anything in particular that he had ever done. So somebody got to digging up some particulars about Mr. Durbin. And what do you suppose the man's profession is? Guess all you wish, but you'd never hit it right. He is a magician, and president of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. At that, though, I believe Mr. Roosevelt used rare good judgment in picking this particular man for this particular job in the treasury. Durbin has a record of being good at pulling rabbits, eggs, and the like from empty hats. Maybe he will be able to pull some good hard cash out of Uncle Sam's empty vaults—it appears they will be empty soon, the way the money is being thrown about. President Roosevelt might have another use for Mr. Durbin, too. He might be able to pull an original and worthwhile idea or two out of the empty hats up Washington way. Maybe it wouldn't be such a bad idea to get up a bunch of magicians to take the place of the "brain trust," as it seems that is about to fall through, what with "Dear Raymond" Moley already out, and the news floating around that "Jinral Johnsing" (Hugh S. Johnson) will resign on December 1st. What's the matter? Is this a house of sand, or something?—Man in the Moon.

Mr. Alber's Strange Ideas

After perusing the extraordinary propagandist and revolutionary plans of the speakers' division of the NRA, as they were interpreted Saturday by Louis Alber, the divisional chief, the cuntry cannot fail to be waiting to see what will happen to that gentleman when the White House gets into action. For it is impossible to believe for a moment that President Roosevelt will tolerate Mr. Alber's absurd and outrageous program.

The head of the NRA speakers' division seems to have had a bad brain storm in which his ideas and sense of proportion became hopelessly messed. First announcing that a "primer" of the NRA and the Roosevelt program is to be sent into the public and parochial high schools of the country and into the universities "there to be taught in a more advanced manner," de delivered himself of these strange statements:

"The rugged individualism of Americanism must go, because it is contrary to the purpose of the New Deal and of the NRA which is remaking America.

"Russia and Germany are attempting to compel a new order by means typical of their nationalism, compulsion. The United States will do it by moral suasion.

"* * * The principles of the New Deal must be carried to the youth of the nation. We expect to accomplish by education what dictators in Europe are seeking to do by compulsion and force.

"We are not thinking of the high school and college student as a prospective voter * * * we are thinking of the student as a prospective American citizen."

Taking Mr. Alber's words at their face value, the plans he outlines contemplate nothing less far reaching than the establishment of something savoring strongly of dictatorial communism. If the gentleman has less than this in his mind, if he si not contemplating an autocracy for the United States when he says that the rugged individualism which produced and has preserved our Constitution and our freedom must go by the board because it is contrary to the New Deal and the NRA (as he conceives them), then he has expressed himself very badly. Certainly Mr. Alber's assumption that the government in Washington has a right to step in and use the schools of the country as propaganda mediums is to open contempt of the fundamental law which by clear implication leaves to the states the control of these schools. And there is a very obvious conclusion also to be gained from the statement that "we expect to accomplish by education what dictators in Europe are seeking to do by conpulsion and force."

Everybody knows what Stalin Hitler and Mussolini have achieved by compulsion in their respective lands and how much political freedom and personal liberty they have left their fellow countrymen. And this nation will not care to have done through education or in any other way what has been done in Germany, Russia and Italy. It is not desirous of having its young men and young women left out of account as prospective voters because of plans for the advent of a regime which at most will allow them to cast ballots only as they are ordered to.

Everybody hopes for the real and legitimate success of the National Recovery Act as passed by Congress and the President. That act is a purely emergency measure with a definitely limited lease of life, and tertually is designed solely for the purpose of furthering an early restoration of the United States to a normal economic and financial condition. It is neither political nor revolutionary even where its constitutionality is in doubt.

Plans to make it revolutionary or permanent, even absurd plans like those of Mr. Alber, are schemes inimical to the people of the United States. They can be considered with a certain amount of toleration only because of a feeling of confidence that Mr. Roosevelt is far too wise to be swayed by them, but will steer a straight course as constitutional chief executive of a free republic which he loves.

In thinking of Mr. Alber and his schemes, the American people may, for their comfort, also remember Professor Moley and his ideas and what happened to them.—Detroit Press.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Wanted—A Drink of Water

Drinking water was at a premium in Clanton last Sunday, according to Joe Calloway. There was a large crowd here in attendance at the singing. The ice water business at Joe's sodafount was good as far as it went, but it could not begin to supply the demand. Joe expresses hearty approval of a movement of some kind to publicly supply a plenty of drinking water to folks who visit our city. There were many visitors here from other counties Sunday and some advance the idea that those people formed a bad opinion of our town because there was not provided an adequate supply of water. Perhaps this is a matter that should engage the attention of town officials.

Zack J. Jones A Visitor

Mr. Zack J. Jones, well-known citizen of Beat 14, was in Clanton one day last week. Mr. Jones is a very quiet unassuming man. He has that rare and priceless gift of talking little and listening much. He enjoys his (alto gether too infrequent) visits to Clanton. When he comes here he talks to county officials and political leaders and keeps in close touch with public affairs. He is a faithful friend of The Union-Banner, whom we appreciate beyond words to tell.

Curiosities of An Ordinary Man

Every man has his curious, strange or out of the ordinary traits. Fred Howard, of Thorsby, is no exception. Personally, I have never been able to classify or index Mr. Howard's curiosities. Once I visited his home. He was intensely interested in many "hobbies" he has about the place. I kept thinking he would show me his chief "weakness" after a while. But he never did, not that I could tell. He is a fisherman with more tales to tell than a Gloucester Captain. He takes exultant pride in his chickens. His vineyard causes him to bubble over with fine words and phrases. His apples, peaches, persimmons provoke him to a wealth of words describing how he developed them and what fine uses he has for thme. So far I have failed to visit his interesting home this summer. He came to see me last Saturday and piled my desk full of fine pears and persimmons. Under his arm he had an old cigar box. This revealed another one of his "hobbies" hitherto entirely unknown an unsuspected to me. He had the box full of old U. S. Revenue stamps. He is a stamp collector. He has specimens dating as for back as Reconstruction days when the government was taxing exerything to pay the Civil War debt. "I also have the finest collection of old coins in Chilton County," he said as he tucked his box under his arm and departed with a hearty invitation, "Come to see me again." We have added three of his old revenue stamps to our museum.

Hurry With the Ditch

It is hoped that those who have charge of the ditching project in the swamps near Clanton have taken due consideration of the short time in which they have to work on this job. When the winter rains set in it will be all over till next summer and fall; and of course we have no assurance that present available financial means will be possible then. It appears to be a case in which it is very necessary to "strike while the iron is hot" for more reasons than one. About thirty days is all the time that can safely be figured on for this operation. The ditches ought to be brought to the railroad by that time. It will take hustling to do it. Let us hope it may be done.

One More Year to Go

Mr. A. H. Glasscock, mail carrier, of Jemison was in Clanton Monday. Mr. Glasscock is one of the oldest (in point of service) mail carriers in the county. He has only one year to go from the first of November to reach his retirement period of thirty years continuous service for Uncle Sam.

Buford Lawrence Enjoys Work

Buford Lawrence, now principal of Isabella High School, spent a while in town Tuesday greeting his friends. He declares that he is having a most enjoyable work at Isabella, with all teachers and pupils well started on a good program of work for this year. Mr. Lawrence continues to live at his farm on the west side of Clanton.

Stapp Renounces Political Aims

There is no telling who will be candidates for political office in the elections next year. But there is one man who we know will not be a candidate. He is C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent. In a public statement in the papers this week, Mr. Stapp settles all rumors about running for Probate Judge by the flat declaration that "I am not interested in being Probate Judge . . . I hope to continue county agency work in Chilton County, and I solicit the cooperation of every man, woman and child in the county in doing something to bring agriculture and our whole citizenship to a higher level." That ought to be plain enough for anybody. It is worthy of special commendation of Mr. Stapp to know that he has set his course to serve his fellow-men through his opportunities and extraordinary abilities as county agent, and that he will not be deflected from that course by the lure of political possibilities. He has chosen the larger field of service.

Don't Get Alarmed

If you hear a great noise one of these nights down in the direction of Frog Level don't get alarmed. It is not a cyclone coming. It is the workings of the "speerits" at the negro tent meeting. When a few of the big fat "sisters" get religion, things begin to happen shore nuff. Lots of white folks are going down to see the "show."

If they keep advancing that deadline for gold hoarders the embargo may be off before the government gets around to proceed against them.—Detroit Free Press.

The substitute for rugged individualism which builds up a nation is spineless sycophancy which tears it down..

Fire doors have been installed in the National Capitol at Washington. We presume they will be used for the exit of any Republican who can still be found holding a job.

It is said that in the future most of our clothing will be made out of rubber. This is going to be tough on the old moth family.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By DAN SMITH

"Nature has given men one tongue but two ears, that we may hear from others twice as much as we speak."—Epictitus.

This statement by a famous Greek philosopher covers lots of ground. People often speak when they should be listening. What we say sometimes gets us in trouble, and what we hear can never get us in trouble if we do not speak. Remember this in your class room and there will probably be less disappointments when our report cards come in.

The writer of this column wants to take this space to correct an unavoidable error of last week. In mentioning the cheer leaders, Grace Plyler's name was left out. This was an unintentional error and the writer wants to say that Grace is one of the cheer leaders.

Say, who said we didn't have any school spirit? Just look him in the eye and say that he is wrong. Why? Because we do have it. Listen to the students yell and cheer for their school and their football team. It makes one feel enthusiastic to hear those songs and cheers "out through the rafters ring." Chilton County High School can boast of its school spirit.

It is quite noticeable the way courtesy shows out here at school. You should notice how, in the classes, some of the boys will stand aside and let all the girls pass by. Courtesy is the mark of culture, and, according to observations, culture is stamped on the students here, at least the majority of them.

One should watch how Mr. Varnell has his students to march in the laboratory. Each row marches in one at a time and this eliminates all unnecessary congestion and noise.

The Senior class has been informed that they will be allowed library privileges, provided that no Senior abuses them. This will be a fine thing for the Senior class to have. If they do not abuse these privileges, they will be the first class to retain them the entire year. The Seniors should cooperate and obtain this honor and privilege.

Our speaker at the chapel period last Wednesday was the Rev. R. P. Cochran. We are always glad to have outside speakers during chapel, and welcome them, especially those of the Rev. Cochran personality. We all like his witty manner of getting an important idea over to his audience.

Quite a commotion was astir a few days last week. Junior I girls—freshmen—were seen scurrying here and there with an upper classman right behind them. A few minutes of calm and then here appeared the same "freshmen with a surprised look on her face, yet happy, and her dress on backward. Only the old tradition.

Don't forget, students, that we need some new desks, and to get them we must pay your incidentals. Set an example for your classmates and pay your three dollars.

Let's don't forget that our team goes to Selma tomorrow and we want to give them a spirited send-off tomorrow morning. And as many as can go, try to be at the field in Selma to boost our gold and blue and team.

One month of school has gone down in history. Was our part of it such that ten years from now you will be ashamed of it, or was it the type that you can point back with pride and say that was my record in high school? Remember, "it is always too late to be what you might have been, but it's never too late to be what you can be."

The entire student body and faculty sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Popwell in the death of their son, Clyde, last Sunday. Clyde was well-known and well thought of here at school. He was popular with all his fellow students and his teachers. The football team elected him as their captain during 1933-34. To show their respect for him, the C Club, of which he was a member, gave a beautiful wreath.

The student body and faculty showed their appreciation of the loyalty and faithfulness of Mack, our janitor, last Tuesday. On last Monday, Mack's home was burned down, destroying most all, if not all, of his belongings. We, the student body, and also the faculty, presented Mack with many gifts that will help him make another start, and this was done with a smile because every one of us love Mack. The gifts were in the form of old clothes, household furnishings and some even gave sums of money.

The two passes to the next home game, or to any home game the winners wish to use them, were won by Sarah Hollis and Mary Ruth Goodman. During the football season two like passes will be given to those two students turning in the best yells to either of the cheer leaders, Grace Plyler, Mary Edith Jones, Janette Tiffin or the writer.

Mr. Varnell—Name three articles containing starch.

Name him yourself—A shirt and two collars.

There will be a large number of new books to be put in the library some time in the near future. These books cost money and our faculty picked those which will do us the most good. Let us show our appreciation of their efforts and make the best of these books and most important of all, do not abuse them.

Only thirty-two more weeks of school. Two days out of every week are holidays. We will have two weeks for Christmas. Therefore, there are only about twenty-one more weeks of school. Let's remember this and make the best of those few weeks. Time is like a fast flowing river, only a short while and it is swept into the past.

Bilious, Tired

"When I suffered constantly from bilious headaches, said Mr. W. J. Craft of 1205 River Ave., Hattiesburg, Miss., "I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and in no time I was relieved of this trouble and have never suffered in that way since. Whenever I feel the least bit rundown or tire easily, the 'Discovery' gives me strength." Write Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y. New size—tablets 50c, liquid, $1.00. Large size, tabs. or liquid, $1.35. "We Do Our Part."

The Great Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, second largest in the world, is announced for performances in Montgomery on Saturday, September 30.

Hailed as the highest class circus on earth, the Hagenbeck-Wallace show boosts of countless new features this season, many of them importations from Europe and new to America. Twice daily, this fearless youth give battle to forty, snarling, and ferocious lions and tigers, declared, the most dangerous and breath-taking display of all time.

VERMONT JR. HIGH SCHOOL OPENS ON OCTOBER 3RD

On next Tuesday, October 3rd, the Vermont Jr. High School will open with what is expected to be the largest enrollment in the history of the school. This will be the first year that Jr. High work has been carried since the 1929-30 term. There was no school at Vermont last session owing to the old building being torn away and not being replaced in time for either term.

At present a new modern frame structure, built from the latest plan drafted by the State Department of Education, awaits the arrival of the students. This building, costing between five and six thousand dollars, is located on a high level overlooking a wide expanse of rolling country which surrounds it. A large campus, suitable for all athletic diversions, surrounds the building.

All pupils who live in the school district are urged to be present, and to bring all second-hand books. Much can be saved by the exchange of good used text books.

The parents are especially requested to be present for the opening exercises.

The faculty this year is composed of the following teachers: R. B. Johnson, principal and Jr. high instructor, Jemison, Ala.; Miss Ethel Cagle, fifth and sixth grades, Verbena, Ala.; Miss Birdie Grant, third and fourth grades, Verbena, Ala.; Miss Dorothy Manning, primary, first and 2nd grades, Maplesville, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Jones and children of Florence spent the week end here with relatives and friends.

Miss Hilda Hart, a student of Montevallo College, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hart.

REVIEWS OF PROHI DOCKETS PLANNED; QUASHING HINTED

Washington, Sept. 24.—In view of the numerous recent predictions by administration officials that prohibition repeal is imminent, plans have been made for a review of the thousands of liquor cases pending in federal courts to determine which shall be brought to trial.

The work will begin officially on October 1, when L. J. Bugg, a Monroeville, Ala., attorney, becomes senior counsel of the prohibition unit of the Justice Department.

It was estimated at the Justice Department Saturday that in some federal courts there were as many as 1,000 criminal cases pending. Altogether, one official said, there probably were 90,000 cases on the dockets.

In addition, there are several hundred cases in the Supreme Court.

During the summer recess, of the 425 appeals to the Supreme Court, more than 300 were prohibition cases. Court attaches express belief some of the defendants were seeking to delay action on their cases in the hope that the eighteenth amendment would be repealed before the final decision is handed down, hoping in that way to escape punishment and the paying of fines.

Authorities said Saturday all prohibition law violators now in jail expected President Roosevelt to free them in the event of repeal.

Bugg will work directly under John S. Hurley, assistant director of the bureau of Investigation in charge of prohibition enforcement. He will go over the dockets with district attorneys throughout the country.

Disposition of many cases probably will be determined by Bugg on the basis of whether the defendants should be prosecuted as violators of the prohibition or revenue laws. Costs of prosecution and the seriousness of the offense also were regarded as likely to play an important part in the decisions.

Bugg managed the Roosevelt campaign in southern Alabama last year. He is a close friend of the president and was delegate at large from Alabama to the Democratic convention at Chicago.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

W. L. SANDERS APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF COUNTY SCHOOLS

As school days are at hand and every child should enroll the earliest moment possible, I wish to say a few words in regard to this matter.

We all know that times are still hard and money with which to put our children in school is hard to get. But since the future welfare of this country depends upon their education, we should put forth every possible effort to educate them.

Many may think it impossible to get their children sufficient clothes and books. This, I'm sure, is true in many cases. But let us not keep them out of school just because we cannot get every thing they need at once. Some people will say before they will send their children to school with patched clothes to be laughed at and made fun of they will keep them at home.

Let us not be so foolish as to punish the child on the account of those who may laugh or make fun. I'm sure that some of the best citizens and leaders of our county came from those who, when in school sat upon double and tripple patches. So let's wash up and patch up the best clothes our children have and send them to school, that they may be better able to meet life with all its difficulties.

After we have washed up and patched up little Tommie's and Sallie's clothes, we have yet another task to do before the job is complete. We must furnish them with books, pencils and paper.

It is very embarresing for the child to have to borrow a book to learn it's lesson or a pencil and paper to do it's assigned work. This, in most every case, will retard the child's progress.

We, as patrons, should visit the school, enquire of the teacher of our children's needs, show the child that we are cooperating with the teacher for their benefit. Every citizen, whether patron or not, should encourage his neighbor who is careless about sending his children to school. Show him how his child will be handicapped if it grows up without an education.

The general public should not only give its moral support to education, but its financial as well. There will be a large number who will need help to get their children's books and clothes. If any one has books or clothes they can spare try to find the child that needs them. Offer the father work to pay for them.

If any haven't the books or clothes to spare and wishes to contribute to the cause, offer to buy them or the child after the father has worked the required amount. And to the man that has not the money with which to buy your children clothes, ask your neighbor for a job that your child might go to school. Show him that you have an interest in your child and that you are not depending upon charity to educate them.

If we can't get high wages let's take what we can get. We have problems to solve as never before, so let's join heart and hand and solve them together. Yours in behalf of the child,

W. L. SANDERS.

Bankers Aiding Agriculture

State associations of bankers in many agricultural states are giving time and financial support to encourage practices among their farmers that will bring about better farm results.

The major activities reported from one state to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association which is nationally active in promoting this line of cooperation are as follows:

1. Drought relief work: Local banks have played a vital part in this work, being represented on the county committees for passing on all seed loans. These committees met practically every day during the spring to pass on the loans in order to get as quick action as possible. A total of 914 applications were received and handled by one committee, 833 being granted.

2. Four-H Club work: Bankers helped stimulate 4-H Club work, financing many members who otherwise could not have enrolled. They also helped finance fifteen 4-H Club delegates to the state club convention.

3. Livestock feeding: The banks cooperated with the Extension Service in the state and the railroads in increasing the amount of livestock feeding. Assistance was given the feeders in securing finances for their feeding operations.

4. Crop improvement: The bankers took part in the crop standardization program of the Extension Service and encouraged the farmers to use pure seed and in many cases made loans for this purpose.

Bankhead Says Hold Your Cotton

Alabama Senator Is Seeking To Aid the Southern Farmers

To the Cotton Farmers of Alabama:

Under the plan that I have worked out with the officials of the Department of Agriculture and President Roosevelt, cotton producers are guaranteed 10 cents a pound for middling seven-eighths cotton. The government will promptly arrange to advance to the farmers that amount to their cotton. The farmers can hold the cotton for nine months unless it goes to 15c a pound, and then the government has the right to require its sale. The farmer will get the extra 5c. If the price goes below 10c, the government stands the loss.

It is my judgment that farmers should not sell their cotton. They have all to gain and nothing to lose by getting the government loan of 10 cents a pound and holding their cotton. Mortgagees and landlords will doubtless accept the proceeds from the loan.

Orderly marketing will tend to increase the price. If we have inflation, and most people think we will have it sooner or later, that will put the price of cotton up ant the farmers will get the benefit. It woult be very unfortunate if the farmers held no cotton and as a result of inflation the price of everything he has to buy went up. I hope if inflation comes that the farmer will have something to sell that will also be inflated in price.

I am trying to arrange with the Department of Agriculture to permit storage in state warehouses.—J. H. Bankhead, U. S. Senator.

Stapp Says Don't Ask For Checks Until You Are Notified

County Agent C. E. Stapp reported Tuesday that 835 checks for cotton taken out of production in the county have been received, amounting to a total of $50,496, which has been released through the Department of Agriculture to local farmers. This, according to Mr. Stapp is about one-fourth of the checks which will come to Chilton County.

Notice from Washington has been received by the County Agent saying that it is expected that all checks will be sent out from Washington by October 17th. Already a total of 471,156 checks have been sent into the cotton belt, amounting to a cash release of $53,268,063 to cotton growers. Around 35,000 checks are being sent out from Washington daily.

Mr. Stapp requests that farmers do not call for their checks until they receive notice that they are ready for delivery. There is quite a lot of checking and clerical work necessary to be done at the office after the checks are received before they can be delivered. Mr. Stapp will notify every person when his check is ready, and there is no use in calling for them until such notice is received. This is important, and should be observed by everyone.

Concerning the matter of government loans to be made on cotton being held by farmers, Mr. Stapp says details of this program are being worked out as fast as possible. When all is ready he will give notice and full information through the papers of the county.

BEER SELLERS TO BE UNDER LAWS

Governor Miller Calls Sudden Halt In Illegal Sale of 3.2 Beer

Declaring war on 3.2 per cent beer in Alabama, Governor Miller in a letter forwarded yesterday to the Attorney General, circuit and county solicitors, and sheriffs, indirectly threatens reestablishment of the State Law Enforcement Department if the officials addressed fail to enforce the law.

From various sources in some parts of Alabama, the governor says, information has come that "State prohibition laws, without hindrance, are being publicly and continuously and contemptuously violated."

Calling upon the State, circuit and county authorities named to "recognize and to do your duty, fairly, firmly, faithfully and fearlessly," the chief executive says "in this you will receive my hearty concurrence and cooperation, and the plaudit of the law abiding public;" also: "It is time for action. We must be governed by laws and not lawless men."

When he was a candidate for Governor, he cites, he said in his speeches and platform he believed the law should be enforced by local law enforcement officers elected by the people and that the best government existed where the officers elected by the people enforce the law without aid from specially appointed state officers.

He adds, however, the significant declaration: "I have not found it necessary to employ special law enforcement officers, as I have a right to do under the law, and I hope this will not be necessary. It will not be necessary if you use your best efforts to enforce the law. I believe you can be depended upon to do this."

Teachers Institute Held On Monday

All Schools of County Opened On Following Day, Tuesday, October 3

With a program headed by two of Alabama's most outstanding educators the teachers of Chilton County held a most interesting and profitable meeting at the County High School building in Clanton on Monday of this week.

State Superintendent A. F. Harman and Prof. John E. Bryan, president of the Alabama Education Association, were the high lights of the session. Supernitendent Harman made a speech of unusual interest. His address was characterized as "A Few Scattering Remarks," and all who heard him declare it was one of his very finest efforts.

Prof. Bryan spoke to the topic "Forward in Alabama Education through Intelligent Leadership and Informed Teaching Profession." His address fully carried out its intent as an inspirational message to the teachers of Chilton County.

In attendance at the Institute were 149 teachers of the county. Only two teachers were absent. They were Briggs Hodgens, of Jemison, and Elizabeth Hubbard, of Verbena, both of whom were kept at home by illness. Mr. S. M. Yates, member of the Coun-Board of Education, was in attendance.

Among the other prominent visitors were noted Dr. R. E. Tidwell, of the University of Alabama; Miss Oliva Lawson of Alabama College, Montevallo; Dr. J. L. Brakefield, of Howard College; Prof. A. C. Shelton, of Jacksonville Normal College for teachers.

Election of officers of the Chilton County Teachers Association was as follows: L. C. Warr, president; J. E. Daniel, first vice president; W. T. Bean, second vice president; Frances Gulledge, secretary and treasurer.

In appreciation of the interest and efforts of County Superintendent, Luther E. Little, the teachers presented him with a very handsome and useful brief case.

Following the Institute, all teachers went to their places in readiness to begin their school work on Tuesday morning.

TO CONSIDER $70,000 BUILDING PROGRAM FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

AMERICAN LEGION MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of Chilton County Post of the American Legion was held at the courthouse Monday night, with Commander Grover Bice, presiding. A good attendance of veterans was present. Enrollment of members for the coming year is already well under way. Adjutant V. C. McKee has been issuing membership cards for several days.

The goal for membership of the Post this year has been set at 100, and an organized effort is being planned to reach this number.

Comrade Percy Pitts reported to the Post on the Americanism program. Mr. Pitts has been appointed chairman of the Americanism Committee of the Legion for the Sixth Congressional District.

He outlined a plan through which the Legion hopes to award certificates to high school graduates who may attain such standards of merit as will entitle them to the same. The plan received the hearty interest and approval of the Post. A committee was appointed to work out the various details with the high school principals of the county.

Washington.—Public works Administrator Ickes has announced that 1,841 road construction projects already have been approved, involving expenditure of $116,209,604, and the estimated employment will be 148,000 men. Contracts have been awarded for 905 projects, and of this number 464 actually are under construction. A total of $400,000,000 has been appropriated for highways. Of new roads approved, 1,114 are Federal-aid highways, 406 are into or through municipalities, 215 are feeder roads, 26 are in national parks, 75 are in national forests, and 5 are on public lands. Approvals from district engineers are being received at the rate of 40 per day.

Responsibility for prompt approval of roads is in the hands of the several state highway departments. Secretary Ickes points out that in 16 states no construction can begin, although the projects have been approved by the United States district engineers. Georgia has just completed a long-delayed plan. States where no work is under way are Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina.

Mass Meeting Called By Three Members of the County Board of Education

A mass meeting of the people of Chilton County is called for next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the courthouse in Clanton, for the purpose of getting the views of the people on the proposition of borrowing about $70,000 from the Federal Government to be used for building school houses and providing equipment in eleven projects in the county, as follows:

Mars Hill-Freeman (new building); Chestnut Grove - Concord - Providence (new building); Cooper (new building); also additions to the present buildings at the following schools: Jemison, Collins Chapel, Clanton Grammar, Isabella, Maplesville, Enterprise, Verbena, Mt. Pleasant.

This mass meeting is called by C. C. Conway, C. L. Wilkins, and S. M. Yates, members of the Chilton County School Board. These officials urge the people of the county to attend the meeting. Everybody will be given an opportunity to express themselves on the proposition.

The County School Board already has been making a study of the proposal, and they desire that the people generally have a chance to understand the program before they proceed further. It has been stated that the money proposed to be borrowed, is to be used for building and equipping school houses, and that it will have to be paid back to the Federal Government over a period of twenty years, with interest at 4 per cent. Payments each year to be made out of the general school budget.

At the mass meeting next Saturday there will be a speaker who is able to explain every detail of the proposition to the people, and it is hoped that a fully representative attendance of citizens will be present, learn about what is involved, and express themselves on the subject.

CAR WRECK AT SOUTH CLANTON

A Whippett sedan going north on the highway Sunday night went into a ditch in front of the home of E. M. Jones, at South Clanton. The driver of the car was a negro whose name was not learned. The accident happened about ten o'clock. The driver said his car was hit by another car, causing it to swerve off the pavement into the ditch and turn over. No one was injured.

Spurgeon Calloway answered the call and brought the Whippett to his garage with a wrecker.

PAY-UP WEEK SET BY METHODISTS

October 22 to 29 Named As Period for Paying Off Obligations

According to a statement given out by the Board of Stewards, the Clanton Methodist Church has designated the week of October 22 to 29 at "Pay-Up" week. The statement by the Stewards says:

"Make your plans to pay up your church obligations. Remember the churches are our most important organization. No town or community can afford to neglect its churches. It may mean leaving off a few luxuries. If so, let's do it. Don't put it off. Let's pay up, and may every member be able to say We Do Our Part."

Inasmuch as we know the Clanton Baptist church happens to be in need of a pay-up campaign, and perhaps the other churches of the town also, it seems that it would be a good thing for all denominations to join with the Methodists, and make the week of October 22 to 29 a real "Pay-Up" campaign for all the churches.

"No town or community can afford to neglect its churches," say the Methodist Stewards. That is indeed a true saying. Then it is clearly to be seen that Clanton is guilty of doing something we can not afford to do. Our people are guilty of neglecting their churches. They neglect to attend, and they neglect to pay their obligations.

What say the other churches? Will you join with the Methodist folks and really clean up all church obligations? The churches of Clanton are looked to as the leaders of the county in religious work. The truth of the business is that we folks of the Clanton churches, instead of setting an example worthy of leaders, are dabbling around and neglecting our church obligations in a manner that we are actually ashamed of. We should put our churches under the NRA and Do Our Part.

County Home Demonstration Agent Conducting Leadership Schools

A series of seven leadership schools in home demonstration work, taking up the outstanding steps of the project year, was begun here Friday, when Miss Ruth Pardue, home demonstration agent, conducted the first meeting. Thirty-five attended the meeting, at which B. H. Bailey, poultry specialist of Auburn, was the principal speaker.

Miss Pardue also lectured on fall and winter gardens and County Agent C. E. Stapp spoke on the advantages of organized leadership in the pursuance of demonstration work.

The following resume of the accomplishments and benefits of 4-H club work for girls has been prepared by Miss Pardue:

4-H Club work is an opportunity to bring home economics training to rural girls, and also an opporunity to form a club for the development of various community activities.

A 4-H Club may be organized where there are five of more members who wish to work on the same project. The best results have been obtained through organizing in the schools since the larger group of girls are there. It is hoped that 4-H clubs can be organized in Chilton County schools this month. Although most of the meetings are held at schools, it is urged that as many meetings as possible, scoial and otherwise, be held in homes in order to promote community spirit.

If clubs are organized in your schools, a satisfactory schedule with the teachers will be worked out. It will be impossible to organize more than 15 clubs in this county due to the other work of the home agent has to do. If there are more communities than this who are interested in 4-H club work, they will be reached later. The best results are always obtained where the teachers cooperate.

Girls from 10 to 20 years of age, inclusive, may enroll in 4-H club work. The Club motto, "To Make the Best Better," should always be before a 4-H member.

The following officers are elected: 1. President, who shall preside. 2. Vice president, who shall assist the president. 3. Secretary-treasurer, who shall keep a record of attendance and activities at all meetings. 4. Reporter, who shall report all meetings to the county newspapers. 5. Song and yell leader, who shall lead all 4-H songs and yells at each meeting. 6. Advisor, or local leader, who has various duties. This is usually an interested older person in the community.

Monthly meetings are held by the Home Demonstration Agent and one by the local leader. A clothing project will be taken up this year, the aim of which is to round out the life of our club girls so that they will be better equipped for homemaking. To do this they must know the principles governing healthful living for themselves, their families, and their community. They must know how to select, construct and care for their clothing in relation to health and beauty; and they must appreciate the meaning of a well-dressed club girl, all of which aims to equip them for better homemaking. From our clothing projects this year it is hoped that Chilton County club girls will be able to do these things.

In addition to their project there will be county club rallies, camps, and community, county and state fairs. These activities are always interesting to 4-H Club girls and are truly worth while.

A 4-H Club girl's pledge. (The reason for the 4-H).

I pledge—

My Head to clearer thinking;
My Heart to greater loyalty;
My Hands to larger service; and
My Health for better living, for My Club, My Community, and My Country.

It is hoped that by the cooperation of teachers and the home demonstration agent that a good organization can be worked out in Chilton County this year.

P.-T. A. AND AMERICAN LEGION ENJOIN FO REDUCATION FUNDS

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 3.—A permanent injunction was filed in the equity division of the circuit court of Montgomery County last Thursday, September 28, seeking to enjoin State Comptroller J. H. Hard, Jr., and State Treasurer S. H. Blan, from issuing warrants against the general fund of the state for payment of any governmental functions until a pro rata share of educational appropriations have been paid from that fund. The petitioners in the injunction proceedings are Mrs. Elizabeth Baldwin Hill, of Montgomery, and W. A. Abramson, of Florence. Mrs. Hill is president of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mr. Abramson is commander of the Alabama Department of the American Legion.

The action is intended to test the legality of the ruling of the Attorney-General to the effect that the operation of the schools of the state is secondary to other governmental functions. The petitioners set forth that none of the $2,000,000 appropriated in 1932 from the general fund to education has been paid and unless paid before October 1, 1933, they will lapse and revert to the state treasury. They further aver that other departments of the state government are receiving their appropriations from the general fund in full and that the payment to these other departments constitutes a discrimination against the schools of the state in that they violate certain provisions of the finance budget and control act, which were included in an amendment to the constitution adopted July 18.

No date for hearing of the petition has yet been set. The petition was filed by the legal firms of Hill, Hill, Whiting, Thomas and Rives, and Rushton, Crenshaw and Rushton, both of Montgomery.

Percy Henson of Sardis has been in Veterans Hospital at Tuscaloosa several weeks. He had his tonsils removed last week, and expects to return home this week.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

STORRS FIGHTING WAREHOUSE RULING

Strongly opposing the federal government discriminating against Alabama licensed warehouses, Seth P. Storrs, commissioner of agriculture, has written Alabama's two United States senators, the congressmen, and all bankers and warehousemen of the state urging them to join him in an effort to get the rule requiring that all production and seed loan cotton be stored in federal bonded warehouses or with cotton cooperative associations.

In writing the senators and congressmen, commissioner Storrs declared that "unless the rule is amended it will work a very great hardship on Alabama warehousemen and also on farmers who are not accessible to a federal bonded warehouse."

After declaring that there are about 15 federal bonded warehouses and about 300 state licensed warehouses in the state, Mr. Storrs wrote as follows:

"Alabama has the best cotton warehouse system in the United States, being equally as good as the federal system. This statement will be borne out by the federal Reserve Bank in Atlanta which says our receipts are entirely satisfactory in every respect and also the fact that cotton receipts issued by Alabama warehouses are the only ones acceptable to the International Credit Bank is positive proof that the Alabama system is ideal and there is absolutely no reason why the government should not accept receipts issued by Alabama warehouses on any cotton in which they are interested."

THE NORTHERN FORESTRY CAMPS MAY BE RETAINED

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 3.—The tentative proposal to move many of the northern forestry camps to the southern states for winter work has encountered much resistance from the states in which the camps are now located, according to the latest information received by the Alabama Commission of Firestry. With the approach of freezing weather it was anticipated that there would be less forestry work in the north that could be carried on advantageously. However, apparently aroused by the prospect of the transfer of many camps to the South, the northern states have bestirred themselves to locate work projects that can be carried on during the winter.

While many camps will be changed as to location, this may mean only moving of camps from high altitudes down to the valleys, without leaving the state. In other cases the change may be from one northern state to another in order to transfer the workers to the locality from which they were first enrolled. Intensive reconnaissance by northern forestry departments has resulted in the alignment of many projects said to be suitable for winter work.

Certain camps will undoubtedly be transferred to the South, but the total number of such will be much smaller than anticipated by the public. It is probable, also, that these will be allotted to states which in the first instance did not use their entire quotas. It is expected that Alabama will obtain additional camps for the winter, but not nearly the number required by general demand.

BRIEF FARM TOPICS

Gross farm income for the United States will approximate $6,260,000,000 this year compared with $5,143,000,000 in 1932, according to a preliminary estimate of the Federal Bureau of Agriculture.

Carbon bisulphide is an effective chemical to use in treating stored corn for weevils. County agents and teachers of vocational agriculture are prepared to give detailed information.

Cash payments to Alabama farmers for reducing cotton production will total $9,533,802. In addition, growers will receive options on government cotton at 6 cents per pound.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS

Farmer—And now I'll show you how to milk the cow.

City Maid—I think I had better learn on the calf.

An old farmer was trying hard to fill out a railroad claim sheet for a cow that had been killed on the track. He came down to the last item which was "disposition of the carcass?" After puzzling over the question for a time he wrote, "Kind and gentle."

FIGHT PEACH TREE BORER WITH P. D. B.

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 3.—Fighting the peach tree borers with paradichlorobenzene is being recommened by Julian Brown, extension horticulturist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

This chemical should be used only on trees four years old or older as it is liable to do serious damage to younger trees. Borers on one, two, and three-year-old trees should be controlled by worming.

For trees four and five years old, Mr. Brown recommends three-fourths ounce of the chemical per tree; for six-year-old trees one ounce; and for very old trees with large trunks 1½ ounces.

The horticulturist said that time of application is very important. "In north Alabama paradichlorobenzene should be applied October 1 to 10; in central Alabama, October 2 to 15; and in south Alabama, October 10 to 20," he advised.

In giving directions for application he said: "Smooth the surface about a foot from the tree trunk with the back of a shovel. Do not mound the soil unless borers are working in the tree trunk above the soil level; in this case sufficient soil should be placed around the tree to bring the level of the soil up above the gummy exudation before applying the chemical.

"The material should be applied in a continuous band about 1 to 1½ inches around the tree and about 1 to 1½ inches from the trunk. Several shovelsful of soil free from stones, sticks and trash should then be placed on the ring of crystals in the form of a mound and the mound packed with the back of the shovel.

"Where material is used on trees four and five years old, growers are advised to tear down the mound 28 days after application, and on older trees the mound should be torn down six weeks after making application."

County agents are prepared to give more detailed information on this subject.

TEN CENT COTTON LOAN PLANNED

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 3.—A plan under which growers are to be loaned 10 cents per pound on their present cotton crop to enable them to hold their cotton until prices are nearer a fair exchange value has been announced from Washington.

The announcement was made following a conference at the white house between President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace, Administrator Peek, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama.

Details of the plan to provide this credit to cotton producers are now being worked out by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in cooperation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Farm Credit Administration. It is understood that producers will receive loans without liability; tha tis, if we are finally forced to sell their cotton for less than 10 cents the government will not require them to pay the difference. Should producers sell for more than 10 cents they would pay the loan of 10 cents and have the difference, it is contemplated.

It is also understood that producers who receive the loans will be required to participate in the cotton productive control program for 1934 and 1935. This program calls for a reduction of the cotton acreage of the south for 1934 about 40 per cent or to approximately 25,000,000 acres.

Growers who sign contracts to reduce acreage next year will be compensated by rental payments ranging from $3 to $11 per acre and will receive a virtual guarantee of a parity price for that portion of the crop consumed in the United States.

By parity price is meant that will give cotton the same purchasing power it had in the pre-war period of 1909-1914.

Ban—My father said if I give up all my bad habits he'd present me with ten thousand dollars."

She—And you didn't do it?

Ban—Of course not. With no bad habits, what would I do with the money?

A city lady on a farm seeing a lot of calves remarked: "Oh, what cute little cowlets."

"They ain't cowlets, lady, they are bullets," said the farmer.

Remember the teakettle, though up to the neck in hot water it continues to sing.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 3.—I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, has appealed to the fishermen of the state, who pay no license and who far outnumber the hunters, to share the cost of conserving game and fish by purchasing hunting licenses.

He estimates there are at least 100,000 more fishermen in Alabama than hunters and point out that far more demands are made upon the department of game and fisheries to protect and supply fish than there are for game protection.

"We are approaching another hunting season—a season that promises one of the best crops of game Alabama has had in several years," Commissioner Quinn said. "Let it be remembered that whether it is game, birds or fish to be conserved and protected, the hunter contributes the revenue to employ the protecting agencies.

"The fishermen, as such, never contribute a penny for the protection of his sport. Despite this fact, more demands are made upon this department to protect fish the year round than game. It occurs to me that the man who fishes for sport, but who does not hunt, should come to the rescue of the hunter and cooperate with him by purchasing a hunting license and thereby assist the hunter in financing the protection of game and fish."

He pointed out that the hunter is permitted to enjoy the sport of hunting about three months during the year, while the fisherman is permitted, under the laws of the state, to enjoy the sport of fishing throughout the entire year. Continuing, he said: "It appears to me, therefore, that in justice and fairness to the hunter, who regularly contributes to the whole conservation program, including the fish life of out streams, that the fisherman, who does not hunt, should cooperate in the conservation, protection and propagation of all useful forms of wild life of field, woods and waters by buying a hunting license to aid in the program.

"This offers an unusual opportunity to the fishermen of the state to display genuine sportsmanship."

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

I believe that it is altogether possible for the everyday average man to succeed in life. We can succeed in spite of our ancestry. Good blood is a good thing, but many a man has had success in life who had poor blood in his veins. A friend of mine told me about his ancestors. He went back and back. The further back he went the better they were. He really had one very honorable ancestor. I felt sorry for him because he was dead and gone and could not apologize to the world for the failure his great, great, greatgrandson had made. We have the thing turned around. Instead of our ancestors making us famous, we ought to make our ancestors famous.

Years ago, as the story goes, man in a little Southern town wanted to buy a horse. He advertised in the weekly paper. A day or two later a colored man came to him and said, "Boss, I want to sell you this horse." The gentleman said, "John, I wouldn't have that horse. I would be ashamed to take him uptown. He is the ugliest animal I ever saw." A few moments later a man brought another horse to the home and said, "I see in the paper that you want to buy a horse. Let me sell you this one." The gentleman looked him over and said, "He's a good-looker. I'll take him." They closed the deal. The next day the colored man led his ugly animal across the wagon-yard. A race horse man who had a trained eye saw the horse. "What'll you take for that horse, boy?" inquired the race horse man. "I'll take a hundred dollars for him, Boss." The gentleman bought him. He tried him out on the race track. He cleaned up everything in the state, and the race horse man went to work and made that horse an ancestry. A man was sent into the mountains of the state to find out who was the mother and who was the father of the horse. They got the names of his maternal and paternal grandparents. That horse made all of his kinfolks famous.

Very few people are born right. There are weak places in all of us. God has a remedy for human weakness. Jesus taught that it was possible to be born again. According to the Christian standard, we belong to a fallen race, and no man is high-born until he is born from on High.

Asiatic, English and Mediterranean Breeds of Chickens

Foreign breeds not being of much interest in the United States, I will make the article very brief this week. Starting with the breeds of the Asiatic type, whose class are of distinctive type and have large bodies, feathered shanks and are usually heavy in bone. All have yellow skin except the black landghan, whose skin is a pinkish white. All have red earlobes, lay brown-shelled eggs and are classed as broody.

Under the Asiatic type are three main breeds. 1. The Brahama apparently was first imported into America in September, 1846. Brahamas are massive in appearance, well feathered and well proportioned, and pea combed. Under this type is the light, dark and buff Brahama.

2. Cochin originated in the Shanghai district of China and was known as the Shanhai foul. It was imported into America about 1845. The outstanding characteristics are its massive appearance and abundantly feathered shanks, low breast and long feathers which make it appear larger than it really is. Under this type is the buff, white, black and partridge cochrin.

3. Langshan originated in the Langshan district north of the Yangtse river in China. Introduced in America about 1873. It has about the same characteristics as the Cochin. The Langshan stands up well and is well proportioned, which makes it a very graceful bird. The comb is single. There are the white and black Langshan.

The breeds of English origin described in the American Standard of Perfection are for the most part utility breeds, noted for their excellent fleshing properties. With the exception of the Cornish, all the breeds have white skin, red ear-lobes, and, except the Dorking and Red Cap, lay brown-shelled eggs. All are classed as broody. Under the English breeds are: 1. The black, white, buff and blue Orpnigtons. 2. The dark and white, the white-laced red Cornish. 3. The speckled, the red and the light Sussex. 4. The white, the silver gray and the colored Dorking. 5. The red cap. 6. The Australorp.

The Mediterranean breeds of the Italian origin are smaller than the Asiatic and other classes and in the American, the leghorn especially have been bred for egg production rather than for the production of table poultry, except broilers. The breeds of Spanish origin are somewhat larger than the leghorns and Anconas, but have not been bred so extensively for egg production. All the Mediterranean breeds have non-feathered shanks, white or creamy ear-lobes, lay white shelled eggs, and are non-broody. The Mediterranean breeds are:

1. The Single-Comb White Leghorns, the Rose-comb White Leghorns, the single-comb Dark-Brown Leghorns, the Single-comb buff and Black Leghorns, the Silver and the Red Leghorn, and the Columbian Leghorn. 2. The Single-comb Ancona. 3. The Single-comb and the Rose-comb Black Minorca, the Black Minorca, the Buff Minorca. 4. The White faced Black Spanish. 5. The Blue Andalusian.

Next week's topic will be: "Game, Bantam and Miscellaneous breeds of Chickens."

JACKSON CHAPEL SINGING

Our singing was called to order by the chairman, Mr. Fonzie Cleckler, and prayer by Mr. Lee Popwell. The following directed one and two songs each: Miss Myrtice Traywick, Miss Ruby Jones, Harry Parker, Morris Cleckler, Miss Mostell Blankenship, Mary Will Smith, Willie B. Jones, Loudella Cleckler, Willodean Smith, Leonard Burnett, Virgil Robinson, E. C. Traywick, W. L. Sanders, Johnnie Minor, Mrs. Fonza Cleckler and Miss Lillie Mae Weldon.

The organists were Mr. and Mrs. Fonza Cleckler, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, Miss Mittice Duncan. Mr. Cleckler sang the closing song and we were dismissed by Johnnie Minor.

We want to thank everyone for coming out and helping us; also we want to thank the organists for their good playing, and want to thank Mrs. W. A. Smith for her organ. We will meet next first Sunday at 2 p.m.

I want to call attention to the party or the parties carrying on a little ungodly act at Jackson Chapel. Please stop it, as we don't approve of it, and the trustees of the school don't either. We have a fine Sunday school here and also have a good singing class, so we don't want anything like this to interfere with us. I also want to call your attention about the window panes being broken out. Be careful about this, for you know they don't give them away. Winter is coming on and you know the wind will blow mighty cold through them.—V. G. Smith, secretary.

MUSCLE SHOALS NOW POWER "YARDSTICK"

Under Tennessee Valley Authority Big Plant Will Be Operated By And For The People

Rates to encourage people to use more electricity and by so doing realize the leisure and comfort that are envisioned in President Roosevelt's "planned future" for the nation is the basis for the power policy formulated by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Under the new deal for Muscle Shoals announced by Director David E. Lilienthal, in charge of the Authority's power program, that mighty Tennessee River development takes its natural though long-delayed position as a self-supporting and self-liquidating business run by and for the public.

Under the act creating it, the Authority's favored customers are municipalities and cooperatives, with secondary consideration for private industries. Therefore, municipalities within transmission distance of Muscle Shoals, which own their own distribution systems, may obtain power from that source at an average cost of 7 mills a kilowatt hour half time use. In turn, the Authority proposes that these municipalities retail this power to individual residence consumers—rural and urban—at the following rates:

First 50 kilowatt hours—3 cents per kilowatt hour
Next 150 kilowatt hours—2 cents per kilowatt hour
Next 200 kilowatt hours—1 cent per kilowatt hour
Over 400 kilowatt hours—4 mills per kilowatt hour.

This amounts to about 2 cents a kilowatt hour for the typical general consumer and around 2¾ cents for the typical limited user.

These schedules, both for town and farm, carry with them a requirement that the customer use a reasonable minimum amount each month. These minimum requirements vary, both in urban and rural territory, with the size of the customer's meter. Farm users will naturally have a larger minimum requirement wherever the greater distances between customers result in increased cost of service. The rates have been computed on a conservative basis. All costs of service are included. In addition, provision has been made for items of cost not actually incurred, such as taxes and interest, in order to make fair comparison with privately owned utilities.

Director Lilienthal believes that these very low rates will induce the people of the Valley "greatly to increase their use of electricity, with its attendant benefits—which is one of the objectives of the President and Congress." If this results, even lower rates are possible. "It is apparent," comments Mr. Lilienthal, "that the rates proposed are designed to encourage and make possible the widest use of electric service, with all the individual and community benefits which go with such service. We are at the very beginning of the power age."

The Authority holds that the interest of the public in the widest possible use of power is superior to any private interest.

On the other hand, the TVA does believe that where such conflict can be reconciled without injury to the public interest, such reconciliation should be made.

However, the new TVA doctrine of public rights goes on to say:

"The right of a community to own and operate its own electric plant is undeniable. This is one of the measures which the people may properly take to protect themselves against unreasonable rates. Such a course of action may take the form of acquiring the existing plant, or setting up a competing plant, as circumstances may dictate.

"The fact that action by the Authority may have an adverse economic effect upon a privately owned utility should be a matter for the serious consideration of the Board in framing and executing its power program. But it is not the dominating factor. The most important considerations are the furthering of the public interest in making power available at the lowest rate consistent with sound financial policy, and the accomplishment of the social objectives which low cost power makes possible. The Authority cannot decline to take action solely upon the ground that to do so would injure a privately owned utility."

To provide a workable and economic basis of operations, the TVA plans initial service in three areas: 1. The region immediately proximate to the route of the transmission line to connect Muscle Shoals with the Norris Dam at Cove Creek; 2. The region in proximity to Muscle Shoals, including northern Alabama and northeastern Mississippi; 3. The region in proximity to the Norris Dam, near Knoxville. At a later stage in the development it is contemplated to include, roughly, the drainage area of the Tennessee River in Kentucky, Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina, and that part of Tennessee which lies east of the west margin of the Tennessee drainage area.

While it is the TVA's present intention to develop its power program in this territory before considering going outside, the Authority may go outside the area "if there are substantial changes in general conditions, facts, or governmental policy which would necessarily require a change in his policy of regional development, or if the privately owned utilities in this area do not cooperate in the working out of the program." Among special considerations for going outside such area would be "unreasonably high rates for service and a failure or absence of public regulations to protect the public interest."

Rev. J. S. Hand was carried to Birmingham Monday for treatment at a hospital. He went in Martin's ambulance.

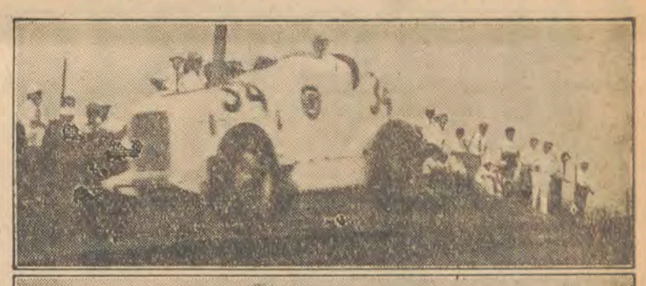
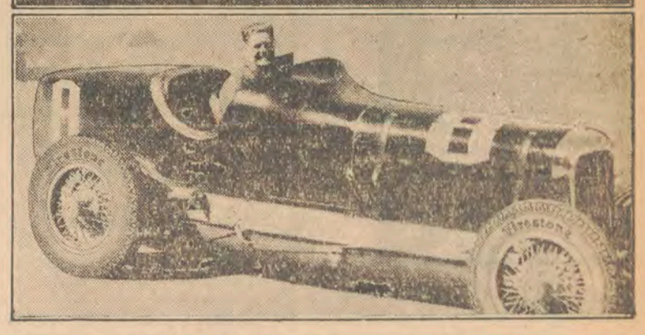
Premier Road Race of 13 Years Ago Back With Greater Thrills Than Ever





Above: A typical scene in the recent Elgin National Road Race. Each car leaves the ground as it hits the point in the road known as "Aviation Hill." Below: Phil Shafer, veteran racing driver, who won the feature event in record time of 88.34 miles per hour average over the rough concrete and dusty gravel.

Revival of the historic Elgin National Road Race at Elgin, Ill., that spectacular event which recently thrilled the automotive world, has brought back after a lapse of 13 years one of America's most fascinating and valuable races, according to Firestone Tire & Rubber Company engineers. The cars struggle through roads of old rough concrete, hot tarvia and dusty gravel at speeds of 130 miles per hour or more—a terrific ordeal for men, motors, and most of all tires.

When Phil Shafer, famous veteran driver, finished the 203-mile grind with an average of 88.34 miles per hour over the 8¼-mile course he broke the old record by nine miles per hour.

From grandstands in the cornfields 30,000 spectators saw the thrilling contest. So gruelling was the test that only 6 of the 14 cars finished.

The 203-mile stock-car race, in the morning, was also spectacular. Fred Frame, 1932 Indianapolis race winner, captured this event, with the amazing average speed of 80.22 miles per hour with a Ford V-8.

All the Firestone Tires used in the stock car race, including those on the winning car, were standard stock tires.

THE FAMILY NEXT DOOR

WEST CHILTON

Beautiful October is here. Why not write a few lines to the dear old Banner? Yes, all nature is beautiful. Nothing wrong but man. He just cannot govern himself. He has been trying it for thousands of years. Look where we are now. Going? Yes, we are on the way, but we know not where.

Crops in West Chilton are fairly good. Of course we had the long drougth in May and June and later more drouth, but we are coming out fairly well. Still the cash crops are lagging behind what we have to buy, so that keeps us down in the ditch, regardless of how kind nature may be to us.

By the way, did you all read Dr. Gragg's letter in the last Banner? If not, look up you paper and read it. We believe all will concede he is for fair play. While we are on letters, did you read the one by Hon. W. L. Sanders? He is among the most wide awake hustling members of our Board of Education — young, active and looking out for his people. A statesman, not a politician.

We learn the schools at Mars Hill and Freeman will be combined in a new buildnig near the Gentry old store.

Macedonia church has again called Rev. Buford Lawrence to the pastorate, and reelected all the former officials and teachers in her Sunday school.

Union Springs church has reelected Rev. Reach of Dogwood to the pastorate.

Numerous revivals have been held this year and a goodly number have joined. On a recent Sunday the International Bible Students Association baptized eight ladies and gentlemen at Cofer Brother's fish pond. A gentleman from Birmingham performed the services.

Our local county government should be appreciated. Our fine roads and the financial condition of the county all testify to that fact. Friends and foes all admit that Judge Reynolds sure knows how to be probate judge. We doubt if his superior can be found in the state. Our tax officials seem equal to their predecessors and that is saying a whole lot. It is needless to mention the county treasurer. Her record is without a flaw, and, among the best public officials. We have for years had a fine line of commissioners—Glasscock, Pate, Robinson, Gentry, Bean, Conway, Maddox, Vinson, Burnett and others. In order to continue this desirable form of local government, only one thing to do, nothing complicated in it. All sacrifice self for the wish of the majority. No other way will succeed. Your correspondent will do the part of one, and then some.—Z. J. Jones.

Phil—What of it?

She—Let's get it so we can be all alone.

Lesson for October 8

SAUL IN DAMASCUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. II Cor. 5:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Learning to Love Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Becoming Jesus' Friend.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul Becomes a Christian.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is Conversion?

1. Saul's Violent Hatred of the Lord's Disciples (vv. 1, 2).

He knew full well that unless the movement set on foot by Jesus was stopped it would supersede Judaism. He was ignorant of the genius of Christianity. He did not know that "the blood of martyrs is the seed of the church." Prosperity may ruin the church, but persecution never. Stephen's testimony intensified his hatred instead of softening his spirit.

II. Saul Kicking Against the Pricks (vv. 3-9).

The figure here is that of the eastern ox driver following the ox with a sharp iron fixed to the end of a pole. If the animal rebels and kicks against the sharp iron, it but injures itself.

1. A light from heaven (v. 3). The time had now come for the Lord to intervene. Saul was stricken with blindness and fell to the earth.

2. A voice from heaven (vv. 4, 5). This was the Lord's voice calling personally to Saul. In answer to Saul's inquiry, Jesus said, "I am Jesus, whom thou persecutest."

3. Saul's inquiry (v. 6). The dictator is now willing to be dictated to.

4. Christ's answer (v. 6). He told Saul to go into Damascus where information would be given him as to what he must do.

5. Saul entering Damascus (vv. 7-9). The savage persecutor went quite humbly into Damascus, led by his attendants where for three days he remained blind and fasted. The day is coming when all who oppose the work of God shall get a sight of the glory of the Son, either in salvation or in condemnation (Phil. 2:10, 11; Rev. 6:15-17).

III. Ananias Ministers to Saul (vv. 10-19).

1. Ananias' vision (vv. 10-12). He was instructed to go to Saul, given the name of the street and Saul's host.

2. Ananias' fear and hesitancy (vv. 13-17). He knew of Saul's ministry and the authority by which he came. The Lord encouraged him to go, assuring him that Saul was no longer an enemy but a chosen vessel to bear his name before the Gentiles.

3. Ananias' obedience (v. 17). He went to the house where Saul was staying, put his hand on his arm, and affectionately addressed him as brother. He informed Saul that the Lord had sent him with a twofold message.

a. "That thou mightest receive thy sight."

b. "Be filled with the Holy Ghost."

4. Saul baptized (vv. 18, 19). After Saul received his sight, Ananias baptized him. It was fitting that Saul should be baptized by one not having official rank, since his ministry as an apostle to the Gentiles was to be entirely independent of the twelve.

IV. Saul Preaching in Damascus (vv. 20-25).

1. What he preached (v. 20). He preached Christ, that he is the Son of God. This is the heart of the message of every minister and Sunday school teacher.

2. Where he preached (v. 20). It was in the synagogue. Because this was the place of assembly for the Jews, Saul took advantage of the opportunity to tell them that Jesus of Nazareth was the very Son of God.

3. The effect of his preaching (vv. 21-25).

a. People amazed (v. 21). They knew that the very one who had been the leader in persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem and had come to Damascus for the express purpose of bringing them bound to the chief priest, was now passionately advocating that which he had vehemently sought to destroy.

b. Jews confounded (v. 22). Saul increased in spiritual strength and knowledge so that he confounded the Jews, proving that Jesus was not only the Son of God, but their Messiah.

c. The Jews sought to kill him (vv. 23-25). Being unable to meet his skilful use of the Scriptures, they took counsel how that they might destroy him. So intent were they upon killing him that they watched the gate of the city day and night that they might take him. He escaped their wrath, being let down at night in a basket by the wall.

CONTINUED FOR ANOTHER 6 MONTHS

Over Entire L. & N. System

In April, this railroad announced that it would conduct a six months' experimental period of drastic passenger fare reductions, lowering its rates to 2¢ per mile in coaches and 2¢ per mile each way for round trip tickets for transportation in parlor and sleeping cars, and 3¢ a mile for transportation in Pullmans where one-way tickets are bought. (When parlor or sleeping cars are used cost of space is extra). Announcement was made that the continuation of these experimental fares would be dependent upon their reception by the traveling public and the management is now glad to say that due to the encouraging response given to these fares the experiment will be continued for another six months beginning with October 1st and ending with March 31st.

These fares apply between all points on the L. & N. Railroad, and afford the most satisfactory and economical method of transportation providing similar comforts and conveniences.

"free ELECTRICITY.. for Mrs. JONES"

SECOND of a series of advertisements explaining the effect of our new rates.

A CONVERSATION between MRS. JONES (who is typical of several thousand customers of this company whose use of electricity has been averaging only 5 kilowatt hours monthly) and a REPRESENTATIVE of this company who is explaining to her the effect of our new low rates on her use of the service:

REPRESENTATIVE: "Good morning, Mrs. Jones. Have you heard about our NEW LOW RATES on electricity for home use?"

MRS. JONES: "Yes, I have. But I haven't paid much attention to them. We only burn one electric light in each of our 5 rooms, so our light bill never ran over the one dollar minimum."

REPRESENTATIVE: "Then you'll be surprised to learn, Mrs. Jones, that our new rates entitle you to use three times as much electricity for that dollar a month minimum you've been paying! In other words, for that dollar a month you can now use 15 kilowatt hours of electricity instead of just five! Compared with our old rates, these new rates give you ten more kilowatt hours per month absolutely free!"

MRS. JONES: "Will those ten free kilowatt hours enable me to use an electric iron without increasing my light bill?"

REPRESENTATIVE: "Yes. You can now use an electric iron or any of several other small appliances. For instance, those ten free kilowatt hours will operate an electric iron for 20 hours, or a waffle iron for 20 hours, or a 10-inch electric fan for 200 hours, or a percolator for 20 hours, or a vacuum cleaner for 100 hours. Or you can add twice as much electric lighting around your home. There are just lots of ways you can use your free electricity. But you know best. Choose the ways that will help you most."

MRS. JONES: "Well, that is good news. Suppose you just let me talk to Mr. Jones about it when he comes home tonight—then you call again tomorrow. In the meantime, we'll decide just how we will use the extra electricity and just which appliances we'll want first."

REPRESENTATIVE: "All right, Mrs. Jones. The sooner you begin using more electricity, the sooner you get the benefits coming to you under our new low rates. Good day, Ma'am."

Our new low rates enable small users of electricity to enjoy additional benefits of electric service either at no additional cost whatever, or at a negligible increase, depending on the use of the service. Get what's coming to you! If our Representative hasn't already called at your home, please come to our office or telephone and we will send our Representative immediately.

ALABAMA POWER CO.

Our advertisement in this newspaper next week will explain how the new rates affect our customers who live in 5-room homes and have been using from 6 to 30 kilowatt hours of electricity per month. Watch for it!

USE MORE ELECTRICITY—IT COSTS LESS!

The Seniors have begun selling candy. Conway Thornburgh as class representative has charge of the distribution of the candy

Mr. S. E. Norton will be greatly missed by Thorsby Institute. He was very much interested in all its activities. Last spring he was the means of the Glee Club having opportunity to sing before Judge McCord's large Bible Class at Montgomery.

AN APPRECIATION

The death of Sereno E. Norton, on September 30, at the good old age of nearly 85 years, brought sorrow to this entire community. On Sunday, October 1, at 11 o'clock, preceded by short services in the home, the funeral was held at the Congregatioinal Church, of which he was a devoted and loyal member. The large attendance at the funeral attested the love and respect in which he was held.

Mr. Norton was the last of nine brothers and has one sister still living. He was the son of a pioneer missionary of the Presbyterian church in the State of New York, Illinois and Wisconsin. He leaves a wife, who has been his devoted companion through the years, and one son, Sereno, who lives in Brunswick, Georgia. He had one other son who died at 12 years of age.

Mr. Norton came to Thorsby 30 years ago and his life has been woven into the best of the community life ever since. More than anyone else, he is responsible for Thorsby Institute being here today.

He was the priime mover in organizing the United Protestant Church of Thorsby, whose influence for good in the lives of students, through the years, has reached out to mony other States. Thus his life has been multiplied many times over and none can measure the extent of its good influence.

He was a man who never lived in the past, but to the very last maintained his interest in things of today. He was always interested in the Boy Scouts and gave time and thought to that work. He was interested in every movement for civic betterment. He loved music and flowers—the beautiful things of life.

And in all his life, he was one of the sweetest spirited men I have ever known. He said, "Life is too short to hold grudges," and however strongly or sharply he might be opposed, he always maintained that sweet Christian spirit.

Laboring under physical disabilities that many of us would have thought insurmountable, he continued his activities with a smile and a cheerful word.

Brother Norton lived a life of faith in God, and with Paul said, "I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

Our church will miss him. Thorsby Institute will miss him. The whole community will miss him; but our loss is his gain.

Surely the words of the wise man are true: "The hoary head is a crown of glory, if found in the way of righteousness."

His pastor,
JOSEPH E. EACH

Q.—Will my Blue Eagle be withdrawn if I am unable to comply with all the provisions of the permanent code of my industry?

A.—Permanent codes provide the manner of their administration. Any appeal for exceptions to provisions of administration must be made to the administrative body established in the code.

Q.—There are two firms in my town which have not signed the President's agreement. What do you advise?

A.—Some have not signed because they do not understand the purposes; others because they feel they cannot. In any event, they deserve no critical comment until their cases have been considered by the local compliance board. A dependable method has been desgined and is operated to take care of any case of any kind without detriment to any employer who wants recovery.

Q.—Owners of small establishments here complain they are "being told" they may work only 54 hours per week. Is this correct?

A.—No. The President's Reemployment Agreement places no limitation on hours in towns of less than 2,500 population.

Q.—When an employer signed the President's Reemployment Agreement, is he permitted to add this clause: "Provided that we waive no constitutional right or immunity?"

A.—No. There can be no modifications or "interpretations" except the regularly authorized "consent clause" referring to substitutions or to labor contracts made prior to signing. Ultimately evasions will be prosecuted.

Q.—I am an American citizen living abroad, engaged in importing American products. Am I entitled to the Blue Eagle?

A.—Yes; provided your importations are manufactured by firms who are NRA members, and provided further, you have yourself signed the President's Reemployment Agreement and are living up to it.

Q.—Have there been further modifications of the substitutions for retail coal dealers with respect to watchmen and delivery men?

A.—Yes. The policy board of NRA with the Administrator's approval, exempted watchmen from any limitation as to hours, and ruled that delivery men may work 48 hours per week.

The present position of the cotton market is seemingly as unshakable as the Rock of Gibraltar. The fact that our government has announced that it will loan the farmer 10 cents at interior points, will relieve the cotton market from any hedge pressure and any decline that might occur from this level on account of the weak stock market, will be of short duration. Right now there are too many cotton bears and too pessimistic a view is being taken of the cotton supply situation. Bears fail to realize that the foundation for a real bull cotton market has already been laid and that statistics are the post-mortem verdict. Manipulation may artificially depress the cotton prices for a time, but the law of supply and demand will sooner or later hold its sway; in fact, it is no longer a question of supply, but one of demand and demand is improving all the time. This statement is borne out by the fact that consumption continues on an unusually large scale and now exceeds the 1930 consumption by more than 3,000,000 bales. Exports are also increasing and are now 75,000 bales ahead of last year. Evidently the foreign spinner continues to be enthused over the idea that American cotton is still cheap. After all is said and done, cotton is really more valuable than gold. Cotton is the friend of the poor and the luxury of the rich; it is made into cloth so coarse that it sells for a few cents a yard; it is made into fabric so fine and so beautiful that it cannot be told from silk, and if there were no cotton, the civilized world, including Mahatma Gandhi, would have to go naked. Cotton will gain strength as it moves higher—it is the one commodity that has been designated to lead the world out of this depression. Old King Cotton will soon regain his throne and the farmer who fails to take advantage of the government plan to hold his cotton, will look backward one year from now with regret and remorse.—International Market Forecast Bureau.

DEDICATED TO MR. S. E. NORTON

Editor Union-Banner:

Quite a number of your readers are interested in the fact that Mr. S. E. Norton, for several years your correspondent in Thorsby, has received his well-earned promotion to the wider activities, the richer life "over there." May I have a little room in your columns to speak my appreciation of his life and character.

I would speak especially of his relation to Thorsby Institute which for nearly 30 years now has been the center of his thought and hopes and prayers. It has been as it were the child of his old age. I am sure it is generally the opinion of those who knew the story of the beginnings of Thorsby Institute that Mr. Norton was so much responsible for it that, but for him, the school would not have been established. He was the first secretary of the board and continued in that position until very recently, his failing eyesight compelled his resignation. But he never lost in any measure his interest in it. Since he became totally blind a few months ago, I have heard him talking by the hour of the things he hoped to do for Thorsby Institute. This death removes from our board the last remaining member of the board as first organized.

Some of Mr. Norton's slogans are worth remembering. "If anything ought to be done, it can be done." Mr. Norton believed that thoroughly and directed his life accordingly. He would tackle any job that the thought needed doing. He had no place in his vocabulary for the word "can't."

Another saying of his, "Life is too short for grudges." If anything unpleasant has occurred "forget it." If there was anyone in the world towards whom he felt unkindly, I never heard of it.

Another striking characteristic of Mr. Norton closely related to some of the foregoing was his youthful enthusiasim for life and its duties. He kept closely in touch with all that was going on. Though blind and nearly 85 he was planning enthusiastically for the days and years to come, looking forward as eagerly into to future as a young man of 20.

I cannot think of Mr. Norton as dead. He is alive, wonderfully interested in all that is going on anywhere. To my mind such a life as his is a tremendous argument for immortality—at any rate for his immortality. "He is not dead."

His friend,
E. W. BUTLER

Sereno E. Norton

The publishers of the Union-Banner with sincere sorrow this week record the death of our friend, co-worker, and ever faithful assistant, Mr. Sereno E. Norton, of Thorsby. In the passing of this fine, able man we know that we have lost one who served with us diligently in our mutual purpose of making this newspaper a worthy advocate of the better things in the lives of our people and a champion of all noble institutions.

For many years Mr. Norton has been manager of the Thorsby Department of The Union-Banner. In this service, as in every other thing he attempted in life, he put the very best effort he had. And we always found that his efforts were the fruits of an ability out of the ordinary. We are indeed full of sorrow and regret to know that we shall have his help no more.

Mr. Norton's life and work have meant much to the community in which he lived. His neighbors and associates say he was so much responsible for Thorsby Institute that, but for him, the school would not have been established. What a monument he has left in that fine educational institution!

"Laboring under physical disabilities that many of us would have thought insurmountable, he continued his activities with a smile and a cheerful word." Thus his pastor, Rev. Joseph E. Each, fittingly describes the "grit" he had in him. For several years Mr. Norton suffered failing sight. For about a year he was totally blind. But he never gave up.

The Union-Banner is sincerely appreciative of the wide friendship and close contact the paper has enjoyed with the people of Thorsby and community for many years. Their interest and support has been of much worth to us. It has been made possible through the devoted work done by Mr. Norton as our Thorsby representative. We shall miss him, even more perhaps than we can now know. Fortunate indeed for us and for Thorsby if we can find one who is able to take his place.

Montgomery's Cordiality

There has come to our attention a very interesting letter from the Frank Tennile Furniture Company, one of the enterprising and progressive business houses of our Satte's Capital City. Appearances indicate that this letter is one of a number being sent out into the territory adjacent to Montgomery. Doubtless other business houses besides Tennile's are also sending out such letters.

Because of the well-panned and beautifully expressed community purpose, this letter strikes us as worthy of general interest. Below we quote two paragraphs from it:

"A group of us in Montgomery are trying to make your visits to our city more enjoyable. We want to know the things you like about our city and the things you believe we can improve. You can help us by writing to me quite frankly, about such matters as our traffic regulations, the courtesy of our officers, the friendliness of our private citizens; are our streets easy to find, is Montgomery a cordial city to out-of-towners? Sit down today and write me about it, for we are earnest in wanting to uphold our reputation for traditional Southern Hospitality that we feel so many cities have lost in the mad scramble for growth.

"A fair rule is to trade with your home merchants for everything that they can supply you. If you seek a broader selection of merchandise in a larger market, you are cordially invited to try Montgomery stores. The thing we wish to stress, however, is that when you and your family get in your car and start out for a pleasant drive, it is sincerely hoped that you will turn in this direction, and when you arrive here, let us have the pleasure of your acquaintance. It will be a privilege to render a personal service."

It gives the business man in the small town the "shivers" to see concerns in nearby cities coming in and asking for business. This, however, is made less alarming by the letter of Tennile's when it says, "A fair rule is to trade with your home merchants for everything that they can supply you."

The Montgomery spirit of cordiality is beautiful. And many people have found that it is a reality, too. We admire it, because it illustrates how business men can successfully go about the job of making their city popular, friendly and cordial, while at the same time improving and enlarging their chances for business dealings.

Business people in every town may well take note of Montgomery's way. It takes more than the formal exchange of merchandise for cold dollars to keep warm the finer elements of human contact. Many a town needs to realize this fact, and Clanton is no exception.

Our Cotton Venture

Some time ago the United States government loaned to China $50,000,000 with which to buy wheat and cotton. It was believed at the time that the sale of so much of these two staples to the Orientals would increase the price of the commodities in the United States. It hasn't worked out that way as yet, and we are beginning to see some of the reason why it hasn't worked out.

According to a Tokyo dispatch to the New York Times, the President of the Bank of Shanghai has offered to sell to cotton interests in Japan the cotton which China bought from us with the money she borrowed from us. It was stated further in the dispatch that the Japanese cotton spinners would buy the cotton if the price was right.

Here we have another exhibition of international gratitude. Uncle Sam lends China the money to buy our cotton with. China then, according to the story, will sell this cotton which she bought of us with our money, to Japan, who is already and has been for years one of our best cotton customers. And she will doubtless sell the wily Jap the cotton at a price less than the world market price. China can, of course, afford to do this because it isn't her cotton and she didn't buy it with her own money.

Secretary Hull and others of our ardent internationalists are in favor of world-wide trade agreements which, they profess to believe, will usher in an era of general prosperity and brotherly love among nations. This alleged Sino-Japanese cotton episode is a fine example of the kind of international brotherly love we usually find whenever we go out to look for it.

If China makes an agreement for the sale of this cotton to Japanese textile interests, the effect on the world price of cotton will be exactly opposite that which is intended by the administration when it put over the deal with China.

The disposal abroad of all of our surplus wheat might raise the price of wheat in the United States, if we were to get down to a domestic basis, and stay there, and not interfere with our agricultural tariff by lowering it in some foolish pursuit of international trade. But lending foreign nations the money with which to buy our raw materials will not help us so long as we depend on the world markets. It merely transfers the surplus from one nation to another without affecting the world supply.

A great many people want to lend Soviet Russia money with which to buy our products. The way our Chinese venture bids fair to turn out, ought not add any great amount of encouragement to this movement.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The NRA drive in political circles is now being compelled, for the time being at least, to share the spotlight with Old Man Inflation. Every day now we see in the public press interviews by prominent men and editorial speculation on the possibilities of inflation. On just what would happen, were we to have currency inflation, there is of course no general agreement. Those opposed to the method point to the unfortunate experiences of Germany and other nations in which inflation was permitted to run riot. The inflationists tell us that Germany's trouble was due to the fact that she did not control inflation. The anti-inflationists counter with the reply that once the plan is put into effect it is impossible to control the amount of inflation for the reason that each "shot" requires a subsequent more powerful one to prevent collapse, until finally collapse comes anyhow. Germany, they add, did not intend to have uncontrolled currency expansion either when she embarked on a program of inflation.

The big demand for inflation now is coming from the wheat farmers of the West and the cotton farmers of the South, who say that the prices of their product, under the NRA have not risen as fast as the things they have to buy. They are sure that inflation is the only remedy for this condition. Whether or not this is true, remains open to question. If we once embark on inflation there is no assurance that the price of the commodities the farmer has to buy will not continue to rise as fast as the price of those the farmer has to sell. Certainly in a short time the thing would equalize itself and the farmer would be no better off compared to the rest of the country, then he was before. And it is more than possible that he might, in the long run, be infinitely worse off, due to the disruption of general stability.

Now with inflation one of the principal topics of the hour, it is interesting to note the view of foreign "experts" on the American situation. It is generally believed in London and Paris, by students of American affairs, that we are sooner or later in for a period of experimental inflation. They take the view that our recovery is not coming fast enough under the recovery act, and that the administration will be forced by political pressure and the approach of a new session of congress, to go in for some kind of inflation. They are counting on our impatience as a nation to bring this about. The late fall of the dollar on the European exchanges is said by many authorities to be due to the expectation that there will be inflation in America, which has induced foreign financial interests to sell the dollar in the hope of reaping large profits when inflation comes to Uncle Sam. The weakness of the dollar is probably due in some part, however, to the flight of capital from America, which is said to have been going on for some little time, this too, in anticipation of inflation. If and when Americans turn their American money into European money or securities there is, of course, a natural weakening of the dollar. How much of this there has been is, of course, problematical.

What the outcome of it all will be remains to be seen. Most Americans are hoping that the rate of recovery will be accelerated again, real soon, so that anything more radical than credit inflation can be avoided. Of course an inflation in the price of farm products would greatly lessen the agitation for inflation. The mere discussion of inflation is enough to cause a spurt in the price of wheat and cotton, but there is the inevitable reaction when the talk is not followed by real inflation. In past depressions the agitation for inflation has usually come at the end of the hard times, and the defeat of the inflation campaign has usually marked the beginning of better times. Let us hope that such will be the case in the closing of 1933 and the beginning of 1934.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Mack's Beer Keg Radio

Just about the keenest thing I have seen recently in the way of odds and ends, is the little beer keg radio set at Mack's Place. It is a complete radio set, with tubes, loud speaker and all, and the whole thing is encased in a regulation 1-gallon beer keg. And, now, in as much as we have the "mug that cheers" coming back to us in full force, the little beer keg radio might be a nice little souvenir of the return of "our rights," to quote our dear brethren of the flowing bowl. Call around and see it—it's a wiz.

Beware the Census Man

I hear reports that there have been one or more men going over the county in the guise of some kind of census officials. These fellows ask a lot of questions, according to reports, including questions about people's age, if they vote, and if so, just what their political affiliations are. Some people, not knowing but that these men were really sent out by the census bureau, have given the desired information, thinking it was compulsory. But don't be fooled. If anyone comes to you with this list of questions, posing as some kind of census man, have him show you his authority—this he cannot do. According to the questions asked, these "officials" are being sent out, or are out of their own accord, in the interest of some person or clique, and are endeavoring to gather political information. They are making a kind of check-up on the comparative voting strength of the county—also, to see just how many are behind with poll taxes, and other information of this kind. So, if one comes to you for information, make sure that he has proper authority. If he does not have it, you will know he is an impostor. Then you can use your own judgment as to your treatment of him. If you want to be nice to him, just refuse to answer his questions. But if you want to give such impostors their just due, you will grab the nearest brush broom in sight and run him off.

The Old Folks Gag

There is a pretty smooth racket being worked on the older people of this county, and elsewhere. It is a kind of benefit association for older people. The charge is only ten cents, and on account of the little charge, this association has fooled thousands and thousands of old people into sending in their dimes. The only thing the association gives in return for the dime is a promise that they will endeavor to have congress pass a bill putting all people over a certain age on a pension list to receive money from the government. This promise is as idiotic as it is impossible to fulfill. If one would only use his brain for a moment, he might readily see that the government treasury could never stand such a drain, even if such a bill were passed. The association has taken advantage of the seemingly popular tendency to "grab everything in sight from the government" to put this hoax over. The basis for the whole plan is the fact that President Roosevelt, while governor of New York, had such a bill offered to the state legislature of New York, providing for the pensioning of all old people—the bill was snowed under by wise legislators. The heads of the association cannot be handled by the postal department for using the mails to defraud, for they will have fulfilled their agreement when they ask for such a bill. But, nevertheless, it is a colossal fraud, and a good thing to keep out of. Older people of the country have poured barrels of dimes into the scheme, from which they will receive no benefit. A dime isn't much to lose, but a big enough pile of them will make a neat fortune for the crooked schemer.

After the Gangsters

Exponents of the move for repeal of the 18th Amendment have a good argument which they are making the most of. They tell us that since the forces for law and order have had so much of their attention diverted from liquor law violators, that a nation-wide move to oust the gangsters and racketeers of the larger cities is gaining ground. And it is a fact. I can't see just why the repeal move should have such an effect—I don't see why the law forces couldn't take care of the gangsters and racketeers AND the liquor business. But if we must get rid of one of the two, I believe it would be better to rid ourselves of these gangsters. I believe the decency and good common sense of the people of the nation will assert itself in great enough degree that they will not consent to return of the open saloon. No doubt there are many rabid wets who would like to see this happen, but for the most part, this is not the case. I meet lots of people who believe the prohibition law is the cause for all our troubles, and they want it repealed, yet they are strong against the open saloon. The will of the majority must be law here in our country, and if "moderation" is what the majority wants, then I suppose the "teetotalers" will have to bow. And if the change of policy will really "moderate" the liquor law instead of bringing back "the good old days" when there was a saloon on every corner, and at the same time give the nation at least partial freedom from the racketeer's grasp, it will not be such a bad move after all.

It's Squirrel Season

This year saw the squirrel season ushered in on October 1st, a full month before the usual opening date. But I do not believe the department will keep this up, because the hunters, themselves, are not so keen on it. I like to hunt squirrels as well as any of them, but I have found two or three things against the early season. The weather is still warm, the game isn't stirring much yet, and so the hunting is far below par. Then, there are lots of big snakes yet roving the woods and swamps, providing a constant danger to hunters. A fellow can't keep his eyes on the trees, looking for "fuzzies," and keep a good look-out for the big rattlers and moccasins all at the same time. And, last and best of reasons for a later season opening, there are hundreds of the little squirrels not over half grown, no bigger than rats. These would be much better game a month later. All of these troubles would be removed with the season opening in November. I have talked with many hunters during this week, and the most of them think it is a little too early.

A New Code

For months I have heard very little besides something about codes. Pretty soon we'll have codes governing everything. And here is the last one I've heard about, and it's for the ladies. Read it and weep, sisters, while the "hubbies" will all stand with bared heads in thankfulness that someone has, at last, taken the part of "the poor lesser half." Here is The Housewives' Code: "The wife shall arise at least one hour before the husband, and have his pipe lit and his morning paper at hand. Except on Sunday, a husband is entitled to three good hot, substantial meals a day—cold meat cuts and sardines are taboo. A wife should find recreation in whatever form of entertainment her husband prefers, whether it be reading, music, the movies, golf, or football. After giving ten per cent of his salary to his wife for personal expenses, and paying the household bills, the husband is entitled to the balance—if any. And the husband is entitled to an affectionate welcome on his return home every night." Now, there it is, ladies, and you can begin sticking up the eagles in your window most any time, to show that you are abiding by your code. And, one other word. When you put up the eagle, be sure it is one of the regulation stamp—not a war eagle, with a rolling pin or a frying pan in its claws.—Man in hte Moon.

A Warning

In St. Louis, the Associated Press tells us, the owner of a small restaurant has been beaten and forced to kiss the Blue Eagle. His offense was that he had not signed the NRA agreement; at least, that is the offense alleged. The unfortunate man, who runs a low-charge place, says his troubles came because he had not raised prices as quickly as his competitor wished. In the Lafayette Market here, a milder form of horseplay was used apparently to coerce merchants into closing their stalls at an early hour.

Whatever the facts as to these incidents they should be a warning to those in charge of the NRA, both the national and the local heads, to avoid inflamatory speeches that tend to arouse the mob spirit. Men have the right in this country to disagree with the local heads of the NRA and with the national heads; they have the right to disagree with the President of the United States. If a business man, running a large enterprise or running a cheap restaurant, elects not to fall in with the NRA program he is entitled to his judgment and his decision. And nobobdy, from the highest in Washington down to the lowest "corporal" in the NRA movement, has the right to injure him or to oppress him, or to set loose upon him hoodlums, who have no other motive, in fact, than gratification of innate brutishness or satisfaction of some personal grievance.

In this NRA movement is a great patriotis enterprise, and there is no doubt that it is as such that President Roosevelt conceives it. There is no place in it for imitations of the rowdy elements among the Fascists of Italy and the Nazis of Germany. And one way to place and keep the movement on the level the President undoubtedly desires it to let no such incident as that in St. Louis pass without condemnation. Another way, it might be added, is to carry on the propaganda from headquarters in the terms and the tones of high-minded men and women, and not in those of mobsters and gangsters. Unfortunately, there has been too much use already of the parlance of racketeers. The word "chisler" has been used so frequently that it no longer appears in quotation marks and "putting on the heat" soon will be similarly dignified.

It is time to get our balance, in Washington and in local headquarters, and to stop thinking and talking about giving "a sock on the nose" to non-conformists. Else there will be more of such incidents as that reported from St. Louis. And the NRA movement does not need to be disgraced in order to be made successful.—Baltimore Sun.

It Sounds Familiar

Editors are chronic hoarders of press releases, clippings and letters. When one cleans out his desk—about once a year—he often has the feeling that history is being made a little too fast to keep up with it.

A year ago a group of Akron socialists brought to the editor a press release prepared by the party headquarters staff in Chicago. It dealt with the party platform as it was to be expounded by Norman Thomas at the Akron Armory on the night of September 8th.

Yesterday, in cleaning out a desk it came to light.

Here are some of the things Mr. Thomas promised:

That he would repeal unemployment.

That he would ask five billion dollars for direct relief of the unemployed.

That he would ask another five billions for financing a public works program.

That he would introduce a compulsory, six-hour day and five day week without reduction in wages.

That he would reorganize industry on a planned basis.

That he would push the principle of public ownership.

All of which has little value except to remind us of a wise-crack made by some unknown wit after listening to an impressive speech by a socialist. Asked what he thought of it he replied.

"It's all right, but when we are ready for socialism the Republicans and Democrats will give it to us.—Akron Times-Press.

According to General Johnson there is no thought of returning to the "fantastic economic conditions" of the times of Calvin Coolidge yet President Roosevelt is saying often that the goal in prices and buying power is that which prevailed in 1926.

News comes of a Western man, waiting in jail for sentence to be pronounced, who used the time in writing a poem of one thousand lines, thus forfeiting all claim for reduction of sentence because of good behavior.

It's all right to make fun of the good old mid-Victorian days, but at any rate the people then didn't have to rely on the government to do everything for them.

Currency inflation might help farm prices temporarily but would be apt in the long run to produce a financial headache worse than the original one. The way to increase farm prices soundly is to put more people to work so that they can buy and eat what the farmer produces.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw— and Some He Saw Not

Looking For Dynamite

Dr. C. C. Anderson, the Presbyterian preacher from Montgomery, came by my corner Tuesday. He stopped for a brief chat. A very interesting man is he; a big strong physique; a commanding personality; an intellectual giant. "I am up here looking for some kind of dynamite I can put under these Clanton Presbyterians to shake them up and get them to do something," he said. Rather a hopeless quest, I though, for a preacher who comes here only once in a while. We have some preachers who stay here and hunt for "dynamite" all the time, and so far have failed to find it.

Maybe It's A Debate

Do you reckon it is a debate we need to jolt us into church action? The one going on at the courthouse this week seems to have aroused quite a bit of interest. Brother Huffman, the Christian, and Brother Bowen, the Russellite, or Watchtower, or Rutherfordite (maybe he knows what he is—I don't think anybody else does) have been having a verbal "hair-pulling" on some phase of the subject of hell. I doubt if such arguments do anybody any good. I guess they do no harm either. Then if folks want to hear it, let 'em hear. Some of us may wait too late to become concerned about our church business and hell too.

Wagon Days Again

Remember the good old horse-and-wagon days when it took all day to drive to town and back—when folks had some sense and time to get acquainted with one another. Are those days returning? I know one business firm in Clanton that is fixed all right whichever way the cat jumps. Polk Brothers have just received a car load of Weber Wagons. You fellows who think it is better to return to the good old days can come right up now and get yourself set back a couple of decades in less time than it takes to tell it—get you a wagon. If you are one who wants to keep up the fast life, this same firm is all set for you too. Right this way to the other room, my friend, and here for you is a beautiful new Plymouth or Chrysler that will take you there as fast as the fastest and with all comfort. If you want to motorize your work, they have International Trucks.

Governor Miller and Beer

Governor Bully Meek Miller has poked his finger in the eye of our illicit beer sellers in Alabama. "They are just criminals like other law breakers," said the Governor, and he orders all sheriffs and enforcement officers to deal with them accordingly. Then with another poke, the chief executive hints "if you officers do not handle the beer sellers, I will call the state law squad back into being and have them to do it. What do you think of that from a governor whom folks were hoping would call a special session of the legislature a purpose to legalize the sale of beer? A poke in the eye, I call it. More bootlegging. More law breaking. More court doings. And there aint a man in Alabama with capacity to hold enough 3.2 to make him wobble.

First thing you know politics is going to break out somewhere in Chilton County.

Hill Foshee has already invited me to help him elect J. Lee Smith for Probate Judge next year.

"I want you to help us elect a Democrat Sheriff too," he said, but I don't know just who it will be.

I notice some Republicans seem to turn pale behind the ears when you mention political compaign to them.

No use to get scared, fellers. It's a coming. There aint no place to stand cept on your record.

Lucky will be the candidate who ain't got no record, I guess.

At least, he will be spared a lot of explaining.

It's a pity to see a good candidate have to use up all his time trying to explain his record.

Just to prove to you how transitory Americans are in their interests and emotions, does anybody remember anything about technocracy?

"You out of a job? I thought you were a fixture down at your place?" "I thought so, too. But I was doing two men's work and when they got the code, they hired two men to do it."

Italian engineers are planning to harness the volcanic energy of that country. It is said that the natural gasses coming from the nation's volcanoes are sufficient to run all the railway trains in Italy. After they get that job finished they might come over to the United States and try to harness that which emanates from Congress.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

"Remember that thou are an actor in a play, and such sort as the author chooses, whether long or short. If it be His good pleasure to assign thee the part of a beggar, a ruler or a simple citizen, thine it is to play it fitly, for thy business is to act the part assigned thee well.—Epictitus.

This is true. Don't bemoan the fact that you were not a ruler, instead play your part to perfection. Someone must take the part of a beggar or the play would be no good. Make the best of what fate bestowed on you, and you will receive your praise some day.

The school is indeed grateful to the Clanton Study Club and especially to two of its members, Mrs. J. P. Hayes and Mrs. Grady Heflin, for the volumes of fine books they have presented the school with. The writer speaks for the faculty and the student body when he says "Thank you, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Heflin and the Clanton Study Club." Let us show our appreciation of this rich gift by using them to the best of advantages.

We are indeed glad to know that Mrs. Warr is getting along just fine after a minor operation last week. Hope to see her among us again, and Junior, too.

A number of students, if not all of us, should give more mind to our posture. Some almost lie down in their seats in study hall and some stand as if the next minute is the last one. Brace up. Put a little military snap in your body. It is not only healthful, it helps one's appearance quite a bit.

The "rubber band" menace ended as abruptly as it began. Two weeks ago one was always a possible target for a nice hard "spit ball." But now not a sign of a miniature warfare is evident. Thanks to our teachers.

Who is the fair damsel who is taunting "Punchie" with unsigned notes? Some lonely maiden has him guessing and he would like to know her identity. (Probably he would give her a little consideration.)

Last week was an important week in the lives of many students. For we had our first month tests last week. Some students got a taste of what the subjects they were taking really were. Some learned their teachers and some of the teachers learned more about their pupils. If your grades were nothing to boast about this time, don't get discouraged, just fight that much harder. Stick out your jaw and determine to make a better one next time. Suppose George Washington had lost his first battle and had become discouraged.

The writer wishes that each student would tell him what articles in my column he likes the best. I want to please everybody. Also if any of you teachers have any suggestions, they would be more than appreciated. This goes for the out of school readers and former graduates, too.

The entire student body was saddened last Friday when it was announced that we were going to lose one of our best loved teachers, Mr. Horton Walker. Mr. Walker was also coach of our athletics, besides the instructor in several classes. Mr. Walker, who is a first lieutenant in the R. O. T. C. has gone to Fort McClellan, where he will assume his new duties. We deeply regret to lose him, but we know that he will be well liked at his new home. Every student learned to love and respect Coach Walker for his outstanding gentlemanly qualities. It is hoped that he will retain a pleasant memory of his years spent here in the like manner that the students of C. C. H. S. will hold a loving memory of him.

His position as a coach will be filled by Mr. Searcy, a present member of the faculty, who has had several years experience in playing on college teams and coaching high school elevens. Let's cooperate with him and keep our team on the upgrade that it is starting on this year.

The vacancy in the faculty will be taken by Mr. T. H. Vaughn of Birming. It seems that the students will also have a good opinion of him.

This week the pass to any home game goes to Miss Dorothy Waite, who submitted a winning yell.

More of our students should take part in the activities of the B. Y. P. U. and Epworth League. Let's remember this next Sunday and show our real spirit in young people's spiritual activities. We sometimes neglect our moral teachings when they are as, if not more, important to our lives in the future. Three hours a week devoted to our church work will mean many happy hours later in life.

The teachers went to school Monday of this week. I hope that they were good children.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious.

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will tell you a lot. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be "as regular as clockwork." Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child. BETTE DAVIS RISKED LIFE TO COMPLETE "PARACHUTE JUMPER"

Bette Davis, who plays the leading feminine role opposite Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Parachute Jumper," a Warner Bros. Picture, which opens at the Wadesonian Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, October 11 and 12, proved herself a blown-in-the-glass trouper by living up to that oldest of stage traditions that no matter what happens, the show must go on.

Bette was stricken with appendicitis during the production of the picture. She was suffering acutely, but she knew that if she stopped to go to the hospital, work would be held up for weeks, and in case the operation proved unsuccessful, everything would have to be done over again. On the other hand, she was informed by her physician that delay might endanger her life.

Bette would not go back on the old tradition. Scenes in which she appeared were rushed ahead of others so that she could finish as quickly as possible. A nurse or a doctor watched over her until her final sequence was shot. An ambulance was waiting, and Bette, with a sigh of relief, was rushed to the hospital, where the operation was peformed, and successfully.

"Parachute Jumper" is a comedy-romance, punctuated with thrilling air stunts, written by Rian James, New York columnist, who wrote the stories for the pictures, "Love Is A Racket" and "Crooner." It was adapted by John Francis Larkin.

Others in the cast include Leo Carrillo, Frank McHugh, Claire Dodd, Shelia Terry and Harold Huber. It was directed by Alfred E. Green, who also directed Fairbanks in "Union Depot" and "It's Tough to Be Famous."

Memorial Day For Rev. D. S. Martin Wednesday, Oct. 18 At Old Bethesda

By action of the Central Baptist Association, in recent session at Bethesda Church, in Coosa County, Wednesday, October 18, was set as Memorial Day for the late beloved Rev. Darius S. Martin, who was for many years Moderator and Clerk of the Associatiin, and otherwise intensely interested in and actively connected with the work of that great religious organization.

The resolutions committee on the Life, Work and Character of Rev. Martin, composed of Jahn A. Darden, A. P. Thomas, and R. C. Eason, made the following report to the Asociation, which was adopted and ordered promulgated by the body:

"Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom, called from the walks of men on the 14th day of April, 1933, Rev. Darius S. Martin, a Godly father, a good neighbor, an upright and patriotic citizen, a consecrated and beloved minister, the clerk of this Association for 35 years, and Moderator of this body at the time of his death and for many years prior thereto; and

"Whereas, his life and his life's work were spent within the bounds of this Association, enriching the lives of the thousands of people that came into contact with his upright life and untarnished character; and

"Whereas, his best efforts were made for the welfare of the Baptist churches of this Association and for all the people, regardless of creed; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by the Central Baptist Association in annual meeting assembled:

1. That in the passing of Brother Darius S. Martin this body has lost one of its most useful members, fair and eminent Moderator; the community and the State a useful and patriotic citizen; and the family a kindly, tender and loving father;

2. Though Brother Martin's counsel is sadly missed, his voice of praise, songs and exhortions are stilled, yet, he lives in the lives and hearts of thousands who came under his benevolent influence;

3. That at least one page in the 1933 Minutes be set aside and dedicated to the life and work of the deceased, and that suitable picture be printed in the 1933 Minutes;

4. That Wednesday, October 18, 1933, be and the same is hereby set aside for suitable services commemorating the life, character and works of Brother D. S. Martin; and that the Moderator, together with the Clerk of this body, in conjunction and cooperation with the relatives of the deceased, take such measures as necessary to consummate fitting memorial exercises; and that the commemoration services be held at old Bethesda Church where he was pastor for more than thirty years, and where the deceased is interred;

5. That the Elmore County Association, the East Liberty Association, and the Tallapoosa County Association be officially invited to participate in the memomial exercises herein provided for, and that the Moderator appoint a special messenger to each of these Associations to extend an invitation to them to be present;

6. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of this Association as a memorial for our deceased Moderator, and that a copy be furnished each of our county papers, and to the Alabama Journal, the Montgomery Advertiser, the Birmingham Age-Herald, the Birmingham News, the Birmingham Post, and the Alabama Baptist."

Pursuant to this resolution, full details of the program for the memorial services will be arranged immediately, and publication of the program will be made next week.

REV. OSMAR JACOBS TO LECTURE AT CHESTNUT CREEK SATURDAY

Rev. Osmar Jacobs, Syrian Missionary to Brazil, has accepted an appointment here for next Saturday night and will lecture on the "Holy Land."

The people of Cooper feel that they are fortunate in having Bro. Jacobs with them, and extend to the people of our neighboring churches an invitation to come and hear him.

He stated that he would wear the costume that is worn by his native people in his home lands, and give us some history of the Asyrian religion. We insist that you avail yourself of the opportunity to hear this man of holy lands.—W. W. Allen.

Two sailors retiring from the sea, purchased a small saloon in a country town. The place was painted inside and out, being closed for that purpose.

The villagers, after a few days, gathered outside the place and one of them knocked at the door. A window opened, and one of the former sailors inquired the reason for the gathering outside.

"We want to know when you are going to open up," was the reply.

"Open up," retorted the man at the window. "We bought this place for ourselves."

JAMES CAGNEY PLAYS LIVE PRESS AGENT IN "HARD TO HANDLE"

A story that combines quaint humor, rare satire, uproariously funny situations, snappy dialogue and delightful romance, was chosen by Warner Bros. as the starring vehicle in which James Cagney makes his return bow on the screen, after an absence of several months.

It is a take off on the flamboyant, pompous and over-confident publicity promotor, entitled " Hard To Handle," which is scheduled to be shown on the screen at the Wadesonian Theatre Friday, October 6. The story was written by Houston Branch, one of the pioneer press agents of the movies who should know what he is talking about. Mr. Branch is also a fromer newspaper man, and the first motion picture editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Wilson Mizner and Robert Lord, both former newspaper men, who have dabbled in publicity, enhanced the humor of the story with snappy dialogue and unique situations which should stir everyone's risibilities. Cagney, as the press agent, puts over every sort of promotion scheme from dance marathons, treasure hunts, cold cream and grapefruit campaigns to building up a one horse college into a tremendous institution.

Mary Brian has the leading feminine role as Jimmy's sweetheart, who jilts him when he is a success and marries him when he gets into triuble. Others in the cast include Allen Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly, Clarie Dodd, Gavin Grdon, Emma Dunn, Robert McWade, John Sheehan and Matt McHugh. The picture was directed by Mervyn LeRoy.

John Jackson Nelson, age 62 years, died last Friday night at a hospital in Tuscaloosa. The body was shipped by train to Maplesville Sunday, where it was taken in charge by Martin, and carried to Pine Flat for burial Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Rogers, of Marbury.

The Bank as a Rebuilder

IN place of a 3 per cent loss on an investment of $40,000 a large New York savings bank is now getting 6 per cent profit on an investment of $80,000, because it had the good business judgment to spend $40,000 in modernizing a group of 40-year-old tenement houses on the lower East Side which it was forced to take over on mortgage foreclosure, says an article in the American Bankers Association Journal. A year or two ago the owner, who had always kept up his mortgage payments, began to neglect the property, it became run down and the tenants began to leave.

The bank remodeled the buildings completely, putting in an oil-burning heating plant, incinerators and other modern changes, with the result the buildings are now entirely rented, and there is $14,000 a year coming in instead of several thousand going out. At that rate the improvements will pay for themselves in three years.

This same bank has done 15 other renovation jobs similar to this, and all have proved profitable. The bank has its own architects and is employing seven painters who are kept busy continuously.

The banks of Cache county have agreed to subscribe to an award fund, which will be presented to five winners as follows: first prize, $35.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $20.00; fourth prize, $12.50; fifth prize, $7.50.

Recognition for Good Farming

In addition to the cash prizes, every farmer customer enrolled, who scores sixty per cent or more, will be awarded a special certificate issued by the Clearing House Association and the Extension Service jointly in cooperation with the Agricultural Committee of the Utah Bankers Association.

The scoring will be done on the following basis:

Farm and home account records (accurate and complete) 50%
Success of year's operations as brought out in the summary of the year's business 25%
General appearance of farm and improvements and condition of livestock and poultry, (judging to be done during the summer months) 25%

The contest will end December 31, 1933. The judges will be the County Agent, the County Key Banker, a representative of the Clearing House Association, and two representatives selected by the Extension Division of the College.

FACTORY JOBS INCREASED $15,000 DURING AUGUST

Washington.—Marked improvement was shown in general conditions by reemployment of $15,000 persons in factories during the month of August, according to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. "First returns indicate there will be a greater number of workers added during September," he said, and predicted the September gain would exceed that of any month since March.

He warned, however, that the country still has "more than 11,000,000 jobless, and relief work this winter will be greater than ever before because the troubles of the unemployed are cumulative." According to Federation of Labor statistics, more than 2,800,000 have been returned to employment under the NRA. "In spite of that wonderful showing," said Green, "This is only the beginning of absorption of jobless people. The number of families on relief rolls in our principal cities in August was 85 to 90 per cent above August of last year."

APPROVAL GIVEN TO SCHOOL LOAN

Plan Is Favored by Those In Attendance at Mass Meeting

In responce to the call of three members of the county board of education an important mass meeting was held at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon. The purpose of the meeting was to determine the attitude of the people concerning the county's borrowing around $70,000 from the federal government for the purpose of repairing and erecting school buildings in various parts of the county. As a result of the meeting a vote of 78 favoring and 2 opposing was registered.

Superintendent Luther E. Little explained the projected pragram calling attention first of all to the crowded and unsuitable conditions that now prevail in the schools of the county. This proposed program is so immense that it would affect directly about 61 communities of the county.

Superintendent Little and three members of the County Board of Education held a conference with the State Advisory Board Tuesday, October 3, which is to pass upon all applications for federal loans. It is related that this board was very favorably impressed with Chilton's proposed program.

According to the primary figures of the County Board of Education, the proposed program would call for a loan of $66,200. This estimate was made on the basis of building programs in the county heretofore. It was cited at the meeting that the high wages which the government would require to be paid in the contract for the loan would raise the estimate by about 25 per cent. During the meeting it was mentioned that the program should also include an additional loan to equip the buildings since the funds of the county are inadequate in this respect.

Superintendent Little stated at the meeting that an effort was being made to reduce the high wage scale that the government is requiring to be paid with the loan money. If it is possible to reduce the wage scale then it will not be necessary to increase the above figures of the board on the amount of the loan to carry out the county's proposed program.

In his explanation Superintendent Little stated that the federal government would donate 30 per cent of the amount of the loan. The balance to be paid up at 4 per cent interest during the next 20 years. Using the estimate of $66,200 it was shown by Superintendent Little that the donation of the government would take care of the interest and leave $397.20 as an absolute gift.

A disadvantage to securing the loan that was mentioned at the meeting was the fact that the loan cut the length of school terms a few days each year until the loan could be paid off. It was stated that a $66,200 loan would cut the school terms from two and one-half to five days and that every addition to the amount of the loan would cut the school term in proportion.

Among those who spoke in favor of the loan were: Messrs. Charlie Cooper, Tom McKee and Howard Roper. Messrs. George Edwards and Sanford Clark expressed themselves as opposed to the loan.

Heavy Damage In Calera Fire

Calera, Ala., Oct. 7.—Fire of undetermined origin Saturday night destroyed the dry kiln, saw mill and planing mill of the Stephenson Lumber Company here. The blaze, starting in the dry kiln, swept through other units of the plant despite the presence of fire fighting equpiment from Columbiana and Montevallo. G. T. Murphy, superintendent, said he was unable to estimate the loss.

Work of fighting the fire was hampered by the fact that a reservoir, upon which Calera firemen depend for their water supply, was cut off by the blaze. After razing the buildings the flame swept through the stock of lumber and for a time threatened to spread to gasoline storage tanks across the railroad tracks. Firemen cut off spread of fire in this direction by running a string of box cars onto the siding and spraying them with water.

The plant was operated by J. M. Stephenson,. Birmingham.

REGISTRATION DRAWING NEAR

Registration will begin at the courthouse at Clanton on Monday, October 30. The Board of Registrars will hold meeting places at the various precincts throughout the county during the month of November and December. The exact date of each meeting in each precinct is announced elsewhere in this paper. The board of Registrars is composed of B. M. Killingsworth, A. D. Martin and O. O. Roper.

Mr. Arthur Johnson, Jr., of the University of Alabama spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Arthur Johnson.

ANOTHER BIG MONTGOMERY FIRE

A $200,000 fire Sunday morning left Silver's 5c, 10c and $1 Store at Dexter Avenue and Perry Street practically a total loss. The alarm of the fire was given about 4:15 Sunday morning and the fire continued about seven hours with about 60 firemen engaged in fighting the flames. Several adjoining buildings to the Silver's Store were damaged, principally by smoke and water. The cause of the fire was unknown, but it supposed that it had its start in the basement.

One fireman, Lieutenant J. B. Byrd, was injured during the fire. The loss of the Silver's building was covered by insurance, and it is related that the Silver company will reopen their store as soon as the building can be replaced.

FIRE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A sure sign of the approach of winter was had Sunday when fire broke out at the home of Mr. D. H. Wilder in West Clanton. The fire was put out by the Clanton Fire Squad before it caused much damage. It was related that the fire started from a stove flue. The only damage that the fire did was the burning of a small hole in the roof.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP BEATEN IN B'HAM ELECTION ON MONDAY

Plans for municipal operation of Birmingham's light facilities in connection with the development of Muscle Shoals were rejected Monday by voters of Birmingham, together with the three other public ownership proposals, for the water works system, the street car system and the steam heating plant.

The vote, which ranged slightly more than 16,000, was overwhelmingly against all four proposals. The closest contest was over municipal operation of the light plant and in that contest the 123 city boxes defeated the proposition by a margin of 2,773 votes.

Governor Miller Proclaims Parent-Teacher Week October 16 to 22

Whereas, the home and the school are inseparably joined in the building of our nation; and

Whereas, the people of Alabama recognize the valuable service now being given to our state by the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers; and

Whereas, the people realize the splendid achievements of this great organization in promoting child welfare in the home, the school, the church, and the community; and

Whereas, a state-wide observance of Parent-Teacher Week will strengthen the local units by increasing their membership, by providing better programs and a larger number of child welfare projects having to do with health, safety and character building; and

Whereas, rapidly changing times increase the need of the Parent-Teacher Association in every school; and

Whereas, each Association should be a unit in the state and National Congress of Parents and Teachers; and

Whereas, one-third of Alabama's population is today enrolled in our schools, thus placing on our public the great responsiblity of maintaining our public school system for full terms, and with teachers properly trained and adequately paid; and

Whereas, every good citizen is interested in bringing about a better understanding between home and school, and in solving the child welfare problems in this community;

Now, therefore, I, B. M. Miller, Governor of Alabama, do hereby set aside and proclaim October 16th to 22 inclusive to be Alabama Parent-Teacher week and urge that it be generally observed throughout our state in all our churches, schools and other public gatherings.

I further urge that each of us give careful attention to the objects, programs, and services of this great organization of mothers, fathers, teachers, and interested friends who today are giving so generously of their time to our boys and girls, the citizens of tomorrow; and

I further urge that each of us strive to safeguard the mental, moral, and physical welfare of these, our future citizens.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the Capitol, in the City of Montgomery, on this the 5th day of October, 1933.—B. M. Miller, Governor; Pete B. Jarman, Jr., Secretary of State.

Two Wrecks Near Rambler's Rest

There were two wrecks about three miles south of Clanton in which three cars were involved over the past week end. The first wreck occurred Saturday night about 9:30 when a Chevrolet coupe, driven by a fellow from Birmingham collided with a Buick sedan, driven by M. B. Cooper of Kalamazoo, Mich. Mr. Cooper was enroute to his home in Michigan from Orlando, Fla., at the time of the accident. No one was injured.

The Buick sedan turned completely over and was reported a total wreck. The damage to the Buick was covered by insurance. The Chevrolet escaped with a smashed wheel and a bent bumper.

Mr. Cooper left the Buick wreck at the place of the accident, and Monday purchased an Essex coach from Grover's Garage and continued his drive to Michigan.

The other wreck occurred Sunday afternoon about 1:30 a short distance beyond the first wreck, when a 1933 Chevrolet sedan, in which two men from Tuscaloosa were riding, turned over on its side. No one was injured. The only cause given for the wreck was the fact that the driver lost control of the machine. The right side of the body of the car was badly crushed, and the front wheels and driving gear were wrecked in the crash. Wrecker from Calloway Garage at Clanton brought the wreck to Clanton for repairs.

CHILTON VS AUTAUGA HERE NEXT FRIDAY

Don't forget the football game here next Friday between Chilton High and Autauga High. These are old football enemies, and a good game is assured. Chilton has a bunch of real fighters, with not a slacker among them. They can take a hard game and like it; and how these kids can deal misery to their opponents. The game will begin at 3:15 sharp. Be there and pull for the boys. They will be fighting hard, and a good crowd will help cheer them on to win. Remember—Friday afternoon, October 13, at 3:15, at the high school park.

Farmer Have Terracing Lessons

On Friday afternoon, October 6th, the evening school farmers in Pates Chapel community attended a terracing demonstration on the farm of Mr. Enoch Hayes. There were 18 farmers present.

The first thing taught was how to level the instrument and next how to test the instrument for accuracy. Of times the instrument is level but the telescope is not in line with the level bubble. This test which should always be made was demonstrated.

Terraces were laid off, some on a level and others with a variable grade. With four machines present the farmers really learned by doing.

Mr. Montgomery, vocational teacher at Jemison, was assisted ni holding the terrace demonstration by two Jemison F. F. A. boys, Frank Nelson and Ervin Beasley.

On Wednesday evening, October 4, Mr. C. E. Stapp, county agent, spoke to the evening school on "Planting Winter Legumes." He urged the planting of Austrian peas and hairy vetch and convincing data from work accomplished here in the county and experiment station records on the value of these legumes. He urged for higher yields of corn which could be obtained by growing these crops.

The evening school at Pates Chapel is growing in interest and in numbers. There are now enrolled thirty adult farmers.

Dr. Colley Will Preach Sunday

Dr. Ezell is away holding a meeting in Port Royal, Kentcuky this week. His pulpit next Sunday morning and night will be filled by Dr. J. O. Colley, Superintendent of our Baptist Orphanage at Troy, Ala. Dr. Colley is an unusually good speaker, and also has many friends in this county., We are expecting many to come out to hear him.

The revival will begin the 29th of October. Dr. W. P. Reeves, Tuskegee, formerly of Decatur and Jackson, Tenn., will do the preaching. We are fortunate in securing so cultured and consecrated a minister. It is not too soon to get ready for our revival.

It is hoped that many Baptist women are already plannnig to attend the district W. M. U. meeting which is to be held in Wetumpka October 26 and 27. Mrs. E. T. Clarke, Wetumpka, is hospitality chariman. All desiring homes for the night should send their names to her. Some excellent speakers have been secured and we are thinking this will be one of the best meetings of its kind ever held. Don't forget that the W. M. U. of Unity Association meets at Ebenezer, Stanton, October 18, beginning at ten o'clock. Dr. Merrill D. Moore, of Selma, is to bring the address of the day and many other attractions are added to the program.

P.T.A. Meeting To Be At Thorsby

The Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers is putting forth every effort to improve school conditions in this state. The know-your-school program for the regular parent-teacher meetings as outlined by a joint committee from the Alabama Education Association and the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers, dealing as it does with problems of vital concern to both parents and taechers, should challenge the interest of every member of both groups. The work we are doing with citizens councils throughout our state is attracting nationwide attention. The plans of work outlined for the standing committees are just the kind of help the local associations have needed for carrying on the activities sponsored by our organization for the welfare of childhood.

On Saturday, October 28, a district parent-teacher conference will be held at Thorsby. The program will be in the nature of a school of instruction based upon the material and activities mentioned above.

INDUSTRIAL RISE BROADENS AS NRA GETS FIRMER HOLD

Washington.—Broadening of industrial operations is more in evidence as adjustments to code conditions are being completed, according to Dunn & Bradstreet's latest report. Further substantial gains in factory employment and shift from part time to full time routines are reported. Lumber mills have greatly increased output. Volume of carpet and rug mills is far above last year. Cotton-mill production is nearly up to the August record. Mills are having difficulty supplying demand for fine-yarn standard cotton cloths. In the wide gray-goods division, current orders will permit operations for several months ahead. Textiles generally are double the prices of last April. Many mills are sold up on print cloths to the end of the year. Mills making men's wear woolens and worsteds are unwilling either to promise deliveries or quote prices.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Arthur Cooper of Deatsville, and A. B. Cooper of Mt. Creek; two daughters, Mrs. C. M. McKee of Mt. Creek, and Mrs. Charlie Barbour of Deatsville, and one brother, Bill Williams of Montgomery.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS

hTe extension department of the University of Alabama wishes to announce to the teachers of the county and any others who would be interested in taking extension work from the University, that Prof. S. J. Hocking will meet with those who are interested at the office of the County Superintendent of Education at 7:00 o'clock, Thursday evening, October 12.

E. J. Brand Gets Transfer To York

Mr. E. J. Brand has been transferred to York, Alabama, where he will be in charge of the business of Spigener Funeral Home at that place. Mr. Brand has been manager of the Spigener Funeral Home at Clanton since the business was established here more than two years ago. Succeeding Mr. Brand at Clanton will be Mr. W. A. Daniel of Birmingham.

Mr. Daniel has been in the undertaking business for the past 17 years. For the past ten years, he relates that he has been connected with the W. C. Vice Funeral Home of Woodlawn. During four years prior to his connection with the Vice Home, he worked with Johns Funeral Home in Birmingham.

Mr. Brand will move his family to York this week, and Mr. Daniel will bring his family here to live in the house occupied by Mr. Brand.

The many friends of Mr. Brand regret that he and his family are to leave here. Upon his departure Mr. Brand said:

"I wish to say to all our friends that we have enjoyed our period of residence in Clanton. While here we have had occasion to come into contact with a great many people of Clanton and Chilton county. They have been good to us, and we shall carry away many pleasant recollections of the good friends we have had while living and working here."

CHILTON HIGH DEFEATED SHELBY HIGH 13 TO 0

Chilton High's Tigers went to Columbiana last Friday afternoon and defeated Shelby High, 13 to 0. Chilton's first score came on a pass, Tiffin to Moore, who stepped the remaining few yards for the touchdown. The other score came as a result of a drive which started in mid-field. Tiffin, Jones, Foshee and Reynolds alternating in line plunges until Tiffin crossed the goal stripe.

In the line, Cooper and Moore stood out for Chilton, but the rest of the forward wall gave a good account of themselves. In the backfield, Tiffin handled the team with cool precision, and little Carl Jones got a whale of a game out of his system. In all but a very few occasions the whole Chilton team was clicking as one machine, and the boys seemed to have taken on new life during the past week.

Although Shelby presented a big hefty squad, they lacked the well- oiled team work of Chilton, and really threatened only once, by the air route, but Chilton stopped this cold when Tiffin intercepted a Shelby pass, and the trouble was over.

The Chilton-Shelby rivalry began in 1916, when Chilton had her first team. That year these schools played two games. Shelby won first, 55 to 0, but the following Friday it was a different story, when a stubborn Tiger defense held Shelby to a 7 to 6 score. Since then these teams have played almost every year, and have come to consider themselves traditional enemies. Every game is a "grudge" game, with all-time results about even.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Armstrong were among the visitors that attended the Kiwanis Convention in Birmingham.

CHURCHES JOIN IN PAY-UP WEEK

Methodists and Baptists Will Pay Up All Financial Obligations

The Baptist Church of Clanton has accepted the challenge of the Methodists, and has announced that it will join in on the Pay-Up Week that has already been declared by the latter. The date of the campaign will be the week from October 22 to 29.

A definite objective is therefore set by each of the churches to pay up all outstanding church obligations during this period. The major portion of these obligations is for back dues on salaries of the pastors.

An outline of the plan of the Methodists for Pay-Up Week was given in the papers last week. The Baptists and all other denominations in the city were invited to join in the plan and make it a city-wide church objective. Very promptly the Baptists, through the Board of Deacons, declared their willingness to get in the game.

The official Boards of these two churches now urge that each and every church member begin at once to arrange for participation in the pay-up program. It is pointed out that no member need wait until that week to pay up. It may be done right now, any time, if any member desires to do so. But it is urged that every member be prepared to do his or her bit surely not later than the end of the week, October 29.

Further details of a systematic approach to the questions may be arranged by the Stewards and Deacons as they find most appropriate. If any such further plans are found advisable, full information will be announced next week. Such should not be necessary, however. If the individual members of these churches would get upon their hearts the importance of paying their church obligations, and do only that part which each one is able to do, the job would be easy, and could be accomplished even before the pay-up week arrives.

CONCERNING ORGANIZED LABOR

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you let me have a few words in your paper to explain just a little bit concerning labor unions of the textile workers here in Clanton. We are not organizing a labor union here to be contrary to our employers.

Some seem to think we mean to fire our overseer or take a club and go onto our superintendent and drive him into doing things, but I say to everyone, we are proud of this mill. We are proud of our supervisory staff, and I want to say to all my coworkers, let's strive to work in peace and harmony with our supervisory staff. Let's try at all times to give them the best of satisfaction for the money they pay us.

Organized labor means we do our part, and just want others to do the same. Let's make this textile mill one of the best industries of its kind this side of the Mason and Dixon line. I hope everyone will at all times strive to do his or her part to make this true. — Thank you, I. L. Smith.

Loved ones need you!

—you dare not fail them

IS YOUR appetite poor? If you tire easily what does it mean? . . . and how can you correct it? Do you lack resistance to infectious diseases—pimples and boils . . . what does this indicate?

These are symptoms which often harass rundown, anemic persons. It is in these complaints that S.S.S. is very useful.

Modern medical research stresses the need of building up, frequently, the blood's red-cells and their hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) content. The reason of this is that hemo-glo-bin carries oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin.

Don't take chances. Infectious diseases strike without warning. Loved ones need you! You dare not fail them. Keep up your strength and resistance thru the blood.

S.S.S. is a proven Tonic . . . by experience for over 100 years . . . by modern medical research.

Take S.S.S. just before meals. No need to change your diet . . . S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. Begin a course of it today—then note your improvement. You will be happy with the beneficial results obtained. At all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical. © The S.S.S. Co.

School Gets More Books

Mr. Orman T. Headley of Wolfboro, New Hampshire, gave to the County Training School 125 additional books last week. This is the second set of books given the school through Mr. Ben Brown in honor of the memory of Mr. Orman T. Headley's father, who for many years lived in Chilton County. Just how much the school and community apprceiate these books can't possbily be expressed in words. We feel it our duty to so live in Chilton County, that even strangers, our praises might tell. Somehow we would like to be cherished here in memory, not as those whose skills were great; not as those who conquered fate; but as those who served some needs with some kindly and truly deeds. Long live the giver.

Dr. Hayes Gives Table

On September 4th Dr. Hayes made his first official visit to the county training school to see a baseball game. On the 2nd of October he made his second visit. This time he came to see if we could use a large twelve foot table for laboratory experimental purposes. This table was very much needed and came in to alleviate some of our limited facilities for performing experiments. We feel that it is our work and our good name that make it possible for us to reap such blessings as these. It is our effort to continue such work in our school and community. Thank you, Dr. Hayes. We not only appreciate this, but anything else that may be given in the future.

P.-T. A. Donates Money on Note

The local P.-T. A. donated in its meeting last Friday, ten dollars, to be paid on the long past due note at the Peoples Savings Bank. The P.-T. A. made plans to continue raising money for school purposes. If everyone would line up with the "New Deal" and "do his part", this debt would soon be paid, and nothing would stand in the way of the new building that is being planned.—Benj. Anderson.

"GIRL MISSING"

Marriage may be a lottery, but when it threatens to become a tragedy within twenty-four hours after the honeymoon has begun, as it does in "Girl Missing," the Warner Bros. production which shows at the Wadesonian Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, October 16 and 17, the lover of mystery tales can be certain of exciting entertainment before the finale is reached.

Palm Beach, the playground of wealth and beauty, and the hunting ground for opportunists of both sexes, is the locale of the story, and for the central figure, the authors, Carl Erikson and Don Mullaly employ a quick-witted chorus girl, whose nimble mind solves a murder mystery that is still baffling the police of the Florida winter resort.

To explain just how Kay Curtis and her pretty companion, June Dale, expose the plottings of a "marriage racketeer" and his titian-haired decoy in time to save the life of the unsuspecting bridegroom, would be taking the edge off the mystery.

Suffice it to say that the amateur detective wins the plaudits of the police for her astuteness, and the wedding bells play a second and a very different tune from the one they sounded in the early scenes of the picture.

A genuine all-star cast is entrusted with the telling of the story. It is headed by Ben Lyon, Glenda Farrell, Mary Brian and Peggy Shannon, who are ably supported by such players as Helen Ware, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Guy Kibbee, Pat Collins, Edward Ellis, Lyle Talbot, Louise Beavers and Harold Huber.

Robert Florey, directed the picture, and the authors, Carl Erikson and Don Mullaly also adapted it for the screen.

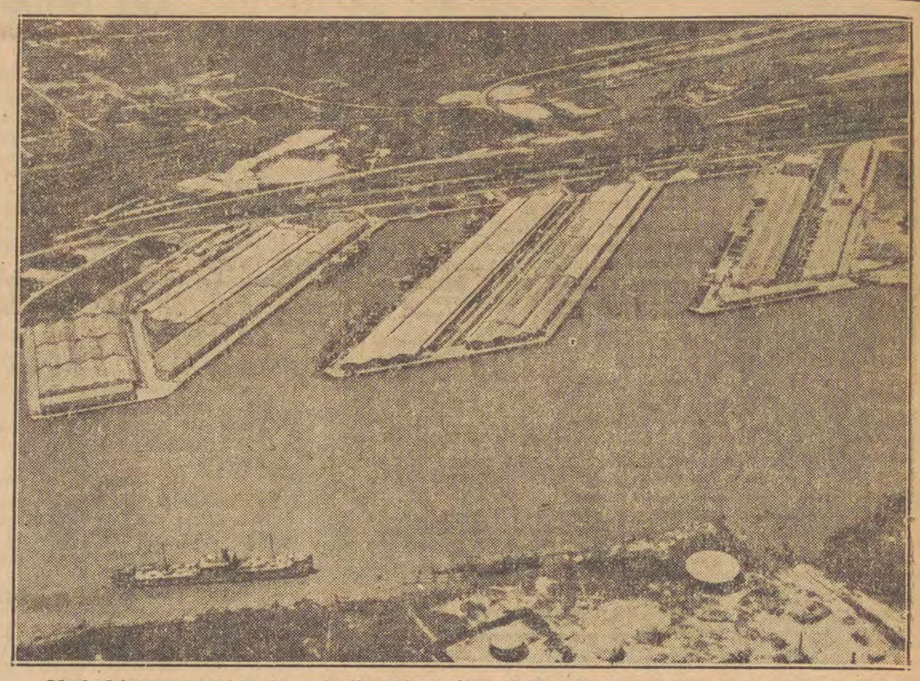
Recent Air View of Alabama State Docks



Marked improvement is shown in the net earnings of the State's Port Terminal system at Mobile. For the three months, June, July and August, 1933 the earnings were $72,431.59, over and above all costs for operation and maintenance. This amount will go a long way towards the payment of interest on the port bonds for that period. For the same three months in 1932 the terminals earned $45,884.75 above expenses. Primarily, the purpose of the Alabama State Docks is to reduce transportation costs for the people of Alabama. Across the river, on Blakeley Island, is shown an oil refinery which is owned and operated by Alabamians.

BANKERS PREPARE FARM FINANCE BOOK

Tells Bankers and Farmers What to Consider in Making Sound Loans

A book on "Making Farm Investments Safe" has been prepared by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, summarizing material published by it during the past ten years. It presents a compendium of scientific facts, practice and experience in farming, with timely and helpful suggestions to serve as a reference and guide in the daily routine of banking and farming. From it practical workers in these fields can obtain an idea as to what extent and in what manner farm loans should be limited by soil erosion, weeds, plant diseases, rodents and fire hazards, etc.

The book also indicates how much is added to the security of a farm loan by the farmer who keeps accounts and practices good business methods, as well as the extent to which loans are safeguarded by crop rotation, production of legumes, judicious use of commercial fertilizers, the use of quality seed and the providing of home grown feeds.

Another section sets forth the precautions that should be exercised by both the banker and farmer when negotiating loans to increase or improve dairy production, or beef, sheep, swine or poultry production, as well as what factors should be considered in the economic marketing of products and the way efficiency in production affects efficiency in marketing. Many other everyday details of farm life that have a practical financial significance are treated in the book. A particular important section deals with experience with farm leases and another with directed farm credit.

Thorsby Institute News

On October 7, the Helen Keller Literary Society gave an interesting program which everybody enjoyed. The meeting opened with C. B. Jean, president, in charge. The program was divided into two parts, the first of which was devoted to October and Columbus; the second part, to Halloween. We wish to thank the chorus girls for their appearance and tell them how much we enjoyed the beautiful Halloween Song which they sang.

After the program, a report on attendance was given by the secretary, Louise McGlawn. The Philomantics won the banner for having the best attendance.

Our enrollment has reached 86, and we are expecting another student soon.

A Tribute to Mr. Sereno E. Norton From Conway Thornburg, a Student at Thorsby Institute.

Although I well realize that fitting tribute has been paid to Mr. S. E. Norton by others more skilled at writing than I, yet I feel that I may add some small measure to the fine, true expressions of appreciation already made.

I had the privilege of working with Mr. Norton in connection with his newspaper reporting, and so I know a bit of his indomitable spirit. As many people here know, Mr. Norton could no longer see to get about himself, he got an assistant to do the reporting while he dictated the finished news. Since I could typewrite fairly well, I several times got up the news and typed it for him.

Mr. Norton was always glad to help the young people and was much interested in them, for he was still young in spirit. As I worked with him in making up his department, he gave me much valuable information on writing and news work. He was always quick to encourage one if he had done a correct piece of writing or made a good report. This is a fine thing for few people realize how easily all but very talented young people may be discouraged about writing, and especially for publication.

Another particular way in which he encouraged me was in my practicing on the church organ. I have read not a few complaints in music magazines about the lack of help some churches give to those wishing to practice on church organs. Mr. Norton had been instrumental in securing this organ and was in charge of it. I think he was really glad to have young people take an interest in the potential beauties of organ music.

Mr. Norton endeavored to keep up the Boy Scout Troop here, but through lack of cooperation, was forced to let it go. All of which makes one wish that we had more people who were young in spirit, but had experience with which to temper their actions. Yet it is often only through such closer associations that we young people learn to appreciate such wonderful characters as Mr. Norton.

I am sure that I express not only my own sentiments but those of numbers of the young people in this community when I say that we have lost one of our best friends. "May we be missed as sincerely, when our race, like his, is run."

THANK YOU!

I take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation to all who have ginned with me this season. To date my ginning is more than 10 per cent ahead of last season. This shows me that cotton farmers appreciate the service I am giving. Keeping my gins in good condition and running them at a moderate speed assures you of better grades and the staple to which you are entitled.

Again thanking one and all for the cooperation given me and asking a continuation of your patronage, I want you to know I appreciate same. To those whom I have not ginned for, I would appreciate at least a trial bale in order to show you the kind of sample you will get. How about bringing us one bale before the season ends? Satisfaction Guaranteed.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

ACTUAL COST OF LIVING ON ALABAMA FARMS IS FIGURED

Auburn, Ala., October 9.—What is the cost of living on a farm in Alabama? What portion of the materials used in farm home living and maintenance are produced on the farm?

Interesting facts which partly answer these questions are given in the report of a study made by the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Clubs under the leadership of Mrs. James D. Sanford, chairman, farm home living. The farm women were assisted in making the study by Miss Helen Kennedy, Miss Dorothy Dean and Miss Nell Pickens, specialists of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

In the study definite records were kept and reported by 81 farm families in 17 counties. The average size of the families was 4.5 persons. Expenditures totaled $966.73. Of the total $290.50 worth was furnished by the farm and $676.23 worth was purchased. Two-thirds of the food consumed by the 81 families was produced on the farm, the report showing the food purchased amounted to $109.09, while food produced on farm and used was worth $217.78, making a total of $326.87, or 34 per cent of total expenditures.

A very small portion of the total was used for clothing, only 8 per cent of the budget going for this purpose. Comment was made that in times of depression clothing expenses are curtailed more severely than expenses for food.

Seventeen per cent of the total went for operating expenses, which included fuel, light and power, telephone, water, ice and the like; 14 per cent went to savings, which included life insurance, payment on house, and investment in real estate, 11 per cent for housing, and 3.4 per cent for health.

MILK STOOL MUSINGS
By W. H. Eaton, Auburn

Don't wait for the cow to back up from the pasture to be milked—go after the cow.

Uncle Walt said: "The dairy cow's a thing of charm. She lifts the mortgage from the farm."

Thomas Edison said: "Milk is the only balanced ration—balanced by the Great Chemist who is far away."

A physician on ancient Greece said: "To take milk is pleasant; to drink it is easy; it is also pleasing to the eye on account of its whiteness."

BRIEF FARM TOPICS

The agricultural adjustment administration is seeking to bring parity prices to farmers. By parity prices is meant prices that would give farm products the same purchasing power they had in the pre-war period, 1909 to 1914.

Approximately 6,000,000 pounds of hairy fetch and Austrian winter pea seed are now being planted in Alabama. This amount is more than half of all these seed being planted in the country. Alabama farmers are converted to the program of soil building with winter legumes.

"For many years we have had a dollar with a fixed weight and a rubber value; what we need is a dollar with a rubber weight and a fixed value," said C. W. Ashcraft, executive vice-president of the Alabama Farm Federation. "If we had a dollar with a fixed value we would not ever so often be confronted with the problem of paying a debt with five cent cotton which was made with cotton at 20 cents."

NEW DEAL REQUIRES FARM ORGANIZATION

Auburn, Ala., October 9.—Farmers must build a "strong, clean, powerful and efficient farm organization" to take full advantage of the new deal in agriculture.

This is reported by Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Extension Service, who is advising county and home demonstration agents all over the state that "We will never have equality for agriculture as long as farmers are loosely organized."

The organization advocated by Dr. Duncan is not a business organization but an "educational and public affairs organization" designed to enable farmers to get full value of the new deal in agriculture and to improve and advance farming in economical, educational and social ways. "It should also cooperate with the United States Department of Agriculture and our Land-Grant Colleges in making effective a nationally planned program of agriculture," he said.

Dr. Duncan is also advocating a reduction in the cost of production, improving marketing facilities, standardizing farm products, revising the good old time virtues of 'making no debts unless absolutely necessary and making ample provision for paying obligations made, and the using of fundamental scientific facts of the Land-Grant college, the expermient station and the extension service.

By Clifford M. Manning

Score card judging is the most practical and accurate method of judging poultry yet developed. Each foul, by this method, is examined, and a certain number of points allowed for each section. The value of the various sections depends upon their relations to egg and meat production. Score card judging is of great value in teaching the merits and demerits of the different shape and color sections.

While the score card method of judging is best for amateurs, professional poultry judges use the so-called comparison method. Each bird is handled individually, but they are compared among themselves rather than judged to a certain standard. This is the method also used n horses and cattle.

There are five factors entering into the selection of laying hens, namely, (1) temperament, (2) head type, (3) body type, (4) changes in color and (5) the time of molt.

We shall consider, first, temperament in relation to egg production. The very good layer is industrious, always scratching. The poor layer is lazy, less nervous, and is on the roost much longer.

The head of a good layer is broad, of fine quality as compared with the narrow, course head of the poor producer. The eye of the good layer is bright and full.

The body of the good layer must be of good width and depth in order to give room for abundant digestion.

The skin of the laying hen is more soft and pliable than that of the poor producer, and there is less tendency to the accumulation of fat because the layer turns fat into eggs.

The pubic bones are more soft and pliable in the good layer. Their distance apart is a good indication as to whether a hen is laying. The pubic bones of the laying hen should be at least two, preferably three fingers apart.

When a hen starts laying, the yellow pigment in the beak, legs, tends to disappear, hence when a hen is laying, her beak, shanks, etc., tend to have a bleached appearance. This is not a true guide as some breeds of chickens lack the yellow pigment.

Lastly, the heavy layer is a late molter while the poor producer is early and requires a longer period. The poor layer sometimes starts molting as early as July or August.

Next week: "Breeding Practices and Records Relating to Poultrty."

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 10. — The full weight and influence of the new Southern Regional Council of the American Game Association, composed of 25 outstanding conservationists in nine states, has been placed behind the movement to convert the Tennessee Valley into a wild life paradise.

The project was the first undertaken by the new council which proposed to the Tennessee Valley Authority that a survey be made to determine the kind of program that should be set up consistent with forestry and other developments planned for the basin. The International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners recently added its support to the plan which has been taken under advisement by the Tennessee Authority.

The regional council is an experiment being tried by the American Game Association in the South, and if it works similar organizations will be created in other sections of the country. Its objective is to stimulate interest in conservation and preserve game and fish to meet the requirements of sportsmen in this section of the country.

The game association has been fortunate in gaining the services of high type men for the job.

Lesson for October 15

SAUL IN ANTIOCH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:19-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. Romans 1:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Friends Sharing With Others.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Earning a Name.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Sharing the Gospel With Other Races.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Racial Problems and Their Solution.

When God was about to launch the missionary enterprise among the Gentiles, he arranged for a new religious center. Antioch was admirably adapted for such a center. It was a great commercial center with communication between the east and west. The population was a mixed one. The upper classes were mainly Greeks and used the Greek language. The government officials were Romans and used the Latin tongue, while the masses were Syrians. Sprinkled among them were Jews who had come for commercial purposes. Travelers from all parts of the world were in evidence.

I. A Religious Awakening at Antioch (vv. 19-21).

1. The occasion (v. 19). The persecution at Jerusalem scattered the disciples abroad. This, God permitted in order to separate them from the home people at Jerusalem.

2. The preachers (v. 19). They were not officially appointed missionaries, but ordinary men and women. They were filled with the yearning desire for lost souls, and witnessed of the Lord Jesus in the power of the Holy Ghost. Wherever the disciples of the Lord really yearn after lost souls and witness of him in utter dependence upon the Holy Spirit, there will be conversions.

3. To whom they preached (vv. 19, 20).

a. Some went among Jews only with the gospel message. These had not yet come to see that the gospel purpose was wider than to include only Jews.

b. Some preached to the Grecians also. These were from Africa and Cyprus. They were of a more liberal spirit perhaps because they were removed from a Jewish center. The success of their preaching was so great that news of it reached the mother church at Jerusalem.

II. Barnabas Sent to Inspect the Work at Antioch (vv. 22-24).

1. The work done by Barnabas (v. 23). He gladly endorsed the work and earnestly exhorted them to continue steadfastly in the faith, clinging unto the Lord.

2. The character of Barnabas (v. 24). He was a good man. It is highly important in sending a man to follow up a spiritual work, that his character be good. He must not only be of unblemished character, but of broad sympathy—capable of entering into the full appreciation of things about him. He was also full of the Holy Spirit. Only a spirit-filled man can appreciate the workings of God.

III. Barnabas Brings Saul (vv. 25, 26).

The work grew to such an extent that help was needed. Barnabas had the good judgment to seek Saul for this important work. Saul was a more important man than Barnabas. It is the duty of Christian leaders to seek out men who are qualified for the Lord's work and bring them from their obscurity to the strategic places in the Lord's vineyard. There are many men in obscurity whose bringing forth requires a Barnabas.

IV. The Disciples First Called Christians at Antioch (v. 26).

They were not called Christians in derision as is so often asserted. It was in consequence of the teaching ministry of Saul and Barnabas that they were called Christians. In all Saul's teaching he showed the unique relation which the Christian sustains to Christ.

V. The Church at Antioch Sends Relief to Jerusalem (vv. 27-30).

The Holy Spirit through Agabus revealed that a great dearth should prevail throughout the world. This came to pass in the days of Claudius Caesar. Every man, according to his ability, determined to send relief to the brethren which dwelt in Judea. They made up money for the saints in Jerusalem and sent it by the hands of Barnabas and Saul. This act not only proved the genuineness of the work at Antioch, but it manifested the fact that the Jews and Gentiles are one in Christ and that therefore there should be no division among them. It was a case of Gentile Christians ministering to the Jews.

God Is Able

Jehovah, the loving God, distinctly promises to answer the prayers of his children. He that gave parents a love for their children, will he not listen to the cries of his own sons and daughters? He has wonders in store for them.

A Sunny Face

Wear a sunny face, it is your privilege. It has the quality of mercy; it is twice blessed. It blesses its possessor and all who come under its benign influence.

THEY CAN SING AT PROVIDENCE

The singers in the northern part of the county met at Providence, Beat 13, last Sunday afternoon and engaged in two hours of singing. Mr. Burl Martin acted as chairman, and there was a long list of directors. The class was large and arranged in jam up fashion; all parts were well filled and balanced. There were visitors present from all the adjoining communities and some from Shelby County, and there was two hours of as good singing as one scarcely hears in a rural community. Besides some ten or twelve directors using one and two songs each, a number of quartets and special numbers were sung. Prominent among these were some numbers sung by a little boy and a little girl. These children are certainly to be commended for their fine singing. They are making a start that can result in real singers when they grow up.

If you enjoy real singing, where they pick 'em up and make 'em ring, you will feel well repaid after a visit to Providence when that class meets again.

"He who loveth a book will never want a faithful friend, a wholesome counselor, a cheerful companion, or an effectual comforter."—Isaac Barrow.

This is quite true. Books are the ever burning lamps of accumulation hey speak to us, teach us, arouse us, terrify us, comfort us and open their hearts to us as brothers. The students of the Chilton County High School may now prove the truth of these statements. Through the efforts of our faculty and others we have now in our library the treasure chest in the island of education, a large number of new and refined books. These books have been purchased for instructive, entertaining and enlightening reading. They are of the finest subjects.

Let's take good care of these books so that those students that will follow our footsteps may enjoy this advantage that we have now. The library has been repaired in order to keep the books in good condition A new and more proficient library system will be installed in a few days.

Principal—You say when you finished college you had 87 degrees? Unbelievable.

Teacher (applying for position)—Yes, I had the classroom thermometer in my pocket.

Fighting with a spirit that was laudable the Chilton Tigers marked up their second victory of the year when they defeated the hard and stubborn Shelby High team 13 to 0 at Columbiana last Friday. And were there some pretty plays made by our boys, Joe Moore, Cecil Jones, Carl Jones, Sidney Reynolds, James Tiffin and our captain, Jesse Frank Foshee, not to mention the entire team played a splendid game, giving several tense moments with their spectacular plays. The Shelby High team put up a good fight but our team had what it takes to win a game. And tomorrow they will chalk up the third victory of the season when Prattville comes to play them. Come on, team, let's make this a great year for football at C.C.H.S.

Hats off to that band of loyal supporters who followed their team to the enemy's ground and rooted for them. Even though they will get a deduction in grades, that's spirit.

And folks, guess who was present at the game. None other than Mr. H T. Walker, our former coach and faculty member, who is on duty at Fort McClellan. He came all the way from Anniston to see this game. uOr hats off to him. We knew he wouldn't forget us.

Wouldn't it be a great thing if all the students could be present for at least one home game. I think it could be arranged. Let the entire student body in free and have the trucks wait for those students who live out of town. This could alse be helped by calling the game earlier. It would not hurt to lose one afternoon's recitation in order htat the entire student body could see a game. What does the faculty say? We students want it.

I wonder how the students would like to form a student government? Let's be thinking it over and be ready to vote on it in a few days.

A class pin from Chilton County High for the year 1925 was found the other day. If the owner will call by the office of the principal he may obtain it.

The writer wishes to apoligize for an error eccuring in last week's column. In an article about Lieut. T. H. Wlaker, it was mentioned that he is a first lieutenant in the Reserve Officer's Training Corps, but this is erroneous. Lieut. Walker is a first lieutenant in the Officer's Reserve Corps. The writer apoligizes for this error since there is quite a difference in the two.

The Sr. II World History class under Miss Smilie held a class debate last Thursday. The subject of the debate was, "Resolved, that the English were unjustified in taking the lands away from the Indians." The affirmative side was argued by Dixie Johnson and Walter Kelley Gillespie, and the negative side was supported by Dorothy Waite and Alice Petty. A number of good points were presented by both sides and the debate was both interesting and instructive. The judges Roberta Cochran, John Ezell and Dan Smith, awarded the decision to the affirmative side, the decision being based on their speech, number of points and presentation.

Debating is a fine and unexcelled art. It is very, very practical. Let's have more debates and learn to think and speak on our feet.

Girl's basketball practice starts on Monday of next week under the coaching of Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin. Let's put our support behind our girl's team and be able to boast of a winning team this year. I'm talking to the faculty as well as the students.

We regret to lose two of our football boys. Oscar Mims has ceased to report for practice due to the fact that he lives too far from school to be on hand regularly. He's a good enough player to warrant someone seeing that he is provided for a way home after each practice. And there is T. H. Walton, no one knows his reason for stopping or someone else's reason for having him to stop. What can it be? I don't think that the rumor that got out about him is true and justified. He's alright.

Just try to imagine Sara Lawrence without Gertiwyl Vinson, or vice versa; Helen Roberts without Dolly Bell Harris; Joe Moore without Ova Lee McCutcheon; Cecil Jones without his wisecracks; John Ezell with girl on his mind; "Punchie" Jones without his ladies; Elizabeth Gragg without her red hair; "Gabby" Tiffin not helping Grace with her geometry; the cemetery corner vacant at recess or dinner or even without "lovesick lads" Jesse Frank not playing football; Wilson with his hair uncombed; Joe Hall walking to school; and imagine a certain student keeping his nose out of other people's business; but maybe I asked for too much imagination on some things. Sorry.

Did publicity cause "Punchie's" secret admirer to cease her anonymous correspondence?

The actions of a certain group of students may cause the school to put restrictions on students attending out of town football games. Only a few may be guilty but in order to punish them the entire school will have to suffer. It is reported that these students left for a gome but for some reason did not reach their destination.

Calling a game at two o'clock and holding the school busses until after the game would not delay them over thirty or forty minutes. What are you going ot do with the Grammar school students? That's easy, let them into the game gratis also. The amount of money lost by this plan on one game would not amount to much.

What about acquainting the students with the faculty a little more. A little article on each teacher's life might be a good idea. May the writer be bestowed with this honor and pleasure

An Insurgent Problem

There have been a great many guesses, since the last election, of what was to become of the so-called progressive Republicans who supported President Roosevelt so valiently in the last campaign. Are they to remain progressive "Republicans" or to be incorporated in the Democratic party?

Since his administration commenced President Roosevelt has been handling them skillfully like the good politician he is. He has given them recognition in his cabinet even at the expense of some criticism from the right wing of his own party. His policies have been sufficiently progressive to keep statesmen like Senators Norris and LaFollette satisfied. But now the primaries and conventions preceding the congressional and state elections of 1934 are coming uncomfortably close and it won't be long until there will have to be a showdown. Some of the progressive statesmen who supported President Roosevelt will be up for re-election, and they will have to run either as Republicans or Democrats.

One of the supporters of the Democratic ticket in 1932, who may be embarassed in this respect, is no less a person than the Hon. Hiram Johnson of California. Senator Johnson was last elected in 1928 and had little difficulty, having the benefit of the Hoover landslide as well as his own popularity in California. But this means that he will be up for re-election again next year. The politicians in Washington are wondering just what he is going to do about it. There is one story to the effect that Senator Johnson when he declared for Roosevelt in 1932 had an understanding with the Democratic leaders in his home state that they would not oppose him when he came up in 1934. But evidence is now accumulating that the promise was given inadvisedly, to say the least. It is reported that some of the California Democratic leaders now want Hiram to go the whole route and run on the Democratic ticket for re-election next year. If he does he will of course forfeit what standing he has left as a Republican, and it is not to be forgotten that California is normally an overwhelmingly Republican state. But if he elects to run as a Republican, there are two dangers confronting him. He may be defeated in the primary by regular Republicans who still resent his desertion of the party last year. With respect to this danger much depends on whether or not Democrats are permitted to go into the Republican primary and vote for Johnson for the Republican nomination. The latest reports are to the effect that they will not so be permitted.

Then another danger is that even if Senator Johnson gets the Republican nomination he faces defeat in the final election if the Democrats make good their threat to run an out and out Democrat against him. Ordinarily this would be an empty threat because Johnson would win in spite of anything the Democrats offer against him. But if Johnson is nominated in the Republican primary and then the regular Republicans desert him in large numbers in the fall election, he might be defeated. So all in all, the situation will take a great deal of thinking over.

It is a good bet that most of the Progressive Republicans will not choose to "go the whole route" and become Democrats. Their principal strength and their source of publicity has been their spirit of independence. If they become out and out Democrats they will lose a great deal of prestige. The Democratic party will continue to be controlled Tammany and its allies, and the insurgents by the leaders of the South plus those of turned Democrats, would have to become good Democrats or outcassts. So it is not likely that many of them will choose to ride the donkey from start to finish.

Serious In Cotton Mills

The closing of Pocalet Mills following the closing of Monarch Mills brings home sharply that industry may run into squalls, notwithstanding pie times promised. Whether wages and hours of workers in the mills be eight dollars or twelve, fifty-five hours or forty, is not especially important when in a mill are neither wages or hours. Soon or late a mill must sell cloth if its wheels are to run, if it cannot sell cloth immediately, it must nevertheless have money, and if it can not get money it "shuts down." Perhaps the government can and will arrange to provide the mills with money, perhaps it is master of the ways of making cotton spinning pay. We hope so. If the companies cannot get the money needed, the government must get it for them, and if then the mills do not earn their expenses, you, to whom these remarks are addressed, will be the loser, you being a taxpayer. If American industries cannot run at a profit, can government run them at a profit? Mr. Howe, Miss Perkins and the rest missed their calling. Possibly they should have entered the cotton mill business. —Charleston News and Courier.

Cuba Can't Be Ignored

The geographical situation of Cuba makes it essential for the United States to take particular interest in its administration; the self-interest of the United States dictates that Cuba shall not be transformed into a base for attack on this country, that its sanitary administration shall not be allowed to lapse into ineffectiveness and that its other services shall be well maintained. The proximity of the island to this country and the fact that its principal product, sugar, competes with sugar raised in great quantities by colonies and dependencies of European nations, indicate Cuba's natural market. Close relations between Cuba and the United States are inevitable, and to pretend that they are not is to play with words.

It will be to the lasting disadvantage of Cuba and of the United States to ignore or deny the facts. There is a special relationship between the United States and Cuba which no attack on the form in which it is recognized can remove.—New York Sun.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Events are moving so rapidly at Washington nowadays, and throughout the country for that matter, that it is a little difficult to predict very far ahead. It is a fact, however, that from present indications, the inflationists, who have been conducting a terrific drive at the national capital, have temporarily "lost possession of the ball." The general belief among the political forecasters, at the time this is being written, is that there will be no currency inflation for the present at least. In fact, it is thought that the President has definitely turned his back on this kind of effort to raise prices and bring back prosperity, and most thinking people heaved a sigh of relief upon getting this information

It is generally conceded that the business revival which started early in the summer has not been carried out at the same pace during the recent weeks, and that the looked for fall revival had not materialized, up to the first of October at least. Everybody is hoping that it will come later. And a great many observers are of the opinion that the clarification of the nation's monetary policies will have a very desirable effect on business A great deal of the doubt and hesitation, they believe, is due to the fear of some radcial form of inflation.

One of the disappointments of the NRA program up to this time has been its failure to raise the price of the things the farmer has to sell in proportion to the things which he has to buy. This has caused a great deal of resentment in farm circles, according to reports coming from the rural districts, and has inspired in great measure the demand for outright currency inflation. While the codes have doubtless helped many of the big industries such as the textiles and the coal trade, the resultant rise in the price of finished goods has not been followed by a corresponding increase in purchasing power. The difference has been felt chiefly in the rural districts, but there are thousands of people in the cities and towns too who have been caught by rising prices without any croresponding rise in incomes.

One of the chief causes for such disappointment as there is may lie in the fact that many of the promoters of NRA promised too much in the first place. The act doubtless contains many admirable features, but some of its proponents advertised it as a curcall. Disappointment naturally follows when it does not live up to all advance notices, something which it couldn't have done under any circumstances.

It is more than possible, however that the adoption of a clear-cut monetary policy which relieves the fear of the people of currency inflation, may start the ball to rolling again. Certainly it is hard to get blanks or other instruments to furnish credit when they are uncertain what the financial policy of the government may be sixty days hence. So too, is it difficult for corporations to put out new bond issues when the future of the dollar is uncertain? Nobody wants to buy bonds under such circumstances, Then there is the question of taxation too. The public generally is coming to realize that the government never gets "something for nothing" any more than the individual does. And somebody will have to pay the cost sooner or later.

It will not, however, do to become pessimistic. There are indications that our monetary policy will be settled in the near future, and this may be followed by clearing skies and a spell of sunshiny weather again. The people of the United States are united in this war against the depression, and once united, they are hard to defeat.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Colonel Middleton

On last Sunday I had the pleasure of seeing Col. J. Osmond Middleton, who was here visiting relatives. Col. Middleton is Alabama representative of the Federal Farm Loan Organization, with offices in Montgomery, but being a Chilton County man for many years, his interest still centers here. Col. Middleton is well known over Chilton County and takes a keen interest in our county politics. He is, of course, a good Republican, always has been and always will be. In the past he has been a valuable man in helping to fight our political battles, using his keen, observing brain and oratorical ability in the best interests of his party. We all know him for the clean, intelligent, unselfish, and valuable man that he is, and his excellent work for the U. S. Government has built for him an enviable reputation outside our local home circles. While at home, when the opposition threatened, Mr. Middleton could always be found fighting tooth and nail for the Republican cause. One of the big shots in the Republican ranks has said of Mr. Middleton: "He is one of the most valuable men the Republican party ever had in Alabama." He is a great believer in unity, realizing that "in unity only there is strength." The Republican party has one of its biggest fights coming next year. The Democrats are cheered over the seeming "split" in our ranks, and the results of the last election buoyed their hopes. We need a man to help fight our political battles in the near future whom our people can recognize as a man of ability, a man who believes in party unity and will fight for it, and a man who can bring to our people a message that will stir them to this end. Such a man is J. Osmond Middleton, and I, for one, would be glad to see him take the stump for our Republican party here in Chilton in next year's campaign. We need him as we never needed a man of his ability before. Sum it up—a lifelong Republican, a clean, unselfish man of proved ability, an excellent speaker who is absolutely "sold" on unity (the great quality our party needs at this time.) We have a whale of a job to do and Mr. Middleton fills the bill. Tell me your ideas about it.

Buy Now!

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, head of the NRA, is setting off the fire works on a "Buy Now!" campaign, to get business on the go and get the old ball started to rolling. But right back at the General's "Buy Now!" we hear voices from all over the nation, answering the call with a question: "With what shall we buy?" It is true that this is the harvest season here in the Southland, when we have a little money, if ever, but it must be remembered that there are debts to be paid before there is any money to be spent, especially for farm people, who go to make up the greater part of the population of this country. Conceding that prices for farm produce are higher, the increase is more than offset by the already increased prices on the things we must buy. Does the NRA chief think that people are not buying just because they do not want to? When people have money they will buy. When they do not have it, they cannot buy. I do not like to be "agin" everything that comes along, but from over in my corner it appears that Mr. JoJhnson is advocating the impossible. It is useless to urge buying—human nature will take care of that, if Mr. Johnson and his force will get busy and devise some means whereby people may get the money with which to buy. America says: "Furnish us a means by which we may earn money, and we will do the buying."

Democratic Eggs

In the headlines of every newspaper I pick up I read something about the plans the Democratic chieftains are laying for better times. Laying plans—laying eggs—Democratic eggs, if you please. When we had Mr. Hoover in office lots of people said: "We need somebody in office who can lay some plan that will bring us out of all this trouble." All right, we have a bunch in now who have laid plans—plenty of them. Out of all these plan eggs, something ought to be hatching out pretty soon, or we will be forced to conclude that the old hens have quit their nests or that the eggs are rotten. If you care for comparisons, let's compare a bit. Just compare the price farmers are getting now against a year ago; compare the prices people are paying now for cloth, shoes, clothing, flour and hundreds of other articles against the prices we had to pay for these same goods a year ago. Is the increase in ratio? No! The price boost egg didn't hatch —if it did it was a half-chick. Statistics show that there are more people out of jobs than a year ago—the employment egg went bad. At every chance taxes are being boosted —the tax-cutting egg went sour. Take a look at the whole nest full of plan eggs the officials have laid—show me one that has hatched out into a big healthy chick of success, and I'll eat a Rhode Island rooster, raw, feathers, spurs and all. It's just a nestful of rotten eggs, so far.

Why I am A Republican

Every once in a while some button-head pipes up with a squeak which goes like this: "I don't see how a Southerner can vote a Republican ticket." I always ask him why he votes a Democratic ticket. Almost invariably the answer is: "Just because my daddy did, I suppose; just like all other folks, I vote like dad did." Then comes the question: "Why do you vote Republican?" All right, Ill tell you. Some years ago, when I came to voting age, Democrats believed in low tariff, and Republicans advocated high tariff to protect American farms and industry—I believed in protecting our own people first, and so I became a Republican on that score. Democrats wanted the immigration walls let down so every kind of wop in the world could come in and lower our standard of living and our wage scales—Republicans didn't believe in this and neither did I, and I found myself with the Republicans again. A close study of Democrats disclosed the fact that the only reason they could give for being such was the they hated "them damned Republican yankees" — knowing nothing of yankees except what I had read, I couldn't hold the same hate and prejudice for them, and from all I could gather they seemed to be getting along better than the usual run down here, so I saw nothing to keep me from being a Republican, and a Southern Republican, and still keep my self-respect. Then somebody told me the "nigger" gag—I knew I had no use for a negro except in a negro's place; too, I learned that conditions in the north were not one-tenth as black as pictured, and that our Democrats were only using it as an eye-wooler, so I let that out. A check-up showed me that every time the Demicrats have been in power—in county, state or nation—the Republicans had to come in and clean up house for them, so I decided we might as well keep Republicans in office and be rid of the house-cleaning. Every panic this country has experienced has come during Democratic administrations, except the present one, and the Democrats, themselves, will admit that it was an aftermath of conditions that prevailed during the last Democratic administration. And, too, right now, it looks like if we are ever to get out of this depression the Republicans will have to do it—at least I haven't heard anyone say anything about the wheels of recovery doing any spinning under power as yet. These are a few of the reasons I am a Republican, and not "because dad was." I prefer to make my own decisions in matters of this kind, and until somebody can show me a better reason than "them damned yankees" or the "nigger" gag, I'll keep right on being a Republican.

Alabama's Bad Boys

So much for the deep stuff. Now, let us take a look at the brighter side of life. I like nearly all kinds of sports and games, from fox-and-geese and checkers on up to football and baseball, and I like to keep a line on the stars of the major games, too. Too, every time I think of sports, I can't keep from thinking of the many boys that Alabama has produced who became among the best in their respective games. In the World's Series just closed Alabama had two sons, Heinie Manush and Luke Sewell. Southerners are usually regarded as being hot-headed, and Alabamians in particular. But along with this quality there also goes an extra fighting spirit that will not give up till the last whistle. Neither do our Southerners like to be trampled on, and when they feel that they have not had a square deal, they don't fail to let it be known. They fight for their rights, no matter what the odds. The late series produced a situation which illustrated this nicely. In one of the games, Manush was called out on a close play at first base. Manush didn't think so, and protested, even though he knew that the umpire could put him out of the game for so doing. He wasn't alone in his protest, either—about nine out of ten of the folks attending the game thought like he did, and boo-ed the ump when he had Manush removed from the game. They liked his fighting sipirt, and let it be known in no uncertain manner. All the time Manush was talking, too, about three or four Washington players had to sit on Luke Sewell to keep him from going out and taking his war club to battle with him. Oh, they're heck, these Southern boys, but we're proud of them for it just the same.—Man in the Moon.

Tariff And Trade

James A. Farrell, former head of the United States Steel Corporation, calls attention to a mistaken assumption often taken by low tariff advocates to the effect that higher tariffs in America always mean a shrinkage of our foregin trade.

Addressing the International Economic Conference at Colorado Springs recently Mr. Farrell mentioned the statements of some of our active free traders to the effect that our exports could be stimulated by the stimulation of our imports through a ten per cent horizontal reduction in tariffs.

Mr. Farrell said that these theorists evidently believe that there is some connection between our tariff and our decline in foreign trade during the past four years, and he added that they are mistaken. He went on to say that rust and fall of imports do correspond with tariff changes, but with variations of trade prosperity."

This is undoubtedly true. An examination of the economic history of the United States will show that we have had our greatest foreign trade in periods of prosperity, with declines in times of depression. Nor is it to be forgotten that we have been a protective tariff nation during most of our history, since the civil way period at least, and during that time have built up the great foreign trade which we have always possessed. If protective tariffs destroyed foreign trade this would not have been the case.

The fact is that half of our imports still come in duty free, and a great many of the imports we get subject to tariff are luxury goods not ordinarily produced in the United States. The greater home production of goods which we can produce ourselves, the more employment and the greater the demand for imports in the way of raw materials and luxury in goods.

It is not to be forgotten that one employed Amercian worker equals three employed Europeans, so far as consuming power is concerned, and is worth more than a dozen Asiatic coolies.

Sound Currency First

The administration is facing the task of putting capital and credit to work. And they don't really go to work until the currency is stabilized. There are many good reasons for such a stand. The insurance company protecting the investments of thousands of families will not put its funds into enterprises it is not sure of; it must have assurance.

The same is true of savings banks. They will not put money into mortgages unless there is a demand for housing and values are established on a sound foundation. The individual will not invest in an enterprise that has no sure basis upon which it can exist. That is why the growing tendency towards price fixing will not help. Nobody believes that price fixing will work. It is based on false premises. It is one reason why the NRA alone will not solve the problems involved. No one is sure that the new level of prices and purchasing power secured through its operation can be maintained. Many believe it can't.

A satisfactory level of prices must be decided upon and the currency of the nation stabilized upon that level, preferably with gold backing. It is not a coincidance that all economists generally agree upon the virtues of returning to the gold standard. A level must be found at which goods can be exchanged freely and it must be maintained by the gold standard. The nation and the world are accustomed to this arrangement, and capital and credit will not work satisfactorily until it is followed.

If the administration wants capital and credit to start things moving, it will have to establish a definite and sound monetary policy.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Kiwanis Convention

I have been a little out of touch with things on the corner this week, having spent Monday and Tuesday in Birmingham attending the Alabama District Convention of Kiwanis. It was highly gratifying that we enjoyed the best Kiwanis Convention in Alabama's history in point of attendance and every other way. In spite of Depression, Kiwanis in Alabama has gained in membership and accomplishments during 1933. The Clanton Club has gained 100 per cent in membership since January last. Those who attended the convention from the Clanton Club were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp, Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Page, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Powers, Billy Smith, Luther Little, Mr. and Mrs. John Hollis.

The Cotton Program

Concluding the Kiwanis Convention Tuesday the meeting was addressed by Mr. C. A. Cobb, who is Federal Director of the South's Cotton program under government supervision. Mr. Cobb addressed himself to this very vital subject in a manner that radiated confidence in his ability, foresight, and complete understanding of the big problem. I was pleased to hear Mr. Cobb stress particular the aim of the government to keep working and digging at the cotton problem with the purpose to ultimately eliminate the huge carry-over which has kept the market down for some years. To my mind, this is the proper approach to our cotton dilemma. The bovernment can not make the cotton business a govrenment operation for all time. Nobody wants such a thing to be permanent. But it will be salvation for cotton farmers if the government can solve the surplus problem and then again turn the cotton business back into its own with the law of supply and demand to function without the burdening handicap of a tremendous over- supply.

Martin Memorial Day

Mell Martin gives us for publication this week the program of D. S. Martin Memorial exercises to be held at old Ebenezer Church, near Equality, next Wednesday. Many people of Chilton County will be interested in this memorable occasion, and will want to attend. Rev. D. S. Martin was widely known in Chilton County. Both by his own interest and activity in Baptist Church work, and by the residence of two of his distinguished sons, Mell and John, in our county, has the life of Rev. Martin come to be a cherished personal memory in the lives of many of our folks. It was here last spring that the eventful life of this grand old patriarch peacefully ebbed away in a solemnity and reverence that was a glorious benediction for one of Alabama's most useful and most universally beloved sons.

The Church Pay-Up Week

The Methodists have made somewhat a challenge to the Baptists in the announcement of Pay-Up Week for October 22 to 29. The Baptists have taken this challenge, and have announced to the Methodists "We are ready to join you in wiping our slate clean of financial obligations." So the race is on. You will hear more about it as the days come. Let us get ready to do our part. If each church member will do that, it will be easy. We people find time and money to do most everything else we want to do. Why, then, should we neglect our church obligations? We should not neglect them, and we know we should not. There is no argument to that. Further, we know we have been doing it, and we are ashamed to acknowledge it.

Saturday Was A Big Day

Last Saturday was perhaps the biggest business day Clanton has seen in a long time. The town was literally packed and jammed with folks and they were trading "with a vengeance." This again proved that folks are anxious to spend money for the things they need, if only they can get some money to spend.

Mr. Wallace's Troubles

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is finding that the direction of the farm activities of the government is not altogether a journey down a path of thornless roses. In fact, of late, since the farm recovery program has failed to lift agriculture out of the depression, and Mr. Farmer has found that the price of the things he buys under the Blue Eagle is going up as fast if not faster than the things he sells, Mr. Wallace has found his path beset with many difficulties.

There have come demands for the elimination of the processing tax and for inflation enough to bring cotton up to twenty cents a pound and wheat to a dollar and a half a bushel. Mr. Wallace, no doubt, sees the fallacy of the arguments that the adoption of currency inflation would help the farmer. But it is a little difficult to explain this to the agriculturist while he is in an angry mood.

For example, Mr. Wallace in a recent speech at Chicago outlined his views on the question of agricultural recovery. He declared that if the farm prices are restored to the 1926 level farmers will have to cut down production in order to hold it there. But this is not what the professional farm politicians ask. They demand a restoration of the prosperity price level with bumper crops to go along with it. Mr. Wallace doesn't know how this can be done. Neither do they. Their duty is not to say how a thing should be done but what ought to be done.

Mr. Wallace was unskilled enough in political lore to admit that the present government plans for agriculture would not make the farmer rich over night. "You will not make much money now, perhaps," he is quoted as saying. "But your children and grandchildren will get the benefits if this effort succeeds."

Small wonder then that a farm group in Mr. Wallace's own state immediately passed a resolution demanding that he resign from the cebinet. If Mr. Wallace had consulted a skilled farm politician, he would never have admitted that his farm program would not work immediately at a 100 per cent clip. He would have declared that the processing tax, and the other phases of the farm recovery program would make agriculture prosperous over night and that every farmer would awaken with a pocketful of money on day after tomorrow morning. Of course the prediction wouldn't prove true, but that wouldn't matter to a professional farm politician. We would have been out of town before day after tomorrow anyhow, and busy promising something to somebody else.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"Let us not be weary in well doing for in due season we shal. reap if we faint not." That is what the Bible says.

People faint at the most inopportune time. They always faint when they are needed. The house is burning and we have to let the house burn and turn the hose on them. Somebody is bleeding to death, and we have to let him bleed and give the fainter the ice.

I believe in a real God. Men talk of a first great cause. That is all right. There was a first great cause, but that is getting God a long way off. I want an everyday, present, real God. Elijah had a real God. He believed in a God who would answer prayer. When Elijah's lawn needed watering and he couldn't reach the hydrant, he asked God to turn it on for him. Then when the grass was wet, he asked God to turn off the hydrant. Elijah had a real God.

God met Moses and said, "Moses, I want you to go down to Egypt and deliver your brethren from bondage." Moses replied, "I can't speak." God said, "That is all right. I will send Aaron along to talk for you."

Moses told God he didn't have any ability. God isn't looking for big men. He is looking for surrendered men. God can supply the ability if we supply the surrendered life.

"What is that in your hand, Moses?" God asked the question. "This is a rod,—just an ordinary shepherd's crook," Moses replied. "Give it to me," said God. All I want is just what you have." Moses gave the rod to God. God performed a miracle and turned it into a serpent and made it a rod of power.

It took the North four years to free the slaves in the South. It took a bloody war. It took Sherman's march to the sea. It took thousands of graves dotting hillsides. It took widowed women and orphaned children. It took the trying days of reconstruction.

Moses went down to Egypt to free the Egyptian slaves. He had no army. He had no cabinet. All he had was a shepherd's crook which God had touched to power. He went to the palace, took the rod and beat Pharaoh into submission. He lifted the rod above the river and the river turned to blood. He held it above the land and millions of frogs crowded the earth. He turned it toward the sky and armies of locusts began to gather. Moses led the Hebrew slaves down to the sea. He lifted the rod of God and the waves stepped to one side and stood at attention until the Hebrew army could pass. God hasn't gone out of business. We have the same God that Moses had. We just don't use Him like Moses used Him.

VERMONT JR. HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On October 3rd the Vermont Jr. High school opened for the 1933-34 term. A large number of parents and friends were out for the opening service. Revs. Jones and Lowery from Thorsby were present, both making a highly encouraging and inspirational talk to those entering school. We are deeply grateful for their presence and cordially invite them to visit us again.

One hundred new chair desks were installed in the building on Monday, before the school opening on Tuesday.

Quite a large number of boys and girls are being detained from enrolling due to an epidemic of sore eyes and whooping cought. We hope care and precaution will soon bring them back to normalacy, where they may enroll and not fall too far behind in their studies. Those entering school are all glad and happy of the opportunity of attending school in the newest and one of the most beautiful buildings in the county.

The large boys are busy cleaning off the grounds for the basket ball court. We are trying to get the goals arranged and the ball ordered this week so the team can get organized and be playing in earnest the latter part of next week. Prospects bid fair for a good team. Even though the boys are small and new at the game, they seem keenly anxious to learn and willing to build from the ground up.

Plans are now in order for staging a good lively play about the first or middle of November. Keep a close watch for further announcements. The proceeds from the entertainment will be used for adding new equipment to the school.

The entire faculty attended Sunday school and church services at Sardis on last Sunday.

We plan and hope to have "Uncle Bud and His Boll Weevils," popular and widely known radio entertainers from Birmingham, to stage a program at our school early this fall. Definite announcement will be forthcoming soon.

Announcement will be made in next week's paper about the initial meeting of our P.-T. A.

Miss Dorothy Manning, our primary teacher, visited her parents last Sunday afternoon.

FINE POTATO

Mr. William E. Patterson of Beat 8 near Stanton, was in Clanton Saturday. He brought The Union-Banner a fine sweet potato that weighs five and a half pounds.

THIS AND THAT

By W. J. Baldwin
Montgomery, Ala.

Paige Isaac Walton!

Montgomery had as her guest this week the only known honest fisherman. General James B. Stanley, editor of the Greenville Advocate since 1865 and incidentally the dean of all American newspaper publishers, devotes a portion of his spare time—when he has any—chasing the elusive finny tribe. He's honest, because he never counts those that fall back. He has never been known to return home from a fishing trip with tales about the big ones falling off the hook. The genial scripe declared, when asked for an explanation, that none get back. "When I hook 'em I land 'em," is the way he puts it. Honestly, that's what he said.

Appreciation

Although the rumor has been checked sufficiently to verify the facts, it was reliably reported here that at the exact moment the pecan growers called their convention to order in the Gay-Teague Hotel, all of the squirrels in Oak Park stood at rapt attention for a period of one minute.

"The Barefoot Boy"

Attorney-General Tom Knight, who received a punctuated foot in an accidental discharge of a gun in the Tuscaloosa courthouse, is going about his business as usual, except that he has to use a pair of crutches and cannot wear even a sock on the injured propeller. It was suggested that, as a matter of vindication he have a photo made of the barefoot and send it to Miss Perkins in Washington as a piece of evidence that people in the South don't wear shoes. An ambitious newspaper reporter in Atlanta, seeking visible evidence with which to uphold Miss Perkins's contention, commandeered the staff photographer and went out in quest of the evidence. After a full day of fruitless toil, and while slowly plodding his weary way back to his office, a barefoot tramp came in view. The picture was duly made and the reporter's face displayed the inward feeling that dwelt in his heart.

"What is your name?," asked the reporter, as he pulled out his note pad.

"Simon Ledbetter," replied the Knight of the Road.

"Where from?" queried the reporter as he gleefully jotted down the facts for his paper and Miss Perkins.

"New York," came the quick reply.

Five-Cent Schooners

D. E. Manasco of Birmingham, sponsor of the Alabama Economy League and the power behind the Beer for Revenue League, blew into the Gay-Teague a few nights ago to get the low-down on the political situation. In unmistakable terms, he let it be known that if the State of Alabama does not legalize the sale of beer between now and next May, he will be compelled to offer himself as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. "My sole platform," he declared, "will be legal beer at five cents a glass." A group of newspaper reporters sitting near by smacked their lips and in audible unison proclaimed, "Amen."

Nutty

President-elect Fullilove, of Shreveport was voted the "World's Biggest Nut" at the recent convention of pecan growers. Someone ventured the remark that any man who is "full o' love" is a big nut. The fellow who made the remark refused to disclose his name, but it was learned later that he had been married four times.

Business vs. Politics

"A practical business man is needed to put Alabama on her feet." This remark was made to the writer by Benjamin Russell, head of everything that's worth while in Alexander City—and Alex City Pardon the abbreviation, Mr. Russell) has a lot of wirthwhile things. "Why don't you run for governor?", retorted the interviewer, knowing that Mr. Russell is about the busiest practical business man in Alabama. "Because," replied the business man, "the farmers of Alabama will listen to the politician about politics and not to a man who knows nothing about politics." The writer scratched his head, bid Mr. Russell good-bye and departed. Mr. Russell probably does not know much about politics, but he knows his Alabama.

The Grand Parade

It was interesting to see the snakes in a recent circus parade in Montgomery stand up in their cages and make low bows as they passed certain business establishments on Commerce Street.

NRA ADOPTS A CLOSER CHECK ON RETAIL CODE

Washington.—An entirely new system of checks to reflect weekly fluctations of retail trade has been announced. The new index will be based on groceries, variety goods, general merchandise, and automobile sales in small towns. Other classes of goods will be added as the section develops. Primary purpose is to trace the movement of goods in consumpton channels as a quick check on the NRA program.

However, the system will be maintained as a permanent factor in the federal government's statistical service. It was approved by the president's central statistical board appointed two months ago. At present the only governmental index available on retail trade are the federal reserve board's monthly reports on big city department-store sales. Reports will be published within 10 days after the end of each month.

NRA code hearings disclosed that 50 per cent of America's 586 radio broadcasting stations do a total business of $3,000 a month or less.

Mrs. W. Z. Hodges, William Hodges, Mrs. Irene Rasberry and Miss Eloise Rasberry have returned from Birmingham after a delightful week end spent there with relatives.

THIRD OF A SERIES OF ADVERTISEMENTS EXPLAINING THE EFFECT OF OUR NEW RATES

ELECTRIC COOKING for 3⅓¢ a Meal

A CONVERSATION between MRS. SMITH (whose family of five is typical of some 40,000 families whose use of our service has been averaging from 6 to 30 kilowatt hours per month) and our REPRESENTATIVE who is explaining to her the effect of our new low rates on her use of our service.

- REPRESENTATIVE: "Good morning, Mrs. Smith. Have you heard about our new low rates on electricity for home use?"
- MRS. SMITH: "Yes, I have. I understand our monthly bill will be smaller in the future."
- REPRESENTATIVE: "Yes, if you continue to use the same amount of electricity. How much has your bill been averaging?"
- MRS. SMITH: "About $2.25."
- REPRESENTATIVE: "Then if you continue using the same amount of electricity, your future bills should average about $1.80. That's a saving of 45 cents a month or roughly 20 per cent. And you get two more kilowatt hours of service per month absolutely free!"
- MRS. SMITH: "I'm certainly glad to hear it. All my other bills are going up these days. It's comforting to learn that at least one item of household expense is coming down!"
- REPRESENTATIVE: "We appreciate your attitude, Mrs. Smith. You'll be even more pleased to learn that you can operate an Electric Range for surprisingly little under the new low rates. Although I can estimate only approximately how much it would cost, I believe you could add an Electric Range to the appliances you are now using for $3.11 a month more than what you've been paying. This additional electricity for cooking would cost you only 2c a kilowatt hour, or about 3 1/3c a meal!"
- MRS. SMITH: "An electric range would be a godsend to me, but I'm afraid we haven't the money to buy one right now."
- REPRESENTATIVE: "Lots of Alabama families are in the same fix, Mrs. Smith. That's why our company arranged a Rental Plan whereby you can rent an Electric Range. The rental for the first year is only $2 a month and then decreases annually. That is all you contract to pay. By using this plan you can begin enjoying low-cost electric cooking right away, without having to invest in a range!"
- MRS. SMITH: "My, but I'm glad to know that! I do believe we could afford electric cooking at that low price. I'll speak to Mr. Smith about it this very night."
- REPRESENTATIVE: "That's fine, Mrs. Smith. The sooner you get the range, the sooner you get the benefits of the new low cost electricity. With your permission I'll call again tomorrow to answer any further questions you may wish to ask, and bring the Rental Plant contract for you to sign. Good day, Ma'am."

MORE than half the customers of this company are in Mrs. Smith's class. Our NEW LOW RATES enable this large group of customers who have been using lighting and "small" appliances to add the "large" appliances like the Electric Range, for surprisingly little additional expense. If you are in this class, ACT NOW. We have only 500 ranges for rent, and they're going fast! Come to our office, or telephone and we'll send our Representative to your home immediately!

ALABAMA POWER CO.

Our advertisement in the next issue of this newspaper will explain how the new rates affect our customers who have been using 100 kilowatt hours of electricity per month. Watch for it!

A Fair Question

Clanton Girl Wed At Tuscaloosa

Miss Delene Williams, daughter of Mr. T. L. Williams, of Clanton, was married last Saturday night in Tuscaloosa to Mr. Grover L. Williams of Birmingham.

The ceremony was solemnized at 9 p.m. by the bride's uncle, the Rev. H. G. Williams at his home in Tuscaloosa. The ring ceremony was used.

The living room of the Williams home was beautifully decorated with candles, ferns, rose buds and lilies of the valley for the nuptial ceremony.

After the lighting of the candles by Miss Elizabeth Williams, youngest sister of the bride, Miss Robbie Lee Douthit of Birmingham sang a solo with Miss Mary Burl Reedy, also of Birmingham, at the piano.

The bride wore a gown of ashes of rose with silver slippers to match, and carried a large bridal bouquet of rose buds. Miss Gladys Williams, of Clanton, the bridesmaid, and the only attendant of the bride, wore a bluenett gown with pink accessories, and carried a large bouquet of pink rose buds. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dewey Williams, and the best man was K. Hill Jones of Montgomery.

After the wedding a reception was given in which Misses Tera Dell Williams and Jennie Williams, of Birmingham, presided over the punch bowl, and Mrs. J. D. Williams of Tuscaloosa, presided over the bride's book.

The newly weds left Saturday night for Birmingham where they expect to make their home. Mr. Williams is connected with the Standard Oil Company in Birmingham.

Ten Cents Loans For Cotton Now

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 10. — Advances of 10 cents per pound on cotton to enable growers to hold it for a fairer exchange value are to be made available through the cotton cooperatives, according to announcement by J. A. Beaty, General Manager, of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

Producers interested in obtaining the loans should confer with their county farm bureau, an interior classer of the Association, or should mail their warehouse receipts direct to the Montgomery office of the Association.

"The plan calls for loans of 10 cents per pound on cotton classing low middling or better in grade with staple seven-eighths inch or longer; and eight cents for similar grades with staple shorter than seven-eighth inch," Mr. Beaty said. "The cotton must be stored in warehouses acceptable to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and freight and other costs of making delivery to the warehouse will be borne by the producers."

Those receiving loans will give a note but will be under no liability if the cotton is eventually sold for an amount less than the loan.

Producers who receive the loans will be required to agree to cooperate in the 1934 cotton control program fhich calls for a reduction in acreage of not to exceed forty per cent of the five-year 1928-32 average. For cutting their acreage farmers are to receive rentals of from $3 to $11 per acre depending on the productivity of the land.

Mr. Julian P. Evans is spending several days in Birmingham this week.

Mrs. O. O. Latham has returned to her home from a visit to her children in Chicago, Illinois.

W. C. Erwin of Calera was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

George C. Shaw Died At Jemison

Mr. George C. Shaw, age 73 years, died at his home in Jemison Saturday afternoon, after a confining illness of about two weeks.

Funeral services for the deceased were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 from the Baptist church at Jemison with the Rev. B. Lawrence in charge. Burial followed at Pine Hill cemetery, south of Jemison, with Jeter of Montevallo in charge.

The deceased is survived by his widow, four sons, Henry, of Jemison, and Euell, Clarence and Claude, all of Ensley, and three brothers, S. P. Shaw and Charlie Shaw, both of Jemison and W. H. Shaw, former Chilton County Commissioner, of Birmingham.

The deceased was of a very prominent family. He came to this county from Georgia about 47 years ago, and has lived at Jemison ever since with the exception of a few years that he made his home in Birmingham.

Euell Shaw, of Ensley, a son of the deceased, has achieved eminence in the municipal affairs of the city of Ensley, having been for the past several years an Alderman of that city.

An interesting story in the history of this county is in connection with the Shaw family. Judge Reynolds relates that the father of the deceased, also George Shaw, was the original terrace builder of this county. The judge relates that he remembers seeing the first terrace in Chilton County at the Shaw place around 40 years ago.

COURTS TO CONVENE SOON

The jury for the July term, Civil docket of the Circuit Court of Chilton County will convene on October 30, and the jury for the criminal court will convene on November 6. There are about 55 cases listed for the Civil Docket and 174 cases for the criminal docket. A list of the cases to be brought before the court in the two dockets are found elsewhere in this paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thompson of Selma were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lonz Parrish.

Pay Up and Stay Paid Up Church Slogan

METHODISTS AND BAPTISTS IN JOINT CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

Objective Is To Pay Off All Arrears In Current Expense Budget

The Methodist and Baptist churches of Clanton will start into their Pay-Up Campaigns on next Sunday determined to put all their debts behind them in a week's time. Not only will they advocate that church members pay up what they owe, but also they will urge that everyone stay paid up in the future.

"We ought not to have to put on these high-pressure pay-up drives every year," said a member of the Methodist Board of Stewards. "We keep our business obligations paid up and we can keep our church obligations paid up if we would only do it."

In preparation for the drive to be made next week the Methodist Stewards have sent out a letter to their membership, which says:

"At a recent meeting of the Board of Stewards we decided to make October 22 to 29 Pay-Up Week.

"Our church pledged itself to pay our pastor $1,500, and $300 for general conference benevolences. Our budget ran only about $2,600 for the year. We are very anxious for these causes to be paid. If each member will only pay what he can, after much prayer, and with a sacrificial spirit, we feel like we can pay out.

"The Board is of the opinion if we can't support a preacher at this salary, we shall have to go back to a half station with some other charge. Are you willing for your church, with its present standing, to make such a backward step? The NRA is stepping everything else up. Why let our church be last?

"Bring or send your offering to John Armstrong, treasurer, or to any member of the Board of Stewards."

Apparently that puts the case square up to the Methodist membership. Facing a two-way proposition of pay-up or cut down to half-time, the response of the church next week will decide the course.

With a similar call to arms the Baptist Deacons have sent out the following letter to their membership:

"By the end of October we will owe about $1,100 on our running expenses. This should not be so. Even after our pastor gave back to the church about $1,400 of his salary last year, we had to bring over into this year part of our debt.

"Our pastor has been very patient with us and has borrowed money for his running expenses. The time has now come for us to do our part in paying our debts."

That is the Baptist status. The pastor gave back to the church last year $1,400 of his salary, and even then the church did not pay him up.

Do these facts look like the Clanton churches deserve their reputed places as the leaders among the churches of the county?

The Deacons and Stewards hope that the members of the churches will volunteer to pay up without having to be solicited further. If they do not, a substantial personal canvass will be made to bring the matter to the attention of every member of the two churches.

Two big thermometers will be placed in Upchurch's window to show daily progress of each church in the Pay-Up campaign next week. As each church progresses toward its goal the figures in percentages will be registered by the thermometers.

WORLD-FAMOUS AUCTIONEER TO BE IN CLANTON NEXT SATURDAY

Clanton is to have a very distinguished guest next Saturday, in the person of Mr. Lee Chrisman, champion hollerer of the country. He is from Danville, Ky., and has won renown as an auctioneer and hollerer at the Century of Progress, Chicago, and at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. Chrisman is being brought here by Circle No. 3 of the Clanton Methodist church, and his business is to auction off cakes, clothing, etc., for the circle. Also he will auction off anything that anybody has to sell if they will bring it to him here Saturday. He will do his auctioning in front of the place on main street recently vacated by Broadhead's market.

Lee Chrisman promises to be very interesting and entertaining, as well as the best auctioneer in the country. Be in Clanton and look out for him whether you want to sell or buy anything or not.

LARGE SNAKE KILLED NEAR KINCHEON MONDAY

Total Should Be 2,000 Acres According to County Agent

Some time ago the bankers of the county met at the County Agent's office and worked out a program for stimulation of soil building in Chilton County. At this meeting a soil building organzation was formed. Mr. Stapp, as secretary, was asked to send out a questionaire or membership blank to farmers of the county who might wish to join in the soil building program.

Up to the present time responses to the inpuiry have been received from about one hundred farmers who have pledged to plant a total of 1,178 acres in peas and vetch this fall.

Splendid prizes in the soil building campaign are being offered by the banks. There should be 2,000 farmers in Chilton County engaged in this movement, according to Mr. Stapp, who urges every farmer in Chilton County to plant as much acreage as possible to these soil building crops.

Young People To Meet At Jemison

Session At Baptist Church Next Sunday Afternoon at Two O'clock

The quarterly meeting of the young people of Chilton County Association meets next Sunday afternoon at Jemison Baptist church at 2 o'clock, October 22, 1933. All young people of Chilton County are invited. We need your help and your prayers. I realize as the young people's leader, I have not done what I could have done, but one cannot run this alone. I need the cooperation of the young people and the prayers of the older people; so, you meet with us next Sunday afternoon and you can tell what we are trying to do. I wish to urge all Y. W. A., R. A. and G. A. leaders to send in your report. I have only received two Sunbeam reports. Our program for the afternoon is entitled, "Honoring God with our Money." We are putting on a playlet. We will also have a quartet with us; so, help us out with your presence.—Young People's Leader, Louanna Jones.

The Home Makers Class of Clanton Baptist Sunday school will meet at the home of Mrs. Parker Taylor, Friday, October 20, at 2:30 p.m. All members are urged to be present.

PROCLAMATION

To the People of Clanton

We are now passing through one of the worst financial crises this country has ever seen. Under the leadership of our great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, every effort is being made to restore this country to normalacy. People of Clanton have always shown their willingness to cooperate in matters of this kind and I believe, if given a chance, you will do your part at this time.

Under the President's National Recovery Act, the citizens of Montgomery are staging an NRA Loyalty Day Parade on Thursday, October 19, at 2:30 p.m. An invitation has been extended to the people of Clanton to join in this celebration, and, as Mayor of the Town of Clanton, I have accepted this invitation in your behalf.

Therefore, I, J. Lee Smith, Mayor of the Town of Clanton, do urge all citizens of Clanton to take part in this parade to the end that we may show our loyalty and willingness to do our part.

I, therefore, declare a half holiday in the Town of Clanton for Thursday afternoon, October 19, 1933, in order that we may help in making this patriotic undertaking a success.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 14th day of October, 1933.

J. LEE SMITH, Mayor.

Carl C. Petersen Of Thorsby Died

Was Prominent In Public Affairs of Community For Many Years

Thorsby, Chilton County, and the State of Alabama suffered a great loss Sunday night in the death of Carl Christian Petersen, 66-year old Mayor of Thorsby. He died at the Norwood Hospital in Birmingham, where he had been undergoing treatment for more than a month. His health began failing several months ago.

In his death Thorsby has suffered an irreparable loss. For the past thirty-two years he has worked faithfully and tirelessly for the upbuilding of the little Chilton County hamlet, of which he was one of the founders.

Serving his sixth term as Mayor, the progress of Thorsby was to be reckoned by the number of his years. He was also one of the founders of the Thorsby Fruit Growers Association, one of the largest organizations of its kind in the state, serving as its president for the past twelve years.

Thorsby Institute, the pride of the town, too, owes much of its success to the efforts of Carl Christian Peterson, who served the institution for many years as trustee, and was ever alert for its welfare and for the welfare of the future civilization of Thorsby and Chilton County. Presiden of the Bank of Thorsby and a trustee in the Congregational church, his interests and efforts encompassed almost the entirety of the town's activities.

Born in Denmark July 28, 1867, Mr. Peterson migrated to the United States when he was only thirteen years of age and settled in Wisconsin. In 1901 he removed to Alabama and was instrumental in the founding and building of Thorsby.

Surviving him are: His widow, Mrs. Marie Hanson Peterson; four sons, Nels Petersen, Thorsby, Albert, New York City; Harry, Tuscaloosa, and Jack, of Thorsby; and one daughter, Miss Racheal Peterson, of Birmingham.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Thorsby Congregational church, preceded by a short service at the home. The Rev. J. E. Each and the Rev. E. W. Butler officiated.

Honorary pallbearers were: C. A. Peterson, G. F. Harper, M. J. Soberg Martin Peterson, E. N. Dyrhovd, J. O. Johnson, T. J. Martin, A. E. Reagan, J. L. Foss, J. M. Smith.

Active pallbearers were: J. L. Mixson, E. R. Piper, Donald Merchant, M. E. Willis, S. M. Pate and John Childress. Interment was in Thorsby City cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

EPIDEMIC OF STEALING

Recently there have been reports of three chicken houses in Clanton being cleaned out completely by thieves. All three were large flocks, and every fowl in the gangs was taken.

It is said that some kind of fumes were used to keep the chickens from making any noise when they were molested.

Survey Made For Clanton Airport

Visit Here By Representative of U. S. Department of Commerce

Last week Clanton was visited by Mr. Marshall C. Hoppin, representative of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Mr. Hoppin's visit here was in the interest of a proposed airport.

At the Kiwanis Club meeting on Thursday night the visitor discussed the subject in a most interesting manner.

Friday morning he was joined by Mayor J. Lee Smith, Judge L. H. Reynolds, Dr. V. J. Gragg, C. E. Stapp and W. M. Wyatt, who carried him to see several possible airport sites. Visits were made to the Ticknor place north of town, the Popwell place west of town and the Ed Miller place east of town.

Notes of the various places by Mr. Hoppin, from which he will make a detailed report of the adaptability of the sites for airport development.

The immediate future expansion of air transportation makes the subject of airport development an important topic. Quite a bit of interest has grown out of activity of the Kiwanis Club on this question here, resulting in the visit of Mr. Hoppin.

Financial aid in perfecting airports is being extended to many localities through the Public Works Board, and there is a possibility that Clanton may obtain such aid if we can offer a suitable location for a landing field.

Legion Is Invited To Join Parade

Ex-Soldiers Requested to Report at Montgomery Post Headquarters

Commander Grover A. Bice, of Chilton County Post, American Legion, has received an invitation from Montgomery Post, requesting Chilton County Post to take part in Montgomery's Loyalty parade Thursday afternoon. The invitation came from Joseph M. Dickerson, Commander of Montgomery Post No. 2, as follows:

"In line with our policy of loyalty to our president, Montgomery will hold a Loyalty Day parade at 2 p.m. on October 19, 1933. We hope to make this a state-wide affair and are inviting our neighbors to join with us.

"Montgomery Post No. 2 will be glad to have a delegation from your Post march in the patriotic section of this parade, and we request that your delegation report to our club rooms not later than 12:30 p.m. on Thursday."

Plans are being made for a large number of Chilton County people to take part in this affair at Montgomery. All ex-soldiers who can go are urged to attend and take part in the parade.

PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY WILL GO TO MONTGOMERY AND MARCH IN NRA PARADE

Judge Reynolds has secured parking privileges for the Chilton County delegation at the old City Hall vacant lot in Montgomery for Thursday afternoon. All Chilton County people going to Montgomery are asked to assemble at the courthouse in Clanton at eleven o'clock today—and are expected to get to Montgomery and park cars by 1:45 p.m. All cars will be left at the old City Hall lot, from where the Chilton County people will march to the front of the State Capitol and join in the parade. C. E. Stapp will be marshall for our group.

Practically all business operations in Chilton County will be suspended this afternoon (Thursday) and a great throng of our citizenship will go to Montgomery to participate in the NRA Loyalty Parade. A section of the parade has been allotted to Chilton County, and the enthusiasm of our people over the event indicates that we will have a most impressive demonstration. When the invitation was extended to Clanton last week to take part in the parade, it was received with hearty approval by everybody. Mayor J. Lee Smith Saturday issued a proclamation declaring a half holiday in the city and urging all citizens to prepare to go to Montgomery and take part in the parade. By Monday every business establishment in Clanton had signed up to close Thursday afternoon.

As the invitation was extended to other towns and communities the program assumed county-wide proportions as citizens from all parts expressed a desire to take part. When the County Commissioners met on Monday morning they expressed one hundred per cent approval of the plan and promptly declared a holiday in all county business for Thursday afternoon.

Appropriation of necessary funds to provide decorations, flags, floats and a band were made both by the city and county authorities. Committees for all phases of the plan have been named and organized. All of them have been busy this week.

It is announced that all things are ready for the Chilton County contingent to move toward Montgomery on Thursday. The people from various parts of the county who expect to go to Montgomery are asked to meet at the courthouse in Clanton by 11 o'clock Thursday. We will have to be in Montgomery and ready to take our place in the parade at 2:30 p.m.

The Chilton County delegation in the parade will be accompanied by the Comer Band, from Sycamore, composed of 35 pieces of music. First in our formation will be a person carrying a large American flag followed in order by a big banner inscribed "Chilton County, the Heart of Alabama." Next will come the Comer Band followed by the large Clanton float profusely decorated with flags, bunting, streamers, and various patriotic emblems accenting the spirit of NRA. Atop this float will stand Miss Corrine Polk (Miss Chilton County) posing as the Statue of Liberty. The float will be drawn by "Uncle Sam."

Immediately following the float will be a large group of about 100 school children. All other citizens of the county who take part in the demonstration will form the rear of the procession.

KIWANIS CLUB WILL ASSIST WITH N.R.A. PARADE IN MONTGOMERY

At the meeting of Clanton Kiwanis Club last Thursday night it was unanimously voted that the members of the Club would heartily cooperate in and assist with the participation of Clanton and Chilton County in the NRA Loyalty Parade in Montgomery Thursday afternoon, October 19.

Luther Little was appointed as the representative of the Kiwanis Club to work out with the central committee such means as the club might employ to assist the town and county in making the very best representation possible in the Montgomery parade.

Owing to the fact that the parade in Montgomery comes on Thursday afternoon, and the further fact that the regular meeting of Kiwanis comes on Thursday night, it has been decided that the Club will not have its regular meeting here Thursday night, but will consider attendance and participation in the Montgomery parade as attendance for the members of the club this week.

President W. M. Wyatt, of the Kiwanis Club, therefore urges all members of Kiwanis to attend the NRA Loyalty Parade in Montgomery Thursday afternoon, and thereby assist our city and county in their plans to make as good showing as possible.

Members are reminded that attendance at the parade in Montgomery will constitute your club attendance for this week. Cohen Stapp, club secretary, will check up on attendance.

ALL STORES TO CLOSE THIS P.M.

Everybody To Take Holiday For Loyalty Parade at Montgomery

In response to the Proclamation of Mayor J. Lee Smith, declaring a half holiday in Clanton Thursday afternoon, every business concern in the city has signed an agreement to close up at noon Thursday and remain closed for the day.

The spirit in which our business houses joined in this request has been most gratifying, further proving the fact that Clanton is one hundred per cent for NRA.

Likewise, the county officials have all responded to the occasion in a most complimentary manner. All the county offices will be closed Thursday afternoon, and everybody will have a chance to go to Montgomery and take part in the big parade.

All over Chilton County the people have expressed fine enthusiasm for the opportunity to go to Montgomery and help the Capital City properly and fully celebrate in the Loyalty Parade. Practically every town and community in the county will have a big representation.

Those who intend to go to Montgomery are reminded that the Chilton County group will assemble at the courthouse in Clanton at 11 o'clock Thursday morning, and move toward Montgomery in a body a few minutes thereafter.

BANKS WILL CLOSE THURSDAY AFTERNOON

The two banks in Clanton will join with the other business houses of the city in closing Thursday afternoon, on account of Clanton's participation in the NRA Loyalty Parade in Montgomery.

$20,000.00 FOR SELMA HIGHWAY

Advice Received From Congressman W. B. Oliver In Washington

According to a telegram from Congressman W. B. Oliver to Judge Reynolds, it appears certain that $20,000 will be available in the near future for building a hard surface road on the Selma High for a distance of three miles West of Clanton. This telegram was received with much joy by the citizens here. For some months there has been a concerted effort on the part of citizens of Dallas and Chilton Counties to have the Selma-Clanton Highway included in the secondary road program for Federal aid.

The telegram of Congressman Oliver says: "Bureau of Public Roads advise secondary road program includes recommendation for improving three miles from Clanton West, expenditure twenty thousand dollars."

While details have not been given out yet, it is assumed that the project when finally approved, will provide for asphalt surface on this road, for a distance of three miles west of Clanton.

At present the road has asphalt surface about six miles out of Selma towards Clanton. It is reported that this piece of paving will soon be extended as far north as Plantersville on the line of Dallas and Chilton Counties. If this should be done, with three miles paved out of Clanton, it would make half the distance from Clanton to Selma paved.

No information is available as to when work on the proposed three-mile project will begin. The road is already graded and well graveled.

MEMORY OF MR. W. D. BURNETT

Our hearts were saddened and broken indeed when we received the message that our dear husband, father and friend, Mr. W. D. Burnett, had passed to his reward on October 16, 1933. All was done for him that loving hands could do, but all in vain. We lvoed him, but Jesus loved him more, and He has called him to yonder shore, where the golden gates were open and a gentle voice said, Come, and with the farewell unspoken he calmly entered home.

He leaves to mourn his going his loving wife, three sons, five daughters, two sisters and one brother, and a host of relatives and friends. Weep not, dear wife and children, for the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. It is God's will that we must die; so, let us look to Him, who is able to sooth our sorrows and heartaches. He is too wise to make any mistake too great to be unkind.

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Ashburn, Jr., (Mary Elizabeth Crump) of Tampa, Florida, announce the birth of a son on October 6th. His name is Robert David.

"All my friends notice that the last pimple is gone

—naturally, I am proud of my clear skin"

WHY shouldn't she be happy . . . it is everyone's right to have a clear skin . . . often it helps to hold old friends and make new ones.

What causes pimples and boils? Usually it is due to an abnormal condition of the system. What will correct this trouble? More red-blood-cells filled with that vital substance called hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) is what is usually required.

What does hemo-glo-bin in the blood do? It carries the purifying oxygen—so essential to the system's proper functioning—from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin. Also, it throws off the poisonous carbon dioxide.

And S.S.S. restores red-cells and hemo-glo-bin to the blood. Besides, it tones up the system . . . gives you an appetite . . . improves the digestion. Thousands have proven it . . . modern medical research has proven it . . . you can prove it, too.

Take S.S.S. just before meals. No need to change your diet . . . S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. You will be happy with the beneficial results obtained. Start taking it today. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The larger size is more economical.

A Quarter Billion More

Alabama farmers are smiling as they receive checks for cutting the cotton surplus.

They should, because economists of the Department of Agriculture have calculated that the 1933 cotton reduction program has added around a quarter of a billion dollars to the prospective income of Southern cotton producers this season.

This calculation is based on the fact that, had there been no crop reduction program, producers would have been forced to sell their cotton at probably 5.5 cents per pound. Economists find ample statistical justification for this assumption, as a 16-million bale crop piled on top of a 12-million bale carry-over would have resulted in a record supply, more than two million bales larger than last year's 26-million bale supply. The low point reached in the farm price for cotton was 4.6 cents per pound in June of 1932.

But, based on 5.5 cent cotton, the gross income from the potential 16,500,000-bale crop as forecast by the Crop Estimating Board would have been $454,000,000. The gross income from the present prospective crop, after the 10,304,000 acres have been taken out of cotton production, is estimated to be exactly $100,000,000 more than the income from the full crop of 5.5 cents per pound. This calculation is based upon the present farm price of cotton of around 9 cents per pound which, on 12,300,000 bales, yields a gross income of $544,000,000. Added to this is the estimated cash payments of $110,000,000 and potential profits on government-held cotton which has been optioned to the producer at 6 cents per pound. On the basis of present market prices, these profits would approximate $36,000,000.

So the income to the South from its 12,300,000-bale cotton crop this year is estimaetd at around $700,000,000. This is $246,000,000 more than would have been received if the potential crop had been harvested and sold at 5.5 cents per pound. It is also greater than the income from the 1932 crop, which was $431,000,000. The producer received an average of 5.7 cents per pound for the 1931-32 marketing season.

A. E. A. TO HOLD THEIR DISTRICT CONVENTION

Montgomery, Ala. Oct. 13.—Inauguration of a new policy recently authorized by the executive committee, the Alabama Education Association will begin a series of district meetings of teachers on Saturday, October 21, when a one-day convention of educators of southeast Alabama will be held at Dothan, Frank L. Grove, executive secretary of the organization announced in Montgomery Thursday. The Dothan meeting will bring to the capital of the Wiregrass section several hundred classroom teachers, principals, and superintendents for a study of professional problems.

The two major topics on the program for discussion, Mr. Grove said, are the possibilities of the local education association, and the plan of financial support of public education in Alabama.

Reports from the several county and city systems of schools represented will be made at the meeting. Included in the group of laymen who will address the meeting are Hon. O. L. Tompkins, president of the Dothan Board of Education; Hon. W. L. Lee, president of the Houston County Board of Education; and Mayor Clem Ezell, of Dothan.

The meeting will be under the direction of Superintendent John Bryan, president of the Alabama Education Association, who will also discuss the problem of "Local Education Associations." Others tentatively scheduled on the program are Dale S. Young of the state department of education, Montgomery; Miss Anne King, supervisor of Dale County; and Miss Carrie Garrett, president of the Dothan Teachers' Association.

The second meeting of the series of district conventions will probably be held at Anniston, on October 28.

MAPLE SPRINGS

We were very proud to see so many people out Sunday. Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days, and both services were well attended. Sunday we had an unusually large crowd, and everyone present seemed to enjoy the message Bro. Robinson brought to them. We had several visitors with us from other places. Visitors always find a welcome at Maple Springs any time.

There will be preaching here next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Bro. T. W. Billingsley from Highland community will preach, and everybody is invited to come and bring a friend.

The B. Y. P. U. Sunday night was not so well attended. Our subject was "Good Works." There seems to be a little crowd that seem to be saying "I'm determined to carry this B. Y. P. U. through in spite of every thing." People, show your good work. James 2:20 tells us "faith without works is dead." So people come on and show your faith and then your good works.

CHESTNUT CREEK NEWS

Our Sunday school is still progressing. However, some seem to think that cold weather will soon be here and they must quit going to Sunday school, but let's hope that somebody is doing a little missionary work here in Cooper. We had a large attendance as long as we had the red and blue contest, but as soon as that was over and the blues won and got disappointed at the same time (because they were looking for a big entertainment of some kind, and didn't get it) they just quit coming. Don't know if that is the reason or not. Anyway, here's hoping you'll soon enroll again.

Chestnut Creek church, as a body is urged to send their prayers to God for Bro. J. S. Hand, as he is very ill. We miss him and his work here. May God soon see fit to give him strength to be up and be about his Father's business, as the harvest is white.

Our B. Y. P. U. is fine, but the help and cooperation of more of the young people would improve it. We want to remind the older people that we still have their B. Y. P. U. class; so there is a place for everyone; so bring your boy and girl and put them in B. Y. P. U. It trains them to be church workers who need not to be ashamed.

Our singing society met Sunday afternoon. It was fine. We had a large crowd. We wish to thank the quartet from Montgomery for their splendid help. We invite you back at any time. We meet again on the next first Sunday afternoon.

Our W. M. U. meets next Saturday afternoon. All women are invited and men, too, if you wish.—A small worker.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom." That is what the Bible says. The literal rendering is, "The fear of God is the chief part of knowledge."

There are two kinds of fear. There is a slavish fear. Then, there is a reverential fear. Fear is not a base motive for human action. Noah was moved by fear when he built an ark. Fear of poverty causes men to put money in the savings bank. Fear of the elements moves men to build houses. Fear of the consequences of evil-doing keeps many people out of sin and tragedy.

"The fear of God is the main part of knowledge." An astronomer turns a telescope toward the sky and discovers a comet. He figures that seventy-five years, one month, one week, one day, one hour, five minutes, and ten seconds, that comet will pass that point again. That is wonderful. But this astronomer never thinks of God. A plain, old ignorant woman in a mountain cabin looks at the stars at night and knows that God made those stars and she reverences God. According to the Bible she knows more than the greatest astronomers in the world unless the astronomer recognizes and reverences God, too. A young man goes to a medical college and goes into the dissecting room. He cuts up human bodies. He comes home a wonderful surgeon. But he never learned that God made man.

How little we know and how conceited we are! "I don't understand God," a friend said to me. I replied, "When I was a little country boy, I used to climb up into my father's lap, put my head aganist his bosom and listen to his heart beat. Dad looked up the road and sat quitely thinking his serious thougths. Then he'd say strange things. I wondered what he meant. I couldn't understand for I was only a little child. He was my father and he loved me and I loved him, and I had rather have known this than to have understood all he said."

I don't always understand God. I don't know why God let my mother die when I was fourteen years old and break my heart so it would never heal. I don't know why God lets little babies cry in pain. The saddest note I ever heard is the cry of a suffering baby. The hardest thing I ever tried to reconcile with a good God is the wail of a little baby who is in pain and can't tell you what hurts. But if God should tell me, I still wouldn't understand, for I am only a little child. But He is my Father! I am His child. He loves me and I love Him, and when I get grown in the world to come, I shall understand what I cannot understand now.

SURVEYS SUPPLY PROOF THAT "NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY"

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Reports submitted by numerous widely scattered newspapers and all of the national advertising agencies, abundantly confirm data accumulated by state and local advisory boards of NRA as to the potentialities of the "Now is the time to buy" campaign now in progress. This view is reflected to an astonishing degree by a flood of letters and telegrams from merchants and manufacturers to NRA headquarters.

Thousands of local and national advertisers in all staple lines are assuring National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson of their determination to cooperate by offering the people "good goods, fairly priced," in response to his suggestion.

These communications reveal new and improved products to be offered to the public, and all pledge the maintenance of fair prices. The president of a great retail drug organization wrote: "We are carrying out at once your suggestion to submit up-to-date, reasonably priced merchandise and have increased our advertising expenditure over anything we have spent in three years."

The treasurer of one of the largest textile concerns said: "In September we increased production 25 per cent and pay rolls 84 per cent. For the past two months production increase with us was 54½ per cent and pay rolls 112 per cent. We are assuredly on the upturn, and with fair treatment the people will buy."

In a detailed report, one of the largest cigar manufacturers announced that from August 1 to October 1 their employees increased 31 per cent, pay rolls increased 53 per cent, and "average weekly sales of our most actively pushed brands of cigars increased 61 per cent."

"The housewives of the country are the purchasing agents who spend 85 per cent of the family income," said General Johnson in a public statement. "They realize that 'Now is the time to buy', not only to save money, which is vitally important, but also they have decided that every dollar spent now is helping to keep the wage worker in her family on a pay roll." This sentiment has been reported from women in all walks of life, through the far-flung women's organization of NRA, and indicates that, as never before, women are giving deep thought to the physchology of buying home supplies before retail prices get back to normal.

"Hundreds of thousands, even millions, long idle, are back at work, continued the statement of General Johnson. Many millions of dollars have been added to pay rolls. These pay rolls cannot be maintained and new jobs for millions more cannot be made unless every consumer does his or her best now. Industry is bringing into the market improved, practical products held back for these better times. Prices are going up, they must and will, and buying now is an investment, the safest investment it is possible for any one to find."

THE BIRMINGHAM POST SHOWS SPLENDID GROWTH

The Birmingham Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, has enjoyed a phenominal growth in Alabama since its inauguration twelve years ago.

It now has the second largest circulation of any Alabama newspaper and is the most widely read paper in the state. This record breaking growth is due solely to vigor, fearlessness and independence of its editorial policies and its presentation of spot news.

Their editorial independence is the ways engender respect, if not the agreement, thus it is that the Post has invariably won the deep respect and high regard of intelligence wherever found.

Their editroial independence is the very foundation stone of successful journalism, their financial independence is a guarantee against outside influence, they have no axes to grind, no special interest to serve. To its editors "the scared cows" of business, are just so much beef on the hoof, this makes for readibility and believability.

The Post should be proud of its growth for it is one of the most rapid and substantial growths in newspaper history and certainly in the South.

VISITED SYLACAUGA

Mr and Mrs. S. V. Miller and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Easterling and baby visited over in Sylacauga Saturday and Sunday. They went to see Lester Powell, Gerthie Easterling and Jim Powell and their families. Mr. Miller reported that they all took dinner at Jim Powell's Sunday, and such a dinner as they did have.

Things are on the boom around Comer's mills, they report. There is a payroll of $90,000 every two weeks at these cotton mills. The marble quarry is running full time, also.

MEDICAL ADVICE

If you want to

. . . keep the bowel action regular and comfortable
. . . make constipated spells as rare as colds
. . . avoid danger of bowel strain
—use a liquid laxative

Can constipation be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" declare thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills and tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can overcome this condition just by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels just as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Will not irritate kidneys. The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you syrup pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. Drugstores have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

Mr. Green On Inflation

More evidence is coming to light that the late wave of inflationist sentiment is on the wane, and that we will hear less about currency expansion, for the present at least.

The latest significant pronouncement against currency inflation came from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in his address at the opening of the fifty-third annual convention of the Federation at Atlantic City. It is presumed that Mr. Green's attitude is approved by the great majority of the delegates representing labor in the convention. Touching on the subject of currency inflation, Mr. Green started by saying that a new question had arisen to bother the laboring man, and he termed it the new movement, or new development in favor of "unrestrained and unregulated inflation of the currency." Continuing, Mr. Green said:

"Labor knows that this is a problem that affects us very vitally because we know that when dollars are cheapened, commodity prices rise, but wages stand still. Until they can assure labor that we will get more of these cheap dollars for the day's work we perform, so that it will conform to the increase of commodity prices, it is my judgment against inflation.

"We have not forgotten how our workers in other nations in Europe suffered because it required on some occassions an amount of money that would fill a bushel basket in order to buy just an ordinary commodity. We do not want to go through that, because, as I have said, wages remain, static, stationary, while commodity prices go up.

"I do not mean that we will not favor credit expansion, the development of a wise financial policy that will tend to increase the volume of money in circulation so that business can be carried on in a proper and business like way. But, my friends, when the worker earns a dollar he wants to be sure that that dollar is a real dollar and that it does not represent to him a reduction in buying power."

Americans Love Liberty

At Edwardsville, Illinois, on September 13th, 1858, Abraham Lincoln said: "Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in us. Our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men, in all lands everywhere. Destroy this spirit and you have planted the seeds of despotism."

This famous assertion of the noted rail splitter might be worthy of a little reflection and study in our present day ups and downs. Some of our leading statesmen say that we are drifting entirely too close to communism, socialism and numerous other isms detrimental to free government and liberty. Individualism seems to be getting shoved to the back seat, and group monopoly is getting lots of recognition. Some proclaim the Constitution of the United States a back date number and inadequate for the present reckoning of our difficulties.

We believe these are dangerous conditions into which we are drifting. Henry Vance of Birmingham said in a negro sermon at the high school building in Clanton one night in 1917: "We people in America are going to have peace if we have to whip everything in Europe to get it." It seems that we are about as determined now about prosperity as we were then about peace. We are going to have recovery in this country if we have to break every taxpayer on the continent and make everybody in the land a direct subject of the government.

Faith in America

It is doubtful if any country on the face of the earth can equal Spartan courage displayed by the American people during the last three years of the depression, which deprived the majority of us of all the luxuries, and millions of even the bare necessities of a normal existence. It reduced men and women from comparative affluence to stark pauperism, seared the soul of American humanity as has never been done before. Yet in the face of this appealing blight our people have never lost hope. Their faith in America and American institutions has not wavered. Their trust in the ultimate recovery of the country was sublime, and that trust is bearing fruit today. It is courage equal to that of the Spartans of old, and in no section of the country has that courage been more clearly demonstrated than in the small towns and countryside. Now the sun shines brighter, and our smiles are becoming broader every day.—Chronicle, Toledo, Iowa.

Australia's government-owned bank has forbidden the use of lipstick and rouge by girl clerks, and also limits their taste in clothes colors to black and blue. Just another way of reducing the interest.

Friends In Texas

These days one never can tell where or when a friend or acquaintance will bob up. Entirely unxepected and through some means totally unknown the long broken thread of former years may be reunited. An instance of this kind recently came to The Union-Banner from Texas.

A month or so ago we began to receive every week a copy of The Bartlett Tribune published at Bartlett, Texas. From the very first issue we wondered what could be the reason for anybody sending us the paper. It is a fine weekly newspaper, however and we were glad to get it. We felt sure we should in due time find out who was the sender and the motive. We began to exchange a copy of The Union-Banner with our Texas friend and publisher.

Now the mystery is solved. A letter comes to us from Bartlett, written by H. B. Matthews, saying, "I am shop foreman of the Tribune at Bartlett. Have been sending you an occasional copy of our paper. My mother, Mrs. Walter Matthews (nee Lee Robinson) of Enis, Texas, was reared in Chilton County, and I would like for you to send an exchange to her in return for your copy of the Tribune."

The publishers of The Union-Banner do not know Mrs. Matthews (nee Lee Robinson). Doubtless there are people in the county who do know her. At any rate, we are glad to get the Tribune, and we are glad to send the Union-Banner to Mrs. Matthews.

And, by the way, another interesting fact about the Tribune is that the editor and publisher is W. W. Fox, a name which is most familiar to every person in this part of Alabama, because of the distinction of our own "Daddy Fox" of exactly the same name, in Clanton.

All things considered, we have therefore raked up a somewhat extraordinary attachment and interest in The Bartlett Tribune, and we hope it may continue as a regular weekly visitor to our editorial sanctorium.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

We have heard a great deal of late about the failure of the nation's banks to lend money to private firms for the expansion of business and have been told that this is one of the things which is retarding our economic recovery. There has even been strong intimation from Washington that unless the banks "loosen up" so to speak, the government itself will take the credit situation in hand. There are, of course, two sides to the question. On the one hand the banks are being urged to extend credit in every direction while on the other they are compelled to comply with the new banking laws which provide for a more stringent examination and much harsher penalties for bankers who lend their customers' money in poor speculative enterprises.

In thinking about this situation it must be remembered that banks cannot make money for their stockholders unless they put to work the money which is left with them on deposit. It is hardly likely therefore that the bankers of the country are in some deep conspiracy to restrict credit, since they can only show an operating profit by extending credit. During the past few years it has been necessary for the banks to remain as liquid as possible. Granting, for the sake of argument, that this period is now coming to a close, it must be admitted that the bankers must be more careful than ever in extending credit because of the provisions of the new banking law. They are compelled to go slow also in that the future monetary policy of the country is now decidedly "up in the air" and nobody knows just what sort of inflation or currency or credit expansion we are to have, if any.

But there is another phase of the general situation which must not be lost sight of. It is easy to overestimate the importance and extent of the tightness of credit. The average sound and conservative business firm is able to get what credit it requires. It is not credit that it needs, but customers. The Alexander Hamilton Institute recently well summed up the credit situation in one of its bulletins when it said:

"The credit situation is giving serious concern to the administration. Although the banks have loanable funds in most instances, except those banks that are still closed by the government, these funds are not moving out to finance business activities. Bankers have been charged with holding back on the granting of credit because of the supposed heavy risks. For this attitude the bankers could hardly be blamed, because of their recent harrowing experiences at the hands of the government and the public, and the watch that is being kept on banking operations. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has offered aid through preferred stock in banks or by loaning banks money at 3 per cent that they can reloan at 5 per cent as a maximum, to trade and industrial organizations. If such offers are not accepted by the banks, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has threatened to set up so-called mortgage companies in various centers to loan directly to business without the medium of bankers. Studies of the situation, however, show that merchants and manufacturers alike, both small and large have no immediate need for wide expansion of credit. What they do need is sales, and sales are not sufficiently brisk to warrant increasing production and building up wholesale and retail stocks on borrowed money. There are many loan applications from individuals and organizations whose credit qualifications are so meager that they would not pass even in times of prosperity. Sound organizations are not on the market extensively for the borrowing of funds."

This undoubtedly states the situation as it is today. One of the soundest and most conservative business men in the middle West recently said to me, in discussing the bank credit situation:

"It is not bank credit which my firm needs, but orders for goods. We can get all the credit we need for our business operations. What we want now is customers. Given customers, we can get the credit we require to expand."

The same is doubtless true of thousands of business institutions in the United States. What good will it do to borrow money of the banks to produce or purchase more goods if the public demand is not forthcoming?

Cuba must be getting her idea of politics from the hurricane.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

All For One

"A house divided against itself cannot stand." Never were truer words spoken. No matter what may be divided, a mercantile firm, a family, a political party, sooner or later the division will grow in such degree that it will undermine the whole, and collapse is sure to follow, unless the division can be stopped in time. The division in the Republican party must be stopped NOW if we are to survive. That is, if there is division in the party itself, which I doubt very much. There is disgust enough to wreck us unless the situation is remedied—disgust with the management, or so-called management of the party. I have been censured for several articles in which I endeavored to point out the grave dangers of such division. Some have told me that I should not go to so much trouble to point out our weakness to the Democratic strategists, but if the Democrats are so blind that they cannot already see our weakness, then they would never be able to use the information to any advantage any way. What I would like to help in accomplishing is to get our people to realize that we must present a solid front, and that when anyone expresses unwillingness by word or deed to put self interest aside in favor of a solidified party unit, then that person is not deserving of consideration by our voters. Once the people will come to recognize this, I have no fears for the future of the party. Already this disgust has driven some of our people out—some will never return, maybe, but there are others who WILL return, if given pure, clean, unselfish, party-loyal leadership. Let's keep this in mind, folks, and think it over. We might uncover a Moses.

Don't Expect Too Much

Now comes the admonition: "Don't expect too much, too soon, from the NRA". No need to worry—if anyone ever expected anything, anytime, to come from it they were few and far between. The sponsors of the NRA must be sensing the widespread and growing discontent with the results being shown so far, so they are praying for time, and hoping that something, anything, may happen to uphold the methods of the move. But no wonder there is discontent. Back when election promises were being made, these promises were legion. All one had to do was name what he wanted and it was promised. Business on the boom, plenty of jobs, good prices for farm products, "beer by Christmas," and a thousand other promises were made. And a check on the results reveals that the beer promise is about the only one that has seen much success. Prices of raw products have advanced some, but prices of finished goods have advanced all out of proportion; statistics show that the army of unemployed is greater than a year ago. Merchants and industrial managers are asked to take on more men and pay higher wages, without any plan being advanced to take care of this extra overhead. And, pray, where is the business boom? It's still around the well-known corner, along with prosperity. That is why discontent is so rampant. And, another thing, the old-world tang of autocracy the whole thing smacks of is nauseating to the nostrils of freedom-loving Americans, who do not like to be told what they may or may not do with their own private affairs. Like a pin, the whole thing is pointed one way and headed another.

Let's Diagnose"

The "brain trust," President Roosevelt's advisory board is made up of college professors. What an idea! School teachers are not supposed to study up new things to teach, and it is an evident fact that this country must have something new taught to it. Instead of school teachers, it seems a group of doctors is needed. You know, when a doctor begins on a case, he digs in and finds the trouble, then sets about to remove it before treating the patient to make him well again. True, if the patient is suffering intense pain, he may give a "shot" to ease the pain, while he diagnoses and decides what must be done. Well, the "shot" has been given, in the form of millions of dollars in emergency relief funds—give credit for that. Now let's follow the doctor further. Why not try to find the root of the national trouble? That ought not to be so hard for the "miracle men" holding the government reins. And once the root has been found, begin doctoring on that. That is a simple system to use, and might prove successful. It works on people; it might work on conditions.

A Tip for Boy Scouts

A few days ago, in a small town, I saw a Boy Scout performing a real worth-while service. A bunch of little children were on their way home from school, and came to a street crossing. Along with them was a scout, carrying in his hand a long pole, near the end of which was fastened a red flag, with the word "STOP" in white. When there was danger if the little fellows started across the street, he held his pole cross-wise in front of him and they stood behind his flag pole. When he deemed it safe for them to cross he held the pole straight out in front of him, and his "stop" sign showed against any traffic that might endanger the crossing. I talked to the lad about it, after he had helped his charges across the street. "Sure, that's only one of the good deeds we do every day in our troop," he said. "I don't know just how we started doing this, but the mayor has commended us for it, and lots of the people say it is something really worth while. But we boy scouts like to do things like that. We look for ways to be of service." And that's a tip for our own Boy Scouts.

American Peons

Lots of people believe a dictatorship would be good for America. They say: "It works in Italy, in Germany, in Russia, and other nations. Why wouldn't it work here?" If these people would only use their eyes a bit, we have two things to show you why it wouldn't work, right here under our noses—the 18th Amendment and the NRA. In both of the cases a kind of "forcing" system is used, which Americans resent and will not have. In the old countries the people have been under kings and monarchs, all-powerful autocracies, all their lives. Their ancestors before them lived under such conditions. They feel that they are the "working class", and that the orders of the "better class" must be obeyed. Having existed under such conditions all their lives, they know nothing else. Their minds are not their own. Alongside the old system a dictatorship seems like freedom to them. It does allow them more freedom than they have ever known before and they take to it in droves. But this is not the case here. Americans are free people, and always have been free. They take their fredom of speech and action as much a matter of course as they do their meals, and any condition which suppresses this freedom in any degree brings on a sense of bondage to them. In Europe there are several classes of people, but not here—every man feels that he is just as good as the next one, and rightfully so. So a condition of dictatorship, which is a measure of freedom to Europeans, brings a corresponding measure of bondage to us. It increases their freedom, but lessens ours. Any time an American feels that his liberty is being taken from him he rebels, naturally. That is why it will not work here. We are not peons and serfs, but free people, and intend to remain so, thank you, or know the reason.

Uncle Tom

Every once in a while some of my old friends come around, and we have a good old time chat together, and really enjoy it. Uncle Tom Ogletree is one of these old and valued friends. Uncle Tom might resent my calling him old, but I don't mean it that way. He's an old friend, not an old man, although he has been here for more years than he likes to remember. But these years have only served to bring to Uncle Tom more friends, and the many wrinkles around his eyes are not so much a sign of years as they are of his jovial, happy-go-lucky nature. We both like to play checkers, and when Uncle Tom comes to town we go to war in a few games, although Uncle Tom always beats me. This last trip he was on his way to his new home in the land of flowers. He has been living at Anniston, but will live in Ocoee, Fla., where "the climate fits the clothing shortage," to quote his own words. I accused him of going down there where he could get all the 3.2 beer he could drink, but he denied it. Asked if he didn't like beer, he answered: "Not so much, but I do like to be around where fellows drink it—they seem to get so much pleasure from it" and the wrinkles came around the genial old fellow's eyes again. I'll leave it to you whether he was lying or joking. Good old Uncle Tom—merry, as usual.—Man in the Moon.

The First Gun

The first Republican gun since the election of 1932 has been fired, the trigger having been pulled recently at a meeting of the Hamilton Club in Chicago by former Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana. There has been a division of opinion in Republican ranks as to just when organized criticism of the present Democratic policy should commence. Some have thought that the Republican National Committee should begin its activities at once while other leaders have counselled delay until after the first of the year and the approach of the 1934 congressional campaign.

While the address of Senator Watson is unofficial, in that it was not arranged by the Republican National Committee, it is of interest because it foreshadows just what the Republican line of attack will be in the campaign next year.

Senator Watson accused the administration of attempting to socialize industry through the NRA contrary to our scheme of government, stated that it had failed to reduce costs, failed to maintain a stable currency and failed to maintain the government credit. Touchnig on what he thought should be the future course of the Republican Party, Senator Watson is quoted as saying:

"I believe that the Republican party should affirm its determination to stand by the constitution of the United States, its fundamental principles to be preserved unaltered but to be applied to changing conditions so as to promote the equality of men in America, the basic thought underlying this instrument.

"We are said to have entered the last war to make the world safe for democracy, yet democracy was never less secure anywhere in the world than at the present time.

"This should teach us to cling to a representative republic such as our fathers founded and not blend our efforts toward making our government a pure democracy, every effort toward which has only weakened its cardinal principles."

Watson said that the wealth of the country "can not be wholly redistributed by taxation processes."

"We are opposed," said Watson, "to regimenting every young man entering active life putting him in a straightjacket, giving him an opportunity to be so much and no more."

Of course, if the NRA program meets with a reasonable measure of success and most of the present friction in industry can be ironed out, the Republicans will be under a serious handicap next year and will have to confine their attack to a criticism of the administration's monetary and socialization policies. But if the NRA fails there will be a general barrage all along the line, and one which will doubtless be effective. The future success of the administration in a political sense depends in a great measure on the success of the NRA because the President and his advisors have elected to pin their future to it in a big way.

There are, naturally, several handicaps. The biggest problem confronting the administration now is that of the farmer, whose income has not gone up commensurately with the cost of the things he has to buy. Unless the farmer can be satisfied the going will be rough for the Democratic party in the biennial elections next year. Another handicap to the administration is the dissatisfaction over political appoinments. This is something which every administration has to face, however, and is never as serious as the politicians themselves think it is. The voters in general are more interested in the return of normal conditions than they are in whether Bill Jones or John Smith gets an assistant secretaryship at Washington.

A six year old Cincinnati boy dropped a grain of pop corn into his ear and then heard an explosion. The corn had popped and the boy went to the hospital to have it removed from his ear. Ten to one that boy grows up to be a member of the Brain Trust.

In the good old days the farmer who could show the biggest hogs at the state fair got a prize. Nowadays, no doubt, the blue ribbon will be awarded to the farmer who can show the fewest hogs.

Inflation is a great deal like war. It is interesting to talk about so long as you are not in it.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—and Some He Saw Not

Some Here Yet

Dudley Collins reports an incident at the Chilton County Baptist Association at Mineral Springs last week, which proves that not all of the honest people are dead. A Mrs. Gilmore lost her purse containing thirty dollars in cash. She reported her loss to the Moderator, Rev. J. W. Jones, who made the announcement to the congregation. Up went the hand of Mrs. John Chandler, stating that she had found the money. It was thereupon handed over to the owner. Mrs. Chandler is the widow of John Chandler, who was killed in the storm March 21, 1932. Much money is lost, most of which never gets back to the owner. But there is still a possibility that lost things will be found by somebody who is honest. All the honest people are not dead yet, we are happy to conclude.

Big Taters Right On

This community continues to come around with its contribution of big taters. The most recent exhibition was supplied by Carter Willis, who brought in four extra large doolies. We did not weigh them. They were not the biggest we have seen by a long ways; but they were fine enough to gain special attention from many people who have seen them on display at the Union-Banner office.

John Crawford's Latest Dream

John Crawford, negro, Lomax, reports another strange vision, or dream, which he declares is the omen of something awful that will happen this winter. In this vision he saw a vast field covered with a writhing mixture of green snakes and rattlesnakes. They were engaged in a terrible conflict with each other. It was cold, very cold weather. Many birds were flying in the air above the field. When the birds would occasionally fall to the ground the snakes would pay them no attention, and keep on fighting each other. I don't know how to interpret John's dream, but it sounds mighty like he had been drinking something with a very strong hangover.

Makes Them Feel Better

Dr. Gragg reports a very interesting observation at his collection office downtown. In the last few days half a dozen or more people have come and paid their doctor bills, he says. As they went away the doctor declares he could observe that each and every one of them felt better. As it is customary for doctors to advise remedies that will make folks feel better, Doctor Gragg very gladly offers this to the great many people so afflicted. He very firmly believes it will do lots of people good.

NRA Loyalty Parade

Indications are that Chilton County will make a fine showing in the NRA Loyalty Parade at Montgomery this afternoon. I would not be surprised to see five hundred of our citizens participating. The float that has been arranged by the ladies of the Pilot Club and the Study Club is a beauty. The Comer Band, of Sycamore, will furnish a powerful attraction for our section of the parade. The banners at the head of the group will bear the inscription "Chilton County the Heart of Alabama." Every business house in Clanton, including the banks and drug stores, will be closed for this occasion. Congratulations to those who have worked so diligently in perfecting the various details of the program. All of Chilton County is in on it. Everybody is to meet at the courthouse in Clanton at eleven o'clock today, ready to shove off for Montgomery immediately after eleven.

Airport Under Consideration

Every now and then something happens that adds interest to the proposal for an airport at Clanton. Last week we had a visit from Mr. Marshall C. Hoppin, representing the United States Department of Commerce. Committees from the Kiwanis Club, American Legion, and County and City officials carried Mr. Hoppin to various possible sites in the vicinity of Clanton. He will render a report outlining his recommendations concerning these sites in a short while. It is indeed interesting to contemplate the future of aeronautics through the discussions and explanations of experts like Mr. Hoppin. He is himself a flier of long experience. He travels all over the United States in his airplane, engaged in the business of developing airports.

The Mims Ferry Service

Sam Mims comes into print this week with about 200 names to a petition declaring that his service in the operation of Mims Ferry below Lay Dam has been satisfactory. Some weeks ago when the Commissioners of Coosa and Chilton had a joint meeting at the ferry it was said that Mr. Mim's services had been unsatisfactory to the public.

Tom Parrish in Hospital

Thomas M. Parrish, veteran of the World War, has been in Tuscaloosa Veterans Hospital for the past two weeks, suffering a serious affliction with pellagra.

Another Sick Soldier

Henry S. Murr, World War Veteran, has been seriously ill with blood poisoning for the past two weeks. He has been confined to his home near Mt. Springs. A cow kick him on the shin, after which infection set up, resulting in blood poisoning. He is reported better now. I went to see Henry with Dr. Gragg the other day. He talked bad about his soldier buddies not coming to see him while he was sick.

Letter From Judge Foshee

Had a letter from my old friend, Judge Enoch Foshee, at Lowndesboro, this week. He seems a little down in the dumps on account of sickness in his family. We hope the clouds of despair soon drift away, Judge, and that you may enjoy the return of cheerfulness and health to the entire household.

Agricultural experts are said to be disturbed over the appearance of the pink boll worm in Georgia. But if a shorter cotton crop is needed maybe it would be better to encourage the little fellow.

While the NRA leaders are urging that heads of industry get busy and push forward the reconstruction program it is barely possible that it would help some if the government should get its own construction program under way after these many weary months of delay.

THE MOUNTAIN SPRINGS HOME-COMING DAY SUNDAY

The people who cherish and love the traditions, accomplishments and hardships of old Mt. Springs Congregational church, gathered there last Sunday for what the sponsors chose to call a home-coming day. A very fitting program had been arranged, and the same was carried out without interruption.

The first part of the morning's program was given over to expressions of gratitude and remembrances of the past by old numbers and friends of Mt. Springs, these talks being interspersed by some numbers by the Lowery quartet. A brief history of the church in the past was given by Mrs. A. C. Nelson, wife of the pastor of the church. Some very interesting facts were embodied in this report. This was followed with a sermon by Rev. Elmer W. Butler, of Thorsby.

At noon everybody was invited out to a long table on which was spread barbecued meats, camp stew, and basket lunches. The dinner was fine and thoroughly enjoyed by all present. There was plenty left after all had enjoyed their fill.

In the afternoon there was singing in the new books. W. L. Sanders was chosen chairman. After the chairman arranged the class, the following singers were called upon to direct: Herbert Lowery, Fonza Cleckler, T. E. Wyatt, J. E. Minor, Floyd J. Little, Mrs. Lula Cleckler, Miss Lillie Mae Weldon, Marion W. Easterling, Jesse C. Jones and Gresham Lowery. Between about every two directors a number was sung by the Lowery Quartet. The quartet also sung several request numbers, and were called upon to sing two numbers the second time.

Visitors from out of Chilton County were: Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Golson of Fayette, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Golson; Mr. and Mrs. Fox Grantham and children; Mrs. Mary Davis; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Davis and family of Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rutherford and children of Chelsea, Ala.; Mrs. Lusinda Rhodes of Wetumpka; Mr. and Mrs. Wilkes and little daughter of Bessemer; Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Rutherford and son, Howard, of Tuskegee.

Many thanks are due those who helped prepare the tables and barbecue. In this respect special mention should be made of M. A. Rutherford, Ervin Williamson, Oscar Williamson, O. D. Rutherford, O. O. Rutherford Gene Gore, Lloyd Teel and Rudolph Moates. Mrs. Minnie Williamson was kind enough to lend her piano to the church for the day.

The day's program was a success from every standpoint, and everyone present seemed to enjoy the day to the fullest extent. The people of Mt. Springs certainly made their visitors feel welcome.

Miss Fannie Blassingame of Mt. Creek spent the week end with her aunt, Miss Mollie Hannon.

Early History Of Mt. Springs Church

The beginning of Mt. Springs church dates back to one and one-half decades after the close of the Civil War. About the year 1880 Rev. William Wells, father of Uncle Dock Wells, who died five or six years ago, began holding services under a bush arbor near the present site of Mt. Springs church. Soon after this a log house was erected, which was used both as a schoolhouse and as a church. Soon crowds attending became too large for the small log house, and another bush arbor was built. It was in this second bush arbor that the church was organized. The present building was erected a few years later, about 1885.

There were five charter members, namely: Rev. William Wells, Mrs. Jane Rutherford, Mrs. Martha Rutherford Davis, Miss Georgia Rutherford and Mr. George Mims. Of these five, only one is now living—Mrs. Martha Davis. The land for the church and cemetery was donated by Mr. George Mims.

All during his lifetime Uncle Dock Wells was profoundly interested in the church activities at Mt. Springs, and like his father before him, preached and worked there in their meetings, and no doubt accomplished much good in the name of his Master whom he loved and adored above all earthly things.

Teachers who taught in the old log schoolhouse were: Charley Robinson, Mr. Haroldson, Jerry Barnett and Miss Florence Sillman (was later married to Joe Gore). Prominent in the life of the community and the early church, besides the charter members already named, were Dick Rutherford, Ike Rutherford and Jap Farley. The latter was the father of J. B. Farley and Mrs. G. O. Foshee.

Mt. Springs church was first organized as a Congregational-Methodist church and remained so until about 1890. It was then changed into a Congregational church. Twenty-six years ago Mt. Springs church was the largest Congregational church in Alabama, it having about 130 members. The present deacons are Leander Giles, Ervin Williamson and H. H. Killgore. The trustees are: Marvin Rutherford, Paul Williamson and Lewis Carroll. Rev. A. C. Nelson is pastor, and he has held that position for the past five or six years. The present membership is 58.

ELEVEN ARRESTS THIS WEEK. FIFTEEN IN JAIL

The Sheriff's office reports eleven arrests the past week, as follows:

One for transporting liquor; one for assault to murder; six for violating the prohibition law; two for petit larceny; one for grand larceny.

The jail register Wednesday morning showed fifteen prisoners in confinement.

In Gov. B. M. Miller's opinion, no extraordinary occasion now exists that warrants calling the legislature into a special session.

Cary "Shot" Senn, stellar end on the 1932 undefeated Auburn Eleven, will teach and coach at Carbon Hill High School this year.

Alabama boys and girls from tots to seniors in college are moving towards the class room, as the entire education system of the state opens.

Death in the electric chair was ordered for Tom Brown, negro convicted on a charge of attacking a white woman by a Morgan County jury.

Mistaking her brother-in-law, Homer Fain, for an intruder, Mrs. Max Vickers shot and killed Fain at her home in Headland, it was reported.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deramus visited Verbena Sunday.

IN MEMORY OF ANDREW BONE

In the good year of 1898, God in His all-wise plan and purpose brought into this world as it were, a young and tender bud, which began to grow and very soon blossomed into a young manhood. This was in the person of the late Andrew W. Bone.

Mr. Bone was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver D. Bone and the grandson of the late Rev. Bone, whom a great host of friends in this county cherish with fond recollection.

Mr. Andrew Bone was a fine young man whom to know was to appreciate. The weather was never too cold nor the night too dark for Andrew to go to the relief and rescue of a friend. Andrew was very thoughtful of other people. He did not live to himself. He was a loving husband and a good father.

We cannot understand just why his stay here was so short except that he worked the works of his Father in heaven and then God saw fit to call him home. Andrew chose the good part, de did the wise thing in that he gave himself to God when a young man.

His sudden going was a great shock to his many friends and relatives, but God was in the going and He doeth all things well to them that love and serve him.

Andrew knew he was going and at the last told his wife that he was going, but that he was ready, so my friends, weep not as those that have no hope for God is able to take care of Andrew and at the same time care for and comfort you.

Therefore, I commend you to Him, who knoweth all thing and doeth all things well.—A friend of Andrew, J. Z. Mims.

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By DAN SMITH

"Manners—the final and perfect flower of noble character."
—William Winter.

There is indeed a great bit of truth in the above qutoation. Sure, we come to school to gain knowledge and learn how to apply it. But we should also watch our manners. If they need polishing, do so. Some people's manners are admirable while others, it is disgusintg to know, are horrible to behold. Let's create good manners. Be polite and courteous and people will speak well of you, which is a fine compliment. Under this comes talking while another is talking. This rule is probably violated in school more than in any other place. Watch it; it not only makes one think little of you but cuts down that conduct grade, which means a lot later in life.

Was that a real pep meeting in chapel last Friday? It was and how? That makes our football boys feel good. So let's yell for them and support them. They deserve it and more too. Cecil Jones helped in the cheer leading last Friday. That may have been a reason for the sudden outburst of school spirit. Nevertheless we want him up there again. Come on Clint.

How about the class elections in other classes?

The Senior Three class of 1933-34 at a class meeting last Thursday, elected their officers for the year. The office of the president will be filled by John Ezell; the vice president's office will be occupied by Jeanette Tiffin and the office of secretary-treasurer went to Pauline Plyler. The Senior Class made a fine selection when they elected the above officers. All of them have those qualities which go to make praise-worthy officers. With these students at the helm and the entire class putting all their efforts behind them with that splendid cooperation of which they are highly capable, there is no reason why the ship of the senoir class will not have a prosperous and happy cruise.

According to the compiling of the votes, this election was one of the closest in the history of this school. This should be a good thing, because those students who were also nominated would be helpful in committees because of their influence in the class.

Another victory for dear old C. C. H. S., the third of the season and it's not the last one either. Last Friday our winning football team, clicking like a machine "spanked" a fast but bemuddled Autauga High team 24 to 0. The entire team played as they have never played before. And did "Punchie" (Carl) Jones sweep around those ends behind the perfect blocking of Jesse Frank Foshee and "Gabby" Tiffin. We're proud of you other players too, and we don't mind saying so.

Some of the students bet against Chilton. Well, I hope they are satisfied.

Mr. Warr received a letter this week from C. W. Daugette, president of the State Teachers College at Jacksonville, informing him that that school would be able to offer assistance to not more than two graduates of last year or the year before, who are interested in obtaining a college education. These students are to be recommended by Mr. Warr. If there are any students who desire this offer please get in touch with Mr. Warr before October 23, the next date for entrance to the college. For more details drop by the office.

The Sr. II English class, under the direction of Miss Frances Gulledge, has spent several days in an interesting and instructive study of the Idylls of the King, by Thenyson. As result of this, several fine posters have been made by members of the class depicting, with pictures, different stories in the Idylls.

There were no objections to my statement last week about publishing an article about each teacher's life. So, dear fellow students, watch next week's column for the miniature biography of a member of our dear faculty, and each week afterwards. Yes, sir.

Imagine if you can: A school without chewing gum; a quite study hall on the Friday of a home game; Sara Hollis never laughing; the little Store on the corner without C. C. H. S. students; everyone talking Middle English style; the Seniors without (or with) dignity; the chemistry class without Joe Moore; any class under Mr. Varnell without John Ezell; the football boys not talking (how?) in the dressing room; and some more unimaginable things.

There was a record crowd at the football game last Friday and the gate receipts were the highest in several years. Boy, that sounds good. Let's advertise our next home game and put our athletics department out of the red.

WANT TO KEEP MIMS AT FERRY

In an article published in The Union-Banner, September 28, it was stated, in connection with the report of a joint meeting of the Commissioners of Coosa and Chilton Counties, that some dissatisfaction had been voiced about recent operations of Mims Ferry below Lay Dam.

Concerning this matter of the ferry's operation, Mr. Sam Mims, who has been operating the ferry, herewith publishes a statement signed by about 200 patrons of the ferry as follows:

To whom it may concern:

We, the undersigned, who are patrons of Mims Ferry across Coosa River, desire to state that we have found the service rendered at said ferry to be satisfactory at all hours, and wish to ask that the present management be continued.

MT. CARMEL

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Rev. A. S. Bentley is our pastor and delivered two good sermons. On Saturday He preached to us about "How to Build Our Church and Sunday School." On Sunday he told how Jesus loved sinners.

Our Sunday School is getting along very well, but we have plenty of room for improvement. We had some visitors with us Sunday and were glad to have them. They were Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cobern of Maplesville, and others from other places. We invite them back.

Our Sunday School meets every Sunday at ten o'clock except on the third Sunday, and that is our regular preaching day. On that day we meet at 1:30 for Sunday school and preaching at 2:30. Come and be with us next Sunday.—A member.

Lesson for October 22

PAUL IN ASIA MINOR

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-5, 13-15; 14:19-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. Mark 16:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Far Away Friends Hear About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Ship Sets Sail.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Send Missionaries Abroad?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Missionary Obligation.

I. The Beginning of Foreign Missions (vv. 1-12).

This marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the church.

1. The gifts of the church at Antioch (v. 1). Young as was Antioch, the new religious center, she had prophets and teachers. When Christ ascended on high, he gave gifts to men for the purpose of perfecting the saints unto the work of the ministry (Eph. 4:8-12). The church does not exist for itself, but for service to others.

2. First missionaries sent forth (vv. 2, 3). Barnabas and Saul were the first foreign missionaries. They went forth by the hands of the church at the command of the Spirit. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of God in prayer. They were directed to send forth those whom the Spirit called, teaching us that the real call for service comes from the Spirit. The Spirit called and the very best men were sent from the church at Antioch. Before sending forth the missionaries, there was a second season of prayer before laying hands upon them, indicating that ordination has its proper place in sending forth missionaries.

3. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4, 5). Because the gospel is "good news," it is natural for the missionary to go among his acquaintances. Christ commanded the one out of whom a demon had been cast to go to his own house and tell what great things the Lord had done for him (Luke 8:39).

4. Withstood by Elymas, the sorcerer (vv. 6-12). Elymas, under the influence of Satan, sought to turn the mind of Sergius Paulus from the Word of God, and to hinder the gospel as it entered upon its career of conversion of the heathen. Paul denounced him as full of guile and villainy.

II. Paul and Barnabas at Antioch in Pisidia (vv. 13-16).

From Cyprus Paul and Barnabas, with John Mark, went northward to Perga. Here, for some reason, Mark parted company with the missionaries, and returned home. We are not told as to why he went back, but it is a pleasure to know that he later redeemed himself. Before Paul's death, he spoke favorably of Mark, declaring that he had found him profitable unto the ministry (II Tim. 4:11). Reaching Antioch in Pisidia they entered a synagogue on the Sabbath day. Though Paul was now a missionary to the Gentiles, he did not depart from his custom—to go to the Jew first.

III. Paul and Barnabas Preaching the Gospel in Lystra (Acts 14:1-28).

1. At Iconium (vv. 1-7). Their experience here was much the same as at Antioch. They preached in the synagogue, causing a multitude of Jews and Gentiles to believe. The unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles to the most bitter persecution.

2. The attempt to worship Paul and Barnabas as gods (vv. 8-18). To escape the united assault of the Jews and Gentiles, they fled to Lystra and Derbe, where they preached the gospel. The healing of the lame man occasioned new difficulty. This man was a confirmed cripple, having never walked. On hearing Paul preach, faith was born in his heart (Rom. 10:17). When Paul perceived that he trusted Christ, he called with a loud voice so that all could hear for the man to stand upright. The cure was instantaneous for he leaped and walked. This miracle was so notable that the very thing which should have been a help now became a hindrance. The people sought to worship the missionaries.

3. The stoning of Paul (vv. 19, 20). Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with such relentless hate that they stirred up the people at this place, who had been willing to worship the missionaries, to stone them. This shows that satanic worship can soon be transformed into satanic hate. They not only stoned Paul, but dragged him out of the city for dead. God raised him up, and with undaunted courage Paul pressed on with his duties as a missionary bearing the good news to the lost.

The Name Jesus

If the name Jesus were left out of our prayers, our hymns, and our worship, we would mourn as if the rose were effaced from the cheek of morning, the sun were banished from the heavens, and the sweetest note stricken from the psalm of life.

Proof of Discipline

In his sufferings the Christian is often tempted to think himself forgotten. But his afflictions are the clearest proofs that he is an object of God's fatherly discipline.

Another Sermon From Eld. Blos'm

The Union-Banner is pleased to pass on to its readers this week another sermon from Elder Blossom, written in negro dialect, similar to the ones which we carried in the paper several months ago. Elder Blossom, or Rev. J. Robert Bean in reality, moved away from Clanton two months ago, after having been in this county about four years. He was pastor at Union Grove for all this time, and was the shepherd at Friendship for the latter three years. During his stay around here Rev. Bean made many warm and lasting friends, who, although they do not hear him preach now, cherish him and love him as a brother in Christ which he is.

Those who know Brother Bean and those of our friends who used to read Elder Blossom's sermons in The Union-Banner will be glad to get the chance of following him through another of his discourses. Below is the sermon:
